At the present day about ninety-six per cent. of all vessels built are of steel.

In 1892 the United States spent $155,000,000 for education, while Great Britain expended $35,000,000 and France only $25,000,000.

A German statistician has stated that if the present order of things does not change, in 3000 years hence there will only be one man to every 220 women.

In 1894 a locomotive is to be placed on the line between London and Edinburgh which will cover 100 miles an hour, and run to the northern capital in six hours.

It has been decided by a Seattle (Wash.) Justice that a man cannot be convicted of using vulgar language to an officer unless someone besides the policeman hears him.

Vermont has a greater percentage of improved land in proportion to its area than any other State except New York and Illinois, avers the Chicago Herald. The dairy product of Vermont reaches $27,000,000. The Green Mountain boys sell $1,250,000 worth of maple sugar every twelve months.

Of the 9785 men who enlisted in the United States Army last year twenty-five per cent. were laborers. Other callings were represented as follows: School teachers, 62; students, 26; druggists, 53; photographers, 13; musicians, 214; lawyers, 7; printers, 95; bookkeepers, 52; typewriters, 2; engineers, 75; cooks, 103; machinists, 106; farmers, about 1200; and no occupation, 86.

The days of the patient mule, as a canalboat motor, are probably numbered, remarks the New York News. Steam has been used as a propelling substitute with partial success, but there is now promise that the all potent agent, electricity, will propel the canal-boat of the future. Tests are to be made this week near Rochester, and experts have no doubt that the new motor will be found satisfactory in every respect.

Grocers everywhere report that there is little or no profit in granulated sugars, and housekeepers confirm this by saying that there is small economy in buying sugar by the keg. The tradition touching the small profit in handling sugars at retail is certainly more than 100 years old, for a writer in the middle of the last century informs that London grocers of that day were glad to get $300 to $350 a year for paper and pack thread used in wrapping loaf sugar, and some grocers would not sell sugar to a customer who did not at the same time purchase some other article of trade.

Says the Farm and Fireside: "The dressed meat business has grown to be of enormous magnitude. Many communities now depend largely for their fresh meat supplies on the great slaughtering establishments located at the principal cattle markets of the country. From these points dressed meats are shipped all over this country and also to Europe. The Secretary of Agriculture proposes to extend meat inspection to interstate trade. Heretofore meat inspection has been for the purpose of building up our foreign trade. Now home consumers are to have what advantages may be derived from it."

The workingmen of Milan, Italy propose to hold a grand international exposition for workingmen in that city in 1894, and have issued a circular asking workingmen the world over to send exhibits of the products of their skill. All workingmen are invited to participate, whether in large associations, in small ones, or singly. The exposition will be divided in three classes. 1. The products of individual workers; 2, the products of societies and associations of all sorts, and, 3, schools and educational institutions. All communications on the subject must be addressed to the committee, Bastioni Via Way, Milan, Italy.

Tramps are not viewed with favor in our sister Republic below the Rio Grande, notes the New Orleans Picayune. A gang of seven of these products of the higher American civilization crossed over into Mexico a few days ago and encamped near the town of Juarez. The local police soon got word of their presence, and they found themselves in jail forthwith. The next day the Mayor released them, with the information that if he saw them again they would get eleven months at hard labor. This is the penalty that the laws of Juarez awards to tramps, vagrants and others without visible means of support. All the same, Mexico has hosts of beggars.

The Happenings of a Day Chronicled in Brief and Concise Paragraphs

And Containing the Gist of the News From All Parts of the World.

The Wauskuk mills, at Providence, R. I., which have been idle for some time have resumed with 180 looms, about half the capacity of the concern.

The Italian government has notified the government of Spain that it is not possible at present for Italy to take special measures against the anarchists.

A special of Wednesday from Wildwood, Fla., the scene of the war between the races, says everything is quiet and the Tampa and Ocala Rifles have returned to their homes.

Governor Turney, of Tennessee, Wednesday, appointed John R. Thomason to be county judge of Weakly county and W. G. M. Thomas to be police commissioner at Chattanooga.

The state of North Carolina has now 925 convicts at work ditching and clearing new lands at its great leased farm on Roanoke river. This is the largest number of convicts it has ever had thus employed.

The remains of the late Alfred D. Jones, consul general to Shanghai, passed through Washington City, Wednesday morning on their way to his former home in Raleigh, N. C., where the interment is to be made.

What seems to have been an attempt to burn the western part of the city of Lima, Ohio, was made Wednesday night. Several dwellings were set on fire simultaneously. The officers are working on the case, but have no clue as yet.

Governor Northern of Georgia has appointed Mr. Thomas P. Stovall, honorary commissioner of direct trade and immigration and Colonel I. W. Avery as assistant commissioner. These two offices were created by a recent act of the legislature.

The executive committee of the trustees of the North Carolina agricultural and mechanical college met at Raleigh Wednesday and applied for the detail of Lieutenant Richard Henderson, of the United States navy, as instructor of military tactics.

Contrary to expectation the evidence in the Howard case was closed at Jackson, Tenn., Wednesday and court passed over the night session—that counsel might prepare for argument, which opened Thursday morning.

At a conference of Doran Bros., of Philadelphia, with their employes Tuesday, the latter agreed to accept a reduction of 10 per cent in their wages and the big ingrain carpet mill, which has been closed since November 26, will be started up at once, giving employment to about 400 hands.

Mr. Boardman, of the firm of Tracy, Boardman & Platt, of New York city, appeared Wednesday before Judge Wallace, of the United States court, and asked that a temporary receiver be appointed for the New York and New England railroad. Judge Wallace, at this request, appointed the Hon. T. C. Platt, who is one of the directors of the company, as temporary receiver.

A Columbia, S. C., special of Wednesday says: Governor Tillman is finding up his loins preparatory to handling the blind tiger in his lair, and according to reports he will in week's time make a grand effort to sweep this great enemy of the dispensary from the face of the earth. In fact, he is devoting his exclusive time to preparing the attack now that the legislature has given him a law fashioned by his own hand and according to his design.

A Charleston special says: Constable Swan goes to Barnwell jail in charge of a deputy United States marshal. Wednesday afternoon Swan appeared at the jail in Charleston where was left the barrel of whisky which got him into trouble, and showed an order from Governor Tillman directing the sheriff to deliver the barrel to him. Swan then delivered it to the officers of the South Carolina company. Swan's absence is three months and until the costs in the case are paid.

Henry C. Paine, one of the Northern Pacific receivers, says he does not expect the employes of the road to accept the reduction of pay under the order of the United States court without struggle. If they do strike, he says there will be no trouble in filling their places. Scores of applicants for positions have applied from railways all over the country. Mr. Paine declined to express any opinion on the contention of the men that it was with bad grace that the receivers ordered the cut after applying for a yearly salary of $18,000 a piece.

A special of Wednesday from Bessemer, Ala., says: It is stated on good authority that New York and Nashville capitalists, who are already largely interested in this section, have entered into an arrangement with the rolling mill company to start the mill up at once. The non-residents will furnish the money to put the plant in prime condition, and will provide ample capital to run it with. They are negotiating with a gentleman for manager who is considered probably the most capable furnace and rolling mill man in the south. Bessemer is greatly rejoiced at the prospect.

A Chicago dispatch of Wednesday says: Chris Smith, owner of the Kendall stables, who has recently been in hard luck, is in danger, it is reported, of losing the great racing mare, Yo Tambien. Smith sometime ago gave a bill of sale to Leo Mayer, a well-known Chicago sport, to secure a loan of $7,500. This bill of sale, which was on Yo Tambien, was considered merely a matter of form as the mare is said to be worth more than double that sum. Mayer is a heavy creditor of Smith, and the latter is afraid his mare will be seized on the bill of sale, and will, he says, fight the case vigorously.

A Jacksonville, Fla., dispatch of Wednesday says: It has been decided to have the principals in they coming prize fight arrested in order to make a test case in the courts. The suit will be a perfectly friendly one, instigated by the supporters of the Duval Athletic Club. Warrants will be issued and served on Corbett at Mayport and on Mitchell at his hotel in Jacksonville. Both men will be taken before Judge Call and as soon as the plead "not guilty" to the charge of agreeing to engage in a prize fight, their attorney, Colonel A. W. Cockrell, will ask for a writ of habeas corpus and the case will have to be decided then and there without any bail being given.

In regard to the readjustment of wages at the Homestead, Beaver Falls, Upper and Lower Pittsburg mills of the Carnegie Steel Company for 1894, Mr. Frick, the chairman, states that the wages paid at Homestead to date were those offered the amalgamated association, in June, 1892, before the strike, the daily earnings thereunder being higher per capita than those which prevailed before the strike. While the readjustment meant a reduction in tonnage rates, if business could be secured, the radical improvements made in the machinery and methods would enable the employes to earn much higher wages than would be made at any other works in this country.

WILL FIGHT FOR SILVER.

Business Men of Colorado Adopt Resolutions on That Line.

Six hundred delegates, representing nearly every municipality in the state, attended the business men's convention in Denver, Col., Thursday. Governor Waite, who was present by invitation, promised to give careful consideration to any reasons which the convention might advance against calling the legislature in special session as proposed by him.

"I am in favor," he said, "of fighting for the free coinage of silver at 16 to 1, not all the summer, but till hell freezes over."

Resolutions were adopted denying that there existed sufficient reason for calling an extra session of the legislature and declaring such a course would do the state more harm than good. The resolutions also recited that Colorado had almost entirely recovered from the panic and while the state had been grievously wounded by the demonetization of silver, her other resources, such as gold, coal and agriculture were developing wonderfully.

UNEMPLOYED WORKMEN

Of Pittsburg, Pa., Apply to City Officials for Work.

A Pittsburg, Pa., dispatch says: Between fifteen hundred and two thousand unemployed men called at the city hall Tuesday and applied for work in the parks at 10 cents an hour. It was an orderly crowd, but all were anxious to secure employment. The surging crowd broke down the strong doors leading into the department of public works. Chief Clerk Benjamin made a speech telling them there would be no orders given there, but to go to the station house, but the men did not seem to understand him. Then the police was called out Superintendent O'Mara would not allow force to be used, and the officers were powerless. The men were finally convinced that they could get work at the station house, and they quietly left.

WOMEN FIGHT A ROBBER

Who Had Entered Their Home in Quest of Booty.

A masked burglar entered the house of Mrs. Ellen Kelly, five miles southwest of Argentine, Mo., Sunday. She and her daughter Eliza live alone and there was considerable money in the house. The women awakened to find the burglar in their presence. Mrs. Kelly got hold of a long sharp corn knife and a three-cornered struggle followed. The robber received a wound in the head inflicted with the knife, and he beat both the women badly about the head and face with his feet, while the daughter received two severe wounds in the head inflicted by the robber with the corn knife. Finally the daughter succeeded in giving the alarm and neighbors came to their assistance. A large posse is in pursuit of the robber, and a lynching is not improbable. Mrs. Kelly is seventy years old.

Their Resignations Announced.

A cable dispatch of Thursday from Rome, Italy, says: The vice president of the chamber of deputies announced the resignation of Signors Sanardelli and Crispi and other prominent members of the chamber of deputies, including that of the Marquis di Rudini. Admiral Brin urged that the resignations should not be accepted, whereupon, they were rejected almost unanimously, only a few socialists pronouncing themselves against the motion.

A Postmaster Arrested.

In the United States court at Jacksonville, Fla., Thursday, Postmaster W. H. Merrill was arraigned before Commissioner Walter on the charge of embezzling funds of the government to a large amount. The case was worked up by Postoffice Inspector Fred D. Peer, who discovered some time ago a shortage in Merrill's money order accounts.

A Song To Love.

Life has, for all its wintry ways,
Its beautiful, sweet yesterdays;
Its memories of the days of old
Rainbowed in red and regal gold;
Life has, for all its wintry ways,
Its beautiful, sweet yesterdays!

Life has a place where men,
By mountain, hill and glen,
May lay them down a while to rest
Where God makes pillows for each breast;
And there, God will, for every jest,
They will find rest—they will find rest!
—F. L. Stanton in Atlanta Constitution.

DEAD AND HALF DEAD.

BY WILLIAM ALBERT LEWIS.

I.

One of those delightful pictures where a giant elm rears its spreading foliage far above the moss-grown roof of a simple weather-beaten, one-story cottage; before the threshold of which passes the seldom traveled turnpike. About the doorway evidences of the cultivating hand of woman. About the yard manifestations of agricultural industry. In the harvest-bearing fields proof of the vigilance and ambition of the true farmer.

Sitting under the tree an aged woman. Sightless eyes in the head that never turns; voiceless lips that continually move; dead to all sound the ears that show their thin, transparent outline between tidied locks of white.

It may not be sad, nor melancholy, to descend the pathway of life if our senses remain acute; but when the better part of life's inborn companions have deserted us—alas, the misery!

Before this patient woman who was deaf, dumb and blind, sat the lord of this simple manor—Venable Abbott. He was not bowed, nor decrepit, nor had any of his senses deserted him. How these two had kept their bond! For twenty years had Venable Abbott been eyes, and ears and voice for his faithful Hannah. True, there was little cause for interchange of mind, for they had but one common thought—their daughter. Mother knew full well that father would do all that was best and right for the divine beauty who had been born beneath the old elm, aye, and the tree as tall and ample as now.

Up through the clover field came this paragon of loveliness. By her side a handsome man, one of the campers in the near-by woods—a city chap, well-versed.

"Elsie seems very fond of him," said old Venable to himself. "They certainly make a handsome couple. I thought I heard something like a kiss when they parted at the door last night; but I can't trust my ears for sure. I was probably mistaken."

Venable watched them approach. Elsie with a serious countenance; her escort animated and earnest.

"Good afternoon, Mr. Abbott."

"Good afternoon, sir."

"May I see you a moment, please!"

"You may, sir."

"I would like to speak to you privately."

"What can be more private than this, Mr. Collingham?" and the old man waved his hand sweepingly.

Elsie went into the house, and handsome Mr. Collingham threw himself languidly upon the grass. Mr. Abbott, bareheaded, settled back in his chair, folded his hands across his ample stomach and looked inquiringly at his guest.

"Mr. Abbott," began the lover, "you have doubtless observed quite an attachment springing up between your Elsie and myself?"

He paused for some remark; for farmer Abbott was looking far away toward the blue hills.

"I am, as you may be aware," he continued, "of the old Collingham family of New York. I am engaged in business with my father. I am an only son. I will inherit his estate, which is very considerable, I may remark. And I have learned to love your Elsie until she is indispensible to my happiness. Briefly, sir, I want your permission to win her for my wife."

Young Collingham raised his eyes to those of his sweetheart's father. Old Venable was leaning forward in his chair, his hands resting on his knees, while he stared into the sightless eyes of his wife. Great tears welled up into the soft blue orbs of the agitated old man as he said slowly and huskily:

Would to God, sir, her mother, could hear you speak those words! Oh, if she could only see your face when you say you love our Elsie!"

Roughly he brushed the tears away with the palm of his hard, brown hand, and continued:

"I have no doubt what you say is true, Mr. Collingham. If Elsie wants you I shall not oppose. You may be a rich man's son, or you may be as poor as we are; but if you are as honest a man as you look, sir, and you'll be good to her, and she tells me she loves you, then she's yours, sir, she's yours! Elsie! Elsie!"

The beautiful creature slowly emerged from the house and approached her father. Standing close beside his chair she placed her arm about his neck, and, laying her face against his, she said:

"What is it, papa?"

"Mr. Collingham has asked me to give you to him, Elsie. Do you want to be his wife? Do you love him, Elsie?"

The superb form sank beside the rugged old man, and the sweeping tresses of gold tumbled into his lap as she buried her face and said, softly:

"Yes, papa I love him."

The old man raised her face in his trembling hands, and turned it so her eyes rested upon her mother's expressionless countenance, he said, half audibly:

"Elsie, repeat those words looking at mother. Repeat them as if she were looking at you and could hear what you said."

"Yes, I love him." The words came firmly, and the gaze was unwavering.

The old man arose, crossed to his wife, and laid his hand gently on hers. Instantly she arose and placed her arm on his.

"Mr. Collingham," said old Venable, his voice quivering and his eyes dim, "she is yours. I'll take mother in the house and tell her about it."

II.

It was a dark, stormy night in late winter. Venable Abbott and his afflicted wife had lived alone for two years. Those years had made great changes in both. The mother accustomed to Elsie's touch in the early morning, when the devoted daughter had dressed her for the day, soon declined to rise at all. She failed rapidly. Was it loneliness? Are the deaf and dumb and blind ever otherwise than lonely? She grew pallid; and whenever thoughtful old Venable ran up from the field to press her hands and stroke her brow and make her more easy he always found her in tears. This had its effect upon the devoted husband; and he watched eagerly for the letters from Mrs. Collingham. When they arrived he placed the perfumed paper and envelope in her hands, and she would carry them to her nostrils and smile and crone over them and bury them under her pillow and weep. There she kept all her daughter's letters, falling into a habit of feeling under her pillow every few minutes. It was her diversion.

This dismal night Venable sat in the old-fashioned kitchen reading his bible by the light of a candle. This was his nightly custom before retiring. Suddenly he felt a strange sense of suffocation. He caught at his collar to remove the choking. Then he felt prone by apoplexy and expired in the insensibility of the succeeding few minutes.

In the adjoining room lay the deaf, mute and blind partner of his life. She was soundly slumbering, and felt no jar of Venable's falling body.

Morning dawned.

A superb equipage, occupied by a handsome man, a lovely women and a sweet faced infant, drew up in front of the low cottage, under the great, sighing elm.

The man sprang out and assisted his companion.

"Now, don't say a word, Harry, dear. Keep just as still as you can. Let me go in first. I want to surprise dear old papa and mamma."

With a merry laugh Elsie tripped up to the old battered door, listened a moment at the keyhole, then shaking her hand cautioningly to her husband, whispered:

"S'hush! I guessed they are sound asleep!"

Elsie, holding the baby proudly in her arms, opened the door and entered.

Grandpa dead! Grandma half-dead.

Thus it is some lives glide mutely along the tide of life, in some cases bereft of every sensibility at a blow, the useless vessel of clay is abandoned by the vaulting spirit, and it stiffens upon the shore of time. In other cases the dismantling is partial and periodical; and the helplessness of the drifting craft increases, until total wreck becomes a consummation devoutly to be wished.—[Chicago Record.

Lassoed a Wildcat.

Among the visitors at the office of the Board of Supervisors yesterday was John Brice, a 15-year-old boy who is herding cattle a few miles below the city. Master Brice's purpose in calling was to claim the bounty on a wildcat scalp which he brought with him, and to show that the scalp was genuine he also brought along the skin from which the scalp was detached.

Day before yesterday, while riding across the range, he discovered the cat lying asleep in the shade of a tree. He rode up to it without waking it and struck it a stunning blow on the head with the butt of a heavy whip. The blow served only to inaugurate a fight, and the boy was compelled to give the cat a wider berth. He was unarmed, and so relied on his lariat. He made several throws, which the cat evaded, all the time approaching the horseman, who was more than once disposed to give up the fight. Occasionally the cat would seize the lasso and tear it viciously. At last a successful throw fastened it, and the ferocious animal was dragged to death. It was a magnificent specimen and weighed fifty pounds.—[Phœnix (Ari.) Republican.

Very Reserved.

Mr. Lovett (an accepted suitor.)—"Here, Willy; I want to ask you something on the quiet. When your sister was at the seashore this summer, did she keep the young men at a distance?"

Willy.—"You bet she did! Why, she'd take 'em 'way, 'way down the beach, and keep 'em there till meal time!"—[Puck.

Eyes With Double Pupils.

The anableb, a fish that inhabits the rivers of Guiana, has two pupils to each eye, an upper and a lower one. When this fish is swimming it keeps this upper optic, which protrudes above the head, out of the water.

Of That Opinion Still.

The Wife—"You, at first, my dear, the doctor thought that your recent sick spell had affected your brain."

The Husband—"He still thinks so, it seems, from the bill he sent in yesterday."—[Truth.

The Potato Game.

A novel scheme is being perpetrated on the public by a number of vegetable dealers in St. Louis. The scheme is unique and a paying one, for the city marketer is no judge of the products palmed off upon him.

Last week marketers were rather surprised to see displayed at the stands what purported to be new potatoes selling at 15 cents a small measure, the measure containing not over a dozen small potatoes. The obliging attendants at the stands, upon inquiry, relieved themselves of the information that the potatoes came from the Bermuda Islands. The customer accepted these statements and purchased lavishly of the delicacy.

"Where are your new potatoes!" asked a reporter yesterday of one of the stand proprietors, whose display was conspicuous by the absence of the new potatoe.

"New potatoes!" he ejaculated. "There are none in the market at this time of the year."

"But all the other stands have them."

"Oh, I understand what you mean. A man came to me the other day and wanted to sell me a supply of new potatoes. I laughed at him. He then told me that he had a process of taking old potatoes and making them appear as new, and the public would never know the difference. He said that he picked out the smaller and less salable of the old potatoes and buried them for a few days. During this time the eyes began to sprout and the covering became fresh-looking, and when washed resembled new potatoes. When he had completed his story I told him that I respected my customers and would handle none of his goods."—[St. Louis Republic.

A Fresh Triumph Over Waste.

Much exultation is felt in the vicinity of the coal-fields of South Staffordshire over the development of a new industry. Mounds of "shale," a refuse clay from the mines, covers hundreds or acres of ground, and after considerable experimenting, it has been found that this material can be worked up into bricks as red and hard as those from the clay ordinarily employed. The demand for the new bricks, the first distrust having been overcome, is now rapidly increasing. As a result, the unsightly hillocks of shale are being prepared for the kilns, and the land they have covered will be soon reclaimed for useful purposes. This success has turned attention to the vast deposits of scoria from blast furnaces in the same district. The scoria has been used for roads, but is unfit for this purpose on account of its ready crumbling; and some trials made indicate that it may be fused with some other substance and moulded into brick that will be serviceable where beauty of color is not important.—[Christian Standard.

Insect Science.

The greatest bridge builder in the world is the spider. There is a point on the Moramec river not far from the Missouri Pacific bridge where a large spider made a bridge across, a distance of over 100 feet. He first sent out a flyer, a sort of kite string, which was carried across the stream by the breeze and lodged in a tree opposite. It was then braced by guys to other branches, and thus fifty feet above the water was a perfect suspension bridge. In comparison with this insect work the Niagara and Brooklyn bridges are trifling.—Boston Globe.

A Change of Method.

Maud—"Did he? Then he must have got rid of them in some other way."—[Truth.

The VIEW begins the New Year under encouraging circumstances. When its present editor bought the the paper last summer it had quite a small subscription list. Besides, there was considerable bitterness manifested towards the paper by many of our citizens, those who were once its friends were giving it the cold shoulder. By a conservative straight forward course the subscription list has been nearly doubled. The policy of the paper for the new year is not to be changed. While doing its best to uphold what is conceived to be right, it hopes to prove that it is possible for even a partisan to treat its opponents fairly and honorably.

The old year with its joys, sorrows, trials, defeats and successes is a thing of the past. Thanking an Alwise Creator for bringing us thus far, let us boldly face the front and determine that the new year shall be used to the very best advantage. Faith in the God that reigns and rules above us, faith in ourselves and faith in our fellow man will enable us to go through the year with joyous hearts, breasting every storm, believing that behind frowning providences God hides a smiling face. Human happiness does not depend upon what others do or fail to do, but upon how each one acts his own part. In this country many of us have waited for better times to come, hoping that Congress would give us relief from financial distress, or believing that this or that political party would bring the needed help, let us put these ideas behind us as hindrances, and nerve our own heart and arm to make us independent. Beginning the year by carefully studying our business, planning to avoid the mistakes and extravagances of last year, economizing time and money, it is possible for us to be happy, and in comfortable circumstances by the close of this new year. That such shall be the condition of every one of our readers is the heartfelt wish of the VIEW.

Scarcely a community in all this broad country passed through the Christmas holidays without being shocked by seeing men and boys giving exhibitions of themselves in public while drunk. Even the church services were interrupted in places by the presence and conduct of drunken men. The permission of such conduct is a disgrace upon any community that allows it. In some communities citizens have had the boldness to have such characters arrested and tried, but generally those who comdemn said practices have not the moral courage to take the steps to suppress them. Afraid of personal injury, afraid of injury to business, afraid of hurting feelings are the grounds upon which some excuse their neglect of duty. Meanwhile lawlessness increases, disregard for public opinion, contempt for the house of God grows stronger in the minds of those evilly disposed. The good name of the community is scandalized, so that people who might otherwise move in and become useful citizens choose other localities. Young boys seeing that public drunkness and public profanity are treated so lightly find great encouragement to form the same pernicious habits. We earnestly ask the citizens of Chilton County if we are to make no effort to check such crimes against society, decency and against law? Some think that it is the duty of the county solicitor to report and prosecute law breakers. It is the duty of every citizen knowing of a violation of law to make an affidavit before the county judge of such violation, then it becomes the duty of the county solicitor to prosecute the offender. This duty he will perform regardless of the high standing, low standing, wealth or poverty of the one arraigned. The officers of Chilton County stand ready to do their parts, but they must have the co-operation of the good people of the county or their efforts will prove futile.

"Ye Tackeedeedum, or Any Other Dum, Rusticus, or Any Other Cuss."

Editor Advertiser.

Rusticus says in your issue this week, "he never saw a farmer in all his life, who was not a pessemist.

He must have been careless in his observations or else he thinks every man like himself an out and out pessemist. My observation and experience has been, that every man who lives off the products of his farm is an out and out optimist.

It is a pity that Rusticus should write in such mournful numbers, just at a time when so many land holders need to be encouraged. It seems to me, that a man of his sense should have said to those who have moved to town and left their plantations to the management of men not capable, gentlemen you have made the greatest mistake of your lives in leaving your old homes. It will not only ruin you, but your lands as well will suffer. I wish he had said go back in sufficient numbers to form communities large enough to protect one another every way. Ten or twelve families in a neighborhood can have their own social circle, schools and churches. There is no other alternative left, in the black belt. There could be found no nicer spot on earth to live than in the black belt if the farm were restored to their ante-bellum days. Montgomery county was once the land of milk and honey and it will be so again, when men of intelligence settle on farms for the purpose of living and making a paradise of their homes. I freely admit, the out look for another year is gloomy to those who do not make their supplies. Such, no doubt are taking a pesimistic view of everything, just as Rusticus does, but there are men in every beat who make buckle and tongue meet and sometimes lap over a little. The example of these men is scattering the leaven which will leaven the whole lump after a while. These fertile lands must be redeemed, the necessities of the country demand it, and it will be done, although Rusticus would make people beyond our State lines believe we were at the point of starvation. I am too much of an optimist to believe that the lands of the black belt will ever be abandoned to the owls and bats or continued to be butchered by a class of men too ignorant to make a living on them.

The negro, when controlled is an average farm laborer, but he is not capable of enough forethought to provide himself a living, even on the very best of land. He is able and willing to do the work, but wholly incapable to think what is best for himself, therefore, intelligent white men must go back to the old homes to direct the labor of the negro, so as to raise grass and corn and meat, with everything else to support the farms, now so dilapidated.

Rusticus tells a great deal of truth in his short article, but it sounds so much like "Hark from the tomb a doleful sound," that I am compeled to enter my protest against all such misleading articles Rusticus says that "he does not own a foot of land, but lost it years ago." Had he stayed on the land he once owned, and had intelligently directed the labor of Cuffee as he no doubt would, he would to day have been an optimist of the truest type.

I have been persuaded for years, the time would come, when the landlords would see the wrong they had done themselves in leaving their homes, and when they see it, as see it they will, they would proceed as manly men will to retrace their wrong steps and with joyful hearts return to their proper places.

The negro is here, and here to stay, so far as I can see, and he must be fed and clothed. All close observers know that he will not do this by his way of managing, but somebody must think for him and no one is more suitable or capable to do this than those who know him best.

Claiming the right to direct the labor of the colored man will not be objectionable to him when he the land owner is capable of providing a living not only for the colored man, but will make a decent living for himself and a little money.

Rusticus is surely mistaken when he says there are plantations in Montgomery County of 1,000 acres, where one hundred could not be found that would make five bushels of corn to the acre. I do not believe that Rusticus intended to say so, for there is but little land anywhere in Montgomery county, but will make more than stated above. Rusticus means well, no doubt, but his music is too dirge like to suit the hustler.

J. R. McLendon.
Naftel, Ala.

The caption is taken from Ely Freeman's farewell reply to a correspondent with whom Freeman had been in controversy for some time. The correspondent signed himself "Rusticus." I believe the former Rusticus was Mr. Bibb of this county.

The controversy occured in the Southern plantation over twenty years ago.

Our "Savage Delight."

Memphis Commercial.

An esteemed Republican contemporary remarks that "the Memphis Commercial seems to contemplate the fears and apprehensions excited by the Wilson bill with savage delight." You are right, old boy: that's the name for it—savage delight. We have what you might call a barbaric thrill, as it were, every time we hear a snort of of terror or a grunt of agony from a protected monopolist. No naked Indian savage ever danced around his victim with more pleasure than we derive from the writhings and howlings of the tariff burglars and highwaymen as they are being carted out to execution. It may be savage, cruel, barbaric, but we can't help it.

Yet, we were not always thus. Time was our senses would have cooled to hear a night-shriek or anything of that sort. We have got used to it, sitting up of nights with this Brobdignagian infant industry, with lungs like a bellows, a belly like a balloon and an appetite like a cemetery. That's what has soured the sweet-milk of our disposition and made fierce and ferocious a heart that was once as soft as the head of a mugwump.

Hog Cholera Cure.

I. A. Dodge, of Grady, Texas, says he has an infallible cure for hog cholera. Here it is:

"Put one-half teaspoonful of pure carbolic acid in a gill of sweet milk and pour down the hog. When the farmer sees any symptoms of cholera among his hogs, especially when one or two have died, drive every hog and pig in a close pen, let one man catch the hog by both ears and sit the hog up with his back between his legs, while another man opens the hog's mouth with a stick, and the medicine being in a long neck, heavy bottle is easily poured down. Care should be taken not to drench one twice. Twice the amount will kill. Every hog, sick or well, on the farm, and surrounding farm, should be drenched.

This is cheap, and very easily applied remedy; but like the Sherman repeal law, every other farmer will let his and his neighbor's hog die, without giving it a fair trial. There is too much or too little carbolic acid in the remedy, and they won't touch it saying, "Root hog or die."

Prof. J. M. Dewberry, who has been connected with the Alabama Printing Company for the past two or three years, has sold his interest in that company and will give his time and attention to educational work, for which he was educated and in which he spent eight or ten years of his life. He continues the management of his paper, the Educational Exchange, and also the school agency. Prof. Dewberry will not leave Montgomery, but proposes to make this city his permanent home.—Montgomery Advertiser.

$2,000 IN GOLD.

To Be Distributed In Gifts Next Year.

Everybody is interested in the size of this cotton crop, upon the estimation of it depends whether the cotton will go up or down.

Realizing this wide spread interest the Montgomery Advertiser has offered $2,000 in gifts to be distributed among those who come nearest to the correct estimate. The first prize is $750 and on down to $50.

The only condition of guessing is sending a new subscriber, a renewal or a new subscriber to The Semi-Weekly Advertiser. That paper is the best and cheapest an Alabamian can get for the general news, for it sends out two papers a week, one on Tuesdays and one Fridays, for only one dollar a year, and each contains 12 times as much State news as any other paper in the land. Now is the time to subscribe, because a lively campaign is just opening, while the fight in Congress on the tariff is at hand.

Postmasters, agents and club raisers will be interested learning that not only is each subscriber entitled to a guess, but the person who sends in names is entitled to a guess for every name sent. The more names sent the greater likelihood of getting $750 in gold.

Sample copies of the Semi-Weekly Advertisor, agent's terms, blanks, etc., sent to any address. Apply to that paper at Montgomery, Ala.

Important Notice.

We believe in Printers' Ink and when we have anything special to offer, we let the people know about it through the newspapers, which we consider the best medium. But there is a vast difference in newspapers and we desire to use those mediums from which we get the best results. In order to decide for our own benefit we make the following proposition:

A party was given Christmas week to the young people by Mrs. Rainee.

Mrs. G. O. Logan, of Verbena, visited relatives in Clanton this week.

Don't forget that the VIEW can be paid for in wood and country produce.

Miss Kate Bradley spent Xmas. holidays at La Pine, Ala., with her parents.

Schools have opened for the New Year and our little friends are buckling down.

Mr. Frank Dunkin, of Birmingham, has been on a visit to relatives here recently.

The entire VIEW force, enjoyed a dinner on Tuesday with the family of Rev. J. G. Lowrey.

Diploma Flour beats them all.
W. L. Sampey.

Christmas passed off quietly and pleasantly in our town, no fights or other disturbances.

A party was given the young people Tuesday night, Christmas week, at Mr. W. L. Sampey's.

Mr. William Gore has moved into his home near town. We welcome all such families to Clanton.

Mr. E. M. Pinkard spent Christmas in Memphis, Tenn., and reports himself as spending a lively time.

Prayer meeting at the Baptist church has been changed to Tuesday night for the convenience of Rev. J. G. Lowrey.

W. L. Sampey.

The weather was so inclement the District meeting announced to be held at Maple Springs Church was not held.

Dr. A. E. Bivings and family expect to leave for Texas at an early date where they contemplate making their future home.

The Christmas tree at the Baptist Church was a success; many little hearts were made glad by the kind remembrances.

Rev. J. G. Lowery will preach next Sunday at Wiuterboro. He will then decide whether or not he can give Clanton the first Sunday.

The young men of town treated the community to a first class minstrel during Christmas week. The proceeds of the entertainment goes toward building a fence around the cemetery.

Mr. F. N. Jones was called by telegram last week to the bedside of his mother at Hanceville. We are glad to report Mrs. Jones better, and to see "the governor" back.

We regret to learn that our old friend, Mr. Aldridge, is quite unwell. His son, J. H. Aldridge has been with him for sometime, but returned to Birmingham Wednesday.

Mr. Charley Hannon spent Christmas in Clanton with his mother and sister. He is now located in Texas and is much pleased with that State, and his friends are rejoiced to know that he has a good position.

Mr. J. P. Vanderveer gave a sociable to the social young people of our town last Thursday night. Mr. Vanderveer enjoys seeing the young people enjoy themselves and as the number increases the more enjoyable they seem to these young enjoyers of enjoyment.

Mr. J. M. Potts was married to Miss Mary Rinehcart, of Birmingham on the 28th ult. Mr. and Mrs. Potts have gone to housekeeping here in the pretty little cottage which he has recently completed for the purpose, and Clanton congratulates and welcomes them as one to the community.

Our tax-collector has done his best to collect all the taxes of the county so as to relieve both State and county finances. One would have to travel some distance to find a more prompt or obliging official than Mr. Gentry.

Mr. R. E. Roper and family, of Lily, P. O., are greatly distressed because of the disappearance of their son Walter, aged 17 years. They will gladly welcome him home, and will thankfully receive any information concerning his whereabouts. State papers will please copy.

Sheriff Moore returned last Friday night from Pensacola whither he went for Alex Shelton, the murderer of Mr. James Harris. He found him pretty badly hurt, but managed to land him safely in the Montgomery jail. Mr. Moore said he was very kindly treated by the officers and citizens of Pensacola.

Mr. B. W. Garner, of Maplesville, has been appointed by Gov. Jones as Registrar for Chilton County. So far as we can learn this appointment will give entire satisfaction. Mr. Garner is a Democrat, and at the same time a man in whose honesty and fairness all parties have confidence. We believe he will discharge his duty faithfully.

Our wide awake tax assessor has already begun his rounds for the New Year. He will meet the people at Jones' Store, Jan. 5th; Providence Church, beat 5, on the 6th; Stanton & Dixie 9th, Chilton 10th, Clantonford 11, Fletcher's mill 12, Kincheon 13, Chambers' grist mill 15th, Welch and Bros. mill 16th, Valley Creek Church 17th, R. One of the sadest accidents that ever befell a happy household was the one which, on last Tuesday evening, 26th ult., caused the bright and happy little son, Joe, of Mr. J. H. Marbury, of Bozeman, to meet death by a gun while he was hunting. While resting on a log, his gun slipped from his grasp, causing it to discharge and the load to take effect in his stomach. The little fellow lived for 5 hours afterwards and was conscious until 10 minutes before his death. He was interred in the Bozeman cemetery amid a large concourse of sympathetic friends; Rev. J. M. McCord performing the ceremony.

FOR THE INDUSTRIOUS.
If you want work that is pleasant and profitable send us your address immediately. We teach men and women how to earn from $20.00 per day to $3,000 per year without having had previous experience, and furnish the employment at which they can make that amount. Nothing difficult to learn or that requires much time. The work is easy, healthful and honorable, and can be done during leisure or all the time, wherever you live. The result of a few hours' work proves what you can depend on realizing. We have taught those who were poor as well as rich, young as well as old, to earn from $20.00 to $3,000 per year, and we can teach you. Some have earned that amount the first month or two after starting. All who engage at once can secure a handsome profit and permanent employment. Capital not required. We will start you. Those who commence at once will soon be able to command the whole business in their locality. Every one who is in need of constant employment, should write us at once for full particulars. Delays are dangerous. Address

Smallness Extraordinary.

At the London fair of 1743 William Mountney, a jeweler, exhibited a shell of a common Barcelona nut containing a tea table, tea board, a dozen cups and saucers, a sugar dish, a bottle, a funnel, 18 drinking cups, 6 punch bowls, 10 rummers, a pestle and mortar and two sets of ninepins, all of polished ivory. Boverick, a rival tradesman, soon afterward outdid the genius of his fellow craftsman. This last named artist exhibited the half of a common cherry stone, from which he would take a table, 12 chairs with skeleton backs, a mirror neatly framed, two dozen soup plates, 6 saucers, 12 spoons and a dozen knives and forks, 2 salt cups and figures of lady and gentleman, whom he seated at the table.

Doyle, the antiquarian, says: "This same Boverick also made an ivory camel, perfect in all its parts, so small that it could easily be passed through the eye of a common sewing needle; also six pairs of scissors so small that they could all be hidden under the wing of a fly, and a gold chain of 200 links, to which a miniature padlock and key were welded, yet all were of such minute dimensions that upon being attached to a flea the insect could easily drag them to and fro across a pane of glass."—St. Louis Republic.

Lay Hold on Health

Rapidly being sapped by waning strength and disturbed sleep! How? By that agreeable and wholesome expedient, a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which is constantly justifying the faith reposed in it by the invalid world. No fear of it disappointing you. No one troubled with a malarial disorder, dyspepsia, liver complaint, inactivity of the kidneys or bowels should neglect it.

The times are said to be so hard that only a rumor gains currency.

For impure or thin Blood, Weakness, Malaria, Neuralgia, Indigestion and Biliousness, take Brown's Iron Bitters—it gives strength, making old persons feel young—and young persons strong; pleasant to take.

He who never returns a borrowed book is not a good bookkeeper.

A Child Enjoys

The pleasant flavor, gentle action and soothing effects of Syrup of Figs, when in need of a laxative, and if the father or mother be costive or bilious, the most gratifying results follow its use; so that it is the best family remedy known and every family should have a bottle.

Hard times are not conducive to the development of "soft snaps."

If your Back Aches, or you are all worn out good for nothing, it is general debility Brown's Iron Bitters will cure you, make you strong, cleanse your liver, and give you a good appetite—tones the nerves.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address

THE NEWS IN GENERAL.

Condensed from Our Most Important Telegraphic Advices

And Presented in Pointed and Readable Paragraphs.

Twenty-seven new cases and twenty-four deaths from cholera are reported at St. Petersburg, Russia.

A very perceptible shock of earthquake was felt at Bradford, Pa., at 1:35 Sunday afternoon. Several families fled from their houses, thinking a terrible calamity had happened.

Bank Commissioner Bridenthal has closed the bank of Greensburg, Kansas. The commissioner says the bank owes about $88,000, that it has a quantity of worthless paper and that in his opinion, it will not pay more than 65 cents on the dollar.

Receiver Wilson, of the Santa Fe, arrived in Topeka at noon Monday. He said the receivers would appoint D. B. Robinson, first vice president, the agent of the receivers, to have full charge of the active operation of the entire system.

Fire Monday morning destroyed the stables on the Keystone stock farm, near Kittanning, Pa., owned by Bowser brothers, of Manor township. Twenty-two horses were cremated, some of which were the finest stock in Pennsylvania.

A pleasure party boating on the River Kiami, at Sydney, New South Wales, Tuesday, was carried out to sea and were wrecked in the surf in the presence of hundreds of spectators. Seven out of eight persons in the boat were drowned.

The anarchist laboratory, which was discovered at Vallvidrera, a village near Barcelona, Spain, was situated in a large cave at the bottom of a ravine. The opening of the cave was concealed by brushwood and boulders. A number of charged bombs were seized in this cave.

At the suit of B. Sanheger, a bondholder, two receivers were appointed Tuesday afternoon for the Banner Brewing Company, of Cincinnati. The assets of the company are estimated at $325,000, with liabilities about the same. Alex Darusmont and Herman Husman are the receivers.

A St. Petersburg dispatch says: Of the 200 veteran soldiers, who were poisoned by eating putrid meat contained in pies recently at the annual banquet held in the winter palace of the soldiers, decorated with the cross of St. Andrew and St. George, 160 are still in a serious condition and thirty-six have died.

A Chicago dispatch says: Assistant Prosecuting Attorney Todd occupied the day Tuesday in the Prendergast case, with the opening speech of the prosecution. He said that there was no compromise ground for the jury to consider; that the prisoner was guilty of murder or nothing and there could be no reason for a penitentiary sentence.

A man giving his name as Timothy Kane, called Tuesday morning at the East Fourteenth street police station. He announced that he was going to kill the Rev. Dr. Charles Parkhurst and wished two policemen to accompany him and arrest him after the deed. After a hard struggle he was overpowered and locked up. An examination as to his sanity will be made.

Francis J. Dawes, a wealthy Chicago brewer, received word at New Orleans Saturday that his child was dying, and, chartering an Illinois Central train, the tracks were cleared and Mr. Dawes and his wife were whirled over the 1,000 miles at the rate of a mile a minute. He paid $1,000 for the trip and broke all records between New Orleans and Chicago, making the run in twenty-five and a half hours.

Reports from Rangley, Col., indicate a bad winter for stock and game. The drought last summer left the feed poor and the cattle are going into the winter in a very bad condition to meet the severe weather. Deputy State Game Warden White reports that there are thousands of deer in the neighborhood, but that many will die from want of food, and the loss in cattle from the same cause is expected to reach fully 25 per cent.

Lack of business and inability to make collections caused three Milwaukee institutions to assign for the benefit of creditors Tuesday afternoon. The Reliance iron and wire works are in the hands of a receiver. The assets are $50,000. The White Fish Bay Association, a syndicate of suburban lost boomers, assigned to Dr. Charles D. Stanhope. The company's assets are $75,000. The Phoenix Suspender Company assigned to Otto B. Fink. The assets are $30,000.

A Milwaukee special of Tuesday says: A conflict is on between the receiver of the Northern Pacific road and their employes, including engineers, conductors, firemen, trainmen, switchmen and so on. The new schedule of wages adopted by the new receivers, which implies a cut of 5 to 10 per cent. was rejected by the employes' representatives. A conference was held in St. Paul with General Manager Kendrick Monday, and the prospects are that on January 1st there will be trouble.

The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe and St. Louis and San Francisco railroads and branches, comprising the Santa Fe system proper, have been placed in the hands of three receivers, the order being made by United States Circuit Court at Little Rock, Ark., Saturday morning. The application was made by the Union Trust Company, of New York, trustees for the bondholders of the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe and the Mercantile Trust Company, of New York, trustees for the bondholders of the St. Louis and San Francisco.

A Denver special of Tuesday says: Governor Waite's call for an extra session of the legislature on January 10th, is dated December 25, 1893. As Christmas day is a legal holiday in all states of the Union, the question is being asked: "Is the call legal and binding?" The courts will probably be asked to decide the matter at once. The first "business" for the legislature suggested is the passage of a bill to repeal the present election law.

SOUTHERN NEWS ITEMS.

The Drift of Her Progress and Prosperity Briefly Noted.

Happenings of Interest Portrayed in Pithy Paragraphs.

The Southern club, of Birmingham, Ala., held its annual election of officers Monday night. John W. McQueen was re-elected president, Earnest A. Defuniak was elected vice president and Frank Foster, secretary and treasurer.

Articles of incorporation have been filed in the probate court at Montgomery, Ala., for the Southern Refinery of Montgomery, with a capital stock of $10,000, for the purpose of refining sugars, molasses and syrups. The incorporators all are substantial merchants of the city.

Hon. Wayne MacVeagh, of Pennsylvania, accompanied by his wife and daughter and a party of five other ladies and gentlemen, arrived in Jacksonville, Fla., Monday and took rooms at the Windsor hotel. MacVeagh will remain in Florida about two weeks and will start for Rome about February 1st.

A special from Wildwood, Fla., says: A difficulty between a white and a negro Christmas morning culminated in a riot in which two white men were shot by negroes—one seriously, the other slightly. The negroes congregated some distance from the town and the white men were shot from ambush. The names of the wounded men could not be learned.

A fire at Birmingham, Ala., Tuesday night did some $10,000 damage on the southside. A one-story brick building, occupied as a cotton warehouse in the rear and some junk shops and fruit stands in the front, was burned. The building, which was worth some $5,000, was badly wrecked and 150 bales of cotton were damaged more or less. The other losses will not exceed a few hundred dollars.

A Jackson, Tenn., special says: Court convened in the Howard trial promptly at 8:30 o'clock Monday morning, and only eleven jurors were in the box. The juror who had been ill nearly through the entire trial was present, but Mr. Terrell, another juror, was represented by his physician, who said that he must spend the day in quiet, and consequently court immediately adjourned until Tuesday morning.

Fire broke out Sunday morning in the store of Alex McKinzie & Co., fancy groceries and liquors at Montgomery, Ala., and that store was completely gutted—loss about $10,000, covered by insurance. Over McKinzie's store was occupied by the Excelsior Printing Company, whose plant was completely destroyed—loss about $10,000, insurance $4,000. The plant of The Alabama Baptist in the adjoining building was also destroyed.

A saw mill, owned by J. M. Whittle, at Knoxville, Tenn., was literally blown to pieces Friday at noon. As a result three mangled bodies lie in the city morgue. Another lies at the bottom of the cold waters of the Tennessee river, while two men are more or less seriously injured, and one fatally. No trace of the building remained. Where the boiler had once stood there was nothing left but the brass whistle and a portion of the smokestack. The boiler, in fragments, lay scattered around within an area of 300 yards.

ENGLISH TROOPS MASSACRED.

They Were Surprised by the Matebeles and Every Man Was Killed.

A London cable dispatch says: A terrible disaster is said to have occurred to the scouting party under command of Captain Wilson, which has been in pursuit of King Lobengula, and which has not been heard from for some time past. Several south African merchants in this city received cable messages Wednesday announcing that Captain Wilson's force had been completely annihilated by the Matebeles, who are said to have cut them to pieces.

The news of the disaster to the British scouting party was received by Mosenthal & Sons, merchants, and by a broker named Hirsh, as well as several other people doing business in the city. It is stated now that in addition to Wilson's party that the party under Captain Barrow, sent out to reinforce him, have been cut to pieces.

No press dispatches have been received which either confirm or contradict these alarming reports. The number of men composing the Wilson detachment is said to have been from forty to one hundred, and the Barrow detachment is reported to have been composed of about the same number of men. The news has caused great excitement throughout the city and is being magnified on all sides.

MITCHELL IN FLORIDA.

He is Welcomed by a Great Crowd in Jacksonville.

Charley Mitchell and his party reached Jacksonville Wednesday morning. A crowd of 1,500 people met the Englishman at the depot and followed him to his hotel. Mitchell received a score of newspaper men in his room. He says he weighs 186 pounds and will not take off much flesh.

The friends of Mitchell say his presence in Florida puts wings to Brady's bet of $1,000 that the Englishman cannot stay in the state thirty days.

AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Affairs of Government and News of the Departments Discussed.

Notes of Interest Concerning the People and Their General Welfare.

Mrs. Alfred Hedberg, widow of Captain Hedberg, the army officer who was shot and killed at Fort Sheridan by Lieutenant Haney several weeks ago, is in Washington with the avowed intention, it is said, of making trouble for the officials by whom Maney is to be tried, and who, she claims, are not ardent in the prosecution. It is said that the secretary of war may order an investigation.

The major general commanding the United States army has approved that part of the new tactics providing for officers giving commands, under certain circumstances, by whistles instead of by word of mouth. The whistles are to be placed in the cross pieces of the guards of the swords, and an order has been issued to the commanding officers of the Springfield armory and the Rock Island arsenal to make this alteration as promptly as possible.

The largest stamp order ever made by the postoffice department was given to the contractor by the department Saturday. It called for 251,768,100 Columbian stamps, valued at $5,170,922. These will be placed on sale in about 3,000 presidential offices. The conference of the postmaster general, the secretary of the treasury and the American Bank Note Company and Charles F. Steele Company, of Nwe York, to decide a question of awarding the stamp contract has been indefinitely postponed.

Postmaster General Bissell Tuesday, appointed Mr. M. MacMachen, of Colorado, postoffice inspector in charge at Denver, at $2,500 per annum. Mr. MacMachen was a prominent candidate for lieutenant governor of Colorado last autumn and was also a candidate for the Denver postmastership. He succeeds James A. Small, resigned. The Denver division of inspectors embraces the states of Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, Utah and Wyoming. George H. Wisley, of Pennsylvania, has been appointed a postoffice inspector.

The programme upon which the tariff debate will be conducted as outlined by a member of the ways and means committee Tuesday does not include fixing a time for taking a vote as soon as the bill enters the house. It is the present intention to allow the debate to run on for some time and if it then becomes apparent that no vote can be reached the committee on rules will be asked to fix a time for consideration under the five minute rule and a final vote. It is believed by the democratic members that when there is a general understanding that no final vote is to be taken until the last of January there will be no difficulty in securing such a vote by an agreement on both sides.

Information has reached the treasury department from the appraisers of merchandise at the port of Chicago that transportation companies have failed to take away rapidly the portion of the merchandise at the world's fair intended for exportation. Consequently, there are now at least 20,000 packages lying in the buildings which cannot be removed by December 31st, the date fixed for the termination of the customs condition of the buildings. The contractor has, accordingly asked that the time be extended for the holding of the buildings, as the constructive bonded warehouse and the exposition officials have agreed to provide suitable police supervision for the customs interests during the period which the customs control shall be maintained.

A subject which will receive some consideration at the hands of the committee on appropriations at this session of the house, is embodied in the bill introduced by Representative Sayers, its chairman, entitled a bill "to repeal certain laws relating to permanent and indefinite appropriations." Bills having this object in view have appeared perennially during the past seven years, but for various reasons they have failed of enactment. The object of repealing these permanent appropriations and having congress pass upon the matters covered by them each year is that it will conduce to a more thorough and careful examination of terms of appropriation than is obtained under the present system by which the accounts are credited and passed upon by the accounting officers, and where no opportunity is left for scrutiny by congressional committees.

The Reserve Getting Low.

A Washington special of Tuesday says: Prospects are that during the present week the available cash balance of the treasury will reach a figure lower than has ever been recorded in its history. At the close of business Saturday the balances as stated on the books of the treasury was $90,487,268, and it is generally expected that it will fall below the $90,000,000 during the week. The total balance on the first of December was $95,199,616, showing a reduction during the month of $4,712,348. The loss, however, has fallen more largely upon the currency balance than upon the gold reserve. The marked excess of expenditures over receipts, it is now believed will show a deficiency in the revenues at the close of the calendar year of approximately $37,000,000.

DOLE IS DEFIANT.

Will Resist Any Attempt by Our Government to Overthrow Him.

A San Francisco special of Thursday says: The steamer Mariposa, from Sydney via Samo and Honolulu, brings the following Honolulu advices: "The United States cutter has arrived bringing dispatches to Minister Willis, the contents of which have not yet been disclosed. The general belief here is that he is instructed to make every effort to restore the queen, short of using forces. The provisional government has prepared an ultimatum, declaring their intention to resist with military forces all attempts to overthrow the present government by force."

THROUGH RAGING FLAMES

A Number of Women Narrowly Escape the Jaws of Death.

A cable dispatch from London says: The building occupied by Hoovey & Sons, drapers, in Sheffield, caught fire Thursday morning. Sixty of the assistants of the firm were rescued with difficulty. Five fire escapes were used to take them from the building. The efforts of the firemen to confine the fire in the building in which it originated were fruitless and the flames spread until five other buildings were burning.

The assistants of Hovey & Sons slept in the building. They were not aroused until the fire had gained considerable headway. Then a scene of panic followed. Many of the girls would have plunged from the windows had it not been for their cooler-headed companions, who held them back. A number of them escaped in their night dresses. They found the passage leading to the street a mass of flames. Without hesitation they plunged through the fire and reached the street more or less injured. Some had their hair and eyebrows burned off and their faces, arms and legs badly scorched. They were attended by physicians and those who were not so badly hurt cared for by people in the vicinity. Others were removed to the hospital.

Those who were rescued by means of fire escapes were not injured. An immense crowd stood by and watched the fire. The conflagration was the worst that has visited Sheffield in many years. The building occupied by Hovey & Sons and two other buildings were completely destroyed. Three other buildings, one of which was occupied by Mr. Horner, dealer in paintings and other art works, were gutted. Many buildings in the vicinity were badly damaged.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Situation as Reported for the Past Week.

The review of the industrial situation in the south for the past week, ending December 26th, shows that the influences of the season are apparent in a less-ned number of new industries established during the week. In importance they are worthy of notice. In manufacturing and business affairs there is no material change of importance. The enquiry for and consequent firmness in the price of iron continues, and there is increased demand for coal mine products. No especial change is to be expected pending the discussion and settlement of the tariff question.

Twenty-four new industries were established or incorporated during the week, together with three enlargements of manufactories and seven important new buildings. Prominent among the new industries of the week are the following: The Flori la Mining and Chemical Company, of Tampa, Fla., capital $1,000,000, organized by W. S. Warner and others; the White Cliffs Portland Cement and Chalk Company, of Little Rock, Ark., with $1,000,000 capital, Lewis Meteser and associates incorporators; the Potts Valley Furnace and Mining Company, of Charleston, W. Va., capital $500,000; chartered by O. S. Long and others, the Powell Novel Hook Pad Manufacturing Company, of Marshall, Texas, capital $50,000, by J. D. Crawford and associates; the Southern Fruit Packing Company, capital $50,000, of Churchland, Va. T. E. Trotman and others incorporators; the Gnyton Coal Company, of Richmond, Va., capital $25,000, by W. J. Winegar and others; the Gibbons Clothing Manufacturing Company, of Houston, Texas, capital $25,000, by R. B. Morris and others; the White River Stave Company, of Clarendon, Ark., by A. J. Carter and associates, capital $20,000; the Southern Sugar Refinery, of Montgomery, Ala., capital $10,000, of which E. E. Simpson is president; a $10,000 canning factory at Sumter, S. C., and a distillery with $10,000 capital at Maysville, Ky., by B. Poynts and others.

Ice factories are to be established at Charlotte, N. C., and Norfolk, Va., stove works at Mobile, Ala. Coal and coke company has been chartered at Waco, Texas, a tobacco factory is to be built at Salisbury, N. C., acid works at Augusta, Ga., a canning factory at California, Ky., and car wheel works at Raleigh, N. C. A new furniture factory is reported at Kingwood, W. Va., a hoop factory at Kilgore, Texas, and a saw mill at Attalla, Ala.—Tradesman (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

A BIG STRIKE PROBABLE

Among the Miners in Ohio on Account of a Cut in Wages.

A special of Tuesday from Belaire, Ohio, says: A strike of alarming proportions will be instituted by miners in this vicinity January 1st, if operators do not revoke their decision to cut the wages on that date. The miners affected are those employed along the line of the Baltimore and Ohio railroad. Some time ago the operators announced that they were unable to pay 70 cents per ton, as heretofore, and January 1st would reduce to 60 cents per ton the wages paid to West Virginia miners. The claim of the bosses was that they could not compete against West Virginia coal and pay 10 cents more per ton for mining, alleging that under this arrangement West Virginia coal could be sold at the mouth of the Ohio mines for less than Ohio operators themselves could sell their own coal. On the other hand the miners claim that the bosses can make a good profit with wages at 70 cents per ton. They have decided to refuse the reduction and unless some compromise is agreed upon within a few days all will lay down their tools New Year's day.

VERDICTS FOR ITALIANS.

New Orleans Paying for the Victims of the Lynchers.

Two of the Italian cases, Caruso and Scaffidi, were tried Wednesday in the United States circuit court at New Orleans before the same [illegible]. Sealed verdicts were returned and being opened Thursday, it was found that they awarded a verdict against the city for three thousand dollars in the Caruso case and for $1,500 in the case of Scaffidi. Counsel for the plaintiff manifested their disappointment in the Scaffidi case and Judge Boardman issued an order setting the verdict aside, saying that the amount allowed was the value of a slave in ante-bellum times, and that if the heirs of the men who had been lynched were entitled to anything they should get more.

The Last of Garza's Army.

Captain Jos. Shely, deputy United Stated marshal in the lower Rio Grande border, arrived at San Antonio, Tex., Tuesday, from Star county with three Mexicans, who are alleged to have been prominently connected with the Garza revolutionary movement. They are said to be the last of Garza's army. The total number arrested is 850, nearly all of this number having been tried and convicted in the federal court at San Antonio and at Brownsville, and are now serving out jail and penitentiary sentences.

SMALL BUT EFFECTIVE,

Was the little Monitor that met the Merrimac at Hampton Roads. So too are Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets, effective in conquering the enemy—disease. When you take a pill it's an important point to have them small—provided they have equal strength and efficacy. You find what you want in these little liver pills of Dr. Pierce. They're put up in a better way, and they act in a better way, than the huge old-fashioned pills. What you want when you're "all out of sorts"—grumpy, thick-headed and take a gloomy view of life, is these Pellets to clear up your system and start your liver into healthful action. Sick Headache, Bilious Headache, Constipation, Indigestion, Bilious Attacks, and all derangements of the liver, stomach and bowels, are prevented, relieved, and cured. Put up in sealed glass vials, and always fresh and reliable.

James William Craig, Esq., of Georgetown, Ky., says: "My wife thinks your little 'Pellets' are the greatest pills out."

The General Farmer.

For the general farmer, general rather than special crops will bring the best results. Where special crops are depended on there must be a special fitness in the cultivator; but any man who understands the general principles of agriculture should be able to grow a variety of crops with fair success, selecting such as are best suited to his soil. With these a variety of stock should be kept, turning as large a portion of the crops as possible into marketable commodities through that medium. Wool and mutton are good means to this end. A colt each year will be of further help. Pigs turn corn into money very quickly. None of these should be neglected, and the crops should be sown with special refference to them.—Plowman.

SOUTHERN NEWS ITEMS.

The Drift of Her Progress and Prosperity Briefly Noted.

Happenings of Interest Portrayed in Pithy Paragraphs.

Two men were fairly cooked alive in a terrible boiler explosion that occurred at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning in the roundhouse of the Cincinnati Southern railway at Chattanooga.

The executive committee of the North Carolina teachers' assembly, which is the largest state organization of teachers in the south, met at Raleigh, Tuesday, and decided to hold the eleventh annual session at Morehead City June 19th to 30th.

A Nashville special says: The demand of the employes of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Lous railway for a restoration of wages to where they were before the 10 per cent cut last September will not be pushed just now. This was decided at a conference Tuesday between representatives of the various organizations and President Thomas.

Secretary Hester's monthly report, issued at New Orleans Tuesday, shows a liberal movement of cotton into sight for December. The total for the month was 1,614,882 bales, against 1,308,451 in December, 1892, and 1,663,854 in December, 1891, an increase over last year of 306,431, and a decrease under the year before last of 48,972 bales.

J. W. Burke & Co., the well-known book dealers and publishers, of Macon, Ga., have failed. Ed. Burke and John Birch were appointed receivers. They are preferred creditors for about $35,000. The Exchange bank has a warrantee deed for $18,112.84. The liabilities are about $100,000; assets about $75,000. The bill was filed by the Macon Gaslight and Water company, the Empire Store and L. S. Worsham & Co.

A Louisville, Ky., dispatch of Saturday says: The work of clearing away the debris of the wrecked bridge has been suspended for the present, and the chances for the recovery of the remaining bodies are very poor. It is not known how many bodies are under the wreck, but twelve men at least are missing. Time Keeper Kelley says he has no idea when the work of clearing away the wreckage would be resumed, but says the bridge company will be compelled to clear the river.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Central railroad was held at Savannah Tuesday. Only 7,999 shares were polled, and the vote was solid for the present board of directors as follows: H. M. Comer, president; Abraham Vetzburg, G. J. Mills, Joseph Hull, H. R. Jackson, Savannah; C. H. Phinizy, Augusta; E. P. Howell, Atlanta; U. B. Harrold, Americus; S. R. Jacques, Macon; James Swann, New York; J. B. Holst, Columbus; W. S. Tison and L. T. Turner, Savannah.

The campaign committee of the Alabama State Educational Association met in Birmingham Saturday and outlined its plans to work for the adoption of the Hundley school amendment to the state constitution. The committee resolved to flood the state with literature favoring the amendment. Every paper in the state will be besieged and urged to publish communications favoring the amendment so that every reading man in the state will be familiar with the subject before the election.

A deed was filed in the county clerk's office at Louisville, Ky., Tuesday formally transferring all of C.P. Huntington's property in Louisville to the United States Trust Company of New York, for the benefit of the Illinois Central Railroad Company. Mr. Huntington is joined in the deed by his wife. The property thus transferred to the trust company is for the use and benefit of the Illinois Central road an substantiates the rumor of a deal between the Chesapeake, Ohio and Southwestern and the Illinois Central.

A Columbia, S. C., special says: The people of the state are very much concerned about the payment of their taxes. Hundreds are absolutely unable to meet their assessments. Saturday was the last day under the law and no extension has been made. It is believed that Comptroller General Ellerbe, who, under the new law, is empowered to make an extension, will grant it for about ten counties where it is thought to be most needed. Unless an extension is granted there will be distress in many hundred homes.

The North Carolina legislative joint committee Saturday completed its annual examination of the state treasury. It gives out the following statement: Balance at the close of the fiscal year ending November 30, 1892, $310,400; receipts during fiscal year, $1,181,000; disbursements, $1,284,000; balance, $208,000. There is a falling off of $4,000,000 in the assessed value of general property, solvent credits and money on hand. There is an increase of $400,000 in the assessed value of railway property. There is a heavy falling off in merchants' purchase tax and tax on liquors.

O'Neal's Grand opera house at Charleston, S. C., was burned Tuesday. The building was discovered to be on fire about 2:30 o'clock. The fire engines were quickly on the spot. The water was not in the mains and in fifteen minutes the vast structure was completely enveloped in flames. In one hour nothing but walls were left standing. The building was the property of the Agricultural Society of South Carolina. The loss on the building will be about $40,000 and on the scenery and properties about $10,000, all of which is covered by insurance.

The Kentucky general assembly organized for work at noon Tuesday. The first business before it came in the shape of the biennial message from Governor Brown. The document is significant, chiefly on account of the bold stand taken by the governor against railroads. He asks for the passage of a law empowering the railway commissioners of the state to adjust freight and passenger rates, and as for the proposed absorption of the Chesapeake, Ohio and Southwestern property by the Louisville and Nashville, the executive announces that he will fight it to the last ditch.

THE YEAR'S TRADE.

Dun & Co. Report it as the Worst in the Past Fifty Years.

Business in a State of Collapse and Many Industries Suffered.

Dun & Co.'s mercantile report says: Starting with the largest, trade ever known—mills crowded with work and all business stimulated by high hopes—the year 1893 has proved in certain shrinkage of trade, in commercial disasters and depression of industries the worst for fifty years. Whether the financial results of the panic of 1837 were relatively more severe the scanty records of that time do not clearly show. The year closes with many products the lowest ever known; with millions of workers seeking in vain for work, and with charity laboring to keep back starvation in all our large cities. All hope the new year may bring brighter days, but the dying year leaves only a dismal record.

Sales of cotton goods are fully a quarter below the usual quantity. The small advance attempted in boots and shoes a year ago was not sustained, but with prices as low as ever, the shipments of boots and shoes from Boston are 24 per cent. less than last year in December.

Not only manufactured goods as a whole, but the most important farm products are so low that farmers find little comfort in official and other reports. Enormous stocks were bought and held with the aid of banks until heavy receipts in the spring caused a collapse of wheat, pork and cotton pools.

Disastrous failures helped to produce the alarm which soon made money impossible to get, but even at the worst hour of the panic, prices were scarcely lower than they are now. What has repeatedly sold here at Chicago at the lowest price ever known, and is but ½ cent above it now. Pork fell $7 in an hour when the speculation burst, but sells lower yet today. Cotton was lifted 1 cent with accounts of scarcity in September, but has lost most of the gain and sells below 8 cents. Thus unreasonable speculation, by preventing the sale of surplus products, has proved a great injury to farmers at a time when their enforced curtailment of purchases is disastrous to all other industries.

Clear evidence of the shrinkage in different branches of business is afforded by answers already received to several thousand circulars, requesting figures of sales during the last half of 1893 and 1892. Iron returns thus far aggregate $40,853,180, against $65,520,921 last year, a decrease of 38 per cent. Reports thus far of jewelry show a decrease of 29 per cent.

It is curious that the only trade showing any increase as yet, was groceries, the trade being 1 per cent. larger than the last half of 1892.

In twenty-seven years, covered by the records of this agency, the number of failures has only once risen a little above 16,650 in a year. In 1893 the number reported was 16,650. The aggregate of liabilities in all failures reported, has in six years risen above $200,000,000. This year the strictly commercial liabilities alone exceeded $331,422,939. The liabilities of banking and financial institutions have been $210,957,864, and the liabilities of railroads placed in the hands of receivers about $1,212,217,033.

As all reports hitherto have been to some extent erroneous, through inclusion of failures not strictly commercial, thr classified returns are instructive. They show 3,226 manufacturing failures with liabilities of $164,707,449; 18,864 failures in legitimate trade with liabilities of $85,527,896, and 302 other failures, including brokers and speculators, with liabilities of $3,662,735. The average liabilities in manufacturing is $50,000; in legitimate trading, $8,000.

De Gama Gives Notice.

A special of Saturday from Buenos Ayres says: Admiral de Gama, commander of the insurgent naval force at Rio de Janeiro, has notified the members of the diplomatic corps that he will bombard the city if the new forts fire on his ships. The representatives of the foreign powers have sent a reply to the insurgent admiral saying that he must give at least forty-eight hours notice before he commences to shell the city. It is said the rebel admiral will give the notice required if another shot is fired from the new forts upon his vessels.

A Costly Foot.

A Chicago dispatch of Saturday says: David W. Hart, of Dodge City, Kan., a railroad man, is busily engaged in collecting the insurance on a $50,000 foot that he lost under a Chicago street car's wheel last summer. Mr. Hart had insured against the loss of a leg in a long list of companies and to the sum total of $50,000. He is now reaping the benefit of his foresight, some of the money having already been paid with the indications in favor of a speedy collection of it all.

OUR LATEST DISPATCHES.

The Happenings of a Day Chronicled in Brief and Concise Paragraphs

And Containing the Gist of the News From All Parts of the World.

Smith, Healy and Gleason, three of Howard's coached witnesses, were arrested at Jackson, Tenn., Wednesday night and placed in a cell to answer a charge of perjury. Brockaway, the leader of the crowd, is still at large.

At Millvale, Geneva county, Ala., Daniel Webster's famaly had a hog-head cheese for supper Tuesday night. By midnight Webster was dead, his wife was not expected to live and his three sons were desperately ill. It is supposed that the cheese was poisoned by remaining too long in a zinc vessel.

A dispatch from Belvira, O., Tuesday says: About one-half of the coal mines in this part of the Ohio valey were closed down on account of the miners refusing the reduction of 10 per cent. demanded by the operators. They are awaiting the action of the state convention at Columbus on January 9. Twelve hundred employes are out of work.

A Nashville special of Wednesday says: The clerk of the state funding board has found evidence of gross carelessness on the part of former administrations. Many of the coupons had never been classified and posted in the proper book. In one case $100 worth of coupons, not due until 1897, had been paid. About $300 of coupons paid but not canceled were also found.

According to advices from London a blinding snow storm, accompanied by heavy wind and a furious sea, prevailed in the English channel Tuesday night. The Packet service between the English and French ports was interrupted, and some of the steamers suffered damage. The Packet from Ostend was unable to land at Dover, owing to the tremendous sea, and put out into the channel again to await high water.

Burglars blew open the large safe in the Franklin Grove bank south of Rockford, Ill., Wednesday night and made away with everything of value in the vault. The concern is a private institution with a capital of $25,000 and an average deposit of $50,000, the customers being in the main wealthy farmers. The loss in cash and papers is estimated by the bank officials at $35,000. There is not the slightest clue as to who did the work.

A robbers' roost, rich with plunder, has been found beneath the floor of the great agricultural building at the world's fair grounds. The thieves escaped, but much valuable stolen property was recovered. The den was sumptuously furnished with Turkish rugs, fabrics from foreigh looms, rich draperies and comfortable divans. Fine brandies, high wines and imported cigdrs were scattered about the place in great profusion.

Captain W. G. Raoul, former president of the Central railroad and now president of the Mexican central, writes a letter to the Savannah Press strongly urging the removal of the Southwestern railway from the Central system. Raoul claims that a speculative scheme is organizing in New York to secure control of the Georgia Central railroad and that the Southwestern railroad, centering at Macon, should be saved from the wreck.

The report on mining resources for 1892, prepared by Chief Day, of the division of mining statistics of the geological survey, was made public Wednesday. It shows that the high water mark in mineral productions was reached in 1892, both in this country and every other country. The total value of all the mineral products of that year was $684,778,768. This is $20,000,000 greater than the amount for any previous year, and $28,194,070 more than the amount for the census year of 1890.

Fire at Detroit Wednesday night caused a loss of one and a half million dollars. It broke out a few minutes after 6 o'clock in the elevator of F. N. Quale & Co., on the river fronting on Madison and Water streets. The icause is as yet unknown. An explosion on of dust caused a general alarm. The elevator, with its entire contents, was destroyed. A strong northwest wind carried the flames across Madison street to the elevator and the business block of C. A. King & Co., which is also a total loss.

A dispatch of Wednesday to the London News from Paris says excavations in Oisseau Lipitit, department of the Sarthe, have revealed a Gallo-Roman city, which appears to have been destroyed by an earthquake. The city probably contained some 30,000 inhabitants, but its name is not known in French history. The ruins include a great temple, part of which is still standing, also a theater and monuments. A number of medals have been found, which include one of the time of Emperor Constance.

107th Annual Communication.

The one hundred and seventh annual communication of the grand lodge of Masons of North Carolina began at Wilmington Wednesday evening. About 400 were present. Grand Master John W. Cotton delivered an address. The order did not make as large gains of membership the past year as usual. It is the first time in ninety years that the grand lodge has met anywhere save at Raleigh. The annual report on the Masonic Orphans' asylum, at Oxford, was made. It shows that there are 230 orphans there and that $10,600 was received and expended in this institution, of which the state gave $10,000.

Affairs of Government and News of the Departments Discussed.

Notes of Interest Concerning the People and Their General Welfare.

The ways and means committee had a long sitting Monday night, but without result. The important question still before them is the settlement of the internal taxation features of the new tariff bill.

All the executive departments of the government were closed at noon Saturday in accordance with the established custom of giving the employes a half holiday on the working day preceding New Year.

In his annual report Mr. Robert E. Preston, director of the mint, gives a timely and interesting review of the course of silver from 1848 to 1893, inclusive, and of the causes of its depression since 1872.

The public debt statement issued Wednesday shows the net increase of the debt, less the cash in the treasury, during the month of December to have been $6,861,662. The interest bearing debt increased $90; of which interest has ceased since maturity $25,850, and the debt bearing no interest increased $2,063,361.

Contrary to the general impression, the number of complaints of victims of green goods swindles now being made to the postoffice department is unusually small. There are still, however, many complaints in course of investigation by Postoffice Inspector Anthony Comstock, to whom are referred all green goods cases.

Reports of the condition of the national banks at the close of business, December 29th, are being received at the treasury department in response to the call of the comptroller of the currency. They show that the average reserves of the banks reporting are very large and in some cases larger than on the date of the previous call, October 3d, indicating that the amount of money still idle is very great.

The state department has received from the nobles of St. Petersburg, a splendidly illuminated and printed address to the people of the United States conveying acknowledgements and thanks for the aid extended to the sufferers by famine in Russia. The address is painted on vellum and is accompained by paintings of Russian scenes, the whole magnificently bound in Russian leather with an inscription on the back in massive gold letters.

The grand jury of the District of Columbia was discharged Saturday without having returned an indictment against Don Jan, the crank who wrote threatening letters to Vice President Stevenson and Senator Mills. The court officials say this does not mean a failure of the prosecution, as the Don Jan case came up too late for the current grand jury to act on it. The prisoner will have to wait the action of the next grand jury which assembles some weeks hence.

The sub-committee of the senate committee on foreign relations met again Tuesday for the purpose of continuing its investigation under the resolution of Senator Morgan, authorizing an inquiry into the diplomatic relations of this country with Hawaii. There was but one witness before the committee during the forenoon, Mr. V. C. Jones, who had been summoned from Boston for the purpose of putting the committee in possession of facts at his command concerning the revolution of last January and the relations of this country to the Hawaiian.

Republicans Complete a Minority Report in the Hawaiian Matter.

The republican members of the foreign affairs committee have completed the minority report on the resolutions presented by Chairman McCreary on the day congress adjourned, as a substitute for the Hitt resolution. The report was prepared by Mr. Storer, of Ohio, and is signed by Messrs. Hitt, Harmer, Blair, Draper and Van Vorhis, of New York. It is very voluminous and goes into the whole history of Mr. Blount's appointment as commissioner and the course of the administration. The minority recommends the adoption of the following substitute for the resolution reported by the majority: "Whereas, Executive communications to congress disclose that the executive department has been furnishing to a minister plenipotentiary of the United States secret instructions to conspire with the representatives and agents of a deposed and discarded monarchy for the overthrow of a friendly republican government, duly recognized by all the civilized nations to which said minister was accredited and to which his public instructions pledged the good faith and sympathy of the president, the government and the people of the Unsted States. "Resolved that it is the sense of this house that any such intervention by the executive of the United States, its civil or military, representatives or officers, without authority of congress, is a dangerous and unwarranted invasion of the rights and dignities of the congress of the United States and a violation of the law of nations; and further, that the manner of such attempted interventions by the executive's methods used are unworthy of the executive department of the United States; while the confessed intent of such intervention is contrary to the policy and tradition of the republic and the spirit of the constitution."

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Situation as Reported for the Past Week.

The review of the industrial situation in the South for the past week shows an increase in the number of newly established industries which indicates that public confidence is being gradually restored. It seems to be generally admitted that the manufacturing and business interests of the South will revive at once, as soon as a definite settlement of the tariff question is arrived at, and that the Southern States were never in better condition to take advantage of as settled condition of affairs. Mercantile business continues quiet, as is to be expected at this season. The Southern banks are in a good financial condition and able to meet all reasonable demands.

Thirty-nine new industries were established or incorporated during the week, together with eight enlargements of manufactories and eight important new buildings. Among the prominent new industries of the week are the following: The Southern Fire Proof Building Co., of Richmond, Va., capital $50,000. Reuben Sheriff, president; mills for the Bay View Lumber Co., of West Norfolk, Va., to cost $50,000; the Houston Heights Manufacturing Co., of Houston, Texas, capital $50,000, T. M. Carter and others, incorporators; the Schutte Lumber Co., of Helena, Ark., capital $50,000, Charles Schutte, president; the Capera Manufacturing Co., of Fort Worth, Texas, capital $25,000, F. P. Capera and others, incorporators, and the Standard Construction Co., of Charleston, W. Va., capital $20,000.

Agricultural implement works are reported at Augusta, Ga., Charlotte, N. C., and Waco, Texas; a canning factory at Brewton, Ala.; cotton mills at Day's Gap, Tenn., and Berkley, Va.; a clothing factory at Roanoke, Va.; an electric lighting company at Bastrop, Texas; flour and grist mills at Lead Hill, Ark., and Houston, Va.; and ice factories at Meridian, Miss., and Charlotte, N. C.

An iron foundry is to be built at Maxton, N. C.; the pipe works at Anniston, Ala., are to be re-opened by a new company; gold mines are to be worked at Moncure, N. C., and coal mines at Bayard, W. Va.; oil mills are reported at Pelham, Ga. and Goliad, Texas; re-opening of phosphate works at Charleston, S. C.; a rice mill at Brewton, Ala., a soap factory at New Orleans, La., and tobacco factories at North Wilkesboro, N. C., and Houston, Va. A barrel factory is to be built a Anniston, Ala., a hoop factory at Little Rock, Ark., and a woolen mill at Roanoke, Va. Water works are reported at Madisonville and Shelbyville, Ky., and Benwood, W. Va.

Among enlargements of manufactories reported for the week are: A brewery at Wheeling, W. Va.; a flouring mill at Little Rock, Ark; an iron foundry at Warren, Texas; stove works at Knoxville, Tenn.; lime works at Anniston, Ala.; a lumber plant at Wilmar, Ark., and a saw mill at Candler, N. C.—Tradesman, (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

THE GRAND OLD MAN

Celebrates His Eighty-Fourth Birthday--Hearty and Vigorous.

A cable dispatch from London says: England's grand old man, the Rt. Hon. William Ewart Gladstone, entered his eighty-fourth year Friday. He celebrated his anniversary by working hard in his study during the morning. In the afternoon he went to the house of commons, and in every way rigorously attended to the duties of his position. Mr. Gladstone received many telegrams of congratulation from distinguished people in all parts of the world.

Mr. Gladstone was born December 29th, 1809, at Liverpool, where his father, Sir John Gladstone, was a merchant of considerable importance. From him, Gladstone inherited a fortune and, what is more important, the baggage of tory opinions he had when he entered political life.

Perished With Her Children.

Thomas Bansdall, a well-to-do farmer living near Bohon, Ky., awoke early Thursday morning to find his house in flames. He jumped out of bed, carrying his baby with him, at the same time calling to his wife to wake their three children who were sleeping upstairs. She went to follow his instructions, but the house collapsed and she and the three children perished.

THE FIFTY-THIRD CONGRESS

The House and Senate Called to Order in Regular Session.

Daily Summary of Routine Business in the Two Houses.

THE HOUSE.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 3.—The house, Wednesday morning, after a desultory filibuster on the part of the republicans concerning Hawaii, set out for a long session of work. The principal topic of discussion was the action of the ways and means committee, which Tuesday night by a vote of 6 to 5 democrats, decided to recommend a tax of two per cent on incomes of individuals and corporations of over $4,000 per annum. Mr. McCreary, chairman of the foreign affairs committee, offered a resolution, setting apart next Friday and Saturday for the consideration of the Hawaiian report. Mr. Hitt seconded the request, but Mr. Boutelle rose to a question of privilege and endeavored to call up his resolution relative to Hawaii offered before the recess. Mr. Turner held that the Boutelle resolution was not privileged, and made a point of order against it. The chair, after hearing Mr. Turner, held that Boutelle had a right to call the matter up. The resolution was then read and Mr. McMillin raised the question of consideration, stating that he wished to go ahead with the tariff bill. After some discussion a vote was demanded on the question of consideration raised by Mr. McMillan. A rising vote resulted yeas, 57; nays, 126. Mr. Boutelle demanded tellers, pending which Mr. McCreary demanded the yeas and nays. The latter motion was agreed to and the clerk began the roll call. The yea and nay vote resulted, yeas, 3; nays, 135, showing that filibustering had begun. Mr. Boutelle made the point of no quorum. Mr. McMillin moved a call of the house. The call disclosed the presence of 203 members, more than a quorum, but the latter disappeared when it came to voting. The house at 2 o'clock adjourned without taking up the tariff bill.

THE SENATE.

WEDNESDAY, January, 3—The Senate re-assembled at 12 o'clock Wednesday. When the vice-president rapped for order hardly a score of senators were in their seats. Immediately after the reading of the journal, Senator Blackburn, of Kentucky, presented the credentials of Epps Hunton as senator-elect from Virginia to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Barbour, Hunton's service hitherto being under appointment from the governor. The oath of office was administered to the new senator. A resolution was offered by Mr. Frey and laid on the table for the present, declaring that during the investigation as to Hawaiian affairs, there should be no interference on the part of the United States government, by moral influence or physical force, for the restoration of the queen or the maintenance of the provisional government, and that our naval force there should be used only for the protection of the lives and property of American citizens. At 12:45 the senate proceeded to consideration of executive business and at 1:20 adjourned until Thursday.

A Paper Changes Hands.

The Nashville American, published at Nashville, Tenn., changed hands Saturday. Hon. James M. Head purchased a controlling interest in the stock. The old board of directors resigned and the following were elected: James M. Head, S. A. Champion, J. H. Fulton, Horace E. Palmer and John E. Pitts. Mr. Head was elected president and W. E. McNeill secretary. It is understood that no expense will be spared in improving the paper and that the plant will be extended and improved.

Receivers Appointed.

The application for a receiver of the Ohio Valley Railroad Company, was argued Saturday in the United States court at Louisville, Ky., and Judge Barr appointed Colonel John McLeod as receiver. This is the last of the Huntington roads running through Kentucky, with one exception, the Chesapeake and Ohio, not in the hands of a receiver. The Chesapeake, Ohio and Southwestern and the Chesapeake and Ohio roads are separate corporations.

UNCERTAIN ABOUT THE FIGHT.

Governor Mitchell of Florida Keeping the Sports in Doubt.

A Jacksonville special of Saturday says: The prize fight situation remains practically unchanged. No fresh deliverance has come from Governor Mitchell, but his alleged accusation that the Duval countiy authorities were in collusion with the promoters of the contest, has been a fruitful theme for discussion in judicial and sporting circles. Of course, the judicial authorities deny that they are in collusion with the Duval Athletic Club in its efforts to pull off the contest, and they are jumping on the governor for what they call his wanton attack on the judiciary. The governor's statement that he will regard no decision as to the law in reference to prize fights, save that of the supreme court has also caused much bitter comment from the officials of the lower courts. The opinion is that the arrest of Corbett and Mitchell was part of a well laid scheme to get a "snap" judgement on the Florida law in reference to fights. What effect Governor Mitchell's prompt denunciation of the alleged scheme will have, remains to be seen.

THE LAW AND ORDER.

A dispatch from New Haven, Conn., says: Rev. Clarence Greeley, of Mount Carmel Center, general agent of the International Law and Order League, srys that the league will do all in its power to stop the Corbett-Mitchell fight. Mr. Greely has corresponded with Governor Mitchell, of Tallahassee, and Mayor Fletcher, of Jacksonville, Fla., and has appointed W. H. Cowles, of the international league, to assist in seeing that the law of the state of Florida, relating to prize fighting, is carried out to the letter.

ATLANTA'S GREAT SCHEME.

She Proposes to Hold a Cotton States Exposition Next Year.

At a meeting of three hundred of the most prominent business men of Atlanta, Ga., it was unanimously decided to begin at once on the cotton states and sub-tropical exposition, which will be ready for opening about one year from now. The meeting was the most representative ever held in Atlanta, and the citizens pledged themselves for any amount necessary to make the exposition the most complete ever undertaken by the south. Mr. S. M. Inman, the head of the great cotton firm of S. M. Inman & Co., was chosen chairman. The exposition will cover displays not only of the resources of the South Atlantic and Gulf States, but will have special reference to Mexico, Cuba, Jamaica and the Bahama islands, with all of which close trade relations are expected on the readjustment of the tariff. Permanent organization was ordered effected and the movement put on a practical basis at once. The details will be arranged immediately, and for the next year the city of Atlanta will give itself unreservedly to the work. The exposition will be held on the grounds of the Piedmont park in the suburbs of the city.

DECLINED TO PROSECUTE.

The Duval Athletic Club of Jacksonville Has a Set Back.

One development followed another in rapid succession in the Corbett-Mitchell affair at Jacksonville Wednesday. The cases in the criminal court against Corbett and Mitchell fell through, because the solicitor declined to prosecute them. The mayor vetoed the five-ounce-glove ordinance and the council passed it over his veto by a two-third vote. The Duval club now admits that it has requested Corbett and Mitchell to sign new articles of agreement and a test fight will soon be had at the Park opera house, to see if a case at law can be made in a glove contest under articles of agreement exactly like those which were signed in New York for Corbett and Mitchell.

NOT A MAN ESCAPED.

Story of the Massacre of Wilson's Force by Matabeles.

A despatch of Friday to a news agency at London from Capetown states that native runners have arrived at Fort Salisbury, bringing confirmation of the report of the annihilation by the Matabele of the force of Major Wilson.

The Drift of Her Progress and Prosperity Briefly Noted.

Happenings of Interest Portrayed in Pithy Paragraphs.

Two men were fairly cooked alive in a terrible boiler explosion that occurred at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning in the roundhouse of the Cincinnati Southern railway at Chattanooga.

The executive committee of the North Carolina teachers' assembly, which is the largest state organization of teachers in the south, met at Raleigh, Tuesday, and decided to hold the eleventh annual session at Morehead City June 19th to 30th.

A Nashville special says: The demand of the employes of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railway for a restoration of wages to where they were before the 10 per cent cut last September will not be pushed just now. This was decided at a conference Tuesday between representatives of the various organizations and President Thomas.

Secretary Hester's monthly report, issued at New Orleans Tuesday, shows a liberal movement of cotton into sight for December. The total for the month was 1,614,882 bales, against 1,308,451 in December, 1892, and 1,663,854 in December, 1891, an increase over last year of 306,431, and a decrease under the year before last of 48,972 bales.

J. W. Burke & Co., the well-known book dealers and publishers of Macon, Ga., have failed. Ed. Burke and John Birch were appointed receivers. They are preferred creditors for about $35,000. The Exchange bank has a warrantee deed for $18,112.84. The liabilities are about $100,000; assets about $75,000. The bill was filed by the Macon Gaslight and Water company, the Empire Store and L. S. Worsham & Co.

A Louisville, Ky., dispatch of Saturday says: The work of clearing away the debris of the wrecked bridge has been suspended for the present, and the chances for the recovery of the remaining bodies are very poor. It is not known how many bodies are under the wreck, but twelve men at least are missing. Time Keeper Kelley says he has no idea when the work of clearing away the wreckage would be resumed, but says the bridge company will be compelled to clear the river.

The annual meeting of the stockholders of the Central railroad was held at Savannah Tuesday. Only 7,999 shares were polled, and the vote was solid for the present board of directors as follows: H. M. Comer, president; Abraham Vetzburg, G. J. Mills, Joseph Hull, H. R. Jackson, Savannah; C. H. Phinizy, Augusta; E. P. Howell, Atlanta; U. B. Harrold, Americus; S. R. Jacques, Macon; James Swann, New York; J. B. Holst, Columbus; W. S. Tison and L. T. Turner, Savannah.

The campaign committee of the Alabama State Educational Association met in Birmingham Saturday and outlined its plans to work for the adoption of the Hundley school amendment to the state constitution. The committee resolved to flood the state with literature favoring the amendment. Every paper in the state will be besieged and urged to publish communications favoring the amendment so that every reading man in the state will be familiar with the subject before the election.

A deed was filed in the county clerk's office at Louisville, Ky., Tuesday formally transferring all of C. P. Huntington's property in Louisville to the United States Trust Company of New York, for the benefit of the Illinois Central Railroad Company. Mr. Huntington is joined in the deed by his wife. The property thus transferred to the trust company is for the use and benefit of the Illinois Central road an substantiates the rumor of a deal between the Chesapeake, Ohio and Southwestern and the Illinois Central.

A Columbia, S. C., special says: The people of the state are very much concerned about the payment of their taxes. Hundreds are absolutely unable to meet their assessments. Saturday was the last day under the law and no extension has been made. It is believed that Comptroller General Ellerbe, who, under the new law, is empowered to make an extension, will grant it for about ten counties where it is thought to be most needed. Unless an extension is granted there will be distress in many hundred homes.

The North Carolina legislative joint committee Saturday completed its annual examination of the state treasury. It gives out the following statement: Balance at the close of the fiscal year ending November 30, 1892, $310,400; receipts during fiscal year, $1,181,000; disbursements, $1,284,000; balance, $208,000. There is a falling off of $4,000,000 in the assessed value of general property, solvent credits and money on hand. There is an increase of $400,000 in the assessed value of railway property. There is a heavy falling off in merchants' purchase tax and tax on liquors.

O'Neal's Grand opera house at Charleston, S. C., was burned Tuesday. The building was discovered to be on fire about 2:30 o'clock. The fire engines were quickly on the spot. The water was not in the mains and in fifteen minutes the vast structure was completely enveloped in flames. In one hour nothing but walls were left standing. The building was the property of the Agricultural Society of South Carolina. The loss on the building will be about $40,000 and on the scenery and properties about $10,000, all of which is covered by insurance.

The Kentucky general assembly organized for work at noon Tuesday. The first business before it came in the shape of the biennial message from Governor Brown. The document is significant, chiefly on account of the bold stand taken by the governor against railroads. He asks for the passage of a law empowering the railway commissioners of the state to adjust freight and passenger rates, and as for the proposed absorption of the Chesapeake, Ohio and Southwestern property by the Louisville and Nashville, the executive announces that he will fight it to the last ditch.

THE YEAR'S TRADE.

Dun & Co. Report it as the Worst in the Past Fifty Years.

Business in a State of Collapse and Many Industries Suffered.

Dun & Co.'s mercantile report says: Starting with the largest, trade ever known—mills crowded with work and all business stimulated by high hopes—the year 1893 has proved in certain shrinkage of trade, in commercial disasters and depression of industries the worst for fifty years. Whether the financial results of the panic of 1837 were relatively more severe the scanty records of that time do not clearly show. The year closes with many products the lowest ever known; with millions of workers seeking in vain for work, and with charity laboring to keep back starvation in all our large cities. All hope the new year may bring brighter days, but the dying year leaves only a dismal record.

Sales of cotton goods are fully a quarter below the usual quantity. The small advance attempted in boots and shoes a year ago was not sustained, but with prices as low as ever, the shipments of boots and shoes from Boston are 24 per cent. less than last year in December.

Not only manufactured goods as a whole, but the most important farm products are so low that farmers find little comfort in official and other reports. Enormous stocks were bought and held with the aid of banks until heavy receipts in the spring caused a collapse of wheat, pork and cotton pools.

Disastrous failures helped to produce the alarm which soon made money impossible to get, but even at the worst hour of the panic, prices were scarcely lower than they are now. What has repeatedly sold here at Chicago at the lowest price ever known, and is but ½ cent above it now. Pork fell $7 in an hour when the speculation burst, but sells lower yet today. Cotton was lifted 1 cent with accounts of scarcity in September, but has lost most of the gain and sells below 8 cents. Thus unreasonable speculation, by preventing the sale of surplus products, has proved a great injury to farmers at a time when their enforced curtailment of purchases is disastrous to all other industries.

Clear evidence of the shrinkage in different branches of business is afforded by answers already received to several thousand circulars, requesting figures of sales during the last half of 1893 and 1892. Iron returns thus far aggregate $40,859,180, against $65,520,921 last year, a decrease of 38 per cent. Reports thus far of jewelry show a decrease of 29 per cent.

It is curious that the only trade showing any increase as yet, was groceries, the trade being 1 per cent. larger than the last half of 1892.

In twenty-seven years, covered by the records of this agency, the number of failures has only once risen a little above 16,650 in a year. In 1893 the number reported was 16,650. The aggregate of liabilities in all failures reported, has in six years risen above $200,000,000. This year the strictly commercial liabilities alone exceeded $331,422,939. The liabilities of banking and financial institutions have been $210,957,864, and the liabilities of railroads placed in the hands of receivers about $1,212,217,033.

As all reports hitherto have been to some extent erroneous, through inclusion of failures not strictly commercial, thr classified returns are instructive. They show 3,226 manufacturing failures with liabilities of $164,707,449; 13,864 failures in legitimate trade with liabilities of $85,527,896, and 302 other failures, including brokers and speculators, with liabilities of $3,662,735. The average liabilities in manufacturing is $50,000; in legitimate trading, $8,000.

De Gama Gives Notice.

A special of Saturday from Buenos Ayres says: Admiral de Gama, commander of the insurgent naval force at Rio de Janeiro, has notified the members of the diplomatic corps that he will bombard the city if the new forts fire on his ships. The representatives of the foreign powers have sent a reply to the insurgent admiral saying that he must give at least forty-eight hours notice before he commences to shell the city. It is said the rebel admiral will give the notice required if another shot is fired from the new forts upon his vessels.

A Costly Feet.

A Chicago dispatch of Saturday says: David W. Hart, of Dodge City, Kan., a railroad man, is busily engaged in collecting the insurance on a $50,000 foot that he lost under a Chicago street car's wheel last summer. Mr. Hart had insured against the loss of a leg in a long list of companies and to the sum total of $50,000. He is now reaping the benefit of his foresight, some of the money having already been paid with the indications in favor of a speedy collection of it all.

The Happenings of a Day Chronicled in Brief and Concise Paragraphs

And Containing the Gist of the News From All Parts of the World.

Smith, Healy and Gleason, three of Howard's coached witnesses, were arrested at Jackson, Tenn., Wednesday night and placed in a cell to answer a charge of perjury. Brockaway, the leader of the crowd, is still at large.

At Millvale, Geneva county, Ala., Daniel Webster's family had a hog-head cheese for supper Tuesday night. By midnight Webster was dead, his wife was not expected to live and his three sons were desperately ill. It is supposed that the cheese was poisoned by remaining too long in a zinc vessel.

A dispatch from Belvira, O., Tuesday says: About one-half of the coal mines in this part of the Ohio valey were closed down on account of the miners refusing the reduction of 10 per cent. demanded by the operators. They are awaiting the action of the state convention at Columbus on January 9. Twelve hundred employes are out of work.

A Nashville special of Wednesday says: The clerk of the state funding board has found evidence of gross carelessness on the part of former administrations. Many of the coupons had never been classified and posted in the proper book. In one case $100 worth of coupons, not due until 1897, had been paid. About $300 of coupons paid but not canceled were also found.

According to advices from London a blinding snow storm, accompanied by heavy wind and a furious sea, prevailed in the English channel Tuesday night. The Packet service between the English and French ports was interrupted, and some of the steamers suffered damage. The Packet from Ostend was unable to land at Dover, owing to the tremendous sea, and put out into the channel again to await high water.

Burglars blew open the large safe in the Franklin Grove bank south of Rockford, Ill., Wednesday night and made away with everything of value in the vault. The concern is a private institution with a capital of $25,000 and an average deposit of $50,000, the customers being in the main wealthy farmers. The loss in cash and papers is estimated by the bank officials at $35,000. There is not the slightest clue as to who did the work.

A robbers' roost, rich with plunder, has been found beneath the floor of the great agricultural building at the world's fair grounds. The thieves escaped, but much valuable stolen property was recovered. The den was sumptuously furnished with Turkish rugs, fabrics from foreign looms, rich draperies and comfortable divans. Fine brandies, high wines and imported cigars were scattered about the place in great profusion.

Captain W. G. Raoul, former president of the Central railroad and now president of the Mexican central, writes a letter to the Savannah Press strongly urging the removal of the Southwestern railway from the Central system. Raoul claims that a speculative scheme is organizing in New York to secure control of the Georgia Central railroad and that the Southwestern railroad, centering at Macon, should be saved from the wreck.

The report on mining resources for 1892, prepared by Chief Day, of the division of mining statistics of the geological survey, was made public Wednesday. It shows that the high water mark in mineral productions was reached in 1892, both in this country and every other country. The total value of all the mineral products of that year was $684,778,768. This is $20,000,000 greater than the amount for any previous year, and $28,194,070 more than the amount for the censne year of 1890.

Fire at Detroit Wednesday night caused a loss of one and a half million dollars. It broke out a few minutes after 6 o'clock in the elevator of F. N. Quale & Co., on the river fronting on Madison and Water streets. The cause is as yet unknown. An explosion on of dust caused a general alarm. The elevator, with its entire contents, was destroyed. A strong northwest wind carried the flames across Madison street to the elevator and the business block of C. A. King & Co., which is also a total loss.

A dispatch of Wednesday to the London News from Paris says excavations in Oisseau Lipitit, department of the Sarthe, have revealed a Gallo-Roman city, which appears to have been destroyed by an earthquake. The city probably contained some 30,000 inhabitants, but its name is not known in French history. The ruins include a great temple, part of which is still standing, also a theater and monuments. A number of medals have been found, which include one of the time of Emperor Constance.

107th Annual Communication.

The one hundred and seventh annual communication of the grand lodge of Masons of North Carolina began at Wilmington Wednesday evening. About 400 were present. Grand Master John W. Cotton delivered an address. The order did not make as large gains of membership the past year as usual. It is the first time in ninety years that the grand lodge has met anywhere save at Raleigh. The annual report on the Masonic Orphans' asylum, at Oxford, was made. It shows that there are 230 orphans there and that $19,500 was received and expended in this institution, of which the state gave $10,000.

AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Affairs of Government and News of the Departments Discussed.

Notes of Interest Concerning the People and Their General Welfare.

The ways and means committee had a long sitting Monday night, but without result. The important question still before them is the settlement of the internal taxation features of the new tariff bill.

All the executive departments of the government were closed at noon Saturday in accordance with the established custom of giving the employes a half holiday on the working day preceding New Year.

In his annual report Mr. Robert E. Preston, director of the mint, gives a timely and interesting review of the course of silver from 1848 to 1893, inclusive, and of the causes of its depressionsince 1872.

The public debt statement issued Wednesday shows the net increase of the debt, less the cash in the treasury, during the month of December to have been $6,861,662. The interest bearing debt increased $90; of which interest has ceased since maturity $25,850, and the debt bearing no interest increased $2,063,361.

Contrary to the general impression, the number of complaints of victims of green goods swindles now being made to the postoffice department is unusually small. There are still, however, many complaints in course of investigation by Postoffice Inspector Anthony Comstock, to whom are referred all green goods cases.

Reports of the condition of the national banks at the close of business, December 29th, are being received at the treasury department in response to the call of the comptroller of the currency. They show that the average reserves of the banks reporting are very large and in some cases larger than on the date of the previous call, October 3d, indicating that the amount of money still idle is very great.

The state department has received from the nobles of St. Petersburg, a splendidly illuminated and printed address to the people of the United States conveying acknowledgements and thanks for the aid extended to the sufferers by famine in Russia. The address is painted on vellum and is accompained by paintings of Russian scenes, the whole magnificently bound in Russian leather with an inscription on the back in massive gold letters.

The grand jury of the District of Columbia was discharged Saturday without having returned an indictment against Don Jan, the crank who wrote threatening letters to Vice President Stevenson and Senator Mills. The court officials say this does not mean a failure of the prosecution, as the Don Jan case came up too late for the current grand jury to act on it. The prisoner will have to wait the action of the next grand jury which assembles some weeks hence.

The sub-committee of the senate committee on foreign relations met again Tuesday for the purpose of continuing its investigation under the resolution of Senator Morgan, authorising an inquiry into the diplomatic relations of this country with Hawaii. There was but one witness before the committee during the forenoon, Mr. V. C. Jones, who had been summoned from Boston for the purpose of putting the committee in possession of facts at his command concerning the revolution of last January and the relations of this country to the Hawaiian.

Republicans Complete a Minority Report in the Hawaiian Matter.

The republican members of the foreign affairs committee have completed the minority report on the resolutions presented by Chairman McCreary on the day congress adjourned, as a substitute for the Hitt resolution. The report was prepared by Mr. Storer, of Ohio, and is signed by Messrs. Hitt, Harmer, Blair, Draper and Van Vorhis, of New York. It is very voluminous and goes into the whole history of Mr. Blount's appointment as commissioner and the course of the administration. The minority recommends the adoption of the following substitute for the resolution reported by the majority: "Whereas, Executive communications to congress disclose that the executive department has been furnishing to a minister plenipotentiary of the United States secret instructions to conspire with the representatives and agents of a deposed and discarded monarchy for the overthrow of a friendly republican government, duly recognized by all the civilized nations to which said minister was accredited and to which his public instructions pledged the good faith and sympathy of the president, the government and the people of the Unsted States. "Resolved that it is the sense of this house that any such intervention by the executive of the United States, its civil or military, representatives or officers, without authority of congress, is a dangerous and unwarranted invasion of the rights and dignities of the congress of the United States and a violation of the law of nations; and further, that the manner of such attempted interventions by the executive's methods used are unworthy of the executive department of the United States; while the confessed intent of such intervention is contrary to the policy and tradition of the republic and the spirit of the constitution."

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Situation as Reported for the Past Week.

The review of the industrial situation in the South for the past week shows an increase in the number of newly established industries which indicates that public confidence is being gradually restored. It seems to be generally admitted that the manufacturing and business interests of the South will revive at once, as soon as a definite settlement of the tariff question is arrived at, and that the Southern States were never in better condition to take advantage of as settled condition of affairs. Mercantile business continues quiet, as is to be expected at this season. The southern banks are in a good financial condition and able to meet all reasonable demands.

Thirty-nine new industries were established or incorporated during the week, together with eight enlargements of manufactories and eight important new buildings. Among the prominent new industries of the week are the following: The Southern Fire Proof Building Co., of Richmond, Va., capital $50,000; Reuben Sheriff, president; mills for the Bay View Lumber Co., of West Norfolk, Va., to cost $50,000; the Houston Heights Manufacturing Co., of Houston, Texas, capital $50,000, T. M. Carter and others, incorporators; the Schutte Lumber Co., of Helena, Ark., capital $50,000, Charles Schutte, president; the Capera Manufacturing Co., of Fort Worth, Texas, capital $25,000, F. P. Capera and others, incorporators, and the Standard Construction Co., of Charleston, W. Va., capital $20,000.

Agricultural implement works are reported at Augusta, Ga., Charlotte, N. C., and Waco, Texas; a canning factory at Brewton, Ala.; cotton mills at Day's Gap, Tenn., and Berkley, Va.; a clothing factory at Roanoke, Va.; an electric lighting company at Bastrop, Texas; flour and grist mills at Load Hill, Ark., and Houston, Va., and ice factories at Meridian, Miss., and Charlotte, N. C.

An iron foundry is to be built at Maxton, N. C.; the pipe works at Anniston, Ala., are to be re-opened by a new company; gold mines are to be worked at Moncure, N. C., and coal mines at Bayard, W. Va.; oil mills are reported at Pelham, Ga. and Goliad, Texas; re-opening of phosphate works at Charleston, S. C.; a rice mill at Erwton, Ala., a soap factory at New Orleans, La., and tobacco factories at North Wilkesboro, N. C., and Houston, Va. A barrel factory is to be built a Anniston, Ala., a hoop factory at Little Rock, Ark., and a woolen mill at Roanoke, Va. Water works are reported at Madisonville and Shelbyville, Ky., and Benwood, W. Va.

Among enlargements of manufactories reported for the week are: A brewery at Wheeling, W. Va.; a flouring mill at Little Rock, Ark.; an iron furnity at Warren, Texas; stove works at Knoxville, Tenn.; lime works at Anniston, Ala.; a lumber plant at Wilmar, Ark., and a saw mill at Candler, N. C.—Tradesman, (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

THE GRAND OLD MAN

Celebrates His Eighty-Fourth Birthday--Hearty and Vigorous.

A cable dispatch from London says: England's grand old man, the Rt. Hon. William Ewart Gladstone, entered his eighty-fourth year Friday. He celebrated his anniversary by working hard in his study during the morning. In the afternoon he went to the house of commons, and in every way rigorously attended to the duties of his position. Mr. Gladstone received many telegrams of congratulation from distinguished people in all parts of the world.

Mr. Gladstone was born December 29th, 1809, at Liverpool, where his father, Sir John Gladstone, was a merchant of considerable importance. From him, Gladstone inherited a fortune and, what is more important, the baggage of tory opinions he had when he entered political life.

Perished With Her Children.

Thomas Ransdall, a well-to-do farmer living near Bohon, Ky., awoke early Thursday morning to find his house in flames. He jumped out of bed, carrying his baby with him, at the same time calling to his wife to wake their three children who were sleeping upstairs. She went to follow his instructions, but the house collapsed and she and the three children perished.

THE FIFTY-THIRD CONGRESS

The House and Senate Called to Order in Regular Session.

Daily Summary of Routine Business in the Two Houses.

THE HOUSE.

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 3.—The house, Wednesday morning, after a desultory filibuster on the part of the republicans concerning Hawaii, set out for a long session of work. The principal topic of discussion was the action of the ways and means committee, which Tuesday night by a vote of 6 to 5 democrats, decided to recommend a tax of two per cent on incomes of individuals and corporations of over $4,000 per annum. Mr. McCreary, chairman of the foreign affairs committee, offered a resolution, setting apart next Friday and Saturday for the consideration of the Hawaiian report. Mr. Hitt seconded the request, but Mr. Boutelle rose to a question of privilege and endeavored to call up his resolution relative to Hawaii offered before the recess. Mr. Turner held that the Boutelle resolution was not privileged, and made a point of order against it. The chair, after hearing Mr. Turner, held that Boutelle had a right to call the matter up. The resolution was then read and Mr. McMillin raised the question of consideration, stating that he wished to go ahead with the tariff bill. After some discussion a vote was demanded on the question of consideration raised by Mr. McMillan. A rising vote resulted yeas, 57; nays, 126. Mr. Boutelle demanded tellers, pending which Mr. McCreary demanded the yeas and nays. The latter motion was agreed to and the clerk began the roll call. The yea and nay vote resulted, yeas, 3; nays, 135, showing that filibustering had began. Mr. Boutelle made the point of no quorum. Mr. McMillin moved a call of the house. The call disclosed the presence of 203 members, more than a quorum, but the latter disappeared when it came to voting. The house at 3 o'clock adjourned without taking up the tariff bill.

THE SENATE.

WEDNESDAY, January, 3.—The Senate re-assembled at 12 o'clock Wednesday. When the vice-president rapped for order hardly a score of senators were in their seats. Immediately after the reading of the journal, Senator Blackburn, of Kentucky, presented the credentials of Epps Hunton as senator-elect from Virginia to fill the unexpired term of the late Senator Barbour, Hunton's service hitherto being under appointment from the governor. The oath of office was administered to the new senator. A resolution was offered by Mr. Frey and laid on the table for the present, declaring that during the investigation as to Hawaiian affairs, there should be no interference on the part of the United States government, by moral influence or physical force, for the restoration of the queen or the maintenance of the provisional government, and that our naval force there should be used only for the protection of the lives and property of American citizens. At 12:45 the senate proceeded to consideration of executive, business and at 1:20 adjourned until Thursday.

A Paper Changes Hands.

The Nashville American, published at Nashville, Tenn., changed hands Saturday. Hon. James M. Head purchased a controlling interest in the stock. The old board of directors resigned and the following were elected: James M. Head, S. A. Champion, J. H. Fulton, Horace E. Palmer and John E. Pitts. Mr. Head was elected president and W. E. McNeill secretary. It is understood that no expense will be spared in improving the paper and that the plant will be extended and improved.

Receivers Appointed.

The application for a receiver of the Ohio Valley Railroad Company, was argued Saturday in the United States court at Louisville, Ky., and Judge Barr appointed Colonel John McLeod as receiver. This is the last of the Huntington roads running through Kentucky, with one exception, the Chesapeake and Ohio, not in the hands of a receiver. The Chesapeake, Ohio and Southwestern and the Chesapeake and Ohio roads are separate corporations.

UNCERTAIN ABOUT THE FIGHT.

Governor Mitchell of Florida Keeping the Sports in Doubt.

A Jacksonville special of Saturday says: The prize fight situation remains practically unchanged. No fresh deliverance has come from Governor Mitchell, but his alleged accusation that the Duval county authorities were in collusion with the promoters of the contest, has been a fruitful theme for discussion in judicial and sporting circles. Of course, the judicial authorities deny that they are in collusion with the Duval Athletic Club in its efforts to pull off the contest, and they are jumping on the governor for what they call his wanton attack on the judiciary. The governor's statement that he will regard no decision as to the law in reference to prize fights, save that of the supreme court has also caused much bitter comment from the officials of the lower courts. The opinion is that the arrest of Corbett and Mitchell was part of a well laid scheme to get a "snap" judgement on the Florida law in reference to fights. What effect Governor Mitchell's prompt denunciation of the alleged scheme will have, remains to be seen.

THE LAW AND ORDER.

A dispatch from New Haven, Conn., says: Rev. Clarence Greeley, of Mount Carmel Center, general agent of the International Law and Order League, says that the league will do all in its power to stop the Corbett-Mitchell fight. Mr. Greely has corresponded with Governor Mitchell, of Tallahassee, and Mayor Fletcher, of Jacksonville, Fla., and has appointed W. H. Cowles, of the international league, to assist in seeing that the law of the state of Florida, relating to prize fighting, is carried out to the letter.

ATLANTA'S GREAT SCHEME.

She Proposes to Hold a Cotton States Exposition Next Year.

At a meeting of three hundred of the most prominent business men of Atlanta, Ga., it was unanimously decided to begin at once on the cotton states and sub-tropical exposition, which will be ready for opening about one year from now. The meeting was the most representative ever held in Atlanta, and the citizens pledged themselves for any amount necessary to make the exposition the most complete ever undertaken by the south. Mr. S. M. Inman, the head of the great cotton firm of S. M. Inman & Co., was chosen chairman. The exposition will cover displays not only of the resources of the South Atlantic and Gulf States, but will have special reference to Mexico, Cuba, Jamaica and the Bahama islands, with all of which close trade relations are expected on the readjustment of the tariff. Permanent organization was ordered effected and the movement put on a practical basis at once. The details will be arranged immediately, and for the next year the city of Atlanta will give itself unreservedly to the work. The exposition will be held on the grounds of the Piedmont park in the suburbs of the city.

DECLINED TO PROSECUTE.

The Duval Athletic Club of Jacksonville Has a Set-back.

One development followed another in rapid succession in the Corbett-Mitchell affair at Jacksonville Wednesday. The case against the criminal court against Corbett and Mitchell fell through, because the solicitor declined to prosecute them. The mayor vetoed the five-ounce-glove ordinance and the council passed it over his veto by a two-third vote. The Duval club now admits that it has requested Corbett and Mitchell to sign new articles of agreement and a test fight will soon be had at the Park opera house, to see if a case at law, can be made in a glove contest under articles of agreement exactly like those which were signed in New York for Corbett and Mitchell.

Elijah Moore is Tuskaloosa's new Sheriff.

A large number of the World's Fair buildings were burned Monday night. Losses nearly $1,500,000.

We note with pleasure that the mines and factories throughout the the country are beginning to resume operations.

The deadlock in the House of Representatives is broken, and we may soon expect something done with the Wilson Bill.

Democratic Congressmen should by all means give the country an income tax. Those most able should bear the greatest burden of taxation.

We congratulate Dothan on so clean and helpful a paper as the Eagle. Editor Williams is a tireless worker and proposes to do his part towards making Dothan a great town.

Dr. J. H. Blue, one of the leading physicians of Montgomery, committed suicide last Monday. A more elegant gentleman or successful physician we have never known. His family have our sincere sympathies.

Prof. J. B. Graham, of Talladega, who for two years past has been prominently mentioned for the position of State Supt. of Education has been admitted to the practice of law. Prof. Graham is one of the strongest men in the State and would succeed in filling even the Governor's chair.

Monday, Jan. 22nd, the State Democratic Executive Committee will meet in Montgomery for deciding on a day and a place for holding a State Convention, and for transacting such other business as may be necessary. The impression is that the convention will be held in April.

The old and well known dry goods house of Poliak & Co., of Montgomery, failed on Monday. Liabilities something over $200,000 and assets about the same, so it is claimed. This was a severe blow to Montgomery. That house employed about 100 persons, many of whom are thrown out of work. Bad collections the cause.

Mr. Theo. Welch, the General Freight Agent of the L & N. R. R. Co., is one of the most intelligent men in the State. On Monday night he lectured before the Commercial and Industrial Association, of Montgomery, on "Pictures." Those who heard the lecture were delighted with the treatment of that beautiful subject.

Many of the best papers in this State have endorsed the recent editorial from the VIEW on "good men in office." Drive out the men who believe in honest, sober and intelligent leaders and there will not be much left in any party to make it desirable. We believe in the Democratic party, despite the mistakes of some of its leaders, and we propose to do all we can to strengthen it and to that end we will continue our demand for leaders who have moral character. The VIEW wants to be represented in in the county, State and National offices by clean men and it will lend its influence for the nomination of only such characters.

The Chairman of the late Jeffersonian-Populite meeting held at Hartselle was J. A. Nelson, who as we happen to know, is an out and out Republican from Indiana. A more fierce hater of the South and her Democracy could scarcely be found. Surely men whose every heart string is twined about the South, but who have lately allowed themselves estranged from that party which has redeemed this country from carpet baggism and skalawagism, will not remain in a position where such characters as Nelson, Mosely, Walker and others of this kind are the leaders. There may be something good in Jeffersonian Democracy, but when these old time Radicals are the leaders and advisers it surely is Sil. Intst' Silver Bill.

Washington, Jan. 2.—Representative Oates of Alabama had prepared and had intended to introduce in the house to-day, the following important bill to provide for the coinage of silver bullion now on hand by the United States.

"Section 1. That all of the silver bullion now owned by the United States shall be coined as early as practicable into standard silver dollars of the weight and fineness now prescribed by law, which shall be a legal tender in payment of all debts, public and private; provided, that one-seventh part of the said bullion may be coined into half dollars, quarter dollars and dimes in the proportion directed by the Secretary of the Treasury and to contain the amount of pure silver and alloy as now prescribed by law for such coinage.

Sec. 2. That the Secretary of the Treasury shall set aside $40,000,000 coined as aforesaid, for the redemption of the notes issued by the Treasury and paid out for the purchase of silver bullion in the manner provided in the act of July, 1890, and whenever the said sum is reduced below $40,000,000 by the redemption of said notes, the said Secretary shall from any other silver dollars in the treasury not otherwise appropiated, add to the said sum so as to keep it up to $40,000,000 until the aggregated amount of said notes outstanding is reduced below that sum, and then the said Secretary may re-issue any of the said notes when redeemed as provided in the said act of July 14, 1890.

Sec. 3. That any contract hereafter made by the government of the United States, or between corporations, or between a corporation or a person or persons, or between private persons, which is by its terms, or by law payable in dollars or cents, may be paid at its maturity or thereafter in any lawful coin of the United States."

We know of no better words to speak to the young men of Chilton county than the following from the pen of one of the most successful farmers of the South:

"There are hundreds of young men in Alabama to-day puzzling their active brain over the problem how to make more money off the farm another year than they did last year.

The secret in the matter is to lessen expenses and to increase the profits. The key which will open the door is to be found no where else save in constant attention to business. A man must know before hand what he is working for. In other words he must have plans, the very best he can mature and then see that they are executed even to the minutest detail. Farm life is made up of a thousand little things which must be attended to in due time. Many one and two-horsere farms are willing to do the work, but they fear the results, as disaster and failure overtake so many. The strong arms of thousands of our young men are well nigh paralized because of the past failures and losses.

A one horse farmer who made a little money last year, will almost universally set apart for next year land enough for a two-horse farm. In doing this he has not counted the expense he must meet. Following this plan another mule must be bought, the working force must be doubled, while the fertilizer bill will of course be doubled, also, leaving out extra feed for the mule, expenses for another set of tools and feed for the extra hands. At a glance it is seen there has been no more to lessen expenses anywhere, but in fact expenses are doubled.

Suppose the young farmer had reasoned thus: I will not set apart more land for next year than I had last year. I will not buy an extra mule, neither will I hire an extra set of hands, but I will work the land with the same number of hands, and I will only increase the expenses for some fertilizer. Nine times in ten doubling the usual amount of manure put on a one-horse farm will double the profits.

Young men, do you see the point? If so, try it, and report results." J. R. McLendon.

"Enterprise of the Na-r-th."

Recently passing through that section known as Middle Tennessee, where the farms are cultivated as gardens, the sleek Jerseys browse in contentment and the blooded colts prance by the morning sunlight, I heard an old man speak, whose shibboleth easily located the section whence he came, saying:

"If they had some of the enterprise of the na-r-r-th down here they could make nice farms on this land, I sh'd guess."

Whereupon an old Confed. spoke out in words like the following:

"Yes, the enterprise of the na-r-r-th was fully shown during the war, in appropriating everything we owned, and what you could not carry off you destroyed, and we have these lands to-day because the enterprise of the na-r-r-th could neither remove or destroy them."

The enterprise of the South since the war has no parallel in the history of the world, as the present condition of the Sunny South plainly shows. After the transaction at Appotomax the weather-beaten, scarred Confederate soldier wended his way homeward on foot. Reaching the locality of his former residence, discover that the fence had been burned, cattle and mules driven away, farming implements destroyed, family refugees, and a heap of ashes marked the place he once called home. But his land was not gone, nor his pluck abated. He lost no time in brooding over the scene of devastation, the work of vandalism; but went in search of his true and faithful wife, one of the heroines of the Lost Cause. With a grit rarely, if ever witnessed before, they began life anew by erecting a rude shanty to cover their heads. They gathered together such implements as they were able to procure, and while the husband pulled a hickory bark plow line over the back of a poor old lame, condemned government mule, the boy dropping the corn, the wife danced to the music of the spinning wheel, and at the same time prepared their frugal meal. Such men and women made the South to bloom as the rose.

Occasionally a young spurt makes a little speech declaring the splendor of the "New South," saying in the spirit of ignorance: We ask no advice, sympathy or aid from the old men, for we intend to run this machine ourselves. Ah! me. What would the New South be to-day but for the foundation laid in the sweat and toil of these old men and women after the war had ended? These heroes and heroines are among us still. Their hands are hard, their bodies stooping, the shadows are lengthening and the evening of life is approaching; but they are calm and peaceful, trusting in God for their future home, and we must regard them with tenderness and care for their wants. Let the tongue cleave to the roof of my mouth and be for ever silent when I refuse to speak to their honor in any presence.

Mr. K. Wells of Verbena, was a visitor our city last week on business.

Mrs. Jno. Garner and family visited relatives in Jemison last week.

Hamilton-Brown Shoes.
W. L. Sampey.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Phillips are recuperating after an attack of la grippe.

Rev. Mr. Hainey held services at the Congregational Church last Sunday.

Maj. J. D. Bivings has been quite unwell for a few days, but is better at this time.

The law offies of Chas. W. Hare will be found in the north room of the VIEW building.

Prof. Hicks was in the burg Saturday, but always keeps so busy that he can't call on a fellow.

Mr. Jno. Goodgame is occupying the McKee residence, which he expects to have completed soon.

Mr. W. H. Merritt has purchased the lot on which once rested the drug store of Dr. A. E. Bivings.

Mrs. J. R. Harrell and daughter, Miss Lucy, of Birmingham, spent several days in Clanton last week.

Mr. L. E. Gullahorn has secured a position in the Magic City, and he bids farewell to the "gentlemen of leisure" and acquaintances here for a season. Success to him.

The merchants of Chilton County, should all advertise in the VIEW. It will cost each one a small amount and yet their combined aid would greatly strengthen the paper.

Dr. A. E. Bivings and family left our town Friday night last for Waxahatchie, Texas; but expect to stop for a few days in New Orleans. May they find it pleasant and profitable living in that great state.

If our readers have any legal advertising to be done we request them to remember the VIEW. Also in taking or giving mortgage state that they are to be advertised in the VIEW, should said advertising be necessary.

Some chicken-hearted thief in the dark hours of Sunday night ridded Mr. Jim Middleton of all of his fine game chickens. Jim says that it would give him pleasure to make the chicken-loving-rascal a present of some "blue whistlers" to feed them on.

Prof. E. Y. McMorries says that he rarely ever taught a more satisfactory school than he now has. That speaks well for Clanton and we trust the patrons will continue to give him their earnest co-operation and that the pupils will do their best studying.

Prof. J. L. Ruffin was in Clanton Saturday and called on the VIEW. The professor says that he has purchased a bicycle, and would have paid us a visit on his long-winded beast, if the weather had not been so threatening. Fetch'er down next time you come and let us stroke her mane.

We have had bad weather here for the past week.

A party was given at Mr. T. Phillips last Monday night. All the young people present report a pleasant evening.

Chilton County has a large number of successful farmers and we invite them to tell our readers in a few words how they manage to make money farming these hard times.

On Wednesday, Jan. 3rd, the firm of Wilson, Pickett & Co. of Montgomery, made an assignment for the benefit of its creditors. Judge H. J. Callen was connected with the firm and his many friends sympathize with him in his misfortune.

Among the drummers who visted Clanton this week, was an old friend and college mate, W. H. Cooper. He represents a leading Baltimore firm. We would be pleased to have our merchants give him a share of their patronage.

Our friend, Mr. Giles, of Jumbo, had a hard time last year. His family were sick and his horse became disabled, so that the yield from the farm was not as much as usual. But he has saved and carefully housed a large quantity of manure and with a brave heart propses to make a better success as a farmer this year.

A visit from Mr. Fox Maull, of Elmore, always puts the entire town in a good humor. He makes everybody laugh, and that makes the blood flow more freely and the whole life to be brighter. It will pay any town to employ him to live in it, even if he does nothing else than mingle with the people and keep then in good humor.

Now is the time for farmers to begin their preparations for the new year. Efforts have been to impress upon farmers that they should raise their own meat and manufacture their own fertilizer, but this advice has gone unheeded by a large number, and probably they, as some people of every class; pay no attention to newspaper advice; thinking that it is given without practical familiarity with the topic discussed. This may be true in some instances; but, observation and study should be the dispeller of doubts in every case, and it seems to us that it would require little study or observation for any farmer of good, sound common sense to see that it is the man who lives at home, raisees his meat, utilizes home fertilizer, and the many and one things which is in a farmer's power to make use of on home and farm, that is the happy and prosperous man—free from the mortgage—a thing that is like the jaws of a dragon, ready to "close" and crush.

The Value of Knowledge.

The proprietor of a large factory was one day put to his wit's end because the engine refused to do its proper work. The engineer was baffled in all his attempts to remedy the trouble and finally told his employer that the only thing to do was to send for the maker. This meant several days delay and no end of expenses, besides the immense loss caused by hundreds of hands being idle and contracts for work unfilled.

The manufacturer however, was about telegraphing for the maker of the engine when it suddenly occured to him to call in the assistance of a half-cracked old genius who lived in the town, and try if by chance he could hit upon some way of getting out of the difficulty. He came when requested and taking a hammer hit a blow or two in different places, gave a nut a couple of turns with a wrench, and then told the engineer to go ahead. The engine worked all right and the man had not been occupied ten minutes. The proprietor was delighted of course and told him to bring in his bill.

He did so the next day and when the manufacturer saw it was for $25.50 he began to kick."

"Why, said he, "this is a pretty big price for the job you did me; you were not more than ten minutes altogether in my engine-room."

"True enough," said the mechanic, "but suppose you read the items."

The proprietor looked again and read:

BRISTOL & CO.
To AB. SMITH, Dr.

To ten minutes time fixing engine	$ .50
To knowing how	$25.00
	$25.50

The manufacturer said not another word, but paid the bill.

This instance aptly illustrates the power of knowledge. It makes no difference in what direction the knowledge tends. It is bound to have its value.

FOR SALE—Any one wanting to buy a pheaton and harness almost new at a sacrifice price should apply to the View Real Estate Agency.

Hapleyville Music.

At the home of T. U. Crumpton on Dec. 25th, little Ulma Auguste fell into a sleep that knows no awakening.

It seems that this precious little one was only lent that we might know how fair a flower in Paradise could bloom. She was only four months old and was the only child of the stricken parents. Her pure spirit has been called into bliss before it knew the taint of sin. She cannot come to us, let us try and go to her.

She took the cup of life to sip;
Bitter it was to drain,
She took it from her lips,
And went to sleep again.

Mr. T. M. Barnett has moved his family to Mitchell's Station. They will come back and spend the summer here.

Mr. E. H. Wingate has gone to Ensley City. He will move his family there soon.

The farmers in this section made good crops last year, and they are beginning to prepare for another year. Now is the time to sow oats and they should do so. They should endeavor to raise more grain than ever, for it is not probable that cotton will bring a higher price this year than last.

Tons of Money.

There is probably no more interesting place in the treasury department to sightseers than the immense vaults in the treasurer's office, where so much gold, silver and United States currency are stored. The immense travel eastward from the world's fair, in addition to the ordinary number of sightseers, has taxed the capacity of the treasury guides to the utmost.

The most frequent question asked of the guides is the amount of money stored in the vaults. For a ready answer to these questions the office has prepared a brief printed statement showing the amount and description of the contents of each of the eight vaults. These are kept by many of the visitors as souvenirs of their trip to Washington. The figures presented show that there is stored in the vaults a total of $742,193,000, the part consisting of coin weighing about five thousand tons. The following are the amounts and description of the money in the eight vaults:

Standard silver dollars, $149,860,000; gold coin, $11,500,000; fractional silver, $333,000; national bank notes received for redemption, $3,500,000; mixed moneys received for daily use, $1,000,000; bonds held as security for national bank circulation, $250,000,000; held as a reverse to replace worn and mutilated notes unfit for circulation, $325,000,000.

Laugh.

There is absolutely nothing that will help you bear the ills of life so well as a good laugh. Laugh all you can. If the cloths-line breaks, the cat tips over the milk and the dog elopes with the roast, if the children fall into the mud simultaneously with the advent of clean aprons, if the new girl quits in the middle of housecleaning, and though you search the earth with candles you find none other to take her place; if the neighbor in whom you have trusted goes back on you and keeps chickens, if the chariot wheels of the uninvited guest draw near when you are out of provender and the gaping of your empty purse is like the unfilled mouth of a young robin, take courage if you have enough sunshine in your heart to keep a laugh on your lips.—Chicago Post.

An old lady who has seen several generations pass in review before her says, apropos of the modern girl, that what she should have is a free mind, with reserved manners, and goodness, balanced by a sense of humor.

Keep Your Weather Eye Open.

Fraud loves a shining mark. Occasionally spurious imitations spring up of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the great American family remedy for chills and fever, dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness, nervousness, neuralgia, rheumatism and kidney disorder. These imitations usually defy local bitters full of high wines. Look out for the firm signature on the genuine label and vignette of St. George and the dragon.

There is one good thing about a long prayer—the amen.

Ladies needing a tonic, or children who want building up, should take Brown's Iron Bitters. It is pleasant to take, cures Malaria, Indigestion, Biliousness and Liver Complaints, makes the Blood rich and pure.

I am delighted to say that August Flower helped me so that I have quite recovered from my indisposition." ●

HOWARD CONVICTED.

He is Found Guilty as Charged on Eight Indictments.

His Friends Will Not Desert Him and Will Ask for a New Trial.

A Jackson, Tenn., special says: "Rev." George Frederick Bugerne Howard, the great foreign claim swindler, was found guilty as charged on the eight indictments, and he will do time at the United States prison, at Columbus, O., unless the supreme court of the United States to which he appeals, reverses the decision of the lower court. The verdict of the jury has said the defendant, under his various aliases, is guilty, and the general public upholds it. The sentence, however, is a small one, compared with the magnitude of his crime and the large territory over which he operated. Thousands of deluded, illiterate people have been taken in by Howard.

The case went to the jury at 8 o'clock Tuesday night. They brought in a verdict of guilty Wednesday morning in all the twenty-two counts set forth in the indictment.

The result was not a surprise to the public. The defendant and his wife received the news coolly, and it did not seem to take them by surprise in the least.

HOWARD'S REMARKABLE HISTORY.

No more remarkable case has come up in recent years to puzzle the detectives of two continents than that of the Rev. G. F. B. Howard, alias a half dozen other names, whose trial has just closed at Jackson, Tenn.

Howard has been known in this country as a struggling Baptist minister, president of a denominational college, editor of a religious paper and railroad president. It was sought in the trial of his case to show that while nominally following the peace-vocations stated he really was engaged in a systematic and elaborate scheme of villainy requiring the arts of a practical schemer and the adaptability of a polished man of the world. The operations with which he was charged have been carried into thousands of homes in America, while in England leading statesmen and diplomats have been used unwittingly to themselves, but with great effect by the shrewd manipulator; and during the fruitless trial just ended witnesses whose names are familiar in public affairs in both countries have appeared to testify.

THE ENGLISH ESTATE FRAUD.

Several years ago there began to appear in all parts of this country posters having the typographical appearance of English prints, which were displayed in conspicuous places, generally in the postoffices in rural localities, and which bore a long list of surnames which were represented to be the names of families to whose scions in America belonged estates of more or less value which were unclaimed in England. The posters advised the connections of such families to write to "William Lord Moore, 5 Ingersoll road, Shepherd's Bush, London, Eng.," on the chance that they might be the heirs to such estates.

These posters were mailed from New York to postmasters in all parts of America. The postmasters were told that if they hung up the notice in their office they would receive $1,000 in cash in case any of these heirs came into an estate through seeing it. This offer was signed "Felix Howard, 15 University street, London." Applicants were requested to address the latter, inclosing 25 cents for reply, and they were told "we charge nothing for reply."

Thousands of answers were sent from all parts of America. These correspondents did not hear again from "Felix Howard," but from "A. Goodfellow, 5 Friars' street, Blackfriar's street, S. E. London."

HOW THE SCREW WAS TURNED.

The ancestors of a very large per cent of the people in this country came from the "old country," and if the hope of acquiring a large fortune were not sufficient to attract the coin from many such, the anticipation that they would be found to be connected with the landed gentry of Great Britain was an additional inducement for them to yield a few dollars on the venture. How many people reached at the alluring bait will never be known, but they numbered up in the tens of thousands. The expense was made light at first, then came further information from London and further demands for cash. Very few of those who yielded to the first call for cash failed to respond when subsequent requests came, especially as each request was accompanied with significant though vague intimations that everything was moving smoothly. There were bonds to be made, stamps to be purchased and other incidental cash expenditures which the heirs-expectant were required to meet. Each applicant was mulched to sums not less than $100. "William Lord Moore" and "Felix Howard" cut into the correspondence quite frequently.

SQUEEZING THE DUPES.

Finally would come a letter like this:

No. 5 INGERSOLL ROAD, SHEPARD'S BUSH,
LONDON, ENG., June 23, 1892.

Mrs. ——: Dear Madam—I have the pleasure of informing you that our claim is gained. The court will allow from thirty to ninety days to elapse before notifying you in order to allow any other person who may wish to claim the property to do so, but after that time they will be forever barred. So as you will be notified by the court some time after thirty days that the property is yours, I would advise you not to be absent from home for any lengthy period during the next ninety days, or until you get the notice. As soon as you are in possession I will send in my bill. Looking after the claim has used me up and I will take a rest for a month or six weeks at a health resort so it will be useless for you to write until you get a letter from me, unless you write immediately. The property gained is worth about $2,000,000. Yours truly,

WILLIAM LORD MOORE.

In due time the claimant received the following communication from New York,

DOMINION BUREAU, 451 6TH AVENUE.
NEW YORK, September 15, 1892.

Mrs. ——, Dear Madame—By order of the court I inclose a copy of the decree in your favor. Send me the $35 by registered letter, so that I can make my report at once as directed. The only other way of raising the money would be by selling the property for taxes at a ruinous sacrifice. Yours respectfully,

JOSEPH LEGER.

Following is a sample of the decree:

SUPREME COURT CHAMBERS.

Whereas, the decree heretofore made in favor of Mrs. —— in her by confirmed and the title of the property declared vested in the said Mrs. —— forever, no person having appeared in the time specified to dispute said title, therefore the official representative of this court, to wit: Joseph Ledger, at present in America, is hereby commanded to notify the said Mrs. ——, and after receiving the taxes on legacies and bequests to issue possession papers and to report to this court at once.

(Signed.) DE LOSEUR, Chancellor.
August 29, 1892.
Amount of taxes, United States money, $35.
(Seal.) G. W. RAWLINGS, Assistant.

THE POLICE TAKE A HAND.

The real cause of William's retirement to a watering place was not so much fatigue, the result of the arduous labors in "looking up this claim," as the fact that the London police had been apprised of his little scheme to rob the unsophisticated. A letter to one of the claimants from the Scotland Yard authorities says that "William Lord Moore," alias "Felix Howard," was a swindler, and left England for America about the time Joseph Leger began to figure in New York. About the same time the United States postoffice department learned of the operations of the gang in New York. Ever on the alert, the schemers got wind of an intended arrest and decamped hurriedly.

An examination of scores of letters written by "William Lord Moore," "Felix Howard," "Joseph Leger," "E. Ross" and others concerned in the conspiracy shows that the text of it all is about the same. They were all dictated by the same person. Some of the claimants failed to pay the bonds required, but many of them did, and enough money was paid to aggregate probably seven hundred thousand dollars for the schemers.

HOWARD AS A LAWYER.

About this time the Rev. G. F. B. Howard arrived in Jackson, Tenn., where he had formerly lived and occupied a conspicuous position. He hung out his shingle as a lawyer. He was a learned man and had traveled extensively. He had some success at the practice of law in Jackson, but he devoted himself more particularly to arousing the interest of the citizens of that place to a railroad enterprise, the Gulf and Tennessee railroad project which had been agitated long before, but never brought to a focus. Dr. Howard went at the business energetically. He went to England to interest capitalists in it. He organized the company and was himself made president, after which he established elaborate offices at Jackson, with many clerks and assistants.

Although making a specialty of collections Dr. Howard did not permit his railroad enterprise to lag, but got the matter to such shape that the citizens of Jackson were about to vote on a proposition to give the road a cash bonus of $60,000 in order to secure it; but some events transpired which brought these affairs to an abrupt termination.

AT THE END OF HIS ROPE.

Some of the gillies who had been biting continually at the English estate scheme from the time it was first sprung in London began to make inquiries regarding Howard. The federal authorities were interested in the case. Espionage was placed upon his actions, his business and his mails. He went to Chicago early last August, and while away his office was searched by officers armed with a warrant, and such discoveries were then made that the Chicago police were notified to arrest Howard in that city, which instructions were carried out and Howard was confronted with fraud and illegal use of the United States mails, the purport of which was to the effect that G. F. B. Howard, William Lord Moore, Joseph Leger, E. Ross and Felix Howard are one and the same individual.

PRENDERGAST MUST HANG.

The Jury's Verdict of Murder Universally Approved.

A Chicago special of Saturday says: Prendergast, the murderer of Carter H. Harrison, will be hanged for his crime. The verdict of the jury has said it, and the people of Chicago approve it. Ably defended as the assassin has been; strong as has the evidence adduced to save his neck from the halter, the jury has found him sane—responsible for his act and demanded that he pay the highest price for his offense against the law. This price, however, is a sorry one at the best. The value to the world of one life, such as that of Carter H. Harrison, would weigh down the scales against the existence of a hundred such as Prendergast.

When Clerk Fitzgerald arose to read the finding of the jury the prisoner stood clutching the back of a chair, eyeing him with the most intense eagerness, his long fingers nervously clasping the chair, his knees trembled violently, his face was flushed and his spiteful-looking mouth opened and closed as though he would say something, but lacked the power to speak.

"We, the jury, find the defendant, Patrick Eugene John Prendergast, guilty of murder, in manner and form as charged in the indictment, and fix the penalty at death."

Fitzgerald's voice, clear and calm, read out the finding and died away with a slight emphasis on the final word. Then Prendergast revealed himself the utter coward. His face turned pale; he opened his mouth to speak, but only a faint murmur came from between his hot and quivering lips. He moved slightly and would have fallen to the floor but for the assistance of a bailiff.

Designated as Thugs.

A Tallahassee special says: Governor Mitchell Wednesday sent the following telegram to a Cincinnati paper: "The Corbett-Mitchell prize fight will not take place in Florida unless the supreme court of this state decides there is no law prohibiting such a fight. There will be no necessity of proclaiming martial law to prevent such a fight, but were it necessary, I would not hesitate to proclaim it, as I am determined to prevent this fight by any and all means within the reach of the executive. There can be no doubt as to my position, and people who come here with the expectation of seeing the laws of the state violated by two thugs and their aiders and abettors, will be disappointed.

"H. L. MITCHELL, Governor."

THE NEWS IN GENERAL.

Condensed from Our Most Important Telegraphic Advices

And Presented in Pointed and Readable Paragraphs.

General John Echols and St. John Boyle have been appointed receivers of the Chesapeake, Ohio and Southwestern Railroad Company.

A New York dispatch says: "Francis P. Walton, familiarly known as "Plunger Walton," proprietor of the Grand hotel, at 1,234 Broadway, made an assignment Tuesday.

Captain J. C. Ainsworth, an 1849 pioneer of California and Oregon and three times a millionaire, died at his home in Oakland, Cal., Saturday afternoon. He was seventy-one years old.

The entire plant of the Carnegie steel works resumed work Monday. Notices were posted previously of a reduction of 2½ cents an hour in the wages of machinists and 2 cents an hour for laborers.

A cable message from St. Petersburg, Russia, says: Cholera has broken out among the students boarding at the Nicholas Seminary. The girls attending the seminary have been dismissed and sent to their homes.

The Columbus, Ohio, Watch Company is in the hands of a receiver on account of hard times. Assets, $400,000; liabilities, $300,000. Arrangements are to be made to save all that can be saved of the property.

The Red Star steamship Rhineland arrived at New York late Saturday night, after a fourteen days' voyage from Antwerp, having on board ten of her crew injured by being thrown around the decks during the gales which pounded the ship for eleven days.

The New York Herald in its issue of Tuesday says that John L. Sullivan the ex-champion, has stated that he desired to challenge the winner of the Corbett-Mitchell contest and that he thought that by good handling and conscientious training on his part he would stand a fair show.

Judge Tuthill, of Chicago, received a letter Saturday apparently written by a crank in which the writer says the murderer of Dr. Cronin is now buried beneath the sod of Iowa, and that he, the writer, has known the true story of the crime for years but he has been afraid to tell it. The letter is dated Chillicothe and signed Sigmonds.

A New York dispatch of Saturday says: Receiver Hugh J. Grant, of the St. Nicholas bank, will wind up the affairs of that defunct institution with all possible economy. He will close up the bank and engage a room in the building of the Central Trust Company, where the $800,000 cash assets of the bank are deposited.

The Lowell Carpet Co., at Lowell, Mass., which began work several days ago, have posted notices that a general reduction of ten per cent would be made in the wages of employers, to take place next week. The weavers met Monday night to discuss the matter and voted to have a conference with the agent, if possible.

The Globe theatre at Boston, Mass., was destroyed by fire early Tuesday morning. This is the second time that the Globe has been visited by fire, the first time being on Decoration Day, 1873. During the whole conflagration not an accident was reported. The total loss will undoubtedly be nearly a million dollars. All the property is well insured.

A Rock Island freight train crashed into the rear of a Union Pacific freight train, ten miles east of Lawrence, Kan., Tuesday morning. The Union Pacific caboose and a passenger coach, a car-load of lumber and a car load of hogs were burned. Later advices from the scene state that four persons were killed, four injured—two probably fatally.

The boiler of the locomotive pulling the through freight into St. Louis exploded near Higginson, Ark., early Tuesday morning. The train consisted of thirty-five cars, fourteen of which were loaded with cattle. Abont twenty cars were wrecked and a great number of cattle killed. Head Brakeman Ross was instantly killed, the fireman fatally and the engineer seriously injured.

One hundred populists, of Missouri, representing each congressional district in the state, assembled in convention at Kansas City, Tuesday. W. O. Atkinson, of Butler, was elected chairman and J. W. Long, of Warrensburg, secretary. A committee was appointed to report a plan of campaign to carry the state for the populist party at the next election.

The New York State Assembly, of 1894, was called to order at Albany Tuesday morning. After organization ballots were taken to fill different positions for which nominations were made in caucus, each member rising in his place and naming his choice for the different positions. The nominees of the republican caucus were duly elected from speaker down to the minor positions.

At a meeting of citizens at Hinsdale county Col., Tuesday, resolutions were adopted instructing their representatives in the general assembly to bring impeachment charges against Governor Waite and then work for an immediate adjournment of the extra session. This is brought about by the governor's determination to call the legislature together and his recent row with the warden of the penitentiary.

A motion was made before Surrogate Fitzgerald at New York Tuesday which may reopen the litigation over the $10,000,000 left by William B. Ogden, the first mayor of Chicago, who died in 1887. The executors of the will are his widow, his nephew, William Ogden Wheeler, his brother-in-law, the late Edwin A. Sheldon, of Chicago; Andrew H. Green, of New York, and General W. F. Strong, of Chicago.

Cable advices from Capetown, Africa, state that no further news has been received regarding the reported massacre of Wilson's and Barrow's detachments. There is no doubt that when Major Forbes left the Shangani river Captain Wilson and his party were very hard pressed. But reinforcements have been sent to him, and it is hoped that the two forces have effected a junction and that they will soon be in communication with their base of operations.

Judge Grosscup, of the United States circuit court, at Chicago on Tuesday, placed the American Building, Loan and Investment Company in the hands of a receiver, the action being taken at the request of the president and board of directors. In their bill the directors state that the downfall of the society is due to the threats of proceedings against it made by the law officers of Illinois. Insolvency is confessed, with liabilities of $900,000 and assets of $700,000.

Advices of Tuesday from Pernambuco state that the Brazilian dynamite cruiser Nictheroy has again been put in readiness to sail south and get within reach of the insurgent vessels under command of Admiral Mello. The exact time of her departure has not been announced. When she does start she will be accompanied by the Brazilian cruiser America. The United States cruiser San Francisco has finished coaling and will go south at once. Her destination is Rio de Janeiro.

A St. Louis dispatch of Tuesday says: Another has been added to the list of broken building and loan associations, the Blackstone, F. McEntire, president, and H. W. Lindhorn, secretary, assigning to Henry O. Sigmund. Inability to find the books of the association or Secretary Lindhorn, who has disappeared and is believed to be in Chicago, puts a sensational phase upon the affair. It is, therefore, impossible to learn the assets and liabilities, though estimates place each at about $25,000. Lindhorn is bonded for $20,000.

A large crowd of unemployed men marched to the city hall at Cleveland, Ohio, Tuesday morning and demanded work from the city authorities. They were accompanied by fully 100 women, many of whom carried children in their arms. When informed there was no work for them, the men became angry and many threats were made. "We will have work or tear down the city hall," said one of the leaders. "Our families are suffering and we must have employment or bread." The police were called upon and the crowd dispersed.

Saturday afternoon the pumping station of the Indiana Natural Gas Company pipe line at East Chicago was blown up and will probably result in the death of at least eight persons. While workmen were in the station engaged in repairing a leak in the pipe, the escaping gas took fire from a lantern, which they knocked over, and in a moment an explosion took place, which tore the iron building to pieces and threw the workmen in every direction, some of whom were thrown fifty feet from the building and horribly burned.

A dispatch of Tuesday from Vienna says that Cracow, Poland, newspapers contain accounts of a recent attempt to poison the czar. On the 124th anniversary of the founding of the imperial order of St. George, a grand dinner was given to all who had been awarded the decoration. The first course was but half consumed and the czar ordered what was left be sent to the Nicholas orphan asylum. Later in the evening the czar, the guests at the banquet and the orphans were all taken sick and an investigation revealed that the fish had been poisoned.

A Baltimore dispatch of Sunday says: Beginning with New Year's Day 400 men, heretofore employed by the Maryland Steel Company, at Sparrow's Point, will be out of work for an indefinite period. These men who have been discharged, comprise the entire working force of the Bessemer steel and rail mills, and the action of Receiver Wood, in ordering the discharge, has caused the greatest surprise, as both mills have been recently running night and day on orders. It is feared that the discharge will result in much suffering, as most of the men have families dependent upon them.

BATTLING FOR BREAD.

A Bad State of Affairs in the Great City of Chicago.

A Chicago special of Friday says: But few of the large packing houses at the stockyards are running. In Armour's, which is the busiest, only a few cattle are being killed. The canning department is entirely suspended, and, as many other departments are dependent upon the canning department for work, they, too, are closed.

As a consequence, large numbers of men are out of employment. Outside of those employed regularly, there is a few hours' work for a small number of men, and it is the engagement of these men that brings on the fights and struggles that occur daily in the yards.

The men gather early as five o'clock in the morning and increase until seven o'clock, when the foreman appears to secure the men he needs. Instantly there is a rush to get near him. "Might makes right" in that rush, and the weak are knocked down or pushed aside. No consideration is shown for anyone, and the man who is not strong enough to assert himself and defend himself must get out or he will be knocked out.

A number of men are said to have been hurt, some of them seriously, in these daily struggles. Those who fail to secure work assault the workmen and rob them of their dinner pails and what money they may have. In the evening, men and children stand around with baskets, begging for what may be left of the luncheon of the workmen.

107th Annual Communication.

The one hundred and seventh annual communication of the grand lodge of Masons of North Carolina began at Wilmington Wednesday evening. About 400 were present. Grand Master John W. Cotton delivered an address. The order did not make as large gains of membership the past year as usual. It is the first time in ninety years that the grand lodge has met anywhere save at Raleigh. The annual report on the Masonic Orphans' asylum, at Oxford, was made. It shows that there are 330 orphans there and that $19,500 was received and expended in this institution, of which the state gave $10,000.

By a strict party vote, the house committee on elections Tuesday decided to recommend to the house that ex-Congressman John J. O'Neill be seated from the 11th Missouri district, in place of Charles F. Joy, the sitting member, who is a republican.

The house committee on coinage, weights and measures Wednesday began the consideration of the Bland bill, providing for the coinage of the seigniorage of silver bullion now in the treasury. The Bland free coinage bill, which was made the order of business for the day, was postponed until the seigniorage bill is disposed of.

It took the house a long while to get at the tariff, but now that the discussion has commenced, things are moving along briskly. The day sessions have been lengthened two hours and night sessions are held. All of these are well attended by both members and spectators. The public interest in the debate seems to be unusually great.

Secretary Gresham, in speaking Tuesday morning of the news brought by the Associated Press from Honolulu, via the steamer Warimoo, repeated his previous statement that he was without news of the condition of affairs and the happenings in Hawaii, save as he gathered it from the newspapers. The secretary said that he was awaiting advices which were coming by mail.

All the Georgia congressmen read with a great deal of interest Monday the Atlanta Constitution's article on the establishment of a department of the army to be known as the "department of the south," at Atlanta. They think the south is entitled to a department, and each and everyone of them will use his influence with the secretary of war to have a department established for the southern states with headquarters at Atlanta. The secretary of war now has the matter under advice, and is looking upon it with some degree of favor.

There was great excitement about Washington Monday over the various rumors in regard to the Hawaiian matter. One of the most startling rumors was to the effect that American troops had been landed in Hawaii and that there was fighting and bloodshed. Another rumor was to the effect that President Dole had returned to Minister Willis his papers and refused to further recognize him as representative of the United States government. This rumor further said that Minister Willis had gone aboard the American man of war in the harbor of Honolulu.

In the office of the clerk of the senate there are two tremendous drums around which are rolled several hundred yards of coarse cloth on which is pasted petitions asking the government to establish a department of roads in order that the public roads of this country might be improved. Several hundred thousand names are signed to these petitions. It was gotten up by a bicycle manufacturing concern in Boston. Of course a good system of roads in this country would improve the bicycle trade materially, and that is what this bicycle manufacturer is after. The cost of getting up this tremendous petition amounted to several thousand dollars, but it will probably go the road that other petitions presented to the senate go.

Committed to Congress.

No further steps will be taken by the executive branch of the government to carry out the policy of restoring Queen Liliuokalani. Secretary Gresham is authority for this statement. He said in an interview Wednesday that the settlement of the whole Hawaiian question was in the hands of congress, and everything that would aid it in arriving at a conclusion would be submitted by the president. All documents, reports and other communications received by the state department from Mr. Willis, said the secretary, would be transmitted to congress and given publicity through that source as soon as they came to hand. Furthermore, all communications of an official nature addressed to Mr. Willis would go to congress as soon as they had been mailed to the ministers.

Involves Serious Consequences.

If the news from Hawaii which reached Washington Saturday be correct the administration is in an extremely embarrassing position. It is understood here that the dispatches brought by the Corwin and wired in cipher from San Francisco to the State department Friday night contain the news that the ex-queen has notified Minister Willis that she will accept his terms on which the United States agreed to restore to her the throne. It is further said that when Minister Willis received this communication from Liliuokalani he communicated with the provisional government, and President Dole promptly and peremptorily refused to accede to the demands of the United States. The administration cannot use force without consent of congress, and congress will never give its consent for the use of the United States navy to restore the queen. There is no doubt that all concerned feel that this latest phase of the Hawaiian imbroglio involves many serious consequences. It does not appear that there is any disposition on the part of the provisional government to yield peaceably and there is no apprehension that Minister Willis proposes to resort to force. His instructions are explicitly against such a course. Minister Willis is felt by the state department to have acted with bad judgment.

A New Engine of Death.

A dispatch of Friday to The London Times from Vienna says: Archduke Carl Salvador, in conjuction with another officer of the army, has invented and automatic mitrailleuse, which is reported to be the best made. It fires 450 to 480 shots a minute. Smokeless powder can be employed. Forty thousand rounds have been fired from one barrel of the weapon without showing any defect. The cost of the new mitrailleuse is 1,000 florins each.

Happenings of Interest Portrayed in Pithy Paragraphs.

The Kentucky legislature Tuesday re-elected Senator William Lindsay. He received ninety-two democratic votes. Fults, republican, thirty-three; populist, four.

C. M. Woodbury, of Middlesboro, Tenn., was appointed receiver of the Mingo Mountain Coal and Coke Company, Tuesday by Judge D. M. Key, of the United States district court.

The cotton mills of Embrey Son & Young, north of Florence, Ala., were burned Saturday night. The loss is estimated at $20,000; insurance $10,500. The factory was a 2,500-spindle yarn mill. The machinery was modern and the plant well equipped.

The stock of dry goods of A. Halzman at Selman, Ala., was attached by the cheriff Tuesday and writs sued out by Steiner & Loebman, of Montgomery, Mrs. Fannie Bizzell, of Selma, and H. B. Claflin & Co., of New York, their claims aggregating $10,500.

Patti, the actress, drew a $7,800 house at Nashville Monday. She has signed a contract with Manager Marcus Mayer for fifteen more concerts, making forty in all, and extending her tour to March 22d. She was also elected to life membership in the Ladies' Hermitage Association.

The Bridgeport stove works has been organized at Bridgeport, Ala., with a working capital of $25,000. This plant has been in existence for fourteen months on a small scale, but the output will now be increased and more men will be put on. The payroll of Bridgeport is $20,000 per week.

A Knoxville, Tenn., special says: Major D. A. Carpenter, United States pension agent for this district, composing eleven southern states, was sworn into office Monday morning and took charge, relieving Capt. Rule, who held the office under President Harrison. Major Carpenter has not yet announced his appointment.

The Pollak company, of Montgomery, one of the largest wholesale and retail dry goods houses in Alabama, failed Monday morning and was shut up by two attachments, one of which was for about forty thousand dollars by Claflin & Co., of New York, and another of about sixty thousand dollars by the local banking houses of Morris & Co.

A Nashville special of Tuesday says: There is a queer complication existing between two federal judges over the sale of the Knoxville and Marietta railroad. The original bill asking the sale was filed in Atlanta and nearly all the litigation has been done in Judge Key's court at Chattanooga. On application of certain creditors, Judge Key appointed a receiver and ordered a sale.

The traveling passenger agents of the country held their annual session in New Orleans Tuesday. They came from all parts of the country to New Orleans to attend this convention, and constitute a representative body of men. The convention has received invitations to go to Texas after the session has been completed. This is the twenty-second anniversary of the association.

A Raleigh special says: Governor Carr on Saturday received from Sheriff White, of Madison, an important report regarding the murder of the Chinaman, Ling Gun. Sheriff White has completed a careful investigation and says the body was found a quarter of a mile beyond the Tennessee line, long after Gun was killed. The body was evidently dragged there from the place in Madison county where Gun was murdered.

A Knoxville, Tenn., special says: Newspapers have had much to say during the past year regarding the rumored resignation of the Hon. D. M. Key, judge of the United States district court for the eastern division of Tennessee. It was said he would resign January 1st, but that date has passed and he is now holding court in this city. In an interview Tuesday, however, he gave out his intentions positively.

In the United States court at Charleston, S. C., Monday Judge Simonton refused the motion made by the attorney general of the state to dismiss the order of arrest issued against four of the whisky constabulary in the Cantini case. The four constables have not yet been arrested and held to bail. The court states that this was done with its approval, but today the marshal was ordered to proceed to execute the order of arrest.

Captain W. G. Raoul, former president of the Central railroad and now president of the Mexican central, writes a letter to the Savannah Press strongly urging the removal of the Southwestern railway from the Central system. Raoul claims that a speculative scheme is organizing in New York to secure control of the Georgia Central railroad and that the Southwestern railroad, centering at Macon, should be saved from the wreck.

Several orders, signed by Justice Jackson as the result of the recent hearing in Washington, were filed in the United States court at Savannah Saturday. Among them was an order granting the receivers, Messrs. Comer and Hayes, compensation for their services at the rate of $1,000 per month on account. This is not to be regarded as definitely fixing the compensation to be paid the receivers upon the final settlement of their trust. Another order directs the receivers to purchase 1,500 tons of steel rails to be laid on the Southwestern and paid for out of the Southwestern's earnings. The rail is to be laid between Fort Valley and Columbus, and also on the Columbus extension from Albany to Columbia, Ala.

A CAUSTIC REPLY

Of the Duval Club to Attorney-General Lamar of Florida.

The statement published in the Chicago Inter-Ocean by Florida's Attorney General to the effect that the Corbett-Mitchell contest could not possibly be "pulled off" within the borders of his state has elicited a caustic reply from the president of the Duval Athletic Club. The Attorney General's positive edict against the fight is met by as positive a statement from the club that the contest will occur, and occur in Florida at that. Here is what the club says in reply to the Attorney General:

"Attorney General Lamar, speaking for himself and the governor, having declared in a letter to the Inter-Ocean of Chicago that the Corbett-Mitchell contest will not take place in Florida, it is proper that we inform the public that neither the attorney general nor the governor possesses any judicial power and to add that the state's officers, acting under the direction of the executive, have refused to allow any judicial determination by the courts of the law which it is claimed the contest will violate, and to that end have caused the prosecution originated for the purpose of testing the law to be dismissed; and further, that the executive of the state, possessing the constitutional prerogative of asking the opinion of the highest judicial tribunal of the state as to the construction of the statute, has declined to do so. The public is hereby assured that the contest will take place as advertised; that no plans have been formed or steps taken, and none will be, by either the governor or the attorney general, to stop the contest, and tickets can be bought with the confidence that it will take place under the contract as signed.

EXCITEMENT AT HONOLULU.

Many Policemen Refuse to Bear Arms for the Provisional Government.

A London special says: A dispatch from Auckland, New Zealand, states that the American steamer Alameda, from San Francisco via Honolulu, has arrived there, bringing Hawaiian advices to December 22nd. According to these advices the greatest excitement is prevailing in Honolulu. A number of policemen who had been requested to bear arms in defense of the provisional government had refused to do so, and had been dismissed from the government service.

It is further stated that Mr. Willis, the American minister, had written to the provisional government, declaring that they must surrender office, as the United States had decided in favor of Queen Liliekalani, who had agreed to grant amnesty to men who had overthrown her government, to ratify the government's obligations and to govern the islands according to the present constitution.

The provisional government, at the time the Alameda sailed, was preparing a long reply to Minister Willis' letter.

The commercial Advertiser of Honolulu declares that the American congress has taken the Hawaiian matter out of the hands of President Cleveland, and that the provisional government will not retire unless it is forced to do so. The paper holds that the employment of force to depose the present government is not likely.

A DYNAMITER TO DIE.

Vaillant, the Parisian Anarchist, Condemned to Death.

A Paris cable dispatch says: The trial of August Vaillant, the anarchist who threw the bomb which exploded in the French chamber of deputies, commenced Wednesday.

The court was thronged with people when Vaillant was brought in at noon, closely guarded by policemen. Vaillant's krial was proceeded with at once and he was found guilty and sentenced to death. When the sentence was pronounced upon him, he shouted, "Vive l' Anarchie!"

LET US GIVE THANKS.

For all that God in mercy sends;
For health and children, home and friends,
For comfort in the time of need;
For every kindly word and deed,
For happy thought and hol'y talk,
For guidance in our daily walk—
For everything give thanks!

For beauty in this world of ours,
For verdant grass and lovely flowers,
For song of birds, for hum of bees,
For the refreshing summer breeze,
For hill and plain, for streams and wood
For the great ocean's mighty flood—
In everything give thanks!

For the sweet sleep which comes with night,
For the returning morning's light,
For the bright sun that shines on high,
For the stars glistening in the sky;
For these and everything we see,
O Lord! our hea ts we lift to Thee,
For everything give thanks!

TWO THANKSGIVINGS.

BY CECIL CHARLES.

"Down on my luck? Well, I should say so." Cory Dickinson shouldered his pack and got up. He left the shadow of the mountain foliage reluctantly and began again his toilsome ascent of the road. The blaze of the tropical sun produced upon him a strange sensation. It did not blind him; on the contrary, it seemed to stimulate his faculties. Or was it wholly the varied atmosphere as he climbed higher and higher? No, it was the sun, he decided. The atmosphere was partly responsible, but the sun—the tropical sun—seemed to show him constantly new, strange sights, somewhat even as the tropical night sky with its thousand new stars, had divulged new secrets to his marveling senses.

So he trudged under his small pack over the mountain to reach the capital.

Meeting him, one would have hardly suspected him to be "down on his luck," as he had but lately declared. Tall, good looking, well dressed, barely thirty years of age, Cory Dickinson looked like the son of a rich man out on a pleasure tramp—not like a self-exiled evader of the law seeking an unknown field in a remote Central American republic.

But that was what Cory Dickinson was doing.

As he plodded along the dusty road in the afternoon splendor, his thoughts wandered far away from his actual surroundings. He lost sight of the distant, dreamy peaks, the still bollows, the intense emerald hues of foliage, the trickling, musical mountain streams and saw only the small New England town whence he had lately fled, late Autumn-sombre, staid, matter-of-fact and Sunday-observing. He saw his late home, his stern-faced uncle, his invalid aunt, Mason, the hired man, with his grim scowl, and Hannah, the servant girl. Mason's face and Hannah's stood out particularly clear and obnoxious. Mason had rejoiced at his trouble, revengeful of the day when Cory had come upon him brutally kicking the poor old family horse, and struck him a smart blow with his umbrella. Mason had never forgotten that blow nor the way in which Cory had threatened him if he ever ill-treated the animal again. Hannah, too, had been overjoyed at his disgrace; she was Mason's sweetheart.

Then, all at once, there came another face that Cory could only see in a thick blur of—something like mist. The face of little Lydia Post, the school teacher, the only one of those who knew, who believed in him.

He had to dash something away from his eyes as he strode on.

Late in the afternoon he came to the first outskirts of the town and entered a small road-side dwelling. He could speak no Spanish; the woman with her numerous children clinging to her could speak no English. But she looked at him with generous eyes and made him sit down on the best seat in the poor room. He made a motion of drinking and said appealingly "Aqua!" For he had not paused to drink at the last mountain stream, fearing night might overtake him on the way. She brought water quickly, and when he would have risen, made signs for him to wait, that she might prepare food for him. He drew out the last bit of money left him—less than a dollar, for he had little remaining when he left the steamer at the port—but she waved it away and made him see that she desired no pay.

The humble food of the country was very good, he thought. He had had nothing but a biscuit since early morning. He ate the eggs and black beans and tortillas and drank the black coffee that had grown and blossomed out a few miles away as if they were the choicest delicacies. As he sat eating he wondered what they were doing at home; it was their supper time, and it was a bleak autumn day—a late November day, almost the last of the month. Something rose in his throat, lump like, and he made haste to finish, fearful of breaking down. The woman would take no pay; he thanked her over and over in words that she could not comprehend, but with looks that she surely read, and continued on his way. But continuing on, he found that this was but a small village and that there were yet some few miles to traverse before he came to the capital.

The upland scenery seemed less strange to him now, but for the queer, low houses, with the heavy tile roofs, he could almost have fancied himself back in the States. Only, all at once, the twilight had turned to a marsh gloom and he remembered that he was very far off from home—under the equator—with no place to lay his head.

He sat down by the roadside, utterly exhausted, "I cannot go any further. I'm dead tired," he murmured exhaustedly. He leaned his head back against a kind of stone wall that seemed to protect property of some sort, possibly a deserted country house. It had been getting chilly since sundown, but the ground was dry. He began to undo his pack to take out the blanket. He spread it out and dropped his weary head upon it. He could have fallen asleep at that instant, only that he was startled by the clatter of horse's hoofs that seemed to ride up his side.

"Ola!" said a voice, and other words that he could not understand.

He sat up and spoke with appealing gestures in the clear starlight.

"No speak Spanish; I American."

The rider dismounted.

"American, are you?" He spoke with hardly any accent, a tall, fine-looking fellow, not quite middle-aged. "Just arrived? But why do you lie on the ground? It's not good. You'll have fever. You're not acclimated."

Cory was on his feet.

"This is providential," he cried. "If you knew sir, how terrible it is to be dumb—unable to ask for anything. I've just come up from the port—walked up from the end of the railroad line."

"A pretty long walk. I don't wonder you feel it. And it's a good five miles on to the city. I've only this one little horse, you see. It won't carry double or I'd take you along. Who are you, by the way?"

"My name is Dickinson," said Cory. "I suppose I've come down here on a fool's errand. Had a quarrel with my relatives and left in a hurry. Brought no money. Just a dollar left in the world." Unconsciously he adopted the short phrases of the others, as if thus to be more easily comprehended.

"Well, you are not the first," said his new acquaintance. "Some succeed, some don't. If you only knew a little Spanish, you see. However, by the way, this is an old hacienda of mine. There's a house and you can sleep in it—under shelter, you know. There's the plank of a bed, that used to be a servant's. You'll be safer inside. Come, I'll take you in. To-morrow come into town and inquire for Julio Vargas Veras; spelt with a J in English and pronounced like an H, remember.

Cory had followed him in with a feeling of unreality. Julio struck a match and showed him the boards on trestles that should be his bed. "By Jove! there's a bit of candle," he said. "Put your blanket double on the boards and creep into it. Wrap it well around you. You'll be safe from insects, alacranes and the like. I'm off now. Lock the door carefully in the morning and come to town as early as possible. You can take coffee with me if you're in before eight. Good-night."

Cory locked the door after him and heard him ride away in the calm night; then went back and crept between his blanket folds and blew out the candle.

As he drifted into a first doze he suddenly remembered that this was Thursday—the last Thursday of the month—and therefore it was Thanksgiving Day at home.

He wondered if Lydia had thought of him. He hardly believed that she had gone to take Thanksgiving dinner with his aunt, as she had formerly done. She loved him a little—perhaps a good deal—if only as a sister. She was too loyal for that. Thus he fell asleep and slept steadily, despite his uncomfortable couch and the chill temperature.

Julio Vargas Veras was pretty well known in town. A lawyer by profession, with hardly any practice, because he had neglected it; formerly a Legation attache abroad—the husband of a pretty woman and father of several pretty children—a thoroughly honorable fellow with one deplorable passion for gambling at the exciting country cock-fights. Who did not know Julio Vargas Veras?

Cory found his way to his new friend's house without trouble and had coffee with him as agreed. And Julio Vargas Veras bade him consider himself a welcome guest at his house until he should find work. For Cory was penniless. He would accept any situation, he said, anything, however humble. Shame and humiliation were his, to find himself helpless, a fellow of twenty-nine. He had supposed a strong young fellow of that age could find work in any part of the globe. He had forgotten the difficulty of a different language.

And so for weeks he had a blue time of it. He wanted to go back to the port, where some English was spoken, but Vargas Veras objected. He wanted to seek employment on the primitive little railway, but Vargas Veras objected. Vargas Veras was the kindest fellow on earth, but over-proud. And Cory chafed under his objections. Night after night he lay awake suppressing groans at his helplessness and his tormenting memories. Oh, to have come to this land of eternal sunshine under different circumstances! Oh, to have come to this land of eternal sunshine under different circumstances! Oh, not to have had to run away from home and friends! But could he have remained there after the accusation of theft! And who had been the thief? Who had taken his uncle's thousand dollars from the open safe on that fatal afternoon when he had sat reading in the next room and had hardly noticed his uncle passing out into the kitchen for a moment? He had sat in the sitting-room; the safe was in the sitting-room bedroom; one could only enter the bedroom from the sitting-room. His uncle had gone into the kitchen—and had left the safe unlocked. Hannah, the servant girl, had let a kettle of soap grease boil over, and for a brief time the kitchen was almost on fire. Cory, a little lazy, had heard the uproar, and had gone to see what the trouble was. His uncle, in a fury at the servant's carelessness, called him a stupid fool and ordered him angrily not to stand gaping there. And Cory, angry in turn, had quickly come back, seized his hat from the sitting-room table and left the house. He had not returned very soon. His uncle had seemed to hate him of late. And he had gone off with some young friends of his to a neighboring town, not venturing back until the next afternoon. Then he had found his uncle in a state of excitement bordering on insanity. The thousand dollars that had been destined for the payment of a mortgage was gone from the safe. It had been taken while Cory's uncle was in the kitchen helping extinguish the fire. No one could have entered the house in that brief space, and no one but Cory, his uncle and his invalid aunt was aware of the presence of the money in the safe. Nothing else had been disturbed. It had been but an instant's work to extract the package for one who knew it was there and in precisely what spot. And—but for the shock and misery for the invalid aunt Cory's uncle would, he said, have sent an officer after the young rascal, all of which Cory had listened to in a dumbfounded way and then said:

"You are either crazy or else you think me capable of stealing. I will never pass another night or eat another crumb under your roof—much less remain in your employ. If you wish to have me arrested go about it quickly and proclaim your inhuman feelings toward a relative to the world. You will be laughed at when the true theif is found. But go about it quickly, for I am going as far away from you as I possibly can. You can keep my last month's salary. I won't touch it."

And, as his uncle was silent and dogged, Cory left the house and presently the town. But before leaving the town he had confided his story to Lydia Post.

"It is true," he said, "that I did go off with the fellows last night, but I took no money to speak of. You believe me, don't you, Lydia?"

"Can you ask?" she said, her voice faltering a little and tears rushing into her soft eyes.

All this came back vividly to Cory Dickinson during the weary weeks in which he felt himself so thoroughly "down on his luck."

But at last a chance came. He seized it with avidity. It was to go out on a new cacao plantation, remote from the capital, sixty miles by land through impassable woods and over dangerous mountain paths, or sixty miles by sea in a sailboat down the coast and by canoes up a river of dangerous rapids. Julio Vargas Veras shook his head.

"I'm afraid you will die out there. It is away from all civilization. There is only an Indian settlement and some negroes. The climate is bad—it is very hot—and there are marshes just below. It is a four day's journey at the very best, and mails are a week in coming and going. I'm afraid you will have the fever at once."

"I am not afraid," said Cory. "I shall have fever if I stay here, my dear friend. You are good as gold to me, but I can't stand idleness. For heaven's sake, let me go."

And so he went.

Out into the wilds—impenetrable, beautiful, silent, tropical wilds. And he went faithfully to work and became happy with a new hope. He did not take the fever. He got fairly started by the following midsummer. That is, what was midsummer at home, for it was always midsummer in this new country. But he had never ceased to reckon by the seasons of the far North. And by midsummer he wrote to Lydia Post.

After he had written he counted the days. A week to take the letter to the port. A fortnight more—allowing for delay of the steamer to sail as he had expected—for it to reach the United States. In three weeks Lydia would have it. In three weeks more he would have her reply. He knew that his fingers would tremble so that he could hardly open it.

Alas! the six weeks had passed, and yet another and another. And no reply. And as another month drifted along and November was begun, Cory began to give up hope. Had she not received his letter? Had she not cared to reply? Was he lost to her—even to little Lydia—of whose faith he had dreamed in darkest hours?

Sadly he realized one evening that it was the 10th of November, just a year since he had left home. A day or two later he fell ill. It was not from the climate, not from the heat. The plantation was not as deadly as Vargas Veras had believed. But it was the snapping of his last hope—his hope of Lydia. It was more of a low nervous fever. And he could not rise from his bed any more. And he did not care if death came. There was no doctor near; there were a few simple remedies on the shelves of his cane hut, but he hardly cared to take them.

One night his fever was higher—much higher—and he raved of Lydia to the Indian woman who sat beside him and the negro servant who liked him well.

The next day he was conscious again but very weak. He felt as if he could easily slip away. And he asked the negro to send to the post a certain letter that was going to the United States, thousands of miles away. Hardly had he done giving his few, feeble instructions when some of the Indian boys came hurrying in to tell him that a canoe had come up the river with people, white, tall, and a lady, with many bundles and other things. A beautiful young lady. Cory wondered vaguely until a shadow fell upon the threshold—and a moment later, as if an angel dawning from heaven, Lydia stood beside him and bent to take him into her arms.

"I knew," she sobbed softly, and in her tears his face felt as cool and refreshed and joy lighted as a rose in the Summer rain. "I knew that you would be ill. And I would not write—for I was almost ready to fetch you. For I knew you would not come back alone. And I had been working and saving the money for months—and only a few weeks were lacking. So I would not write—but came. And your uncle asks you to forgive and forget. For it was Mason who stole the money—with Hannah's help. And so you will go back with me."

"Lydia," he whispered, "how could you come to this place—thousands of miles—through all these dangers—by land and sea and sea and land? Am I dreaming, Lydia? Have you come, all this way alone? Through all these strange ways?"

"Do you think," she sobbed, "do you think there is any road too long, too hard for a woman to travel if the one she loves is at the end?"

"No road," said Cory, softly. "But you knew I loved you—even before my letter—and then you know it again. And you took wings and flew to me. And so we shall go back together, dearest!"

Another shadow crossed the threshold. Julio Vargas Veras, also on his way to find Cory, having heard of his illness, had met with Lydia at the port and had come with her in a sailboat and canoe. He had discreetly remained outside the hut until after the meeting of the lovers.

Not many days later there was a wedding at the capital. Cory and Lydia were married by the American Minister, and Julio Vargas Veras stood sponsor to the bride. It was Thursday—and Thanksgiving Day.

Fighting Moles.

If two male moles meet in attendance on the same lady of their choice, they soon pick a quarrel, with the quip gallant or the retort courteous, and proceed to fight it out with desperate resolution. Their duel is a outrance. Just at first, to be sure, they carry on the war underground; but as soon as they have begun to taste blood, they lose all control of themselves, and adjourn for further hostilities to the open meadow. Indeed, it is seldom that you can see them emerge from their subterranean "run," except when seriously ill, or engaged in settling these little affairs of honor. Once arrived upon the battlefield, they go at it literally tooth and nail, and never cease till one or the other has disabled his adversary.

Then comes the most painful scene of all, which only regard for historical accuracy induces me to chronicle. As a faithful historian, however, I cannot conceal the fact that the victor eats (also bodily in his triumph upon his fallen antagonist, tears him open on the spot, and drinks his warm blood as some consolation to his wounded feelings. The sense of chivalry and of the decencies of war has been denied to these brave and otherwise respectable insectivores.—[The Million.

The Alliance at last weeks meeting appointed L. B. Pounds, J. A. Logan and Ed O'Neal to award premiums to those members of their order who are most successful in cultivating cotton, corn, oats, potatoes and meat. The premiums will be as follows: 1. Best acre of corn, ten dollar saddle; 2 best acre of cotton, walking cultivator; 3. best of sweet potatoes, potato digger; 4, best acre of oats, a pulverizing harrow; 5, best five hogs from one to two years old, a pair of Berkshire pigs two months old. Each competitor is to pay a prorator share of the premiums contested for.

The Populists profess to be up in arms to down forces which oppress the poor. The Wilson bill seeks to take off the taxes from the necessities of life and thus make clothing, fuel and food come cheaper to the poorer classes. The great combines and speculators generally are spending millions of money in divers ways to defeat the bill so that their revenues may continue large. The Populite papers and speakers instead of helping the Democrats to unburden the poor rather give aid to the millionaire manufacturers. The truth is that nearly all the Populists leaders are Republicans, nothing more, nothless, and they hate anything that a Democrat will do.

The Democrats who are aiding and abeting the Republicans in their efforts to defeat President Cleveland in his plans, to make his administration less than a successful one should promptly resign and come home and let real Democrats fill their places. It is just as treasonable for subordinate officers in civil offices to join hands with the enemy in opposition to the President as it would be for officers in an army to persue such a course against thier general. The trouble appears to be that Cleveland does not please the Republicans, they raise the howl and the noise confuses and scares the weak kneed demagogues in our own ranks, and instead of standing up closer to the President they straggle behind and say, "Well, yes, I suppose we never made a bigger mistake than when we elected Cleveland. It looks like the Democratic party is about to go to pieces." There are men in Alabama who have prated much about their Democracy in the past and yet who now stand the pronounced enemies to the administration. The cause for this attitude on the part of some is not far to seek. When Cleveland was elected they all expected office, but there being more applicants than places some were left out, and now "Ah, what a miserably ungrateful old hog is Cleveland." Democrats who have grown lukewarm or bitter towards our President and other leaders ought to become ashamed of themselves and rally to their support. Never was a political fight fraught with more important issues than is the present one. Staggering under the present blow received in the last National election Republicanism realizes that it is doomed to die unless it can retrieve somewhat by covering the present administration with confusion and faiture. Thus they have left no scheme however black untried. The great protected industries, which have grown richer while their employees have gotten poorer and poorer have resorted to methods to make sentiment against Democratic rule. They have closed down their works, thus throwing thousands of men out of employment. And as these hungry ones have clamored for bread "you see what Democracy has done," was thrown in their teeth. These great concerns, in most cases, had access to all the money they needed, yet they choose to starve the people into hating Democracy. Seeing there are such odds to be met it ill becomes brave soldier to even contemplate desertion. "To your guns men," should sound throughout this broad land until unbroken columns should crowd about our leaders; assuring them of unshaken confidence in their honesty and in their wisdom. This spirit of patriotism and loyalty will win in this state as well as national affairs.

The Tariff Bill.

Congressman Wm. L. Wilson furnished the Forum of this month an article on the "Principle and Method of the New Tariff Bill." It is a masterly paper and sets forth plainly what he conceives to be a tariff for revenue and a tariff for protection. He says: "When the law compels me to contribute my just quota to the support of government it is taxation, when it compels me to contribute to the support of any private enterise it is robbery. The first is a tariff for revenue; the second is a tariff for protection."

Mr. Wilson clinches his argument for tariff reduction with the following facts and figures:

I have on my table as I write two sample's of woollen-pile stuffs, such as make good and serviceable cloaks or sacks for working-girls abroad, and which many here would be glad to get. Under the law of 1893 they were dutiable at 35 cents a pound and 35 per cent ad valorem, making for one sample a duty of 207 per cent, of which 172 per cent was covered by the mild looking specific duty of "35 cents per pound," and for the other 171 per cent, of which 136 per cent was carried into specific duty. The McKinley act raised the duty on these fabrics to 49½ cents a pound and 60 cents ad valorem! This would make for the first sample a duty 303 per cent, of which 243 per cent is imposed by the specific duty, and for the second sample a duty of 253 per cent, of which 193 per cent is likewise imposed. And this is the name of American labor.

The poor girl, earning the meagre wages of fifty cents a day, having by two days' work earned enough money to buy a dollar's worth of this material, would then have to work six days longer to earn sufficient to pay the McKinley taxes upon it. Those taxes increase the cost of the one from 31 79-100 cents to $1 58. Under the bill now proposed the cost of these goods would be raised to 44 and 64 cents respectively; and that theseduties are to be lowered one-eigth with the lapse of five years.

Of course the present rates are prohibitory, and such articles never appear in the tables of imports, but the examples serve to show both the working of specific duties on cheap and common goods and the merciless taxes imposed on the poorest and most defenseless of our wage-earners. No such enormities could be perpetrated under any civilized government unless they were hidden from public detection in specific duties; and the mere statement of them is an unanswerable argument for duties assessed according to actual value, and stated in terms that the simplest can understand.

I would add that the remission of public taxes offered to the people by the new bill; calculated on the basis of the importations of 1892, is about sixty million dollars. How many times this sum must be multiplied to get at the amount of the remission of private taxes it may be best not to conjecture, but it may be truly claimed that the taxes taken off are chiefly that oppress the consumer, throttle trade and rob labor of employment.

Hog and Hominy.

Standard News.

One great trouble with our people is that they do not raise enough of hog and hominy. It is foolishness for a man who is a farmer not to raise his bread and meat. It is a part of his business to do this; and when he fails to do it; he simply neglects his duty. The man who neglects his business will fail sooner or later. The farmer who raises cotton with which to buy his bread and meat is very weak in the upper story. He is lame under the hat. He is a fit subject for the insane asylum, and his friends should send him there. A glance at the farmers of our country will show that those who depend altogether on cotton, are poor, hard up and badly in debt; while those who look first after hog and hominy, and make cotton a secondary crop, are as a rule in good fix. Now is the time to decide whether you will raise rations or cotton for another year. Let us advise you to raise the former. Buy no guano, it will ruin your land, absorb your labor, and eat up your crop. We hope every farmer in Cleburne county will pay less attention to cotton and more to grasses, grain, fruits and stock raising. When they do this our people may thrive and prosper as they never have. Let hog and hominy be your motto.

When Will It End?

Bessemer Weekly.

There is not in all this Southland a richer field for intelligent agricultural industry than in the section centering in this city. Thousands and tens of thousands of dollars are paid out annually for the three items—hay, oats and corn, which are brought here from the north and west. We assert that our full supply of these commodities could be easily and profitably raised in and about this place and every dollar paid out for the imported could be saved for use and investment here.

It is tantalizing to see the poor use made of the soil by many of our so-called farmers; the sparse, meager cultivation, the general neglect and indifference shown to the necessities of proper preparation and cutilvation of the soil. To be sure, the soil is not as fertile and strong as the heavy, black loam soil of western prairies, but it will produce liberally if treated as fields there are treated. This is evidenced by results obtained by cultivators here. Mr. G. P. Martin is now furnishing hay, millet, peavines and crab to people here at $11 per ton, and says that he harvested 4 tons to the acre yearly, realizing a gross return of $44 per acre. Yet people here are constantly paying $18 per ton for timothy hay imported from the north. We know corn fields here that will yield 30 bushels per acre, and yet people pay 75 cents per bushel for corn brought here. We know that oats properly put in the soil suitably prepared yield 30 to 40 bushels to the acre. Yet we are now paying 60 cents per bushel for northern oats.

The aera for cultivating land in this region is barely scratched. A surplus for export could be raised here and yet thousands and tens of thousands of cash goes from our midst yearly for supplies that should by all means be retained here to support and enrich a good intelligent farming class.

Hard Times the Word Over.

A correspondent calls attention to two dispatches printed in the papers relating to the observance of Christmas in Europe. One is from Berlin, and says that the holidays was generally celebrated, "despite the bad times:" the other, from Paris relates that "the shopkeepers complain of the smallness of their sales."

Our correspondent wants to know whether the Wilson bill is the cause of the bad times in Germany and of the small sales in Paris. Of course it is—just as much as it is the cause of similar conditions here.

France and Germany both have high protective tariff, yet times are hard. England has a revenue tariff, yet a review of the year's trade sets forth that it has been worse than in 1892 and speaks of "the present gloom over the country's industries." This can be due neither to the Wilson or the McKinley bill, for it is further stated than in the general depression of the year the American trade advanced.

What is the matter everywhere? Simply that the commercial world has been passing through one of those periods of depression, following periods of expanded credit, that occur at more or less regular intervals. Locals laws and local conditions diminish or intensify the effects in each country, but all are now so closely knit together that none can escape.—Philadelphia Times.

Col. Oats voices the sentiments of the Democrats of Alabama when he urges that Congress should be made to transact business. Those Democratic members who have helped to impede the progress of that body should receive emphatic rebukes from their constituency even now. Don't wait until another election to give the sign of displeasure, but give it now by letter and by publication through the home papers. The party is on trial and there is likelihood of its conviction by reason of the faithlessness of its own members.

The quarterly meeting of the Chilton County Alliance was held here last Wednesday and Thursday. Dr. Groce, State lecturer, was present and addressed the body. The decision by the body to offer premiums for the best acre of corn, oats, peas, potatoes, sugar cane, etc. is a move in the right direction.

$2,000 IN GOLD.

To Be Distributed In Gifts Next Year.

Everybody is interested in the size of this cotton crop; upon the estimation of it depends whether the cotton will go up or down.

Realizing this wide spread interest the Montgomery Advertiser has offered $2,000 in gifts to be distributed among those who come nearest to the correct estimate. The first prize is $750 and on down to $50.

The only condition of guessing is sending a new subscriber, a renewal or a new subscriber to The Semi-Weekly Advertiser. That paper is the best and cheapest an Alabamian can get for the general news, for it sends out two papers a week, one on Tuesdays and one Fridays, for only one dollar a year, and each contains 12 times as much State news as any other paper in the land. Now is the time to subscribe, because a lively campaign is just opening, while the fight in Congress on the tariff is at hand.

Postmasters, agents and club raisers will be interested learning that not only is each subscriber entitled to a guess, but the person who sends in names is entitled to a guess for every name sent. The more names sent the greater likelihood of getting $750 in gold.

Sample copies of the Semi-Weekly Advertisor, agent's terms, blanks, etc., sent to any address. Apply to that paper at Montgomery, Ala.

After adopting old resolutions, the loafers have begun the New Year by persuing their occupation of the past.

Mrs. W. H. Foshee expects to leave next week for Three Creeks, Ark., to attend the marriage of her sister, Miss Jessie Jones.

Mrs. Cawthon of Selma, is here visiting her brother, Judge Callen. She was called here by the illness of Mrs. W. T. Callen.

Mr. Joe King, of Montgomery, was in Clanton Sunday. He is a great admirer of this town. Some rare attractions here, eh, Mr. King?

Mr. E. Jones, or Jumbo, was in town last week and put a big smile on us by planking down a few $ in spot cash. We can smile mighty sweet sometimes. Wonder if any other subscribers would like to see us grin?

Miss Gamma Middleton, one of our most highly esteemed young ladies, left for Nashville, Tenn., last Saturday, where she will enter the National Conservatory of music. She expects to be absent for about two months.

We notice as an item of prosperity that most of the farmers are riding much better looking horses this year than last. Some appear to be fine blooded animals; and we are glad to see this interest manifested in horse flesh.

Congratulations are extended to Miss Jessie Jones, of Three Creeks, Ark., who is to be married on the 14th of Feb. Miss Jones was a visitor to Clanton last summer. She is a sister of Mrs. W. H. Foshee, and by her gentle manner and winning ways, gained hosts of friends here and many admirers from the opposite sex.

Mrs. N. L. Meroney and Dr. Johnson, of Jemison are in distress because their sons, Lewis Meroney and William Johnson (aged 15), have run away from home. They left home Jan. 8th. Any information as to their whereabouts will be thankfully received.

It does not take a prophet to foretell that the present amount of whiskey drinking in Clanton is sure to lead to serious trouble either sooner or later. When somebody is seriously cut, bruised or killed by reason of being drunk, or because somebody else was drunk, then the good citizens will rise up and talk much.

All those who expect to honor the dead in the Clanton cemetery are requested to make their contributions to myself or other members of the committee not later than Feb. 10. Surely every citizen, old or young are interested in this cause. As it now is the fence has rotted and fallen and the hogs and cattle tread over the resting place of our dead. H. J. Callen.

Mr. Middleton Aldridge, one of our worthiest old citizens passed away on Sunday morning last at about 4 o'clock. He had been sick for some weeks and specially low some days previous to his death. Loving hands ministered to him, but like a shock of corn fully ripe he was gathered into the Master's garner. For perhaps forty years he had been a member of the Baptist Church. So far as we know he was highly esteemed by his neighbors. Life's labors done the old soldier sleeps well.

We have had several notices from parents lately requesting us to insert them as their boys had run away from home. If any boys in this county contemplate leaving home in this manner, all the VIEW has to say to them is that they are entertaining cranky notions, and that they had better stay home. Too many boys now away from home, without money, and begging for bread.

In the death of Mr. W. M. Adams, of Jemison, Chilton county has lost a good citizen. It was our pleasure to know Mr. Adams and we felt that we had in him a good friend. In his conversation with the writer he often expressed the hope and belief that the conservative course of the VIEW would once more break down the bitterness that had arisen among our white people and make us to stand together in the true spirit of neighbors and brothers. He was a faithful member of the Alliance and such was their confidence in him that they made him manager of their store at Jemison. To his family who are most deeply bereaved we tender our sympathy and point them to that God who is the husband of the widow and the father to the fatherless.

Call Home To Rest.

The death angel has been busy of late in his visits to the homes of our people. Monday morning with bated breath, the news spread over town that Mrs. W. T. Callen was seriously ill. Loved ones, friends and physicians lost no time in ministering to her sufferings. At times hope brightened the hearts of the watchers, but at last, Tuesday morning about ten o'clock all hopes faded away from then until 2. p. m. when she was reported some better; but later in the evening she was reported worse, and friends and relatives witnessed a terrible battle between death and the mortal body until Wednesday morning at 9:14, when she died calmly and peacefully. As one preparing for a journey, so the noble young wife and mother bade friends and loved ones goodbye and gave directions about her children. She gave every evidence of her trust in the King of kings and seemed able to say "Oh death where is thy sting? Oh grave where is thy victory," She left a husband, four little children; one a babe 4 days old, two brothers and many friends to mourn her departure. To all of these bereaved ones the VIEW gives its sincerest sympathies and bids them seek the source whence she found sustaining grace.

In Memory of Mr. W. H. Brown.

The year 1893 will always be remembered by the family, relation and friends of Mr. W. H. Brown's as one at its close brought to an untimely yet peaceful, end

At one oclock on Monday morning December 18th "White horse and pale rides brought Mr. W. H. Brown the dead summons that death was at hand and peacefully, manfully as bravely as he had met every obstacle in life's great battle or would have sacrificed himself on the alter of his country. He obeyed the commands of the Great Captain of the Celestial army and was promoted from the ranks of earth to the cohorts of Heaven. He died as he had lived at peace with God and men bravely and without a murmer at his fate meekly surrendering his high ambitions his lofty aspirations to that God whom he had so faithfully served and to whose mandates his iron will was harmoniously subservient.

W. H. Brown was 67 years and a few days of age. He lived all his life within 8 miles of where he was borned except the year 1859 he moved to Texas with his then small family, but returned to Alabama in about 12 months. He had all his life been a successful farmer led a quiet and Christian life. He was a good and true Confederate Veteran had been for 41 years a member of the Methodest church—an active worker in the Isabella Methodist church. respected and esteemed by the high and low, rich and poor.

During his illness all that medical skill or loving hands could do to ease his pain was cheerfully done by those about him. One scarcely knows which to admire most, the courage with which he met his fate, the devotion of his children, the anxiety of his friends or the fortitude with which the family bore their loss.

His loss will not be felt alone by the family, but civic soldiery in Alabama will mourn his death. None who knew him in the pride and strength of his noble, Christian manhood can doubt that our early loss is his eternal gain; or that he has gone where sickness and suffering are unknown and where He who died for man welcomed one, who in life, was a devoted father, a loving brother, a kind friend, a exemplary citizen and a public benefactor whose best services had been given to his fellowmen and the the land which gave him birth. The young people of Verbena had the dance of the season on Friday night over Mr. Gulledge's store. The fun was fast and furious until 12 oclock, when Home Sweet Home was orderd, and as the last notes floated out upon the chilly night and breathed a sigh of regret to think that such a pleasent evening had gone into the past. And one and all extend thanks to Mr. Gulledge for his kindness in allowing them the use of the hall.

$3,000.00 A YEAR FOR THE INDUSTRIOUS.

If you want work that is pleasant and profitable, send us your address immediately. We teach men and women how to earn from $5.00 per day to $3,000 per year without having had previous experience, and furnish the employment at which they can make that amount. Nothing like it to learn or that requires much time. The work is easy, healthy, and honorable, and can be done during daytime or evenings, right in your own locality, wherever you live. The result of a few hours' work often equals a week's wages. We have taught thousands of both sexes and all ages, and many have laid foundations that will surely bring them riches. None of the smartest men in this country owe their success in life to the start given them while in our employ years ago. You, reader, may do as well; try it. You cannot fail. No capital necessary. We furnish you with something that is new, useful, and unique. A look himself at stroke is free to all. Hell, yourself by writing for it to-day—act to-morrow. Delays are costly.

Boys' Sports in Germany.

There is scarcely a boy who would believe that any one could be as precise, as accurate, in swimming exercises as in drilling with guns on land. And yet it has been shown that this is practically true, and in Germany the swimming associations of the empire have proved it.

These associations all belong to one great swimming organization, which has a swimming tournament every year. Prizes are given for certain events, just as for the different events in track athletics in this country. And the week which is devoted to this contest is the most important in the swimmer's year.

Strangely enough, German boys do not have the baseball, football, lacrosse and other games we have in America, and hence the games they play are quite strange to us. This swimming tournament is one of them, and it is really a wonderful affair. There are certain events, such as diving from a certain height, turning one of two somersaults while falling through the air, turning sideways once or twice, or even three times and diving out a certain distance over the water.—Harper's Young People.

A Freak.

First Commuter—"Did you hear about Brown-Jones, my next door neighbor? A dime museum has offered him an engagement as a freak."

Second Commuter—"Why, how is that? I always thought that Brown-Jones was anything but a freak."

"Oh, you are mistaken. He has been living in the suburbs a year and has never carried a bundle."—New York Tribune.

Little Fellows, But They Work Hard.

These diminutive organs, the kidneys, do a power of work in a state of health. An interruption of their functions is most disastrous to the system, and if not remedied, leads to a surely fatal termination. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters renews their activity and averts the danger. Besides this, it conquers rheumatism, dyspepsia, biliousness, malarial complaints, quiets and strengthen the nerves.

Youth is the time for education, old age for regrets—if you haven't educated.

Malaria cured and eradicated from the system by Brown's Iron Bitters, which enriches the blood, tones the nerves, aids digestion. Acts like a charm on persons in general ill health, giving new energy and strength.

Don't be in too much haste. Never go fast enough to pass a counterfeit dollar.

The Most Pleasant Way

Of preventing the grippe, colds, headaches, and fevers is to use the liquid laxative remedy, Syrup of Figs, whenever the system needs a gentle, yet effective cleansing. To be benefited one must get the true remedy manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only. For sale by all druggists in 50c. and $1 bottles.

If every old man could renew his youth, how the schools and colleges would be crowded.

"Brown's Iron Bitters cures Dyspepsia, Malaria, Biliousness and General Debility. Gives strength, aids Digestion, tones the nerves—creates appetite. The best tonic for Nursing Mothers, weak women and children.

"He who hesitates is lost," if he hesitates too long to enable him to get a good education.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Diseased Bone

After an injury to my right leg caused me much suffering, I was laid up a year and in a hospital at Rochester another year, where I underwent seven surgical operations, the last taking away the limb at the hip. My case was pronounced hopeless. April, '93, I commenced taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. After the second bottle the wound at the hip entirely healed. A third bottle made me feel well as ever and built up my system." CHAS. A. STALKER, West Walworth, N. Y. HOOD'S CURES.

Hood's Pills are purely vegetable, perfectly harmless, always reliable and beneficial.

CATARRH IN CHILDREN

For over two years my little girl's life was made miserable by a case of Catarrh. The discharge from the nose was large, constant and very offensive. Her eyes became inflamed, the lids swollen and very painful. After trying various remedies, I gave her S.S.S. The first bottle seemed to aggravate the disease, but the symptoms soon abated, and in a short time she was cured.

THE FIFTY-THIRD CONGRESS

The House and Senate Called to Order in Regular Session.

Daily Summary of Routine Business in the Two Houses.

THE HOUSE.

SATURDAY, JAN. 6.—The democratic caucus Friday night did not have the desired effect of producing a democratic quorum in the house Saturday morning. Another day was wasted. Nothing was done. The republicans again refused to vote and there were not enough democrats voting to make a quorum. Several of the kickers again refused to vote. Among them were Sibley and Beltzhoover, of Pennsylvania; Haines, of New York; Geary, of California, and Sperry, of Connecticut. The house remained in session for four hours. There was a continuation of roll calls and calls of the house. Many more than a quorum were present, but the republicans refusing to vote and being joined by a few democrats, a quorum could not be mustered on the motion to pass the order reported from the committee on rules. After many roll calls the house finally adopted an order instructing the sergeant-at-arms to send deputies after absent members wherever they might be, to arrest them and to bring them to the bar of the house on Monday. This seems to be the only way that absent democrats can be forced to come to Washington and attend the sessions of the house.

MONDAY, Jan. 8.—When the speaker took his seat in the house Monday morning, there was an air of bustling activity on the floor. The galleries were unusually full, there scarcely being standing room in the public gallery—a condition rarely seen, except upon very interesting occasions. The usual controversy between Mr. Boutelle and the speaker came up immediately after the reading of Saturday's journal, and gave rise to more excitement than on any previous day. Mr. Reed and Mr. Boutelle spoke in favor of considering the latter's Hawaiian resolution, and the latter again made the point that it was a question of privilege, while the special order from the committee on rules relative to the tariff bill was merely a privileged report, and that the former took precedence over the latter. The speaker repeated his ruling made in the fifty-second congress, holding that the question of consideration could not be raised against a resolution eminating from the comittee on rules, and that it took precedence over all other questions. He held that when the committee on rules brought in a special order changing a certain rule, no member could attack the resolution and entrench himself behind the rules to be changed. When the speaker finished he requested that Mr. Boutelle should take his seat. The yeas and nays were ordered on Mr. Catching's motion for the previous question on the resolution reported by him last Friday, fixing the time for the consideration of the tariff bill, and resulted as follows: Yeas, 189; nays, none—ten more than a quorum—and the previous question was ordered.

TUESDAY, Jan. 9.—There were by actual count, forty members present when the house met at 11 o'clock Monday morning. The committees were called for reports, but without result, and the house went into a committee of the whole on the tariff bill. Chairman Wilson, of the ways and means committee, resumed his speech, begun Monday, in favor of the pending tariff measure, delaring that the protective tariff, instead of increasing wages, really lowered them, by reducing their purchasing power. Mr. Wilson finished his speech amidst loud applause, and was followed by Mr. Burrows.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 10.—The house met at 11 o'clock Wednesday morning with a slim attendance on the floor, but there was a good audience in the galleries. Immediately before the first morning hour began, Mr. Boutelle again precipitated a heated discussion in regard to his Hawaiian resolution. Then Mr. Hopkins took the floor to conclude his speech on the tariff bill, begun Tuesday. Mr. Cummings, from the naval committee, reported the Boutelle resolution, calling on the secretary of the navy for information on Hawaiian matters and as to his authority for delegating to Commissioner Blount the control of the United States naval forces. The resolution was reported back with an amendment asking for information in the navy department from March 4th, 1892, instead of 1893. Mr. Cummings asked for the consideration and it was objected to. After a short colloquy between Mr. Boutelle and Mr. Tracey, Mr. Hopkins took up the regular order and finished the tariff speech begun by him Tuesday. He was followed by Mr. Johnson, of Ohio, at the conclusion of which speech, the floor was accorded to Dalzell.

THE SENATE.

MONDAY, Jan. 8.—After the routine morning business in the senate, which occupied nearly an hour, and in which there was nothing of public interest, Mr. Chandler offered a resolution, directing the judiciary committee to inquire and report its opinion as to cases in which the president may constitutionally send agents or commissioners to foreign countries without the advice and consent of congress. The resolution went over till Tuesday. Then Mr. Hoar's resolution (offered last week) calling on the secretary of the treasury for a statement as to the payments to Mr. Blount, commissioner to Hawaii, was laid before the senate, and Mr. Gorman moved its reference to a committee on foreign relations. After brief discussion the resolution was referred to the committee on foreign relations. Then Mr. Turpie offered a resolution, which also went over, declaring, among other things, that foreign intervention in the political affairs of the Hawaiian islands will be regarded as an act unfriendly to the government of the United States. The Frye resolution as to Hawaii was laid before the senate and went over until Wednesday.

TUESDAY, Jan. 9.—There was nothing of special interest in the routine morning business of the senate Tuesday. The resolution offered Monday by Mr. Chandler as to the authority for the appointment of Blount without the advice and consent of the senate, was taken up. After some colloquy, Mr. Chandler withdrew his resolution, the subject matter being within the scope of the inquiry now going on before the committee on foreign relations. Mr. Gray gave notice that at 2 p. m. he would ask the senate to proceed to the consideration of the house bill to repeal the federal election laws. After spending half an hour on the calendar, the senate, on motion of Mr. Gorman, proceeded to the consideration of executive business.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 10.—The resolution offered by Mr. Frye, on the 3d instant, as to the non-interference of the American government in Hawaiian affairs was laid before the senate Wednesday morning. Mr. Davis addressed the senate.

THE NEWS IN GENERAL.

Condensed from Our Most Important Telegraphic Advices

And Presented in Pointed and Readable Paragraphs.

Advices of Monday from London are to the effect that the cold weather continues, the thermometer registering nineteen degrees of frost. There has been a heavy snow fall at Wimbledon, and in some places the drifts are four feet deep.

Colonel E. A. Walton, a well-known oil man, dropped dead at Buffalo, N. Y., Sunday. Colonel Walton was well-known through the south. He was born in Charleston, S. C., and served in the confederate army.

A rough estimate places the loss on the buildings destroyed at the World's fair fire Monday night at about $800,000. No estimate the loss on the exhibits can be given until the cases containing the stored goods are examined.

A Washington special of Sunday says: The pension office has decided that in view of the act of congress of December 21, 1893, it no longer has a right to withhold the pension of Judge Long, of Michigan, and has directed that he be again placed on the pension rolls.

The Deadwood, South Dakota, Athletic Club have decided to offer a purse of $50,000 for the Corbett-Mitchell fight. The club means business, and if the offer is accepted, will construct a pavilion to accommodate 12,000 people. Patsy Carr, Hare Ferguson and Sam Schwartz and wealthy Deadwood sports are backing the club.

General P. M. B. Young, United States minister to Guatemala and Honduras, arrived at San Francisco on the steamer, City of Sydney, Tuesday night, on a leave of absence, en route to Washington, and thence to his home in Georgia. Minister Young says that war between Nicaragua and Honduras threatens to assume formidable proportions.

A cable dispatch from Dublin, Ireland, states the old ducal castle of Bernberg, which has recently been used for the officers of the district authorites, was completely gutted by fire at an early hour Saturday morning. The district director and a coachman were burned to death in the building. A number of valuable documents and considerable money were destroyed during the conflagration.

Monday night's fire in the world's fair grounds produced greater changes in the appearance of Chicago's famous pleasure park than it was expected would be made by six months' removing of the buildings. The Casino, where thousands spent delightful hours watching the gay scenes upon and about the grand basin, was wholly destroyed. The music hall, likewise, is a melancholy heap of ashes.

W. Bowen Moore, the most extensive pension agent in western New York, was, with his son, Allan, and five clerks, arrested at Buffalo Saturday afternoon by United States officers on charges of defrauding the government and extorting money from pensioners. The whole amount involved is said to be $150,000. The department has been investigating his methods for three months. The evidence is highly sensational.

A special of Sunday from Montreal, Canada, says: Reports from all over the dominion tend to disprove the claims of the government officials and their newspaper organs that the business depression existing in the United States has not effected Canada. In spite of these denials there seems to be as pronounced a depression in business and as much suffering among the people of the dominion as among those in the United States.

Later dispatches have been received at Massowah from Kassawalla confirming the previous accounts of the battle recently fought between the Italian troops and the Dervishes. It is now stated that the latter left 4,000 dead upon the field, and that in addition the leaders of the Dervishes—Hamed Ali—and all his emirs were killed. The Dervishes are said to be much discouraged at their defeat, and serious dissensions are reported to exist among their chiefs.

Advices from Rome, Italy, state that the Rev. Urso, of the church of St. Lucia, and the sacristan of that church, who were arrested Saturday with the priest's sister and nephew, on suspicion of being connected with the revolutionists, and who were subsequently released on the ground that the thousand or more letters found at their residence had been confided to them, they being ignorant of their contents, were rearrested Monday morning.

A special of Saturday from Denver, Col., says: Governor Waite's extra session of the legislature may end with an immediate adjournment, owing to the fact that strong efforts are being made by the governor and his friends to have it last at least thirty days. A motion to adjourn will be introduced in both branches. It will pass almost unanimously in the senate, but may stick in the lower house. The state's financial condition will not allow of the expense of nearly $100,000, which the session will cause. The state has now overdrawn the appropriations by over $80,000.

OUR LATEST DISPATCHES.

The Happenings of a Day Chronicled in Brief and Concise Paragraphs.

And Containing the Gist of the News From All Parts of the World.

Fire Wednesday morning destroyed the Starr piano works at Richmond, Va. The loss is $300,000 and the insurance $40,000.

Robert Poole, the oldest, and in his time one of the best known jockeys in the country, died suddenly at Providence, R. I., Tuesday, aged 82.

The reconvened Pennsylvania democratic state convention of September 18th last was called to order at Harrisburg Wednesday morning by ex-congressman E. P. Gillespie, of Mercer county, permanent chairman. James Denton Hancock, of Franklin, Venango county, was nominated for congressman-at-large by acclamation.

Robert P. Hofel, who recently resigned as cashier of the bank of Wayne, at Goldsboro, N. C., made an assignment there Wednesday, turning over his property to his creditors. His liabilities are estimated at $45,000. He is one of the foremost citizens of Goldsboro. The assignment was unexpected and caused a sensation.

Sheriff Middleton, of Duplin county, N. C., has served a summons on the officers and directors of the defunct bank of New Hanover in the action begun against them in the superior court of Duplin. The depositors of the bank in Duplin are the plaintiffs and the action is to recover from the deposits in the bank amounting to $30,000. The defendants are to answer February 19th.

A cable special of Wednesday from Vienna, Austria, says that the commander of the forces in Liguerria and Piedmont has been ordered to complete the arming forthwith of the forts of the French frontier and to complete the arming of the batteries on the Tyrrhenian sea. In addition, it is stated that several army corps have been ordered to place themselves in readiness for the outbreak of war. The news has caused great excitement.

The news published in Paris Tuesday to the effect that President Peixoto, of Brazil, had resigned was founded on a dispatch announcing this fact, which was received at the ministry of foreign affairs. The Brazilian minister at Paris has declared that he did not believe the report to be true, and Senhor Gualabara, the Brazilian government delegate, is quoted as saying that there was nothing in the latest dispatches which he had received which would furnish ground for the belief that the report was true.

A Savannah dispatch of Wednesday says: J. J. Anderson, formerly master mechanic of the Central railroad, has filed a suit for slander for $10,000 against Supt. E. Ford, of the South Bound railroad, charging that the defendant falsely and maliciously said that he was unable to get any work out of Anderson, who was working also for the South Bound, and that he had to offer him a $50 overcoat to get an engine out. Mr. Anderson has also sued the Savannah Press for $10,000 for libel for publishing the statements made by Superintendent Ford.

W. F. Beck & Co., commission merchants at San Francisco, handling chiefly salmon and canned and dried fruits, assigned Wednesday. The scheduled liabilities are $313,513, and a member of the firm says that amount may reach a much greater sum. The Wells-Fargo bank is the geaviest creditor, holding claims of $104,000. Three other banks in San Francisco hold claims aggregating $82,000. The bulk of the remainder is due to local merchants and creditors in Honolulu and several interior counties in New York.

A Jackson, Tenn., special of Wednesday says: Rev. G. F. B. Howard, of claim agency fame, is still at the county jail. He has the freedom of the corridors, and his wife spends the day with him. He has plenty of opportunity to converse with his witnesses who are confined in jail awaiting the special term of the federal court in February. The government is getting its evidence ready by that time. Howard seems cheerful, and hums the popular airs of the day as he walks up and down the jail corridor.

Fire was discovered Wednesday morning in Arbuckle & Son's warehouse at Memphis, Tenn., and before the fire department could arrive the entire building covering a block, was a solid mass of flames and smoke. The heat and blinding smoke worked against very effectual work on the part of the firemen, and for two hours the fire raged in all its fury. Fully 2,500 bales of cotton were stored, and of these more than 1,500 bales were burned, while the balance is almost a complete loss. Arbuckle, Sons & Co. are losers to about $4,000, and various other firms suffer severe losses.

The ninth general assembly of Colorado convened in Denver at noon Wednesday. In both branches the old organizations were continued. Governor Waite began reading his message at 3 o'clock and finished at 4:30. Cheers and loud applause greeted the venerable executive as he pronounced the opening words. Immediately after the joint session was dissolved a row broke out in the house. Mr. Boynge, republican, declared the governor had insulted the intelligence of the legislature by making a partisan stump speech. Mr. Sweeney, populist, hotly defended the governor. A motion to adjourn sine die was defeated by a vote of 25 to 26. The message was ordered printed by a vote of 57 to 5.

The Texas Franchise Tax.

A dispatch of Friday from Austin says: In 1893 the Texas state legislature passed an act providing for the collection of a special franchise tax from every corporation, foraign and domestic, doing business in the state. The collection of the tax was not attempted in 1893 on account of the law not going into effect until August of that year. The secretary of state has, however, made preparations for the collection for 1894.

Everyoody should read the paper and keep up with the times.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Situation as Reported for the Past Week.

The review of the industrial situation in the South for the past week shows that no material change in industrial conditions has taken place. The number of new industries in progress of organization continues to be above the average, indicating a prosperous state of affairs, as compared with the past few months. There can be no doubt that the tide of revival in manufacturing and mechanical affairs has fairly set in. It is shown by the increasing inquiry for machinery of all kinds, by the formation of new co-partnerships and companies, by the enlargements of existing plants, and by the growing demand for sites for factories and industrial plants. Southern merchants and southern banks are in a good condition, and an adjustment of the pending tariff question is only needed to ensure renewed prosperity.

Thirty-three new industries were established or incorporated during the week, together with eight enlargements of manufactories. The following are among the prominent new industries: The Arctic Ice and Storage Company, of Wheeling, W. Va., capital $500,000, organized by Peter Welty and associates; the Potomac Manufacturing Company, of Alexandria, Va., capital $30,000, by A. J. Smith and others; the Columbia Glass Company, of Wheeling, W. Va., capital $300,000, by M. F. Strong and others, and the Blacksburg Phosphate Guano Company, of Blacksburg, S. C., by T. B. Gantir and associates. The Stonington Brick and Tile Company, capital $90,000, has been organized, at Natchez, Miss.; the Shreveport Manufacturing Company, capital stock $50,000, at Shreveport, La., by H. H. Wheeler and associates; the Southern Dynamite and Power Company, at Tallapoosa, Ga., capital $50,000, by J. M. McBride and others; the Bridgeport Stove Works, at Bridgeport, Ala., capital $25,000, by R. J. Lowman and associates; the Montgomery Basket and Woodenware Company, of Montgomery, Ala., capital $20,000, by W. H. Micou and others, and the Helena Box Factory, capital $10,000, of Helena, Ark., by John J. Horner and others.

A brewery is reported at Austin, Texas, a barrel factory at Florence, Ala.; a canning factory at Cleveland, Tenn.; a cotton mill at Augusta, Ga.; dye works at Charlotte, N. C.; a grist mill at Birmingham, Ala.; a foundry and machine shop at Westminster, S. C., and an oil mill at Florence, S. C. Gold mines are to be developed at Auraria, Ga.; a slate quarry at Virginia, Va.; sugar refineries are to be built at Evergreen and Martinsville, La.; lumber companies have been organized at Charleston, S. C., Knoxville, Tenn., and West Norfolk, Va., and saw and planing mills are to be built at Browton, Ala., Newbern and Somerville, Tenn., and Texarkana, Texas.

The enlargements for the week include a brewery at San Antonio, Texas; brick and tile works at Houston, Texas; gas works at Asheville, N. C.; cotton mills at Anniston, Ala., and Charleston, S. C., and saw and planing mills at Waycross, Ga., Edenton, N. C., and Liberty, S. C.—Tradesman (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

COLD ON THE CONTINENT.

Much Suffering in Great Britain on Account of the Fearful Weather.

A London cable dispatch of Friday says: The severe cold continues throughout Great Britain, in many places the thermometer registering the lowest point known. While the lowest reported temperature is five to ten degrees above, it involves as much suffering as would a temperature of twenty degrees below zero in the United States. The people are entirely unprepared for such a terrible cold wave and the result is that the suffering among the poor is intense. Many cases of death are already reported, and out-door work has been almost entirely suspended. The gale in the channels which for the first time in years compelled a complete suspension in channel service, is somewhat abated.

At Dover Friday the mercury registered 10 degrees above zero and in South Devonshire 12 degrees above zero is reported. The river Dart and the tidal streams are frozen solid.

In Lincolnshire two men were found frozen to death and many of the roads are covered with snow drifts ten feet high. In several parts of England railroad trains have been embedded in the snow for hours, and on the Isle of Wight the weather is reported to be the coldest of the century. The river Yar is frozen from its source to within a few yards of the sea and on the Medina river, which divides the Isle of Wight into two nearly equal parts, two trading steamers are icebound in midstream.

Reports received from Spain show that the most intense cold also prevails there. At Zorita the thermometer registered 10 degrees below zero and at Burgos several people were frozen to death.

At Moscow 26 degrees below zero was registered; at Nijni, Novgorod, the thermometer registered 34 degrees below and 23 degrees below was reported at Kharkoff.

DOLE A BLUSTERER.

He Makes a Defiant Reply to Minister Willis' Demands.

The steamer Wavirmoo, which arrived at Victoria, B. C., Monday night, brought advices from Honolulu under date of January 1st. On the 10th of December, Minister Willis demanded of the provisional government that it surrender to the queen. President Dole replied, refusing to consider this demand. The government is keeping the answer of Dole to Willis' demands secret until it shall have had time to reach the president. The following summary, however, has been obtained from good authority:

Dole begins by noting that this is the first official communication this government has had intimating in any way the policy of President Cleveland toward Hawaii. By no action of this government has any matter connected with the late revolution been submitted to the authority of the United States. This is carefully argued. No intimation has ever been made to the provisional government of anything having been done or considered in the premises until the alleged conclusion of the president now presented by Minister Willis. An exhaustive resume is given of the series of political struggles leading up to the revolution, including the acts of Kalakauka before 1887, and his obstructing and dictating legislation by filling the legislature with officeholders.

Senhor Mendon, the Brazilian minister at Washington, has no information which would bear out the dispatch received in Paris from Rio de Janeiro that President Peixoto has resigned. The departments are also without information respecting the Paris report that Peixoto has resigned.

Endorsed the Wilson Bill.

The Clothing Cutters' Association No. 7954, Knights of Labor, at Chicago Friday night adopted resolutions endorsing the Wilson bill in its entirety, and earnestly praying congress for its speedy adoption; also, endorsing the income tax on all incomes exceeding $4,000 as equitable and as a means of relieving the non-possessing class and placing a tax on whom it belongs, the opulent.

Not the Slow Kind.

A messenger boy who has a small but growing account at a certain bank walked in the other day to deposit 50 cents. He was told that deposits of less than $1 were not received. He wasted no words. He took out his check book, wrote a check for $1 and presented it to the paying teller, who of course honored it. Then he went back to the receiving teller. "I would like to deposit $1.50," he said. And now the man who accepted it wonders who started the story that messenger boys are slow.—Boston Transcript.

"Ho! You say your prayers every night and morning, do you?" jeered the bad little boy.

"Yes, and so would you if you had to do it or take a lickin," replied the good little boy, firmly.—Chicago Tribune.

YOUR GOOD HEALTH, if you're a suffering woman, demands Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription. There's no other medicine like it, for women's peculiar ills. No matter how distressing your symptoms, it relieves your aches and pains, and if faithfully used will bring a permanent cure in every chronic weakness or derangement, in catarrhal inflammation, and in the displacements of women. West Liberty, O.

DR. R. V. PIERCE: Dear Sir—I can cheerfully recommend your valuable medicine, the "Favorite Prescription," to suffering females. Three years ago my health became so poor that I was scarcely able to help with the household duties. I was persuaded to try your medicine, and I purchased six bottles. That, with the local treatment you advised, made me strong and well.

My sister has used it in the family with like results. L. E. Johnson

Teapot.

The game "Teapot" may be made very funny. One player goes out of the room while the others decide upon a word. When the one outside returns, the others make sentences about the word chosen, but instead of saying it use the word teapot each time. For instance the word vane is selected. One says, "I saw a teapot on a stable this morning." The next one says, "I saw the teapot on Fred's forehead." And the third remarks, "I hate teapot girls." When the player guesses the word, the one from whom the information was gleaned must take his place outside.—New York Sun.

A special from Albany, N. Y., says: The court of appeals Tuesday morning decided that a foreign corporation could buy and sell real estate in this state. The decision affects $25,000,000 worth of property.

The Omlanda secret society trial began at Prague, Austria, Monday. There are 77 prisoners, including newspaper men, printers, clerks and artisans, charged with belonging to a dangerous secret society, with high treason, insulting the emperor, and with rioting.

A Chicago special says: Harry Hill is once more in the hands of the Chicago police. The capture was made Monday afternoon. Several days ago the police department received a circular from the Atlanta police office, offering a reward of $50 for Hill's arrest, and stating that he was wanted there on several charges, including forgery.

At an early hour Tuesday morning three masked men entered the soap factory of Schultz & Co., at Zanesville, O., overpowered Watchman Day and, after binding and gaging him, threw him in a closet. The safe was then blown open and $3,800 in checks, $200 in money and a diamond ring were taken. The robbers then made their escape.

Advices from Rio de Janeiro state that the United State cruiser New York, Captain Phillips, arrived at that port Tuesday and will take up a position near Niethcroy. There was renewed firing during the day between the rebel ships and the forts, which is said to have resulted in considerable loss of life on board the insurgent vessel, which retired.

Berkey & Gay, Grand Rapids, Mich., one of the largest furniture manufactures in the world, employing nearly 1,000 in all departments, have cut salaries and wages from president down to draymen, 25 per cent. The cut is to take effect at once. Small orders and the financial depression are the alleged causes for the cut. The men held a meeting Tuesday night, but took no action.

The Iowa legislature, in session at Des Moines, took formal action on the United States senatorship Tuesday. John H. Gear, the republican caucus candidate, was nominated in the senate by Senator Harmon, and ex-Governor Horace Boies's name was placed in nomination on behalf of the democrats by Senator Harper. A joint convention of the senate and house will be held to canvass the vote, which makes Gear United States senator from Iowa.

A San Francisco special says: A frightful railroad accident occurred Sunday night at Austin creek bridge, on the North Pacific railroad. An engine with eight men on board was crossing a bridge, when the structure gave way and the engine crashed down a distance of forty feet into a stream below. All the men were drowned except the conductor. The dead are: Frank Hartsahin, Engineer Briggs, Fireman Coster, Rice Bremner and Tom Gould.

A judgment for $17,813,610 was filed Saturday in the county clerk's office, New York, against the Richmond West Point Terminal Railway and Warehouse company in favor of Charles H. Carter, George Sherman and Anthony J. Thomas. The amount represents a principal of 5,453 6 per cent gold trust bonds and 10,596 5 per cent consolidated first mortgage collatral gold trust bonds, in the aggregate $16,049,000, together with the interest from September 1, 1892, amounting to $1,820,264, on which there was paid on the company's account $55,799.

The world's committee of Young Men's Christian Association, with headquarters at Geneva, Switzlerland, have just issued the call for the thirteenth international conference of the Young Men's Christian Association of all lands, to meet in London, the 31st of May next. The conference will continue until the 6th of June. It will include a public thanksgiving sermon in St. Paul's cathedral on June 5th, presided over by the Right Reverend Bishop of Ripon, D. D., and a reception on June 6th, the jubilee day, at Royal Albert hall, South Kingston.

A cable dispatch from Berlin says: Emperor William opened the Prussian diet Tuesday in the white hall of the castle. In his speech to the members he pointed out the growing deficiency in the estimates, saying the difficulties, coupled with the increasing demands of the empire upon individual states, could only be removed by a reorganization of the financial affairs of the empire and an adequate increase of its own resources. The government continued its efforts to promote the prosperity of the agricultural classes so as to enable them to cope with bad times.

Butt, Young & Co., wholesale hat dealers at Knoxville, Tenn., filed deeds of trust to secure creditors to the amount of sixty thousand dollars Monday. Their assets are enormous, but are not given. Later in the day Moses Greer, Jr., & Co., a leading jewelry firm of the city, were compelled to file deeds of trust covering their enormous stock, on account of the assignment of Butt, Young & Co., wholesale hat dealers. W. H. Greer was named as trustee. These are the two first assignments of any consequence that have occurred in Knoxville for several months during the late financial stringency.

A special from Trenton, N. J., says: Governor Watts, Tuesday morning, sent the long looked-for opinion of Attorney General Stockton on the legislation muddle to both houses of the legislature. The opinion is an exhaustive one, and is in favor of the democratic as against the republican members, declaring that the senate is a continuous body, and that a newly elected member has not the right of organization and is not a member by virtue of taking the oath of office, but by the recognition of the old members, who legally constitute the body, possessing power to act on the credentials of all new members.

VOORHEES REPLIES

To Secretary Carlisle's Letter in Regard to a Bond Issue.

A Washington special says: A meeting of the senate committee was held Tuesday afternoon for the purpose of considering Secretary Carlisle's letter and bond bill. After the conclusion of the meeting Senator Voorhees, as chairman of the committee, handed to an Associated Press representative, the statement given below. In making it he said he did not assume to report the views of the entire committee and yet, he knew of no opposition to the committee to the opinions expressed. He submitted his statement to the full committee before giving it to the public. It is as follows:

"The embarrassed condition of the treasury and the necessity for prompt action for its relief are fully realized. There is not the slightest ground, however, for apprehension that the public credit will suffer or be endangered for the reason that ample authority already exists by law for the secretary of the treasury to strengthen his coin reserve to any extent required, and to meet any demand that can be legitimate. The power of the treasurer for the issue of bonds needs nothing beyond what is given by the act of January 14th, 1875. The only desirable object to be attained by new legislation at this time on the subject is to make a shorter time bond with a lower rate of interest and yet the secretary feels assured that he can negotiate for an issue under the act of 1875, running only ten years on practically a 3 per cent basis. It seems, therefore, that it would be wiser, safer and better for the financial and business interests of the country to rely upon the existing law with which to meet the present emergency, rather than to encounter the delays and uncertainties always incident to a protracted discussion in the two houses of congress. This view of the condition of the treasury admits of but little, if any, delay, and of no uncertainty at all in the final action to be taken. It would be trifling with a very grave affair to pretend that new legislation concerning the issue of bonds can be accomplished at this time, and in the midst of the present political elements and parties in public with elaborate, extensive and practically indefinite debate.

It is so obvious to every one that the consideration of the tariff now going on in congress will render any financial legislation at this time far more difficult and complicated than it might be under another and different circumstances.

"It is proper to say in this connection that the senate finance committee for several weeks past has had this subject under almost constant consideration and that the bill submitted by Mr. Carlisle has been examined and discussed with the greatest care. The interest of the committee will by no means be abated from this time forward. The fact that much remains to be done is fully recognized. Whatever deficiency in the revenue may exist during the current fiscal year will be promptly provided for by appropriate and efficient legislation at the earliest practicable moment."

The senate finance committee authorizes Senator Voorhees to introduce the Carlisle bill into the senate and also to present the letter from the secretary of the treasury for the consideration of that body, which was done. The authorization as to the introduction of the bill is not intended to mean, however, that the committee has decided to make an effort to pass the bill through the senate or that it has given it further endorsement than to allow it to be printed and refered to the committee in the regular way for consideration.

A YOUTHFUL SUICIDE.

A Kid With a Pistol Causes a Panic in School.

Branch public school, in East Washington, D. C., was the scene of a panic Monday morning. The children were entering for the day's study when Grover Hummer, a child seven years old, was seen flourishing a pistol that he had brought from home unknown to his parents and playfully remarking that he was going to shoot some one, but finally saying he would shoot himself, and pointing the pistol to his head accidentally pulled the trigger and blew his brains out. An exciting scene followed and children ran screaming into the streets and some time was required to restore order. Luckily no one was hurt in the scramble.

A Crank Sentenced.

James Bradley, the alleged crank, who, in October, shot and dangerously wounded Superintendent Fred C. Matthes, while the latter was directing his men at work on a Broadway, N. Y., insurance building, was, on Wednesday, sentenced to five years' imprisonment in the state prison by Recorder Smith, in the court of general sessions. The sentence imposed is the extreme limit of the law.

AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Affairs of Government and News of the Departments Discussed.

Notes of Interest Concerning the People and Their General Welfare.

The senate in executive session Wednesday rejected the nomination of J. Scott Harrison to be surveyor of customs at Kansas City. Mr. Harrison is a brother of ex-President Harrison, and was appointed over the protest of Senator Vest.

The president, Monday, granted a pardon to J. E. D. Meredith, of West Virginia, of passing counterfeit money, on the ground that longer imprisonment will endanger his life; also to J. A. Edmonds, of Kentucky, convicted of violation of the revenue laws.

Representative Durborow, of Illinois, introduced a bill in the house Tuesday authorizing the secretary of the navy to transfer to the trustees of the Columbian museum, Chicago, the productions of the caravels of Columbus, the Santa Maria, Nina and Pinta, which were exhibited at the world's Columbian exposition.

Representative Bailey, of Texas, introduced the following resolution in the house Monday; "Resolved, That it is the sense of the house of representatives that the secretary of the treasury has no authority under existing law to issue and sell the bonds of the United States, except such as is conferred upon him by the act approved January 14, 1875, entitled: 'An act to provide for the resumption of specie payments and that the money derived from the sale of bonds issued under that act cannot be lawfully applied to any purposes except those specified therein.'" The resolution was refered to the judiciary committee.

Representative Stone, of Pennsylvania, introduced a bill in the house Tuesday providing for the inspection of immigrants by United States consuls. The bill provides that no alien shall be admitted within the United States unless he shall exhibit to the United States inspectors a certificate signed by the United States consul at the place nearest where such immigrant last resided, setting forth that the consul had made an investigation concerning the immigrant, and that he does not belong to the class of alien immigrants excluded from admission to the United States under the provisions of the law approved March 3, 1891, relative to the importation of immigrants under contract to perform labor.

Hornblower Turned Down.

The senate, after being in executive session all day Monday, at 9 o'clock in the afternoon rejected the nomination of Mr. Hornblower as justice of the supreme court. The debate was very spirited. Senator Hill lead in the opposition to Hornblower. When the vote was finally taken the New Yorker was rejected. It is a notable fact that all the New York nominations made by the president which Senator Hill has opposed have been held up. The senate is a peculiar body in one respect. Senatorial courtesy seems to be on so elevated a plane that it cannot be pulled down. The senate sustains its members. In this case it has repudiated the president and stood by Hill and Murphy.

Lil's Restoration Abandoned.

Mr. Holman, of Indiana, who has been one of the administration's leading representatives on the floor of the house in the Hawaiian matter, said Tuesday that the restoration of Lilliuokalani to the Hawaiian throne had been for all time abandoned by both the executive and congress. "My view," said he, "is that the United States should now recognize the provisional government as the existing and lawful government of Hawaii. We should then proceed to secure, by treaty with the provisional government, an agreement which will guarantee the islands against interference by foreign powers. It would be in effect a protectorate, yet it should not be a protectorate in the sense of binding the two countries to mutual offensive and defensive measures."

Secretary Carlisle's Statement.

The senate committee on finance met Tuesday morning, and, after discussing for one hour the proposition of Mr. Carlisle, were unable to agree upon any definite result. Secretary Carlisle's statement was made in a letter to Senator Voorhees, chairman of the senate finance committee. After giving the deficit in the treasury for the current year up to the present time as $43,558,044.94, estimating the deficit at the close of the year at $76,107,542, the secretary says: "On account of this critical condition of the treasury, I have considered it my duty in addition to the earnest recommendations contained in my annual report, to appear twice before your committee and, after full explanations of the situation, urge prompt legislative action on this subject. By the permission of congress, I have prepared and presented for the consideration, a measure which, if promptly passed, in my opinion, would relieve the situation by providing the means for defraying the public expenses and replenishing the coin reserve to such an extent as to assure the maintainance of the parity of all forms of all United States currency. While this proposed measure of relief has not yet been disposed of, or considered by the committee, the great differences of opinion which are known to exist in both branches of congress concerning the propriety of granting additional or amended authority to issue bonds, in any form or for any purpose, renders it doubtful whether new legislation upon the subject can be secured in time to provide the means which are imperatively demanded in order to preserve the credit and honor of the government. Authority to issue and sell bonds for the purpose of maintaining specie payments are expressly conferred upon the secretary of the treasury by the act of January 14, 1875, but it has not been exercised since 1879, and, on account of the high rate of interest provided for and the length of time such bonds would have to run, I have not been satisfied that such an emergency as heretofore existed would clearly justify their issue. But the necessity for relief at this time is so urgent, and the prospect of material improvement in the financial condition of the government is so problematical, that unless authority to issue and sell shorter bonds, or other obligations, bearing a lower rate of interest than that specified in the existing law is granted by congress at a very early day, I shall feel constrained by a sense of public duty to exercise the power already conferred to the extent, at least, of providing an adequate gold reserve. If this action should be taken congress ought, nevertheless, to provide promptly for the deficiency in the revenues during the current fiscal year."

WILL ISSUE BONDS.

Secretary Carlisle Makes an Announcement to that Effect.

Secretary Carlisle, late Wednesday afternoon, issued the following circular: "Treasury Department, Office of Secretary, Washington, January 17, 1894.—By virtue of the authority contained in the act, entitled 'An act to provide for the resumption of specie payments,' approved January 14, 1876, the secretary of the treasury hereby offers for public subscription an issue of bonds of the United States, to the amount of $50,000,000 in each, registered or coupon form, in denominations of $50 and upwards, redeemable in coin at the pleasure of the government after ten years from the date of their issue and bearing interest, payable quarterly in coin, at the rate of 5 per cent per annum. Proposals for the whole or any part of these bonds will be received at the treasury department, office of the secretary, until 12 o'clock noon, of the day of February 1st. Proposals should state the amount of bonds desired, whether registered or coupon, and the premium, which the subscriber proposes to pay, the place where it is desired that the bonds shall be delivered and the offer, whether that of the treasurer of the United States or an assistant treasurer of the United States, where it will be most convenient for the subscriber to deposit the amount of his subscription. Failure to describe the above particulars may cause the proposal to be rejected. As soon as practical after the 1st day of February, 1894, the allotment of bonds will be made to the highest bidder therefor, but no proposition will be accepted at a lower price than 117,223, which is the equivalent of a 3 per cent. bond at par, and the right to reject any and all proposals is hereby expressly reserved; in case the bids entitled to allotment exceed the bonds to be issued, they will be allotted pro rata. Notice of the date of delivery of the bonds will be sent to the subscribers to whom allotments are made as soon as practicable, and within ten days from the date of such notice, subscriptions must be paid in United States gold coin to the treasurer or such assistant treasurer of the United States, as the subscriber has designated, and if not paid, the proposal may be rejected. The bonds will be dated February 1, 1894, and when payment is made therefore, as above, accrued interest on both principal and premium from February 1, 1894, to date of payment, at the rate of interest realized to the subscriber in his investment, will be added. All proposals should be addressed to the treasury, Washington, D. C., and should be distinctly marked "proposals for subscriptions to 5 per cent bonds. J. G. CARLISLE, Secretary."

Suit Against Bank Officials.

An important investigation of the affairs of the wrecked bank of New Hanover, at Wilmington, N. C., was begin Tuesday. Suits by all depositors who live in Dublin county have been filed. Among these is the sheriff, who had $6,000 on deposit. The defendants are President Bates, Cashier Williams, and five directors. The purpose of the suits is to fix the responsibility upon them.

The Happenings of a Day Chronicled in Brief and Concise Paragraphs

And Containing the Gist of the News From All Parts of the World.

The American Association of General Baggage Agents held its thirteenth annual convention at St. Augustine, Fla., Wednesday.

The Dean penitentiary bill was debated all day Tuesday in the Mississippi state senate and passed by a vote of 29 to 9. The features of this bill provides for the purchase of a state prison farm.

A bill was introduced in the Virginia senate, Wednesday, authorizing the purchase of the Richmond and Danville railroad, their successors and assigns to become a corporation, adopt a name therefor, and possess and exercise general powers and authorizing the consolidating therewith with other corporations.

General William H. Forney, ex-member of congress from Alabama, a gallant soldier and distinguished statesman, died at his home in Jacksonville, Ala., late Tuesday night. He was seventy-one years old and was a veteran of two wars. He was in congress sixteen or eighteen years. He was probably the best known and most uniformly beloved public man in Alabama.

A New York dispatch says: The Dutch steamer Amsterdam, Captain Stenger, from Rotterdam, January 4th, which arrived Wednesday morning, lost her chief officer, J. Meyer, and five men by the capsizing of her port life boat, while proceeding to the assistance of the crew of the American fishing schooner, Maggie E. Well, which was in a sinking condition. The schooner is supposed to have been lost with all on board.

The annual report of the world's Columbian commissioners was submitted to congress by President Palmer Wednesday. Detailed statements of the scope and various features of the exposition are left for the final report, to be prepared by a special committee of the commission, with President Palmer at its head, and which will be a work of great magnitude—practically a history of the fair—to be completed next November.

A dispatch from El Paso, Texas, says: It is still impossible to get further details of the conflict between the soldiers and revolutionists, but it is certain that there has been a battle near the Mexican Central road, between El Paso and Chihuahua. Trains that reached Chihuahua Wednesday from the City of Mexico brought 600 rurales from that city. These are the favorite troops of President Diaz and are famous as fighters, especially fitted for mountain warfare. Just where these troops are bound for cannot be learned.

The South Carolina state board of health met at Charleston Wednesday. The following officers for the ensuing year were elected: Chairman, Dr. John R. Braller, of Yorkville; vice chairman, Dr. T. G. Simons, of Charleston; secretary, Dr. H. H. Fraser, of Charleston. The new law passed at the last session of the legislature was discussed and the municipal authorities were notified that they must complete the organization of the local boards of health and report to the state board by July 1st.

A crowd of 2,000 men collected outside the Turner hall at Kansas City Tuesday night to take vengeance on an American Protective Association treasurer, known as the "Ex-Priest J. V. McNamara." The speaker, McNamara, appeared on the platform with a rifle, and stated that there was murder in the air, and asked for protection. After a bitter lecture, he and his wife, both armed, entered a carriage. A stone was thrown at them, and McNamara fired on the crowd, after which a running fight for two blocks took place. McNamara and his wife finally escaped, no one being hurt.

Rotton timbers and a poorly constructed trestle belonging to the New York, Susquehanna and Western railroad was the cause of a frightful accident Wednesday in the Jersey meadows. A construction train, consisting of a locomotive and six gondola cars heavily loaded with gravel, were precipitated about thirty feet into a small branch. There was a gang of fifty Italian laborers on the train and three-fourths of them went down. One man was killed outright, while another died while he was being removed to the hospital. Twenty others were seriously injured and it is thought that some of them may die.

REDWINE PLEADS GUILTY

And Is Sentenced to the Penitentiary for Six Years.

The Redwine embezzlement trial at Atlanta came to an abrubt termination Thursday afternoon. The mysterious bombshell which it was from the first supposed that the defense held in reserve amazed everybody. It was a plea of guilty.

The circumstances surrounding this denouement were fully in keeping with all the other features of this remarkable case. When the government concluded it was a matter of general remark that the outlook for the prisoner seemed brighter than had been deemed possible. The tangled affairs of the bank, its deplorably loose methods of doing business, the overdrafts of its officials and the difficulty of determining exactly what had become of its funds, all of which had been brought out in the evidence of the prosecution, formed in the opinion of many a peg for a jury to hang upon and talk of a mistrial was heard everywhere. This was assuming, of course, that Redwine would put up some species of defense.

Thus few, outside of, perhaps, the inner circle, were prepared for what happened. Indeed, certain things make it doubtful whether even Redwine was prepared for it.

Colonel Hammond, of the defense, addressed the court. He asked for a final ruling upon his demurrer to the first indictment, in reference to the Thomas Cobb Jackson check of $5,000. For the benefit of people who are not lawyers it may be said that a demurrer is a plea that the facts charged, even if true, do not constitute a case. Judge Pardee sustained the position. Then Colonel Hammond dumfounded the room full of listeners by admitting in a few curt sentences that upon the three other indictments the government had established an unassailable case and requested the judge to enter a plea of guilty.

Every face save Redwine's bore traces of the excitement of the moment. He glanced up and seemed faintly interested, that was all. No one could have guessed from that impassive countenance that the die had just been cast that sealed his fate, ruined his life and doomed him to a felon's chains.

The jury, under instructions, returned a perfunctory verdict of guilty on indictments No. 3935, 3958 and 3964. They cover substantially the same ground of embezzlement.

SIX YEARS IN THE PEN.

Friday morning Redwine was brought into court to receive sentence. His left hand thrust deep in his trousers' pocket and his thin lips with just the ghost of a smile, he stood up and received the edict which sends him to the penitentiary. Some said that he took it like a man and others that it was a disgusting exhibition of bravado. The sentence was six years on each of the three indictments, but Judge Pardee ordered that they be "served concurrently." Under the law a judge can make several sentences imposed at one time either concurrent or cumulative. The most famous example of a cumulative sentence is that of "Boss" Tweed, who was convicted on some thirty-three indictments and sentenced on each, the total being over one hundred years, one term beginning when another was served. In a concurrent sentence the different terms are served at one and the same time. Redwine's being concurrent, it is really only six years, otherwise it would be eighteen.

WHAT THE SENTENCE MEANS.

Redwine's sentence of six years will be shortened to four years and six months, under the two-third rule, provided his conduct is good. He will probably be put to some light form of manual labor as there is a superabundance of clerks in all northern prisons. At the Columbus, O., penitentiary where he will be sent there is a system of grades and a parole at the expiration of what would be the minimum sentence, but these do not apply to United States prisoners. Judge Pardee has instructed the marshal to take Redwine away at once.

Velvets and bengalines will be used for coats, and no wild cloths, the nearest of which are rough cheviots in plain colors and in mixed effects.

THE SPORTS DISAPPOINTED.

The "Dummy" Contest at Jacksonville Was Not Interfered With.

The Sports Expected Governor Mitchell Would Take Action to Stop It.

A Jacksonville special says: Harris and Watkins, the negro pugilists, met at the opera house Monday night under articles of agreement identical to those signed by Corbett and Mitchell, and were not interfered with. The meeting was under the supervision of the chief of police and the referee was vested with power to stop the mill whenever it reached a point indicating danger.

When time was called at 9 o'clock there was a large crowd present. "Billy" Taylor, the well-known sport, was referee, and Pat Reedy, a local puglist, timekeeper. Two "coons" held the bottles. Chief of Police Keefe, representing the city, and Dupty Sheriff Vinzant, representing Sheriff Broward and the state, were on the stage.

As soon as time was called the negroes went at it viciously. After some sharp in-fighting they broke away and almost immediately Watkins got an inning and landed a heavy right on Harris's stomach, following it up with a savage swing that caught his opponent on the corner of the left eye, the blood spurting from the blow. This was entirely too hot for Harris and he refused to continue, saying he had been drunk all day and was in no condition to fight. The decision, therefore, went to Watkins, and also four-fifths of the $50 purse, the other $10 going to Harris. Time 1:20.

The club people were disappointed that the state authorities took no action to stop the contest. They were hopeful until the last minute that Governor Mitchell would interfere, thereby showing his hand, and giving them an idea of what might be expected if Corbett and Mitchell meet. But the governer, it is said, has never intended to interfere with the fight between the negroes, believing that it was simply "a dummy affair," arranged by the club to draw him out with the intention of gaining some point in the legal complications which state interference would have brought about and which might be used to advantage in the attempt to bring Corbett and Mitchell together. The governor however is rather "foxy" himself, and so he kept his hands off the negroes and is still free to carry out his intention in regards to the Corbett-Mitchell fight, without running counter to a decision from any court in Jacksonville. The club people know this, and they feel that he has cleverly eluded the snare which had been set for him.

A LICENSE TO FIGHT.

A New Move by the Backers of the Pugilists.

The fight between the Duval club and Governor Mitchell is rapidly nearing that stage where some more powerful weapon than words will have to be used; that is, unless it should develop that each party to the controversy has only been engaged in a big game of bluff. So far the contest between the club and the governor has been waged entirely with jaw, but next Monday night some other weapon will have to be used by the governor if the promoters of prize fights in this state are to be downed.

On that date Harris and Watkins, negro pugilists, are billed to fight at the opera house in Jacksonville under articles of agreement identical with those signed by Corbett and Mitchell for their proposed match on January 25th. The city licenses for the fight between the negroes and for that between the Englishman and Californian have been issued and are now in the hands of the representative applicants, George Siler and the Duval Athletic Club.

Railroads Withdraw.

A Memphis dispatch says: The Chesapeake and Southwestern railroad withdrew from the Memphis Passenger Association Thursday night. The reasons assigned were that the other roads had violated the agreement by selling tickets to northern and eastern points at cut rates through scalpers, to the detriment of the Chesapeake's business. This means a break up of the association and rate war.

Well, this journal will not change its present political course. It seems now to be for democracy pure and simple. Nothing would please the associate editor more than to see the bright eyes and pensive faces of those of our brothers who were unfortunately led astray, as they turn their steps once more towards the old ship, Democracy. We shall therefore, be ever ready to present to our erring brothers the error of their way and urge upon them the wisdom, pleasure, and profit of once more joining the sturdy marines. ERNEST W. LOVELESS.

Money for the teachers is pouring out in a steady stream every day from the treasury of Alabama.

Capt. Cheney, of Montgomery, foreclosed a mortgage on the Alliance Herald last week. Mr. Cheney bid the property in.

Prof. Alonzo Hill, one of the most prominent educators in Alabama, and president of the Tuskaloosa Female College, dropped dead Saturday night.

The death of General Forney at his home in Jacksonville has removed from us a good man. He has spent a highly useful life, both as a public and private citizen.

Mr. Kolb, in his speech before the Jeffersonian Mass Meeting held in the Recorder's Court Room of Montgomery last Thursday night, said he would yield to no man his unswerving Democracy. "I am as true a Democrat as ever breathed the breath of life and expect to die one," said he. His claims to Democracy are what leads the populites to suspect him. Say some of them: "If we elect Kolb and his crowd they will land us right back into Democracy yet." When Jeffersonians, populites and Republicans meet in Birmingham Feb. 8th they will be all of the same mind and vote for candidates named by the Jeffersonians. The Jeffersonian ring at Montgomery will as effectually control as any ring ever did.

The news which reaches us through the weekly press of the State is cheerful enough when it touches upon the outlook for the farmers. From Dale comes the news that the farmers have taken the bit in their mouths and are making enough meat and bread to sell and making the cotton crop surplus. The Southern Star tells of a negro farmer in that county that had 1,500 pounds of meat to sell. DeKalb sends forth word that she has one Jersey cow that gives eight gallons of milk and four pounds of butter per day. In Geneva county the farmers are paying off their mortgages and making smaller ones for the new year. A truck farmer in Evergreen says he has enough strawberries in bloom to make 300 crates. Mr. Ford of Anniston, killed a pig 20 months old that netted 496 pounds and measured 6 feet long. Ed Ezell, of Choctaw killed 43 hogs which netted 7,000 of meat and eight hundred pounds of lard. Lamar county farmers have cancelled more mortgages and are nearer out of debt than they have been for many years. Joe Headley, of Chilton, reports having killed a fine chance of meat. Then we might multiply cases and fill up space with the same story. The editor of the Greenville Advocate, tells the farmers that it costs no more to raise a hog than a dog and that while you can eat a hog a dog will eat you.

INTERNATIONAL REVENUE.

Washington, Jan. 18.—The full text of the internal revenue bill including the important income tax, has been agreed upon by the democratic members of the ways and means committee. It is probable the measure will be submitted to the house to-morrow.

As yet details of the income tax as finally agreed upon, have not been made public. The Associated Press is able, however to give a very complete summary of the essential features of the law as it will be submitted to the House.

The bill provides that the income tax is to go into effect January 1, 1895. All clases of incomes are included in the measure, and the uniform rate of 2 per cent over $4,000 is fixed. The most important details of the bill is the method provided for the levy and collection of taxes. It is made obligatory on all persons receiving individual income of $3,500 to make a return to the local conductor and a taxable list is made up of those whose incomes exceed $4,000, No tax is levied upon those making a return of about $3,500 and under $4,000, but the committee deemed it expedient to leave this margin of $500 below the exemption point in order that the returns might be sure to show all who are subject to tax.

In case a person having an income of over $3,500 fails to make a return it becomes the duty of the revenue assessor to make inquiry as to the amount of the person's income. If their examination discloses that that the income is above $4,000 the income is subject to twice the ordinary tax under the law, and the party failing to make his return is deemed guilty of a criminal offense and is made subject to fine and inprisonment.

The main purpose in forming the above provisions is to avoid an inquisitorial operation of the law. The committee believe that it will do away with the necessity of having assessors pry into the private business of people, unless the latter have a taxable income and try to evade the law.

It is estimated that not less than 85,000 persons will be affected by this limit and the great majority of citizens will not have to make returns. Provision is also made by which no information can be made public as to the details of the income reported by citizens. If such details become public it might injure the credit of a firm or individual. For that reason any public or private person who divulges any part of this information concerning income is made subject to a criminal prosecution, with heavy fine and penalty.

Particular provision is made for the collection of the income tax due on salaries, not only official salaries, but the salaries of individuals received from business firms, corporations, etc. The individual receiving the salary does not pay the tax, but it is made the duty of every government, state county and municipal disbursing officer to retain 2 per cent of all salaries over the taxable amount. This two per cent is to be taken out of the salaries in bulk at the last payment of salaries for the year.

The tax upon corporations includes every phrase of corporation stock. This tax is general and is without the $4,000 exemption allowed to individual incomes. It is provided in collecting tax on corporate stock the corporation shall pay the tax and deduct the amount from the dividends of the stockholders. It is made the duty of each corporation to take 2 per cent of each annual corporate income from the amount set apart for each stockholder and pay the total to the internal revenue collector of the city. Severe penalties are provided for failure to make the proper reduction from the dividends of stockholders or for a failure to make the return to the revenue collector.

The entire business of the levying and collecting of the tax is placed in charge of a deputy commander of internal revenue. The different revenue districts of the country are also provided with deputy collectors, who will especially manage the income tax.

The measure as finally agreed upon is a detailed elaboration of the plan for an income tax proposed some months ago by Representative Hall of Missouri.

An improvment has been made over the bicycle by the invention of the unicicle a one wheel traveler.

MORRISON IN BIBB.

Armed with a Winchester rifle, two revolvers and a full supply of ammunition Jim Morrison, the noted desperado and criminal, still roams free in the mountains and woods of Bibb County. If reports are to be relied upon he has been seen by uninterested parties several times. People in Bibb have a slight acquaintance with this escaped convict, and no one or two persons will attempt to effect his arrest, and consequently when met single-handed by persons he is passed unmolested.

The latest report from the seat of war says that Morrison is not making for any other part of the country, but will continue to be content with Bibb, his old rendezvous. From all the information that can be gathered he is near Big Springs, or at least not more than eight or ten miles distant therefrom.

Men who know exactly the situation of affairs on both sides say that there may be no expectation on the part of the public of Jim Morrison's capture They say that when officers of the law's hands are laid on him that he will be cold in death, or at least so disabled as to be unable to raise a Winchester or pull the trigger of a pistol. He is now out of prison and knows the consequences if he happens again into the clutches of the law.

As an adjunct to this affair, Hugh Morrison, the farther of Jim, and Lee Morrison, Jim's brother have been arrested upon warrants charging them with aiding him in his escape.—Age-Herald 23 inst.

Morrison is the convict who liberated himself and a number of other convicts from one of the mines near Birmingham last week by seriously wounding a guard with dynamite and blowing up the iron gates.

Officers are scouring Bibb county from boundary to boundary, and if possible the escaped desperado will be run down. The people are in a stage of great excitement.

Guilty Or Not Guilty?

Bill Arp, the famous Georgia humorist, entertained the readers of the Atlanta Constitution last Sunday with a letter full of good, hard, practical common sense, and among other interesting subjects had this to say about paying the preachers:

"But the preacher is the most helpless of all creditors. He can't make out any bills nor send any duns. He has to deal with a corporation, and church corporations are pretty much like all other. No individual acknowledges the the debt. If he acknowledges his part he is doing pretty well. The officers meet once a year and fix the salary, and another set of officers call around once a month and ask for the money, but they do not get more than half of it. The good humble preacher goes to the treasury occasionally and timidly asks if there is any money on hand for him. He gets about half his dues and thanks the Lord in his heart and invokes a blessing upon his people. I wonder if there is a town church in all the land that keeps right square up with the preacher. One time I was present with the officers when the preacher ventured to them that he was very much embarassed, that he owed money and couldn't pay it. The church had promised him $800, and were behind two hundred, and the year only half gone. One of the officers suggested that he call the attention of the congregation to it next Sunday. No, he said, he hated to do that because the truth was that one hundred and sixty was due by the officers then present. Well, that was a socdolager. Next year it I as proposed to raise his salary to 1,000 dollars; but he objected, saying that he couldn't afford to lose any more than he was losing."

The Democratic Executive Committee held its session in Montgomery Monday 22. May 22nd was appointed as the time and Montgomery the place for holding the State Convention. Bent meetings to elect delegates to the convention will be held on May 12th.

Some members of the Alliance of Pike County who banded together to purchase fertilizers have had to pay pretty high prices. Those more able have had to pay for the defaulting ones.

Dispatches from Washington state positivly that Col. Oates will on the 23 inst., announce to the Democrats whether or not he will accept the nomination for governor.

$2,000 IN GOLD.

To Be Distributed In Gifts Next Year.

Everybody is interested in the size of this cotton crop; upon the estimation of it depends whether the cotton will go up or down.

Realizing this wide spread interest the Montgomery Advertiser has offered $2,000 in gifts to be distributed among those who come nearest to the correct estimate. The first prize is $750 and on down to $50.

The only condition of guessing is sending a new subscriber, a renewal or a new subscriber to The Semi-Weekly Advertiser. That paper is the best and cheapest an Alabamian can get for the general news, for it sends out two papers a week, one on Tuesdays and one Fridays, for only one dollar a year, and each contains 12 times as much State news as any other paper in the land. Now is the time to subscribe, because a lively campaign is just opening, while the fight in Congress on the tariff is at hand.

Postmasters, agents and club raisers will be interested in learning that not only is each subscriber entitled to a guess, but the person who sends in names is entitled to a guess for every name sent. The more names sent the greater likelihood of getting $750 in gold.

Sample copies of the Semi-Weekly Advertiser, agent's terms, blanks, etc., sent to any address. Apply to that paper at Montgomery, Ala.

Reports from Committees.

The Cost of Being An Infidel.

Western Recorder.

It has often been pointed out that it costs a good deal to be a true, thorough Christian, that it demands self-denial, the sacrifice of selfish ambitions and the yielding up of heart and life to the service of God. But is it forgotten that it costs a great deal to be a downright infidel? Does it not really cost immeasurably more than it does to be a most devoted Christian? It surely does. In the first place, an infidel does not have the respect of the community in which he lives, to any large extent, at least. He may be honest so far as financial matters are concerned. His veracity may be unquestioned. He may be kind to his family and obliging to his neighbors, and yet the fact that he is a defiant, God hating infidel is so repulsive to the universal sense and judgment of mankind he forfeits the inmost respect of people generally, even those, too, who are not professed Christians. This feeling is frequently so strong that it leads people to instinctively shun the company of an outspoken infidel. He is looked upon as a sort of moral leper, contact with whom is dangerous and damning. There are thousands of parents making no profession of relegion, who do not want their children in the presence of such a man. They fear his influence. They wish to take no risk of having their children polluted by the moral breath of one who has no regard for God. And little children shrink from such a man as though in danger of being afflicted by a pestilence. They do not need to be taught to abhor an infidel; they instinctively arbor him. They are naturally repelled from him. Then too, the great mass of people are stoutly opposed to electing any avowed, aggressive infidel to any high office. The idea grates harshly on the popular ear, and is felt to be quite out of harmony with the fitness of things. No known infidel could be elected to the Presidency of this republic, nor even to the Govenorship of any State in the Union, however brilliant and otherwise well qualified he might be. Yes, it costs a good deal to be an open, defiant infidel. In more than one sense he loses his soul and wastes his life.

The Duval club, of Jacksonville, has asked for an injunction to restrain the sheriff from invading the property of the club or in any way interfering with the proposed "glove contest" between Corbett and Mitchell. The governor has been notified and will in all probability declare martial law in Duval county. It is said that a batallion of state troops has been orderd to the scene of the proposed contest.

A NEW ENGLAND MIRACLE.

A RAILROAD ENGINEER RELATES HIS EXPERIENCE.

THE CONSCIENTIOUS STORY TOLD BY FRED C. VOSS AND HIS MOTHER-IN-LAW TO A REPORTER OF THE BOSTON HERALD—HOPE ARE RESTORED AFTER YEARS OF AGONY.

(From the Boston Herald.)

The vast health-giving results already attributed by the newspapers throughout this country and Canada to Dr. Williams' "Pink Pills for Pale People" have been recently supplemented by the cases of two confirmed invalids in one household in a New England town. The names of these people are Fred C. Voss, his wife and his mother-in law, Mrs. Oliver C. Holt, of Peterboro, members of the same household.

To the Herald reporter who was sent to investigate his remarkable cure Mr. Voss said: "I am thirty-seven years old, and have been railroading for the Fitchburg for fifteen years. Since boyhood I have been troubled with a weak stomach. For the past seven years I have suffered terribly and constantly. My stomach would not retain food; my head ached constantly and was so dizzy I could scarcely stand; my eyes were blurred; I had a bad heartburn, and my breath was offensive. I had physicians, but they failed to help me. My appetite gave out, and four years ago I developed palpitation of the heart, which seriously affected my breathing. Had terrible pains in my back and had to make water many times a day. I finally developed rheumatic signs and couldn't sleep nights. If I lay down my heart would go pitapat at a great rate, and many nights I did not close my eyes at all. I was broken down in body and discouraged in spirit when, some time in February last, I got a couple of boxes of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Before I had finished the first box I noticed that the palpitation of my heart, which had bothered me so that I couldn't breathe at times, began to improve. I saw that in going to my home on the hill from the depot, which was previously an awful task, my heart did not beat so violently and I had more breath when I reached the house. After the second and third boxes I grew better in every other respect. My stomach became stronger, the gas belching was not so bad, my appetite and digestion improved, and my sleep became nearly natural and undisturbed. I have continued taking the pills three times a day ever since last March, and to-day I am feeling better than at any time during the last eight years. I can confidently and conscientiously say that they have done me more good, and their good effects are more permanent, than any medicine I have ever taken. My rheumatic pains in legs and hands are all gone. The pains in the small of my back, which were so bad at times that I couldn't stand up straight, have nearly all vanished, and I find my kidneys are well regulated by them. This is an effect not claimed for the pills in the circular, but in my case they brought it about. I am feeling 100 per cent. better in every shape and manner."

The reporter next saw Mrs. Holt, who said: "I am 57 years old, and for 14 years past I have had an intermittent heart trouble. Three years ago I had nervous prostration, by which my heart trouble was increased so badly that I had to lie down most of the time. My stomach also gave out, and I had continual and intense pain from the back of my neck to the end of my backbone. In 14 weeks I spent $900 for doctor bills and medicines, but my health continued so miserable that I gave up doctoring in despair. I began to take Dr. Williams' Pink Pills last winter, and the first box made me feel ever so much better. I have taken the pills since February, with the result of stopping entirely the pain in the spine and in the region of the liver. My stomach is again normal, and the palpitation of the heart has troubled me but three times since I commenced the pills."

An analysis of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills shows that they contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effect of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexions, all forms of weakness either in male or female, and all diseases resulting from vitiated humors in the blood. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price (50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50—they are never sold in bulk or by the 100) by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., or Brockville, Ont.

FRATERNALLY—Say, me deah fellah, how do you manage to keep such a crease in your trousers?

Avy du Pois—I put them under the mattress I sleep on.

Featherly—Oh you must do something else, for I tried that plan until I got sick of it!—Puck.

Judge Charles E. Vandenburgh, of St. Paul, closed a term of thirty-four years of continuous service on the bench December 31. He was elected 1859, when but 30 years of age, and has never failed of re-election.

"August Flower"

"I am Post Master here and keep a Store. I have kept August Flower for sale for some time. I think it is a splendid medicine." E. A. Bond, P. M., Pavilion Centre, N. Y.

The stomach is the reservoir. If it fails, everything fails. The liver, the kidneys, the lungs, the heart, the head, the blood, the nerves all go wrong. If you feel wrong, look to the stomach first. Put that right at once by using August Flower. It assures a good appetite and a good digestion.

THE FIFTY-THIRD CONGRESS

The House and Senate Called to Order in Regular Session.

Daily Summary of Routine Business in the Two Houses.

THE HOUSE.

FRIDAY, Jan. 12.—There was only a fair attendance in the house when it met at 11 o'clock Friday morning, and, after the speaker's desk had been cleared and the committees called for reports, without producing any, the house went into committee of the whole (at 11:15) to consider the tariff bill, and Mr. Brosius continued his speech interrupted Thursday when the house took a recess. At the conclusion of Mr. Brosius' remarks Mr. Everett, of Massachusetts, addressed the house in favor of the bill. Mr. Everett was enthusiastically applauded by democrats when he took his seat, and when the disorder had subsided, Mr. Black, of Georgia, spoke in favor of the bill. Mr. Black concluded his remarks at 12:55, and the chairman, in recognizing Mr. Pendleton, of West Virginia, said he would have recognized some gentleman on opposition, but for an arrangement whereby the republicans agreed that those in favor of the bill should speak first and then those in opposition.

SATURDAY, Jan. 13.—Oratory was the order of the day in the house of representatives Saturday. It was the closing day of the general debate on the Wilson tariff bill. Debate under the five-minutes rule will, however, continue for the next two weeks. The debate of the day was opened by Mr. Pickler, of South Dakota, in an hour's speech. He was followed by Mr. Turner, of Georgia, who spoke for an hour and thirty minutes. Mr. Turner made a constitutional argument against protection, and defended at length the features of the Wilson bill. He took occasion to speak at length about the south's attitude on the tariff. Later in the evening, Bourke Cochran, of New York, took the floor, and for an hour and forty minutes held the attention of the full house and crowded galleries. Mr. Bryan, of Nebraska, spoke at the night session, and delivered one of his usual eloquent and strong speeches in favor of the bill. He is the first man to speak during a night session who has been listened to by a large audience.

MONDAY, Jan. 15.—There was but a slim attendance on the floor and in the galleries when the house met Monday evening. After some routine business, Mr. Beautell caused a momentary flutter by endeavoring to call up his Hawaiian resolution, and denouncing the way in which the matter was being "smothered" by the majority. The house then resolved itself into a committee of the whole to consider the tariff bill, and in accordance with the special order heretofore adopted, the bill was read in full prior to the consideration of amendments to it.

TUESDAY, Jan. 16.—There was but little routine business requiring the attention of the house Tuesday morning, and at 11:12 it went into committee of the whole to consider the tariff bill. Mr. Burrows again started a warm debate on the right of the chair to recognize Mr. Wilson to offer all his amendments before the other side was allowed to offer any. After a prolonged discussion, the speaker ruled sustaining his declaration rendered Monday.

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 17.—The ways and means committee suffered its first defeat Wednesday when, by a vote of 112 to 12, the committee of the whole house rejected Mr. Wilson's amendment, fixing the date on which free wool should go into effect as August 1, 1894, and adopted the substitute of Mr. Johnson, the Ohio free trader and anti single taxer, making it go into effect immediately upon the passage of the bill. Only one other amendment was acted on during the day, to allow the free entry in bond of machinery as well as the materials used in the construction of ships built for foreign account. The rest of the day was spent in discussing an amendment of Mr. Burrows to substitute the present wool schedule for that proposed by the Wilson bill. At 5:30 o'clock the house took a recess until 8 o'clock.

THE SENATE.

FRIDAY, Jan. 12.—In accordance with the agreement made in secret session, Thursday, the senate Friday, after a little routine business, went into executive session at 12:30 o'clock. It was decided that the day should be spent in cleaning up the executive calendar of all undisputed nominations, a great batch of these having accumulated, including a large number of postmasters.

MONDAY, Jan. 15.—After acting upon a number of unimportant bills on the calendar, the senate, on motion of Mr. Hill, at 2:42 p. m., went into executive session to consider the Hornblower nomination. At 2 o'clock Assistant Private Secretary Pruden brought to the senate the president's message transmitting the Hawaiian correspondence laid before the house Saturday. Although the senate was in executive session, Mr. Pruden was admitted behind the closed doors and delivered the documents.

TUESDAY, Jan. 16.—In the morning business in the senate, a resolution was offered by Mr. Call, to suspend the injunction of secrecy in the case of passing on the nomination of the collector of internal revenue for the state of Florida. But as the resolution itself was construed as executive business, the presiding officer ordered the galleries to be cleared and the doors closed, and the senate, thereupon, went into executive session. At 1 o'clock the doors were reopened and Mr. Hoar addressed the senate on his resolution to refer the president's Hawaiian message to the committee on foreign relations. At the conclusion of Mr. Hoar's remarks, the resolution was allowed to remain on the table as the basis of further speeches and Mr. Gallinger addressed the senate on the tariff.

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 17.—The civil service law and the way it is administered was discussed in the senate Wednesday. Senator Berry took exception to the policy of allowing the fourth-class postmasters to remain in office in order to carry out the spirit of the law. Senator Gallinger, of New Hampshire, criticised the law and said it ought to be repealed. Senator Hoar defended the law and Senator Cockrell said that it was a good law if carried out according to its intent and purpose. The federal elections bill then consumed a couple of hours and Senator Chandler, of New Hamshire, tried to secure an amendment recognizing the right of federal supervision over elections so far as to permit every candidate for congress the privilege of appointing a watcher for each precinct to guard his interests in the registration and the election, but the vote was not reached. Senator Gray, of Delaware, tried to get the republicans to name a day when a final action should be taken on the bill, but said he wanted to hear the other side discuss the question. The senate adjourned at 5:15 o'clock.

FEARFUL CRASH OF DEATH.

Two Trains on the Delaware and Western Railroad Come Together.

Fifteen Passengers Killed Outright and Many Seriously Wounded.

A New York special says: A frightful accident occurred Monday morning on the west side of the Hackensack bridge, on the Morris and Essex branch of the Delaware and Western railroad. The train which leaves Roseville at 8 o'clock crashed into the rear of the Dover express, telescoping two cars. Fifteen passengers in these two cars are known to have been killed and at least twenty-five are terribly injured.

The Dover express passed through Roseville without stopping. The train, which ran into the express, is the regular combination train. It pulled out of Roseville four minutes after the express had disappeared in the fog and din of New York. On approaching the bridge over the Hackensack river the express slowed up, for what reason is not known, but it is thought the engineer could not see the signals because of the dense fog and that he slowed his train to avoid danger.

The combination train following did not halt at the bridge, but came along at its usual rate of speed. The engineer saw the express when less than two hundred feet from it. Although he reversed his engine he could not prevent a collision. A ponderous locomotive crashed into the rear car, throwing it from the track quite a distance. This and the one ahead of it were completely wrecked. Both cars were full of passengers who were crushed to death or terribly mangled. The engineer of the combination train is missing and is said to be among the killed.

JUMPED FOR THEIR LIVES.

The brakeman of the rear car of the Dover express discovered that a wreck was inevitable, and shouted at the top of his voice, "jump for your lives; another train is coming behind. Will be on us in a minute!"

This warning cry was sufficient to put the entire rear car of the express in a commotion. Passengers rushed pell mell for the nearest means of escape. Some jumped through the windows in their haste, while the majority rushed to the doors. In the excitement some fell on the floor, while others tumbled over them. Before all the frightened passengers could make their escape the Orange local crashed into the rear car, telescoping it and driving it into the car ahead, also telescoping that, dealing death on all sides.

The collision is said to have been due to the fog. The trains always slow up when approaching the Hackensack bridge. It is said that the south Orange train was running so close behind the Dover express that there was no time to send back a flagman.

LIST OF THE KILLED.

There is much difficulty in identifying the dead and injured. Of the bodies, the following is a correct list of those who have been identified:

Edward Kinsey, Barnardville, N. J.; William J. Turner, Baskin Ridge, N. J.; J. H. Rimmer, Summit, N. J.; Edward Morrell, Dream de Cameron, N. J.; John Brundhill; Carl Schartz; A. Hoffman; T. J. Reagan, Milburg, N. J.; Dr. John Doty, Baskin Ridge; John Fish, Summit, N. J.; W. L. Guillandeau, traffic manager of the Old Dominion Steamship company.

A large number of the most seriously injured will probably die.

MUST PAY THE LOSS.

An Important Insurance Bill Passes the Mississippi Senate.

A Jackson, Miss., special says: The senate passed a bill Friday, introduced by Senator Critz, providing that in a case of suit upon an insurance policy for damage by fire the insurance company shall not deny that the property was worth the valuation upon which the insurance was calculated. In case the policy contains a three-quarter clause the company shall not deny that the amount of insurance is not three-fourths the valuation. In case of total loss the measure of damage shall be the amount for which the building is insured, with no peduction from depreciation. In case of partial loss the measure of damage shall be the full amount of loss, but not to exceed the amount of the policy. In case a foreign insurance company fails to pay a judgement in favor of a policy holder in thirty days, or to appeal from said judgement, giving a supersedeas bond within that time, said company cannot thereafter do any business or enforce any contract in this state.

MUST BE VACCINATED.

Nashville Makes an Appropriation to Fight Smallpox.

At a called session of the Nashville city council Friday afternoon $5,000 was appropriated to be used in vaccinating citizens generally and in fighting the smallpox in other ways. Another case was reported during the day. This one is a negro woman. All the seven cases are close together and will be taken to the new pest-house as soon as it is convenient. They are now guarded and the other inmates of the houses quarantined.

It is stated that the Etna iron works at Tecumseh, Ala., will be blown in on February 1st. The Langdon ore mines have already resumed work after more than a year of idleness, and the business men of Tecumseh are beginning to become reassured.

Huntsville, Ala., has organized a chamber of commerce, with Mr. R. E. Bettus, a leading merchant, as president, and Hon. William Richardson as vice president. The club starts with practically all of the business men of the city as members, and great good is expected to result.

The Coosa cotton mill, at Piedmont, Ala., which has been idle for several weeks past, resumed work Tuesday. The hum of the machinery and the familiar sound of the mill's big whistle has inspired the business men of the city and things generally look decidedly more cheerful.

A Jackson, Miss., special says: The senate spent the entire day Tuesday discussing Mr. Dean's bill, "an act to establish a penitentiary farm and to appropriate money therefor." Able speeches were made on both sides. No vote was reached, but it is clear that the bill will pass by a good majority.

A Raleigh, N. C., dispatch says: Judge Seymour, of the United States circuit court for this district, has decided that married women are liable for their assessment on their stock in banks which are insolvent. Women who held stock in the wrecked First National bank, of Wilmington, refused to pay an assessment made by the comptroller of the currency.

There was a meeting of a citizens' committee at Raleigh, N. C., Monday, to prepare for a visit from Governor Flower and a number of other prominent New Yorkers, escorted by the Albany Burgesses corps, February 2d. The party will remain there a day and will of course be handsomely entertained. They will be on their way to the New Orleans mardi gras.

The eighty horse-power boiler of Lukens & Beifsnyder's large lumber mills at Sumter, S. C., exploded Monday. John Kennedy was severely injured by flying brick and may die. Two negroes were also injured. The mill was wrecked. Bricks were scattered for 300 yards. Some went through the freight cars standing on the track near by like cannon balls.

A Memphis dispatch of Monday says: The negroes in this section of the south, principally those in Arkansas, have contracted the emigration fever again, and there is an exodus of black men to Africa. Reports from Marianna, Ark., are to the effect that all the negroes in that neighborhood are sacrificing what little property they have with the intention of going to the dark continent.

At Raleigh, N. C., Tuesday, there was a full meeting of the trustees of the Baptist State Female university, W. L. Poteet, of Wake Forest, presided. By a unanimous vote John B. Brewer was elected president of the university. For twenty-five years he has been president of Chowan Baptist Female institute at Murfreesboro. The trustees also decided to open the university in Raleigh September 1st next.

The statement issued by the Nashville, Chatsanooga and St. Louis Railroad Company Monday shows that during December the gross earnings were $77,000, net earning $162,000 and surplus $40,000. The surplus is only $10,000 less than for the same month last year. The surplus for the past six months is $259,000 and only $85,000 less than for the same for six months of the year before.

The October report of the earnings of the railroads in South Carolina issued at Columbia Monday shows a net decrease of $52,000 as compared with the same per cent last year. The comparative decrease for the four months ending October 31, 1893, is $96,000. The Atlanta and Charlotte Air-Line shows a decrease of $20,754; the Georgia, Carolina and Northern an increase of $17,778.

A disastrous fire occurred at Mills, a small village in Harlan county, Ky., Tuesday morning, in which three persons perished and a number of buildings were consumed. The fire broke out in the store and residence of Frederick Houson. Houson and his oldest son made their escape. Mrs. Houson could also have been saved but for the fact that she attempted to awaken her two daughters, aged seventeen and nineteen years, and all three perished in the flames.

Mayor Ochs, of Chattanooga, has issued an official call for a citizens' meeting to take public action regarding the holding of a tri-state fair in that city. The fair association has been organized on a working basis, and has gained recognition from the city council. It is designed to hold annually recurring fairs on a large scale for the display of the arts and products, mineral and agricultural, of the sisterhood of states, Alabama, Georgia and Tennessee, forming the foothill region of the great Blue Ridge mountain system.

The smallpox scare is not abating at Nashville, Tenn., according to dispatches of Sunday. Many of the physicians appointed to vaccinate the people of the various wards were at work Sunday and accomplished much towards getting their part of the work done. The cases in the city were removed to the pesthouse together with seven suspects. There have been no new cases reported, but there are fears that some of those who have been exposed to the disease may break out at any time, as it has been impossible to find out all who have been exposed to the infection.

BUSINESS GETTING BETTER.

What Dun & Co. Have to Say of the Past Week's Trade.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: Business has distinctly improved since the new year came, and the gain is no longer visible, only in speculative markets. It is the only kind of improvement that has in it possibilities of lasting, because it is based upon actual increase in the production by industries. As all rejoice to see it, there is perhaps a little disposition to reckon on the gain greater than it is as yet, but several large establishments have started with part force, hoping to increase, and more smaller works have started than have stopped. Orders from dealers whose stocks approach exhaustion from a prominent cause; another is the widely prevaling impression that action at Washington will be more satisfactory than many have expected and a belief that in any case the situation will not be changed until goods now in the works can be marketed, has weight, in some trades. Whatever the causes, even a moderate gain is most cheering. The output of pig iron January 1st is reckoned by the Iron Age 99,087 tons weekly, which is slightly less than December 1st, though the Pittsburg authority makes it a little larger. In each case it is from 41 to 43 per cent less than a year ago and stocks of unsold pig increased 19,457 tons in December, though they decreased as much in November. Several more furnaces begin production this month and prices show no recovery. Indeed, the Lowmoore works of Virginia, have reduced the price of No. 1 foundry to $13 per ton and finished products are weaker, steel billets and bars again making the lowest price on record, though the line is more hopeful, both here and at the west, with little more business. Copper, tin and lead are weaker. Sales for the week are 2,786,900 pounds at the three chief markets, against 5,805,500 last year, but there is more inquiry from worsted and carpet manufacturers. Some have started their machinery. Overcoatings are 10 to 15 per cent lower than a year ago, but the deliveries of dress goods are larger than of late and the demand is more urgent. In cotton goods there is no definite change.

Shipments of boots and shoes for the week were nearly a quarter smaller than a year ago, but there is a growing confidence that the business must soon increase. Wheat is a shade weaker, though western receipts are 1,750,000 bushels for the week, against 3,938,000 a year ago. Atlantic exports are only 670,000 bushels, against 1,488,000 last year. Stocks in sight decrease but little and government crop estimates get little attention.

Corn is naturally weaker, with very large receipts, though exports are 60 per cent larger than a year ago. Cotton has been lifted by speculation 3-16, though the decrease in receipts is not large, and stocks in sight here and abroad are big enough to meet nearly half a year's consumption. Bank clearings also indicate that no large gain has occurred as yet in the volume of business, being 21 per cent smaller than a year ago.

Failures for the week have been 474 in the United States, against 286 last year, 57 in Canada, against 20 last year. The liabilities of all firms failing for the week ending January 4th were $5,672,544.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Situation as Reported for the Past Week.

The review of the industrial situation in the south for the past week shows that in the organization of new industries the southern states have maintained the average during the week, with an increase in the number of enlargements of manufactories. Inquiries for new machinery continued to be unusually large. An advance in the price of rice encourages the growers, who have large stocks on hand, but the farmers who are holding their cotton for advanced prices are not equally fortunate. The southern farmers, as a class, are in better pecuniary condition at this season than ever before. Less money was borrowed on the security of growing crops, and more supplies were made at home. In consequence, the greater part of the receipts for sales remain for future use instead, as in former years being paid on previous debts, and for corn and meat from the northwest.

The iron and coal producers are postponing any increase in their outputs until the tariff question is settled.

Thirty-two new industries were established or incorporated during the week, together with twelve enlargements of manufactories and twelve important new buildings. The following are among the prominent new industries: The Lott Copper Mine Co., of Mineral City, Va., capital $300,000, by W. F. Lott and others of New York; the Fordyce Nut Lock Co., of Fordyce, Ark., capital $100,000, by John D. Dunn and others; the Brown Automatic Car Coupler Co., of Alexandria, Va., capital $100,000, by P. C. Brown and associates; a canning factory at Jackson, Tenn., to cost $85,000, by G. C. Anderson and others; electric works, capital $20,000, at Jackson, Miss., by W. Watson and associates; the Galveston Cement Pipe Works, of Galveston, Texas, capital $20,000, G. H. Henckman and others, incorporated, and the Southern Glass Co., of Atlanta, Ga., capital $15,000, by James Rogers and others.

A brewery is reported at Austin, Texas; canning factories at Brewton, Ala., Augusta, Ga., Lexington, Ky., and Friendsville, Tenn.; car works at Augusta, Ga.; cement works at Fort Valley, Ga.; flour and grist mills at Yocum, Ark., Summerville, Ga.; Columbia, N. C., Calhoun, Tenn., Beaumont, Texas, and Chatham Hill, Va., and a fiber factory at Daltonia, Fla. A furniture factory is to be built at Pine Bluff, Ark.; an ice factory at Frankfort, Ky.; car coupler works at Tar River, N. C., and paint works at Little Rock, Ark. A gold mine is to be opended at Canton, Ga., a tobacco factory built at Winston, N. C.; refrigerator works and a turpentine distillery at Mobile, Ala., and saw and planing mills at Hilliard, Fla., and Little Rock, Ark.

The enlargements for the week include electric lighting works at Brinkley, Ark.; flour and grist mills at Franklin, Ky., and Tyro Shops, N. C.; coal mine at Brookside, Ala.; oil mills at Little Rock, Ark., and Barnwell, S. C.; phosphate works at Early Bird, Fla.; a furniture factory at Atlanta, Ga.; cordage works at Anniston, Ala., and a cotton mill at Silvis, N. C. Tradesman (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

A Constant Visitor.

A constant and most unwelcome visitor of those troubled with rheumatism is pain—acute, agonizing and spasmodic, or dull and incessant. Check this obstinate complaint, at its outset, with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters and avoid life-long discomfort. Malaria and bilious trouble, constipation, dyspepsia and nervousness are relieved by the Bitters.

"All things come to him who waits," except success, prosperity, wealth and such trifles.

For Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Stomach disorders, use Brown's Iron Bitters—the Best Tonic. It rebuilds the Blood and strengthens the muscles. A splendid medicine for weak and debilitated persons.

The workings of the bald-headed man's brains should be free, for there are no locks to hold him.

A SURGEON'S KNIFE

gives you a feeling of horror and dread. There is no longer necessity for its use in many diseases formerly regarded as incurable without cutting.

The Triumph of Conservative Surgery is well illustrated by the fact that RUPTURE or Breach, is now radically cured without the knife and without pain. Clumsy, chafing trusses can be thrown away! They never cure but often induce inflammation, strangulation and death.

TUMORS Ovarian, Fibroid (Uterine) and many others, are now removed without the perils of cutting operations.

PILE TUMORS, however large, Fistula and other diseases of the lower bowel, are permanently cured without pain or resort to the knife.

STONE in the Bladder, no matter how large, is crushed, pulverized, washed out and perfectly removed without cutting.

STRICTURE of Urinary Passage is also removed without cutting in hundreds of cases. For pamphlet, references and all particulars, send 10 cents (in stamps) to World's Dispensary Medical Association, 663 Main St., Buffalo, N. Y.

Where Lightning Strikes Twice.

During the last seven years five horses have been killed by lightning on a single knoll on the French farm, which lies on the road leading from Flint to Flushing, Mich., and nearly every tree on the same farm is said to bear the marks of the "forked fury." An open lot at East Great Plains, Conn., has been "hit by thunderbolts," as an old resident of that place expresses it, 11 different times since the spring of 1887, and a piece of woods not more than a half a mile away has been literally riddled by the electric shots. At West Heath, Mass. a hill near the village schoolhouse has been struck by lightning so often that the old settlers have tried to keep a record of the singular occurrences.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

Wheeler H. Peckham, of New York, has been nominated for associate justice of the supreme court.

The fact that a large majority of the house voted to retain coal on the free list is a great disappointment to the Alabama and Pennsylvania members, but none of the Alabama members decline to vote for the tariff bill on this account.

Secretary Carlisle's bond circular giving instructions how to bid for bonds, was issued at the treasury department Wednesday. The bonds will be issued in the following denominations: Coupons, $50, $100, $500, $1,000; registered, $50, $100, $500, $1,000 and $10,000.

Governor Tillman, of South Carolina, appeared before the house committee on the judiciary Tuesday in support of the bill introduced by Latimer, of South Carolina, to facilitate the collection of state, county and municipal taxes assessed against the railroads and railroad property in the hands of receivers. No action was taken on the bill.

The house demonstrated by its vote Tuesday that it is strongly inclined towards free trade. It repealed the bounty on sugar and put sugars, both raw and refined, on the free list. These motions were carried by large majorities. It also decided to restore coal on the free list, as reported in the Wilson bill. The amendment to restore coal dutiable was voted down by a large majority.

A large delegation, representing the plug tobacco and cigar manufacturers of Virginia and North Carolina, had a hearing before Chairman Wilson of the ways and means committee Wednesday morning. J. N. Boyd, of Richmond, spoke for the delegation against any increase in the tax on manufactured tobacco. They made a motion to the increase on cigarettes and urged that while the farmers were reducing tobacco might be allowed to sell direct to the consumer, it would be injustice to the manufacturers to allow retail dealers to sell leaf tobacco as the manufacturers pay increase and dealers do not. Mr. Wilson expressed approval of the proposition, but referred the delegation to the sub-committee in charge of the internal revenue taxes.

Secretary Carlisle, Attorney-General Olney and Superintendent Stump had a hearing Monday morning to those interested in the Key West, Fla., troubles. Those present were Mr. Pevy, of Key West, Collector of Port Brown and Mr. Eichenlaub, representing those who favor all Spanish cigar makers to be imported to work in Key West factories. Mr. Rubens appeared on behalf of the labor organizations in opposition to importing laborers from Cuba to work in the factories. He contended that it was a palpable violation of the contract labor law. The other side contended that the material interests of Key West was involved in the matter, as the cigar factories would be closed unless outside labor could be employed. The decision was reserved.

The Income Tax Bill.

The income tax bill as approved by the democratic members of the ways and means committee, was laid before the full committee at Monday morning's meeting. It was read in full, but the committee adjourned before the reading was finished. The bill provides a tax of two per cent. upon all incomes of citizens of the United States either at home or abroad, from any kind of property, rents, interests, dividends or salaries on all amounts over and above $4,000. The bill goes into effect January 1st, 1895. In estimating incomes there shall be included interest on bonds and other securities, except such United States bonds as are exempt from federal taxation. The tax is laid on profits realized within the year from sales of real estate purchased within the year or within two years previous to the year from which the income is estimated; also on sales of live stock and farm products generally. In addition to the $4,000 exemption, all national, state and municipal taxes paid within the year, all losses sustained from fires, shipwrecks or other causes not covered by insurance and compensated for and worthless debts will be deducted. Every person receiving $3,500 shall make a return to the deputy collector of his district of the amount of his income. The tax shall be collected on or before the first day each July, and an additional tax of five per cent shall be laid for the payment after that date, and interest at the rate of one per cent a month upon the amount of the tax. Section 11 relates to corporations. It requires them to make return before the first day of the month following the declaration of a dividend, under oath of the principal officer. Section 13 requires corporations to furnish, beginning with 1895, on or before the first Monday of each year, a statement showing their gross receipts, expenses, including interests, and dividends, and profits within the allowance for same, amount paid on account of interest, annuities and dividends, amounts paid for salaries of employes above and below $4

CHILTON COUNTY

Is the geographical center of Alabama. The Louisville and Nashville, the E. T. V. & G. and the Montgomery, Tuskaloosa and Memphis Railroad pass through the county, and the Coosa river forms a boundary line on the east. The chief industries are farming and saw milling. Population 15,000.

Clanton, the county seat, is on the L. & N. R. R., 36 miles south of Birmingham and 49 north of Montgomery. Several large saw mills are located in the vicinity of the town.

Section 14 levies taxes upon corporation dividends, interest coupons and annuities wherever and whenever payable to all parties whatsoever. A corporation may deduct or retain from all payments made on account of such dividends, etc., a proportionate share of tax so paid. The bill provides for a tax of two cents per pack on playing cards, and on and after the second calendar month after the passage of the act, on all distilled spirits produced in the United States on which the tax is not paid before that day, a tax of one dollar per proof gallon is to be paid by the possessor on or before the removal from the warehouse within eight years from the date of the original entry for deposit in any distillery or bonded warehouse, except in cases of withdrawal without payment of tax.

THE NEWS IN GENERAL.

Condensed from Our Most Important Telegraphic Advices

And Presented in Pointed and Readable Paragraphs.

The Marietta, Ohio, Chair Company resumed operations Monday morning, giving employment to 600 hands. The employees to work ten hours for eight hours' pay.

The Great Imperial Porcelain and Glass Factory at St. Petersburg, Russia, was destroyed by fire Tuesday, together with all the machinery and models. The loss is very great.

A New York dispatch says: Tuesday afternoon Judge Wallace announced his decision in the New England receivership case. He has appointed Thomas C. Platt of New York, and Marsden J. Perry, of Providence, Rhode Island, joint receivers for the New York and New England railroad.

Judge Dunn at Chicago Monday, ordered the release of Harry Hill, the alleged Atlanta forger, and knocked out the charge of Hill being a fugitive from justice. It was not, however, until a telegram from Governor Atgeld was shown the court and an explanation was made by the state's attorney that the judge agreed to let him go.

A special of Sunday from Mexico City, N. M., says: Another robbery of the mails has evidently been made, resulting in the loss of a check for $11,400. It was drawn by Prince Torres and the prince of Durango, payable to Martinez Aurara and Cobian of Lerdow. It was deposited in the mails of January 4th and payment was ordered stopped.

A dispatch of Monday from Vancouver, B. C., says: Another edition of the Siamese twins has arisen in the east. There are now being exhibited at Hong Cow two fine-looking boys about six years old, bound together by a ligament of flesh near the middle of their sides. They are as much alike in appearance and as near equal in size as it is possible to be.

A meeting has been called at Chicago to organize the David B. Hill Democratic Association of Chicago. With the organization of the association will begin, it is said, a mighty movement to secure for Senator Hill the presidential nomination in 1896. It is said by persons interested that already over one thousand Chicago democrats have agreed to assist in the movement. S. D. Keough, a local politician, is greatly interested in the Hill boom.

A Denver, Col., special says: The parade which was held Sunday under a call to labor organizations to protest against adjournment of the legislature without enacting laws for the relief of distress by affording employment numbered fewer than 2,000 men. It was reviewed by Governor Waite and populist members of the legislature. Very little enthusiasm was manifested. One marcher proposed three cheers for Gov. Waite, but there was no response.

A dispatch of Monday from Syracuse, N. Y., says: The sensational suit involving the shape of Miss Katherine Germaine, the actress and singer, has been decided in the fair plaintiff's favor. It will be remembered that Miss Germaine sued H. W. Robseborn, who had discharged her from the "Rainmaker of Syria" company on the ground that she was shaped "like a barrel." By the decision Miss Germaine gets judgment for the $1,925 for which she sued.

A Chicago dispatch of Sunday says: William Manor, one of the contractors who put up the spectatorium, has filed his answer as a defendant in the Columbian Celebration Company litigation. He asserts that Steele Mackay may be required to give proof to his claim as a creditor to the amount of $55,000; that Mackay has never paid a cent for the 19,996 shares he holds, nor has the company ever received any consideration in the shape of a transfer of patents. The various contractors have claims amounting to 316,000, so the answer claims, and that the total indebtedness is largely in excess of the bond issue.

Dr. Talmage Resigns.

A special from Brooklyn, N. Y., says: The Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage with the close of his sermon at the tabernacle Monday night made the announcement that he intended to resign from the pastorate of the church, the resignation to go into effect on the occasion of the 25th anniversary of his taking charge of the tabernacle. No intimation of this had been given by Dr. Talmage and the announcement was a surprise to the congregation.

Sarrah's Narrow Escape.

A dispatch of Sunday from Paris says: It has transpired that Sarah Bernhardt had a narrow escape from death while performing her new piece, "Izeile," on Friday night. Her new Dahomeyan servant, Kerig, who attends her at rehearsals, poured some laudanum into her cup of tea by mistake. Bernhardt, however, noticed the strange taste before she had drunk enough to do her any serious harm.

The Happenings of a Day Chronicled in Brief and Concise Paragraphs

And Containing the Gist of the News From All Parts of the World.

A farm hand employed on the Hamon farm, located some twelve miles from Abiline, Texas, has struck a rich find in the shape of a buried treasure, having unearthed a pot of gold and silver coin amounting to $3,000.

President Cleveland, accompanied by his sister, Miss Rose Elizabeth Cleveland, and Private Secretary Thurber, arrived in Hartford, Conn., Wednesday. The president visited the city to attend the funeral of his favorite nephew, Henry Eurastis Hastings.

The First National bank of Fort Payne, Ala., closed its doors Wednesday and posted a notice saying that on account of a constant withdrawal of deposits and the inability to realize on its notes and securities it had decided to turn its affairs over to the comptroller. It is stated that the bank is solvent and will pay out dollar for dollar.

Governor Werts, of New Jersey, has sent a request to Chief Justice Beasley to convene a special session of the supreme court to decide which of the two bodies now claiming to be senates of New Jersey is the legal body. He has also instructed the attorney general to institute quo warranto proceedings against the republican senate to compel them to show by what authority they are claiming to be a senate.

A Greensboro, N. C., special of Wednesday says: The sale of the Cape Fear and Yadkin Valley road is not off, as had been supposed. The time of payment is only postponed a short while. The agent for the English syndicate was to have shown up with the money in New York on January 14th. Instead, however, a telegram was received saying he was sick, but would be over as soon as possible.

A New York World dispatch of Wednesday from Tegucigalpa, Honduras, says: "This city was attacked Tuesday night by a strong force of revolutionists and Nicaraguan allies. They succeeded in gaining a good deal of ground, but were repelled before morning. Forty Hondurians were killed. Seventy were wounded. Both sides are preparing for another battle. All available men are being sent to the front."

The detective force of the Memphis and Charleston railroad has been making important discoveries. Eight or ten men living near Pocahontas, Tenn., have been plotting to rob a Memphis and Charleston passenger train. They procured dynamite and tools to blow open the safe and settled on a day to make the attempt, but in the meantime officers in citizen's clothes quietly made arrest after arrest until now the gang has been bagged except two or three.

The building on the Boone county, Ia., poor farm, in which the incurably insane were confined, was burned Wednesday night and eight of the nine inmates were burned to death. Only one woman, Mrs. Hibbard, escaped from the burning building and gave the alarm to Steward Holcomb, who was in the main building adjacent. It was then too late to save the insane people, and the main building was saved only by the greatest effort. The origin of the fire is unknown.

A syndicate of English capitalists, headed by the London house of Mountain Walton, have purchased the Fish gold mine, near Black Hawk, Col., for $400,000, after all expenses of mining and has produced from $30,000 to $200,000 a year. The ore in sight on the day of the transfer was estimated at 25,000 tons, valued at $40,000, after all expenses of mining and milling have been paid. The property was purchased three years ago by Haverhill, Mass., men for $60,000.

A San Antonio, Texas, special says: A terrible outrage, resulting in the death of two men and the serious, if not fatal, injury of six others, occurred Wednesday morning just as the Missouri, Kansas and Texas train was leaving San Marcos. A dynamite cartridge, which had been placed in the smoking car stove by some unknown person, exploded, the stove and half the car being scattered to pieces. Ed Binding, traveling agent of the Lone Star brewery of San Antonio, and J. C. Heidelheimer, a prominent merchant of Austin, Texas, were instantly killed. All the passengers in the car, six in number, were injured.

Stanford's Estate Appraised.

A San Francisco dispatch of Friday says: The appraisement of the late Senator Leland Stanford's estate has been filed. The total valuation of his San Francisco property is $17,688,819, as follows: Stocks amounting to $11,752,486; bonds, $3,833,100; home and effects, $131,000; notes and accounts, $996,506, and real estate, $9,898.80. This does not include the Palo Alto, Vina and Gridley properties, which were deeded to the university.

Suit Against Bank Officials.

An important investigation of the affairs of the wrecked bank of New Hanover, at Wilmington, N. C., was begun Tuesday. Suits by all depositors who live in Dublin county have been filed. Among these is the sheriff, who had $6,000 on deposit. The defendants are President Bates, Cashier Williams, and five directors. The purpose of the suits is to fix the responsibility upon them.

"If I may trust your love," she cried,
"And you would have me for a bride.
Ride over yonder plain, and b ing
Your flask full from the Mustang spring;
Fly, fast as ever eagle's wing
O'er the Llano Estacado!"

He heard, and bowed without a word,
His gallant steed, he lightly spurred;
He turned his face, and rode away
Toward the grave of dying day,
And vanished with its parting ray
On the Llano-Estacado.

Night came and found him riding on,
Day came, and still he rode alon;
He spared not spur, he drew not rein
Across that broad, unchanging plain
Till he the Must ng spring might gain
On the Llano Estacado.

A little rest, a lit le draught
Hot from his hand, and quick'y quaffed;
His flask was filled, and then he turned
Once more his spee t the maguay spurned,
Once more the sky above him burned,
On the Llano Estacado.

How hot the quivering landscape glowed!
His brain seemed boiling as he rode;
Was it a dream, a drunken one,
Or was he really riding on?
Was that a skull that gleamed and shone
On the Llano Estacado?

"Brave steed of mine, brave steed!" he cried,
"So often true, so often tri d,
Bear up a little longer yet!"
His mouth was black with blood and sweat,
Heaven! how he longed his lips to wet
On the Llano Estacado!

And still, within his breast, he held
The precious flask so lately filled,
Oh, for a drink! But well he knew
If empty it should meet her view,
Her scorn; but still his longing grew
On the Llano Estacado.

His horse went down. He wandered on,
Giddy, blind, beaten and alone.
While on a cushioned couch you lie,
Oh, think how hard it is to d e
Beneath the cruel, cloudless sky,
On the Llano Estacado.

At last he staggered, stumbled, fell,
His day had come, he knew full well,
And raising to his lips the flask,
Th ough, the object of his task,
Drank to her, more she could not ask,
Ah! the Llano Estacado!

That night in the Presidio
Beneath the torch'ights' wavy glow,
She danced, and never thought of him,
The vic im of a woman's whim,
Lying, with face upturned and grin,
On the Llano Estacado.

THE TIGER'S BREATH.

BY HENRY W. FRENCH.

"Why do you put me up in a tree, Oomerkahn, while the barra saheb stands on the ground? Do you think me a coward?"

Oomerkahn touched his closed hands solemnly to his dark forehead as he replied, "The bravest man, saheb, is not safe to face the tiger, till he has felt the tiger's breath."

I had heard that proverb before, but never supposed that it really meant any more than my own nursery rhyme about salt on the dickey bird's tail. There was no help for it, however, for Oomerkahn was conducting the hunt, so I accepted his proverb as a polite way of assuring me that in reality he did not consider me a coward, and disposed of myself upon the branch where he directed, mentally resolving to be on the alert till I showed the stately Hindu his mistake, and then gave him a piece of my offended mind.

This was my first experience, and I felt as brave as anyone has a right to under such circumstances. I was a novice in India and my host, the "barra saheb," as he was called about his plantation, had taken me into the hills for an initiation.

No sooner had we arrived at his plantation than there came an appeal from the nearest village that he rid them of a man-eating tiger that had settled in their neighborhood. Oomerkahn was the native superintendent of my host's farm and at once received his orders to organize a hunt.

There were several guests, all well mounted, and early in the morning we rode out to the village. The tiger had been located in a jungle two miles away. He had made an extraordinary raid the night before, taking both a man and a calf before he was satisfied, and there was no doubt about finding him ensconced in his lair, sleeping off the effects.

Oomerkahn arranged us, first in a half-circle, 200 yards from the jungle, while he, at the head of a hundred or more natives, entered the dense grove from the opposite side. They were the beaters, and with sticks and torches and tom-toms and strong lungs they began the greatest racket possible. They were arranged in a long line and worked their way toward us, intent on frightening the tiger out of the jungle into our semi-circle, where, according to the position in which he appeared, we were to have our turns at shooting.

It was an hour of intense excitement, each hoping the tiger would show himself in his particular division, but the beaters came out without finding him at all. They were thoroughly exhausted and declared that the tiger was not there.

"But I tell you that he is!" exclaimed our host, impatiently. "No tiger ever started on a pilgimage after such a supper as he had last night."

He dismounted, and leaving his horse with a coolie he deliberately entered the jungle on foot. Seeing this, we all followed his example, in spite of a caution from Oomerkahn.

The barra saheb was an experienced tiger hunter, and in half an hour he pointed to a dark spot under some bushes, saying to a coolie, "Throw a stone in there."

The stone disappeared without striking anything.

"There's a hole there at all events," the barra saheb muttered, himself creeping a little nearer and throwing in a larger stone with all his strength.

Suddenly the air began to tremble. There was no distinct sound, but it was like the first breath of a great organ.

"He is there," said the barra saheb, and it was then that Oomerkahn hastily placed his forces, which resulted in my being safely lodged on the limb, with what I considered a doubtful compliment.

Then the order was given to burn him out, and while Oomerkahn and one or two coolies built a fire as close to the mouth of the cave as possible, the barra saheb took a position beside the trunk of a tree directly in front and perhaps ten feet away.

The jungle was so thick that not a ray of sunlight fell anywhere about us. It was like twilight, and the fire lit it up with a frightful, ghostly glare, while on every side sounded the cries of frightened birds and animals.

As soon as the fire was burning well the coolies crept away, while Oomerkahn caught some of the blazing sticks, threw them directly into the mouth of the cave and sprang back. He was none too quick. I saw the barra saheb's rifle leap to his shoulder. His acute ear had caught a change in those deep, rumbling notes to which we were becoming accustomed.

In his haste the Hindu had stumbled and fallen upon his back. The next instant the very ground seemed to shake as the air had trembled before. There was a terrific crash, like a sharp peal of thunder. A huge form burst from the shubbery half concealing the entrance to the cave and a royal Bengal tiger was literally gliding through the air. He swept like a dark cloud over the darting flames and prostrate form of Oomerkahn. His huge fore paws were extended. His eyes were shut. His great jaws, which had so recently crushed the life out of a human being, were stretched wide open. His long, savage teeth gleamed in the firelight as he passed over it.

He was not leaping toward me. He could not by any possibility reach me, yet the sound of that roar and the sight of that huge, tawny body as it swept the flames filled me with such terror as I never felt before. It caught my breath away. My heart stood still. I clutched my rifle, utterly helpless.

No. I was not to be trusted to face a tiger. There was no doubt of that. In blank astonishment I saw the bara saheb standing calmly by the tree. I saw the flash and heard the report of his rifle as the ferocious beast came abreast of him. I saw him lean behind the tree as he fired, and the next next instant, with a wild yell, the tiger struck the ground not five feet from where the barra saheb had stood. For a moment it lay coiled where it fell, a great mass of fur, then gave one fearful contortion and stretched itself to its full length, shuddered and died.

Even then I trembled from head to foot as I climbed down from the tree, and hardly dared to approach the lifeless mass.

I did my best to be markedly civil to Oomerkahn through the rest of the day, and quietly made up my mind that it would take more than feeling a tiger's breath to make me safe to face a tiger.

It is strange how easy it is to leap from one conclusion to its opposite; but I had an opportunity to discover another mistake a short time afterward.

Mounted on elephants, my friend and I were making a trip into the interior toward my destination. The weather was so hot that we rode early in the morning and just before dark. I was sitting in my howdah, half asleep from the effect of the heat and the peculiar motion of the elephant, when I was suddenly roused by a shrill shriek from the elephant, accompanied by a quick jerk, a sharp ejaculation from the mahoot sitting on his head and a loud cry from my friend, who was riding not far behind. Opening my eyes, the first thing I saw was a tiger in midair, apparently flying directly toward me.

Altogether the situation was thoroughly bewildering, and I confess that from the start my wits forsook me.

Thanks to the sudden lurch of the elephant, which was for that express purpose, the tiger missed his aim, and instead of striking the howdah he hit upon the elephant's haunch, where his gleaming, yellow claws sank into the thick hide. For an instant he hung there without another motion, looking directly up at me.

"He'll begin to climb in a second," my friend shouted, hurrying on behind, while my own elephant moved faster and faster in an effort to dislodge his burden. "Aim for his breast. Shoot steady and sure. Don't miss him for your life."

One who has never faced a tiger will doubtless think it simple cowardice, though I have met many old tiger hunters who have recounted the same experience at the start—yet, had it not been for that warning call from my friend, I positively doubt if I should have once thought of my rifle. As it was, I lifted it mechanically to my shoulder. I did not trouble myself about the aim, for I could not take my eyes from that savage face. I was thoroughly benumbed and bewildered. My hand shook so that more than once my finger slipped from the trigger before I mustered strength enough to pull.

The moment the report sounded the mahoot turned the elephant sharply to one side. That is one of the common regulations of tiger hunting with elephants, when the tiger is lodged, in order to throw him off before he can do any damage in case he is not instantly killed. It was new to me, however, and I was not prepared for it. As the tiger fell to the ground, with a fierce howl, I came within an inch of following him. Fortunately, I landed upon the very edge of the howdah and held on.

The next I knew my friend was shouting again.

"Look out for him!" he cried. "He's only wounded. He'll spring! Load quick and finish him the minute he lands!"

So long as I was not facing the tiger I could move quickly enough. A fresh cartridge was in place in no time; but the elephant had not gone twenty feet when the tiger lunged, tore the earth for an instant, precisely as I have seen a cat attempt to tear a rug, then made two cat-like bounds and another flying leap, landing, in spite of the elephant, within six inches of the mahoot, sitting upon his head.

The native lost his turban and only escaped being trampled upon by dipping down the elephant's trunk. Beyond that, however, the tiger did not pay him the slightest attention. His eyes were fixed on me. He was making for the howdah.

His red and quivering gullet and glistening teeth were already on a level with my feet. I stood there petrified, looking down into that yawning cavern out of which the hoarse breath came in short, harsh gasps.

"Give it to him! Give it to him!" my friend shouted. I heard his words as though they came from a phonograph and had no connection with me. I knew the danger I was in, and that there was no time to lose, but I was absolutely powerless.

The tiger began to crawl toward me.

"Shoot! shoot!" my friend yelled, and I tried to; but though the hammer was already raised and the rifle pointed in the direction of the tiger, I could not even lift it to my shoulder. I could not even pull the trigger where it was.

The tiger took another step. One great paw rested on my boot. I could feel the sharp claws cutting through the leather. I could feel the hot breath on my hands as it came rasping out of that yawning throat. I heard my friend's voice again and realized that he had come up close beside me, but this time I could not distinguish a word he said. I could see nothing, hear nothing, feel nothing, but that tiger.

The muzzle of the gun was in the creature's way. He caught it in his jaws and gave it a savage jerk. The involuntary action of my muscles in clutching the rifle, to prevent its being torn away, pulled the trigger. The tiger recoiled and with one spasm fell dead upon the ground. The bullet had pierced the roof of his mouth and lodged in his brain, thanks only to himself.—(St. Louis Re.

The Berlin Anthropological Seminary has recently completed some curious tabulations on the average size of families in the various countries of Europe. According to these statistics the average number of persons in families in the different European countries is as follows: France, 3.03; Denmark, 3.61; Hungary, 3.70; Switzerland, 3.94; Austria and Belgium, 4.05; England, 4.08; Germany, 4.10; Sweeden and Norway, 4.12; Holland, 4.23; Scotland, 4.46; Italy, 4.54; Spain, 4.65; Russia, 4.68, and Ireland, 5.20.—St. Louis Republic.

THE SHERIFF ENJOINED.

Judge Call Interposed His Judicial Hand and the Fight Was On.

A Jacksonville special says: Judge Rhydon M. Call reached forth his hand Wednesday afternoon and pulled the Duval Athletic Club out of the hole into which it had been cast by the governor of Florida. To the surprise of almost everybody the judge granted the injunction asked for by the club, restraining Sheriff Broward from in any way interfering with the fight between James J. Corbett and Charles Mitchell. The injunction was brief, the judge simply stating that in his opinion glove contests were not violative of that law of Florida which forbids "fighting by previous appointment."

The courtroom was packed almost to suffocation by the sporting gentry and when the import of the order was realized pandemonium broke loose. Cheer after cheer came from the throats of the lovers of pugilism and the officials of the court were utterly unable to quell the disorder. Judge Call grew red in the face and pounded for order, but the sports were too overjoyed to be controlled easily.

To say that the decision caused a sensation in the city is putting it mildly. Nine men out of every ten believed that Judge Call would uphold the governor in his efforts to prevent the mill, and when the decision in favor of the club became generally known the people were dumbfounded.

TRAIN ROBBERS CAUGHT.

A Gang of Them Corralled in the Indian Territory.

A gang of train robbers, was located by officers Wednesday morning at the home of one Rogers, who was the leader, on Big Creek twenty miles from Vinita, I. T., and was pounced upon while asleep in the house. Bob Rogers and Dynamite Jack were captured unhurt. Dynamite's brother, Kiowa, was killed and Willis Brown was so severely wounded that his death is expected. None of the officers were hurt. This is presumed to be the outfit who successfully robbed the Kansas and Arkansas Valley train at Seminole a short time since, and two days before that made an unsuccessful attempt on the Missouri, Kansas and Texas at Kelso.

OFF TO THE PEN.

The Rev. Howard Transported to the Columbus, Ohio, Prison.

A Jackson, Tenn., special says: Rev. G. F. B. Howard, the noted foreign claims swindler, is off for the penitentiary at Columbus, O., in charge of Deputy Marshal E. D. Collier and J. M. Compton. At 1:45 Wednesday afternoon the prisoner was carried to the union depot and embarked upon the Illinois Central. Brockway, one of the young men held for perjury, made a written confession at a late hour Wednesday night, giving the whole snap away.

Phosphate Miners Strike.

The negroes employed in several of the fertilizer works around Charleston, S. C., have gone out on a strike in consequence of a reduction of wages from $1 to 75 cents a day. The mills have no trouble to supply the places of the strikers, as there are thousands of idle negroes around the suburbs from the sea islands. They are called cyclone refugees, but the strikers will not let them work and there has been trouble in the vicinity of the mines.

A Convention Called.

A call has been issued by the populists and republicans combined for a mass meeting to be held in Gadsden, Ala., on January 27th for the purpose of electing delegates to the state convention to be held in Birmingham on the 8th of February, and to elect delegates to a senatorial convention, also to nominate a candidate for representative for Etowah county in the next general assembly.

Walthall Eulogized.

A Jackson, Miss., dispatch of Sunday says: Both the senate and the house passed highly eulogistic resolutions in the matter of the resignation of Senator E. C. Walthall. Each set of resolutions expressed deep regret at his self-imposed retirncy, and both endorsed without qualification his course as a senator from Mississippi, and each eulogized his long and brilliant career.

Much has been said pro and con by Democrats touching Carlisle's position on the matter of issuing bonds. The following article may help us to a better appreciation of the position of the Secretary of the Treasury:

"Mr. Carlisle for one hour and a half had a most interesting and instructive conversation in the room of the House Committee on Judiciary on Thursday. The Secretary of the Treasury went before the committee in response to their resolution to examine into the causes of the bond issue. In response to Col. Oates' question as to why he did not use the silver bullion, and issue silver certificates the Secretary said that first that if he issued the certificates the bullion could not possibly be coined fast enough to redeem them and he would be forced to coin gold, for the mints could not coin but three million of silver a month. Now twenty millions of gold can be coined while two millions of silver is undergoing that process for a twenty dollar gold piece can be turned out of the mint in the same time that one dollar of silver can. Another objection to coining the silver now would be the expense of shipping the bricks to San Francisco.

When the subject of the $356,000,000 of greenbacks now in use was brought up Mr. Carlisle said that as fast as any of them were redeemed they were at once re-issued and were almost immediately brought back again for redemption so that it was like an endless chain—a veritable treadmill—and soon there will be nothing to redeem them with if it kept up much longer. He disposes of the idea which so many people have in thinking that there is a reserve fund of $100,000,000 of gold raked off to itself in one corner of the Treasury not to be touched except for a special purpose. He said that it was a fiction pure and simple—a mere bookkeeping device—and that as long as he was Secretary of the Treasury no public or private debts of the government would ever go to protest if there was any money at all in the treasury to meet them with. When the seance was over one of the members of the committee said as he came out of the room, "Jno. G. Carlisle is the smartest man in the United States," and there was a good many others of that self same opinion."

COLONEL OATES ANNOUNCES.

After thorough consideration and much pressure from Democrats all over Alabama Honorable William C. Oates has consented to make the race for the nomination of Governor of Alabama. We have tried to study the situation from all possible standpoints, and we have reached the conclusion that there is no man in the State who can so ably and successfully lead the Democratic hosts to victory as Col. Oates. The VIEW favors the nomination of this faithful servant and shall lend its influence to the attainment of that end.

Washington, Jan. 27th, 1894.

To the Democrats of Alabama:

"My name has been frequently mentioned in the public prints and otherwise during the last year as a probable candidate for the Governor of Alabama. For sometime I regarded these as complimentary rather than serious, but said when called for a candid answer, that if I was nominated by the State Democratic Convention that I would esteem it as a great honor, accept and make the race successfully, but that I could not enter into a scramble to obtain it.

During the last three months the number of letters I have received from prominent Democrats in nearly all sections of the State urging me to become an active candidate has caused me to consider the question seriously. My duty to my constituents and the country has kept me constantly engaged here in Congress and raised in my mind a question as to whether I ought to continue my efforts here incessantly or yield to the solicitations of my party friends throughout the State. This with my repugnance to entering into an active campaign to obtain a nomination to the high and dignified office of Governor has caused me to delay my decision much longer than I otherwise would.

It has not been with me a question of ambition so much as one of duty. If there ever was a time in the history of our states when harmony should prevail in the ranks of Democracy, it is now. I hoped that by delay public opinion might be so concentrated upon some one else as to secure great unanimity and dispense with any contest for the nomination, and in such an event I should unhesitatingly have withdrawn my name from consideration.

Within the last few weeks the urgency of my friends has practically become a demand, which, if disregarded, would place me in an unpleasant attitude. I have consulted with many of my constituents from every county in the district I represent, and they with great unanimity, urge me to become an active candidate. I love my party and its sound principles, as well as my friends, and always stand ready to make any personal sacrifice for the triumph of the one or the gratification of the other, and when the two unite they are to me resistless.

I, therefore, announce my candidacy.

The question as to who shall receive the nomination is of secondary importance to the harmony and success of the party. If I am selected by the convention as its standard-bearer, I will carry the flag of the party to glorious victory. I leave my campaign largely in the hands of my friends as I cannot at present absent myself from the post of duty here, but I will canvass the State in the interest of Democracy, harmony and success as soon as I can.

I esteem very highly the power of the press and am glad to have its approval, although I have opinions of my own not always strictly in accord with the journals of my party. I beg of them not to criticise harshly any member of the party because of a difference in policy, not inconsistent with principle, and to indulge in no bitterness towards each other because of rivalry or a difference of opinion upon Democratic questions. Such things do not help us; but cause rejoicing in the camp of the enemy. Criticise in a spirit of kindness and toleration and the usefulness and influence of each journal will thereby be enlarged.

My principles are well known to the people. I am a Democrat, and stand squarely upon the Chicago platform. My appeal is to the sincere Democrats of the State. I seek no terms from, and make no concession to the enemies of organized Democracy.

There should be no issue of administration and anti-administration among Democrats. While not quite in accord with its policies, I neither assail nor condemn the administration at Washington, but earnestly defend it. Although I do not approve of every act and policy of Mr. Cleveland, yet he is our Democratic President, and the only President since the war who has shown himself to be a friend to the Southern people.

If nominated, I will be elected and will do everything in my power to improve the condition of the State financially, to develop its great resources, aid in the making of just laws and their impartial enforcement and for the prosperity of the people of all classes and conditions.

Wm. C. Oates.

The Call Issued by the Democratic Executive Committee.

To The Democrats of Alabama.

A convention of the Democratic and Conservative Party of Alabama is hereby called to meet on the 22nd day of May, 1894, at the State Capitol, in the city of Montgomery, for the purpose of nominating State officers, to be voted for at the next general election in this State.

Under the resolution adopted by the last State Convention, fixing the representation from each county upon a population basis, the respective counties of the State are entitled to the following number of delegates in said State Convention:

Each County Executive committee shall decide for its own county whether the delegates to the State Convention shall be selected by primary election, and beat meetings which elect delegates to the county conventions shall be held on Saturday the 12th day of May, and all primary elections which are held to elect delegates to the State Convention and all county conventions or mass meetings that are held for the same purpose shall be held on Wednesday, May 16th.

No delegates to the Congressional Convention shall be elected at the same time that delegates are elected to the State Convention. Delegates to the Congressional Convention shall be elected in same manner as the respective county executive committee's shall determine on Saturday, 25th day of August, 1894, and the Congressional Conventions of the several districts in the State shall be held at such places as the respective Congressional Executive Committee may determine, on Tuesday, Sept. 4th, 1894.

All qualified voters shall be entitled, and are requested to participate in the primaries, beat meetings, conventions and mass meetings of the party, who come under any one of the classifications to-wit:

First—All those who voted in the last National election for Cleveland and Stevenson.

Second—Those Democrats who would have voted for Cleveland and Stevenson in the last National election, but were prevented from so voting because they were not able to go to the polls.

Third—All those who will be entitled to vote in the next election who are Democrats, who were not qualified voters in the last election, and who will support the ticket nominated by the next Democratic State Convention.

A. G. SMITH,
Chairman.

Col. J. B. Stanley, editor of the Greenville Advocate has had a street in Evergreen named for him. He is fortunate. Suppose it had been a baby that was named for him? He would no doubt be compelled to furnish about a dollar and fifty cents worth of The Advocate's gratis; or might be forced into some other useless expense.

Col. Denson is succeeding admirably in putting himself on record as an enemy to the Democratic administration, and in giving infinite pleasure to the Republicans. The subjoined article from the Kansas City Star is one of the best things we have read lately:

"As for Mr. Denson, whose speech was widely cheered by the Republicans, it is cheerful to note that there were just 98 votes cast for the Republican in this district against 20,000 for himself and his Populist competitor. If he had made this speech in 1892 he would have had the 98 votes and the other fellows would have had the rest. It is not recalled that any gentleman from Alabama arose in the Chicago convention or at any meeting of the Platform Committee and declaimed for "incidental protection," and there is nothing to show that in the campaign that followed, the the State of Alabama, which gave Mr. Harrison less than 10,000 votes out of a total of 235,000, was wildly excited over the inspiring principles which Mr. Denson is now evolving with tremendous labor."

Rev. C. W. O'Hara, Columbiana: I cannot find language with which to express the inestimable value of this wonderful instrument—the Electropoise.

Rev. S. J. Knowles, Headland, "The value of the Electropoise is inestimable."

Rev. Jas. A. Heard, Florence: "I am a walking advertisement of the Electropoise."

Rev. L. A. Darsey, Lafayette: Every family ought to have an Electropoise."

Rev. J. T. Beard, Birmingham: "I take pleasure in saying the Electropoise gave me permanent relief from neuralgia of the stomach and bowels."

Rev. W. C. Hearn, Talladega: "My wife and I used the Electropoise with good results."

Rev. W. M. Wharton, formerly of Montgomery: "I have used the Electropoise with great benefit to my health."

If you will send your name or that of some invalid friend, we will send you copies of letters from the above parties and from hundreds of others; people you know from every section of this and other States, testifying to the curative powers of the Electropoise.

Reports from Committees.

(Committee on Investigations.)—We beg to report that we have thoroughly investigated (Dr. Ivey's) "QUICK RELIEF REMEDIES, and find that they are pleasant to use and that (Ivey's) "Quick Relief for Catarrh" will relieve the worst cold in the head in five minutes!—[Long and loud applause.]

Rap! Rap!! Rap!!! went the gavel and (so soon) as quiet can be restored, the Speaker announced that (Ivey's) "Quick Relief" "Remedies" were sold by all leading Druggists, and could therefore be found at 50 cents per bottle at Dr. B. P. Ivey's,
Montgomery, Ala.

Important Notice.

We believe in Printers' Ink and when we have anything special to offer, we let the people know about it through the newspapers, which we consider the best medium. But there is a vast difference in newspapers and we desire to use those mediums from which we get the best results. In order to decide for our own benefit we make the following proposition:

Miss Lulu Rasberry, of Lily, is attending the University School here. She is boarding at the home of Rev. J. G. Lowrey. Clanton is always glad to welcome pupils to the school, and especially girls.

Married on the 25th inst., at Mountain Creek, Ala., Mr. W. F. Culp, of this place to Miss Maggie Hawes. The young couple expect to make their home in Clanton. Mr. Culp is an enterprising young merchant of the firm of Culp & Co., and the good wishes of friends follow him and bride.

Maj. J. D. Bivings passed away on the 26th inst., at his home in Clanton. He was about 80 years of age and had been in feeble health for sometime; though his death was a surprise to his friends, many of them not aware of his illness. His sons, Messrs. Charlie and Lee Bivings, were present with him in his last hours of lingering and every effort to alleviate pain or restore him to life were tended by his wife and those present; but his time had come and as a faithful servant told to "enter into the joys of his Lord," so he entered that rest that shall only be broken on the resurrection morn. His remains were carried to Birmingham Saturday morning for enterment. The most profound sympathy is tended to the bereaved ones by the VIEW and sympathetic friends.

Notwithstanding the fact that the mercury was dallying with the toes of the thermometer, about 40 of our citizens, young and old engaged in a very professional game of foot-ball on the lot adjoining the VIEW building last Saturday evening. All who missed this sight would do well to regret, as the like of it may never be seen. There was by actual count, forty engaged in the game. Their ages ranged from ten to fifty, and their weights from seventy to two hundred and fifty pounds avoirdupois. The winning ways and lovely attitudes assumed by some of the more corpulent individuals, as they threw their pedal extremities madly but vainly in the air in hopes of stopping something, were altogether touching and would not be chronicled at all, but for the fact that the newspaper man owes certain duties to his country. The game lasted about two hours, and it is yet undetermined which side beat. If the good people will have one or two more such games, the owner of the ball ground can plant potatoes without a plow.

Send your job work to us. We duplicate city prices.

Mr. G. W. Fay, of Mulberry, was in town Tuesday.

Mr. R. C. Duke left for Bainbridge, Ga., Monday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Allen were on a visit to relatives here this week.

Mr. Jonathan Calaway, of Coopers, was in Clanton Tuesday.

Mrs. W. A. Kemp returned from a trip to Montevallo last week.

Mr. Tom Brown left Tuesday morning for Arkansas where he expects to try his luck in the future.

The partnership heretofore existing between W. F. Culp and W. A. Kemp has this day by mutual consent dissolved. Jan. 31, 1894.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Foshee and Durword Foshee left this week for Arkansas to be present at the marriage of Miss Jessie Jones.

Since becoming a citizen of Clanton we have had frequent opportunity to meet and converse with Maj. Jas. D. Bivings. We found in him a high toned and intelligent gentleman; a citizen anxious for the upbuilding of his community and his country. He will be missed and his death mourned.

Died, at his home one mile West of Clanton, last Sunday morning, Mr. Joe Gay. Mr. Gay had been sick for some time. He was 33 years of age, and had been a member of the Baptist Church for 13 years, and was a most devout member and Christain, with the respect and confidence of all. His remains were interred in the Clanton cemetery.

All parties who are indebted to the firm of W. F. Culp and Co., will please come and settle at once. The business will be continued as heretofore by W. F. Culp. W. F. Culp,
W. A. Kemp.

Reverie.

We went to see our sweetheart
One cold and wintry eve;
Enjoyed the sweetest pleasure
That mortal can conceive.

The time on angels wings went;
We two were all alone:
Our extasy was broken
By the clock a striking one.

We hurried from this heaven
And heard the crowing cock,
We looked; our watch said 'leven;
Who monkeyed with that clock?

A Token of Respect.

Again has death invaded another household and left the fireside circle broken, another chair vacant; yes, another father in Israel has gone home to Heaven. On the 14th of Jan. 1894, the glorified spirit of our highly valued and esteemed friend, Mr. Middleton Aldridge, winged its flight to celestial realms—there to live forever in the sunlight of Heaven. He is now free from all pain and sorrow, and the goal has so long been striving for is at last gained. Heaven is made richer by his admittance. He was kind affable to all, and the needy never left his door unaided. A good neighbor, affectionate husband and grandfather has closed his pilgrimage. His sickness and sufferings were intense, yet amid the most violent paroxysm of pain he bore all patiently and submissively. As a strict member of the Baptist Church he adorned his profession as becometh a Christian. The Bible was his main counselor, and in its precepts he delighted. He is sadly missed, but we know where to find him, though he was laid to rest in the Clanton cemetery to sleep, his upright life and Godly walk speak for him. To the bereaved widow, son and devoted grandchildren and to the large circles of relations, we extend our heartfelt and warmest sympathies.

The Place for Him.

When the crusty cook opened the back door and found a tramp standing there with his hand stuck out, she was not particularly pleased.

"I would like to have a bite to eat, mum," he said.

"You can't get it," she snapped.

"I haven't had nothin' to eat for five days, mum."

"Oh, haven't you?" she said, scornfully. "Well, this ain't the place for you. You belong in a dime museum," and she slammed the door.—Detroit Free Press.

The Age of Reform.

Old fallacies academically refuted, old errors in government policy corrected, old fogyisms arrested, and above all, old complaints thoroughly remedied by Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. Chronic constipation, malarial trouble, constipation, and dyspepsia, always knock under to the Bitters. Sedo rheumatic, kidney and nervous ailments. It is a great reformer.

Where ignorance is bliss 'Tis folly to be wise.

"Sweet Sixteen."

Hood's calendar, always a welcome guest, has made its appearance for 1894, and is more beautiful than ever. The head is that of a lovely girl just "sweet sixteen," in delicate and natural colors. Besides being a thing of beauty, it is especially valuable for the general information presented.

The figures are plainly printed in pleasing and harmonious colors, and the effect is most satisfactory. The calendars can be obtained of any druggist, or by sending six cents in stamps for one and ten cents for two to C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass. Over eight millions of them were printed to supply the immense demand.

These calendars are issued by the proprietors of Hood's Sarsaparilla, the well-known medicine which has gained such renown by its wonderful cures in cases where the blood was poisoned or impure. The great laboratory in which it is made has a capacity for fifty thousand bottles a day, and is the largest building in the world devoted to the manufacture of a medicine. The sales of Hood's Sarsaparilla in all sections of the country are enormous. The proprietors have never claimed that it would cure every ailment, but they show by thousands of testimonials that Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies and vitalizes the blood, builds up the system and cures those diseases caused by impure blood and debility, such as scrofula, salt rheum, catarrh, rheumatism, etc. It is a great preventive of the grip, and it restores the wasted vital forces after a siege of that dreaded malady, fortifying the system against future attacks.

The fact that great care is exercised in the preparation of this medicine, and that nothing has ever been claimed for it except as warranted by previous cures, has much to do with the confidence felt by the public in its curative powers. The motto of the proprietors is, "It is not what we say, but what Hood's Sarsaparilla does, that tells the story," and it is what Hood's Sarsaparilla has done, as shown by the published statements of persons whom it has cured, that has placed it at the head in the field of medicine in the present day.

Think right and you will be more likely to act well.

Ladies needing a tonic, or children who want building up, should take Brown's Iron Bitters. It is pleasant to take, cures Malaria, Indigestion, Biliousness and Liver Complaints, makes the Blood rich and pure.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

With local applications, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing catarrh. Send for testimonials free.

THE FIFTY-THIRD CONGRESS

The House and Senate Called to Order in Regular Session.

Daily Summary of Routine Business in the Two Houses.

THE HOUSE.

FRIDAY, Jan. 19.—There was a much better attendance of members when the house met Friday morning than for some time past. At 11:30 the house went into a committee of the whole to consider the Wilson tariff bill. At the request of Mr. Wilson, chairman of the committee on ways and means, unanimous consent was given to consider the sugar schedule of the Wilson bill for three hours immediately after the house goes into a committee of the whole Monday, and that a vote shall then be taken. The amendment proposed by Mr. Johnson, of Ohio, putting steel rails on the free list, was lost by a vote of 71 in the affirmative to 100 in the negative. After the defeat of the Johnson steel rail amendment, Representative Henderson, of Iowa, offered an amendment to substitute the present law for the agricultural schedule, and a long debate on agriculture ensued, in which Messrs. Hopkins, of Illinois, Hull, of Iowa, Springer, of Illinois, and others, took part.

SATURDAY, Jan. 20.—At 11.17 the house resolved itself into a committee of the whole to consider the Wilson bill, after an agreement had been reached, limiting the debate on the pending amendment, substituting the present law for the agricultural section of the Wilson bill. An agreement was reached whereby three hours were to be given to the consideration of the coal schedule, and three to the iron schedule. The amendment proposed by Mr. Henderson Friday, substituting the existing law for the agricultural schedule of the Wilson bill, was defeated by a vote of 68 in the affirmative, and 116 in the negative. Mr. McRae and Mr. Vickery offered amendments to the sugar schedule. Both amendments are similar in the provision and strike out the clause in the Wilson bill providing for the gradual reduction of the bounty on sugar. Instead, the bounty is to be wiped out at one sweep and sugar be absolutely free. Mr. Pruden, one of the President's secretaries, appeared in the House at 12 with the president's veto of the New York and New Jersey bridge bill.

MONDAY, Jan. 22.—The third and last week of the tariff debate in the house opened with a slim attendance of members and visitors. After the reading of Saturday's journal and some executive communications, the house went into committee of the whole to consider the tariff bill.

TUESDAY, Jan. 23.—After the transaction of some routine business in the house Tuesday morning, the house went into committee of the whole to consider the tariff bill. Pending this, however, some time was spent in determining whether the sugar schedule should be completed or whether the coal and iron ore schedule should be taken up in pursuance of the agreement reached Saturday. The speaker finally ruled that sugar should take precedence and the house went into committee of the whole. Raw and refined sugar was put on the free list, by a vote of 161 to 38. This, of course, was bitterly opposed by Louisianians, but they received little sympathy. The embarrassment they caused the democrats by refusing to vote and preventing a quorum in the early days of the session has not been forgotten. The coal schedule was then taken up. The Wilson bill puts coal on the free list. Mr. Oates offered an amendment puting a tax of 40 per cent on coal. After some discussion, the house decided to retain coal on the free list.

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 24.—The house Wednesday devoted a majority of its time to the iron schedule of the tariff bill. Though the Alabama men and others made strong speeches advocating a duty on iron ore, the house sustained the committee in its report putting ore on the free list by a large majority. The cotton mill machinery schedule was then taken up and debated the remainder of the evening. An amendment is pending to put cotton mill machinery on the free list.

THE SENATE.

MONDAY, Jan. 22—There was nothing of public importance in the morning business of the senate Monday beyond the presentation of several remonstrances against the Wilson tariff bill. Many industries were represented in those remonstrances, but particularly the clothing and woolen goods industry. After considerable discussion, Mr. Call's civil service resolution was agreed to, with an amendment (submitted for that offered by Mr. Berry) requiring the date of the appointment to be given which would indicate (as Mr. Cockrell suggested) the politics of the persons appointed. The resolution offered by Mr. Peffer (populist), of Kansas, last Thursday, declaring that the secretary of the treasury has no authority to issue or sell bonds as proposed in his notice, was taken up, and Mr. Peffer proceeded to address the senate upon it.

TUESDAY Jan. 23.—In the senate Tuesday, a resolution was reported from the committee on foreign relations and went over without action, declaring it unwise and and inexpedient at this time to consider any project of annexation of the Hawaiian territory to the United States; that the provisional government there, having been duly recognized, should be allowed to pursue its own line of policy, and that any intervention in the political affairs of the islands will be regarded as an act unfriendly to the United States. Mr. Stewart, of Nevada, addressed the senate in support of Peffer's resolution offered on the 16th instant, declaring that the secretary of the treasury has no lawful authority for issuing and selling bonds, as proposed in his recent resolution. After two hours' labor, the house voted that Warner's proposition, looking to free refined sugar, adopted Monday afternoon, shall be treated as a substitute and not as an amendment. This released the house from the tangle in which it adjourned. The paragraph, as amended, was then adopted by a rising vote of year 161, nays 38. A demand for tellers received but 29 votes, not enough to secure them. The object of this vote is to put all sugars, raw and refined, on the free list. The bounty was abolished by the vote Monday afternoon. The sugar schedule being disposed of, the coal schedule was taken up and a number of amendments offered to it by democrats from coal producing states.

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 24.—In the senate, Wednesday, the bill repealing the federal election laws came up as the unfinished business. Various amendments were submitted to the Hawaiian resolution and, by agreement, it went over until Thursday. Senator Lodge then took the floor in opposition to the bill repealing the federal election laws. At 3:05 o'clock the senator concluded his remarks and, on motion of Senator Allison, the senate went into executive session. At 3:15 o'clock the doors were reopened and Senator Coke, of Texas, called up the bill authorizing the Gulf, Beaumont and Kansas City Railroad company to bridge the Neches and Sabine rivers in Louisiana and Texas. This measure was made the occasion of a detailed discussion by Senator Vest, of the recent veto by President Cleveland of the New York and New Jersey bridge bill, after which the bill was passed, several minor amendments being first adopted. The bill extending the time for the construction of the bridge across the Calumet river, Illinois; the senate bill authorizing the issue of a patent to the Presbyterian board of home missions for certain lands on the Omaha Indian reservation for school purposes, and the house bill to authorize the secretary of the interior to reserve from sale certain land in the abandoned fort Cummings military reservation were passed. At 4 o'clock p. m. the senate adjourned.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Situation During the Past Week.

The review of the industrial situation in the South for the past week reports that the newly established industries in the Southern States continue to steadily increase in number and importance. The report for the past week aggregates a larger number than has been noted since May, 1893, and they include every branch of industry. Enlargements of existing manufactories have increased in equal proportion, and enquiries for new machinery continue active. The Tradesman's reports, received from all parts of the South, concur in the statement that the settlement of the tariff question will be at once followed by an extensive revival of industrial interests.

Fifty new industries were established or incorporated during the week, together with twelve enlargements of manufactories and eleven important new buildings. Among the important new industries of the week are the following: A cotton mill with $200,000 capital, at Augusta, Ga.; machinery works with $100,000 capital, at Adam's, Ga., by the Blount Stave and Machinery Co.; the New Orleans Yarn and Hosiery Mill, limited, capital $100,000, by B. Meyer and others; the West Virginia Bridge Co., of Point Pleasant, W. Va., capital $50,000, W. E. Heslop and associates, incorporators; the American Steam Excavating Co., of Marshall, Texas, capital $50,000, by E. J. Fry and others, and a foundry at New Orleans, La., with $50,000 capital, by the Ivens Manufacturing Co., limited. A lumber company, capital $35,000, has been organized at Wheeling, W. Va., by J. W. Belz & Sons Co.; and one with $300,000 capital, at Smackover, Ark., by the Globe Lumber Co. A furniture factory, capital $25,000, is reported at Pine Bluff, Ark.; a lumber company with $20,000 capital, at Tocoa, Ga., by the Simpson Lumber Co.; an ice factory, capital $20,000, at Dallas, Texas, by the Crystal Ice Co.; a $10,000 lumber company at Westminister, S. C., by the Westminister Lumber Co., and brick and tile works, capital $8,000, at Jackson, Miss., by the Builders' Supply Co.

Brick works are reported at Glenwood, Ga.; cotton mills at Opelika, Ala., and Spartanburg, S. C., and woolen mills at Staunton, Va.; flour and grist mills at Piedmont and Pollard, Ala., Mountain Home and Roseville, Ark., and an ice factory at Tavares, Fla. Electrical plants are to be built at Mammoth Springs and Van Buren, Ark.; machine shops at Glenwood, Ga., and Covington, Ky., and oil mills and refineries at Camden, Ark., and New Braunfels, Texas. Paint works are to be established at Little Rock, Ark., a pottery at Augusta, Ga.; refrigerator works at Gainesville, Fla., tanneries at King's Mountain, N. C., and El Paso, Texas, a shoe factory at Statesville, N. C., and a tobacco factory at Raleigh, N. C.

The woodworking plants for the week include a box fac ory at Tavares, Fla.; saw and planing mills at Emory and Georgiana, Ala.; Camden and Mammoth Springs, Ark.; Cave and Corinth, Ga.; Louisville, Ky.; Trenton, Miss., and Corsicana, Texas; shingle millsat Little Rock and Sherrill, Ark.; spoke and handle works at Pollard, Ala., and Madison, N. C., and a wagon factory at Center Point, Ark.

Water works are to be built at Madison, Fla., and Crawford, Texas. The enlargements for the week include a cotton mill at Athens, Ga.; fertilizer works at Louisville, Ky.; an ice factory at Columbia, S. C.; iron works at Opelika, Ala., and Augusta, Ga.; oil mills at New Braunfels, Texas, and woodworking plants at Palatka, Fla., Waynesville, N. C., Lexington, Ky., and Poplar Spring, Tenn.—Tradesman (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

WAITING FOR A FULL BENCH.

Cases on the Supreme Court Docket Being Delayed.

A Washington special of Monday says: While the personal feature of the vacancy in the supreme court interests the politicians most, it does not approach in importance the material interests affected by delay. Questions of constitutional law, upon the decision of which hang great property interests are being held in abeyance until a full bench can pass upon them and naturally the litigants are impatient under the enforced waiting, which has been protracted beyond their expectations by the long debate of the senate committee over the Hornblower nomination and its final rejection, which necessitates the selection of a new candidate. There are now twenty-two cases on the dockets of the supreme courts, some of which have been sidetracked since the beginning of the October term, waiting the advent to the bench of a successor to Justice Blatchford.

Howard Refused Bond.

Tuesday afternoon Judge E. L. Hammond, of the federal district court at Jackson, Tenn., finally concluded the famous case of the United States vs. G. F. B. Howard by refusing to fix bail bond pending the decision of the supreme court. In deciding the case he said that after full argument made by Mr. Canada upon this application, he did not see any probable grounds to believe that the supreme court would reverse the conviction and grant a new trial, and he would therefore refuse the writ.

Lillian Wells Again.

For the third time in her life, the erstwhile "Airy Fairy" Lillian Russell, before whose shrine have worshiped the "Johnnies" of Gotham for the last decade, stood at the altar of Hymen at New York, Sunday, and promised to "love, honor and obey" her future "lord and master" in the person of John C. Hatterton, whose nom de theater is Signor Perugini.

SOUTHERN NEWS ITEMS.

The Drift of Her Progress and Prosperity Briefly Noted.

Happenings of Interest Portrayed in Fifty Paragraphs.

A special of Sunday from Wheeling, W. Va., says: There never was more distress in the Hocking valley and other Ohio coal mining districts than at present. The men are idle and some violence is reported.

A Birmingham special of Saturday says: Jim Morrison, the convict who, with six others, dynamited the guard and escaped from Pratt mines Thursday night, and who killed deputy sheriff Dexter in the fight between his posse and escapes Friday, is still at large.

A special of Monday from Gadsden, Ala., says: Captain Sorebo, the famous diver and swimmer, will attempt to swim from Rome to Montgomery, Ala., a distance of 300 miles, down the Coosa river in fifteen days on a wager of $1,000. He will be clothed in a rubber suit.

The Pike county, Ala., Jeffersonians claiming to be the regular democrats of that county, held their convention at Gadsden Monday, and nominated fifteen delegates to vote for Kolb. They also nominated candidates for representative and county superintendent of education.

Under the decree of the United States court the properties of the Sheffield, Ala., Land, Coal and Iron Company, embracing the Sheffield and Birmingham railroad, were sold at Huntsville Monday and bid in by J. H. Noble, trustee, for $95,000. The properties are valued at $1,000,000.

A Savannah special says: Receiver Comer states that the earnings of the Southwestern road for December were $53,000, which makes the total net earnings for the six months ending December 31st, over $242,000. This will be shown in his semi-annual report to the court which will be made in a few days.

A frightful accident occurred Monday afternoon at Kidd & Shackelford's sawmill, twenty miles west of Newnan, Ga. The engine was running under a full head of steam when the boiler exploded, instantly killing William Kidd and Oscar Herring. Kidd's head was blown off and both men were frightfully mangled.

In the Mississippi senate Monday several appropriation bills and two bills providing for a soldiers' home were introduced. A letter was read from Messrs. E. and S. Virden, of Jackson, offering to donate eighty acres of land beautifully located just north of Millsap's college and east of the Illinois Central railroad for a soldiers' home.

Fire at an early hour Sunday morning completely gutted the telephone exchange in Louisville, Ky. The loss on the building is not great. The total loss is estimated at $100,000, about half covered by insurance. General Manager Gifford says it will be three months before the loss will be repaired. The switchboard contained 3,000 wires and was completely destroyed.

A Savannah special says: Colonel W. W. Gordon commander of the Fifth Georgia cavalry, received sealed orders from Governor Northern Tuesday ordering out such troops of the regiment as were available, to assemble at their armories to await orders with regard to protecting the Georgia frontier from the pugilists. The orders came in a sealed envelope without a postmark.

Recorder James T. Bell, Monday, furnished his annual report of Nashville's financial operations for last year. For the first time in thirteen years the value of taxable property has decreased in the city. The actual cash receipts from all sources were $1,045,632 and the expenditures $1,267,508. This shows a deficit, but the cash balance on hand last January is absorbed instead of leaving the city in debt.

Captain J. E. Gilmer, one of the wealthiest men in Winston, N. C., assigned Monday, as also Messrs. Edward Lilly and John D. Williams, among the wealthiest of Fayetteville's citizens. All the above named gentlemen are stockholders in the North State Improvement Company, which was placed in a receiver's hands. It is rumored that several other prominent stockholders will succumb.

A Knoxville, Tenn., special says: The bitter fight over Chancellor Henry Gibson's eligibility to membership in the Grand Army was settled Tuesday by a decision from Commander-in-Chief Adams, which has caused a considerable sensation. He declares that Gibson was only a clerk in the commissary department and not on General Hooker's staff, as claimed by him when admitted to the post at Knoxville, and says that Gibson is not eligible.

The Williamson Iron and Furnace Company, at Birmingham, Ala., capital $150,000, went into the hands of a receiver Tuesday. The company operates a furnace and a large foundry. The Birmingham Iron Works, with a capital of the same amount, also assigned. Both concerns were heavily bonded, and the low price of iron for the past eighteen months has prevented them from making enough to pay interest on their bonds. Both properties will continue to be operated without interruption.

The United Electric Railway Company, at Nashville, went into the hands of a receiver a few days ago, and now General W. H. Jackson is engineering a plan to reorganize it. The plan is to take for cash or new bonds the underlying bonds, amounting to $1,500,000, and to pay for the other bonds, amounting to nearly a million more, in stock. The plan also promises to expend $140,000 in enlarging and improving the plant and putting the property on a paying basis.

A Birmingham special of Monday says: A movement deep down started in Alabama looking to the settlement of the thousands of acres of land in Alabama which is subject to government entry. Connected with this is another movement on the part of the railroads of the state to take steps to dispose of their enormous holdings of tillable land which lie adjacent to their tracks and which are, as a rule, good property. The idea is to offer these lands at such price as will stop immigration.

The North State Improvement Company, of Greensboro, N. C., has been placed in the hands of a receiver by order of Judge Graves. Dr. Lash, president of the Cape Fear and Yadkin Valley Railroad Company, which is owned by the North State Improvement Company, states the action was precipitated by suits brought against the company in other parts of the state. The debt due by the North State Improvement Company was made by the construction of the Cape Fear and Yadkin Valley railroad. The liabilities of the company the doctor places at $885,000, and the assets at fully $1,500,000.

TRADE IMPROVES.

Dun & Co.'s Report of Business for the Past Week.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review says: The event of the week is the offer of $50,000,000 of United States 5 per cent. ten-year bonds. The decision of the secretary gives much satisfaction to all who care for a sound currency, because the necessities of the treasury were dangerously strengthening those who urged the issue of $50,000,000 more silver certificates against the silver seigniorage to be coined. The gold not represented by certificates has fallen below $70,000,000; the revenue continues to fall behind that of last year about $5,000,000 per month, and action in congress on various financial measures is liable at any time to excite doubts as to whether gold payments can be maintained. Hence the replenishment of the gold reserve was necessary to a restoration of confidence and a revival of business. The immediate effects were not great, though it is hoped improvement in trade and industries may be hastened. While industrial improvement continues, the gain is slow and the increase in the purchasing power of the people by the enlargement of the force at work is, in a measure, counterbalanced by the loss in the purchasing power of the people through a reduction in wages paid. During the past week dispatches have told of reductions averaging 13 per cent in fifteen iron and steel works, and averaging 15½ per cent in fifteen textile works, five employing thousands of hands, each having reduced wages 20 per cent. Meanwhile twenty-five textile and eleven iron and steel concerns resumed, wholly or in part, against seventeen textile and four iron concerns stopping or reducing force.

The volume of business done has increased in the leading branches, but not largely. The textile works resuming are mostly carpet and knit goods concerns, with some worsted works. Sales of wool for the week have been 2,895,700 pounds, against 6,802,300 last year, and the proportion since January 1st has been about the same. Though more mills are at work, and there is more speculative buying, prices, nevertheless, decline, so that sales at Boston are about 1 cent below prices asked two weeks ago.

Most shoe manufacturers are doing little more than half the usual business, though some are well employed and the shipments from Boston this year thus far have been 20 per cent. less than last year to date. Again there is more business in iron and steel products, but at lower prices. Steel rails were reduced January 1st to $24 per ton, and at Pittsburg, steel billets are selling at $15.75, steel bars and tank steel at 1.2 cents, beams at 1.35 and wire rods at $23.50.

Imports at New York show for January thus far a decrease of more than 30 per cent, while in exports hence a gain of $2,300,000, or nearly 20 per cent, appears. There is now no thought of a movement of gold, as London sends stock here to settle for product. The excess of products over imports in December was $48,000,000, but the exchanges seemed to foreshadow gold imports. Greater confidence abroad in the financial future would be of special service in coming months. Failures for the week have been 407 in the United States, against 290 last year, and 46 in Canada, against 42 last year.

For the first eleven days in January the reported liabilities of firms failing were $9,041,225, of which $3,069,058 were in manufacturing and $5,846,372 in trading concerns. But the number of failures about the first of the year does not necessarily indicate a bad state of things.

C.; Livingston, Magnolia Postoffice, La.; W. F. Tucker, Okalona, Miss.; Confederate Veteran, Ripley, Miss.; Manning Austin, Simpsonville, S. C.; Oxford, Oxford, Ala.; Sterling Price, Exeter, Mo.

Coal Creek Convicts Escape.

A Knoxville special says: Fifty convicts escaped from the branch prison at Coal Creek Tuesday by crawling through the bars of the waterway leading to the stockade. This occurred about dusk and, it was not long after that the guards discovered the move. The guards gave chase and fired promiscuously, although it is not known that any were killed. Several holdups are reported as following the escape. It is doubtful if they will be captured.

Want to Hear Talmage.

The trustees of the Brooklyn, N. Y., tabernacle are trying to devise a way of clearing the church of its debt. The 10 cents admission plan has been abandoned and it has been decided to leave an appeal to the public for aid. Six of the trustees have subscribed sums aggregating $6,500. The trustees are confident that Dr. Talmage can be induced to remain at the tabernacle if the debts are cleared.

The Newspaper Man.

The maker of newspapers is popularly supposed to be free, careless and capricious; his veins running with quicksilver, and his brain constantly sparkling like salt in a fiery furnace. But he is very numerously a dreary drudge, fettered, hum drum, and care-worn, with just enough patronage to secure him a grudging credit at the grocer's and tailor's, and a sufficiency of ambition to regard himself as a nursling of immortality. A trade newspaper ought to make him more practical and, perhaps, it sometimes does, but it never denies the regimen of hard work to even those who occupy its "softest" position; but it is oftener an ignis fatuus to tempt him into the mire more inextricable.—Produce Trade Reporter.

JOHN MALLOY, ESQ.

Jno. Malloy, Esq., No. 81 McLean St., Mt. Adams, Cincinnati, O., writes: "I took sick with dropsy, lost my appetite, could not sleep, became feverish; always thirsty, lost all strength, stomach became painful, breath short and had to give up work. The best physicians in Cincinnati failed to help me. My limbs and body were swollen to enormous size, and I was suffering terrible agony. The doctors all said I could not get well again, that I was liable to drop dead at any moment. My wife sent for the priest, so prepared me for death. While waiting for death, I remembered reading of your 'Golden Medical Discovery,' and thought I would try it as a last hope. When I had taken three bottles, I was almost well. The swelling entirely disappeared and I was soon able to resume work. My health is better now than it has been in twenty-five years."

THE FIFTY-THIRD CONGRESS

The House and Senate Called to Order in Regular Session.

Daily Summary of Routine Business in the Two Houses.

THE HOUSE.

FRIDAY, Jan. 26.—There were few members present in the house Friday morning when the session opened fell at 11 o'clock, and the benches were only fairly well filled. After the reading of the journal Thursday Mr. Cockran rose to make some remarks and made the point of no quorum. The roll was then called. A lively tilt occurred between Mr. Reed, of Maine, and Mr. Bynum, of Indiana. The former charged the latter with quoting an expression of his, but in doing so, mutilating it so as to destroy its force. Mr. Bynum replied that the change had not affected the expression.

SATURDAY, Jan. 27.—There was a slim attendance on the floor and a fair attendance on the galleries when the house met at 11 o'clock. Speaker Mr. Outhwaite, for the committee on rules, brought in a special order extending the time for the consideration of the tariff bill to February 3, and giving over one day and Tuesday to general debate on the income tax bill, thereafter under the five minute rule. He demanded the previous question. Hatch loudly denounced the report as a gag order, and although appealed to by Reed refused withdrawal. Without further debate the special order was adopted. The pension and District of Columbia appropriation bills were reported and referred to the calendar. The house then went into committee of the whole to consider the Wilson bill, with Richardson in the chair. At the afternoon session debate under the five-minute rule, and the offering of amendments to the tariff bill closed.

MONDAY, Jan. 29.—In the house Monday morning, Mr. Burrows asked that unanimous consent be given to members who had amendments they desired to offer to the tariff bill and which they had no opportunity to offer, to print them in the Record. Mr. McMillin objected, saying that if amendments could not be offered in the house, they should not cumber the Record. Messrs. Burrows and Dingley appealed to McMillin to withdraw his objection, but he persisted. Mr. Dingley said it was unjust and embarrassing to members to be deprived of this privilege, for in no other way could their constituents know that the tariff bill got amendments in it was not their fault. Mr. Burrows said that the privilege had been extended to members of the 51st congress. Chairman Mills then presented the report of the ways and means committee on the Canadian reciprocity resolution. The minority will be heard on Thursday to present their views. At 11:15 the house went into committee of the whole on the income tax bill. Mr. McMillin offered it as an amendment to the tariff bill, and the amendment was read in full. Mr. McMillin immediately after the reading of the internal revenue bill, addressed the committee in support of the bill as an amendment to the tariff bill.

TUESDAY, Jan. 30.—The house promptly went into committee of the whole to consider the tariff bill. All day morning, on motion of Mr. Richardson, of Tennessee, having disposed with the call of the committees of reports. Mr. Morse, of Massachusetts, gave notice that he proposed to offer an amendment to the title of the income bill so as to make it read as follows: "A bill to increase taxation and reduce revenue for the government, to the honest men, and pay a premium on perjury, and for other purposes."

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 31.—The debate of the general debate on the tariff bill opened with a fair attendance on the galleries and a rather slim attendance on the floor. After the committee had been called for reports, the house went into a committee of the whole to consider the tariff bill. Mr. Tate, of Georgia, offered the first question relative to the internal revenue bill. His purposes to strike out the last two sections of the bill, which included a tax of one dollar a gallon on distilled spirits, and allow the classes referred to the bonding of distilled spirits in their withdrawal from warehouse. This would leave the existing law on distilled spirits in force. After some discussion of various amendments proposed the house finally succeeded in coming to some action. Whisky will be taxed ninety cents per gallon and the bonded period will be three years, so far as the house is concerned.

THE SENATE.

FRIDAY, Jan. 26.—In the senate today, the resolution of Senator Call questioning the validity of railroad land grants in the state of Florida was taken up, and Senator Call spoke at length in support of the resolution and in defense of the rights of the homestead settlers.

MONDAY, Jan. 29.—The petitions against the Wilson tariff bill presented in the senate Monday morning were very numerous and were from all parts of the country. Some present were Mr. Hoar were characterized by him as "cries" of agony against the "unsanctified, abominable measure." A bill was introduced by Mr. Peffer giving United States judges the right on petition and after hearing to order the resolutes to be placed on the rolls of a pensioner who had been dropped, or whose pension had been reduced. A resolution was offered by Mr. Stewart, declaring it to be the sense of the senate that the secretary of the treasury has no legal authority to issue and sell bonds, as proposed. The senate, he said, or at least to express its opinion on the Daily Summary of Routine Business in the Two Houses.

THE HOUSE.

FRIDAY, Jan. 26.—There were very few members present in the house Friday morning when the speaker's gavel fell at 11 o'clock, and the galleries were only fairly well filled. The minority will have until Thursday to present their views. At 11:15 the house went into a committee of the whole on the income tax bill. Mr. McMillin offered it as an amendment to the tariff bill, and the amendment was read in full. Mr. Morse, of Massachusetts, gave notice that he proposed to offer an amendment to the title of the Wilson bill so as to make it read as follows: "A bill to increase taxation, reduce revenue for the government, and fine honest men, and pay a premium on perjury, and for other purposes."

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 31.—The last day of the general debate on the tariff bill opened with a fair attendance in the galleries and a rather slim attendance on the floor. After the committee had been called for reports, the house went into a committee of the whole to consider the tariff bill. Mr. Tate, of Georgia, offered the first amendment to the internal revenue bill. THE SENATE.

FRIDAY, Jan. 26.—In the senate Friday, the resolution of Senator Call, questioning the validity of railroad land grants in the state of Florida, was taken up, and Senator Call spoke at length in support of the resolutions and in defense of the rights of the homestead settlers.

MONDAY, Jan. 29.—The petitions against the Wilson tariff bill presented in the senate Monday morning were very numerous and were from all parts of the country. Some presented by Mr. Hoar were characterized by him as "cries" of agony against that "unsanctified, abominable menace." A bill was introduced by Mr. Hoar giving United States judges the right on petition and after hearing to order the resolution to the rolls of a pensioner who had been dropped, or whose pension had been reduced. A resolution offered by Mr. Stewart, declaring it to be the sense of the senate that the secretary of the treasury has no legal authority to issue and sell bonds, as proposed. The senate, he said, ought at least to express its opinion on the subject, and he gave notice that he would ask action on his resolution Tuesday. The Hawaiian resolution was then taken up and Mr. Teller addressed the senate.

TUESDAY, Jan. 30.—Mr. Stewart's resolution condemning the treasury bond policy was up in the senate Tuesday. After a speech by Stewart, Mr. Sherman made a strong speech in support of the secretary's power and duty to issue and sell bonds. He expressed his regret that anybody should be found now to question that authority. It was almost unpatriotic to do so, at a time when the revenues of the government were insufficient to meet the expenditures. Without regard to party feeling, he felt like standing up for the honor of the country and for the power of the secretary. That power, he contended, was given in the strongest, clearest, most direct language that could be used and it had stood unchallenged and uncontradicted from that day until a few days since, when the senator from Nebraska, (Mr. Allen) offered a resolution denying the authority of the secretary of the treasury. Mr. Sherman complained that that had been done at the very time when bidders were preparing their bids. It was agreed that debate on the bill to repeal the federal election law be closed at 4 o'clock next Tuesday with debate on the amendments under the five minute rule until disposed of, the vote to be taken on that day.

WEDNESDAY, Jan. 31. The religious societies appear to be making a systematic fight on whiskey and beer and desire to tax these articles to such a degree as to make them prohibitory luxuries. A petition presented by Mr. Cullom and others in the senate Wednesday prays that the internal revenue tax on these articles may be trebled in the new tariff law. The resolutions denying the authority of the secretary of the treasury to issue the proposed United States bonds came up and Mr. Allen took the floor to reply to the argument of Mr. Sherman Tuesday. When the hour of 2 arrived, the bill to repeal the election laws was postponed, and the debate on the bond resolution was continued, Mr. Gorman having the floor, and replying to Mr. Sherman's speech.

A DYNAMITE FEAST.

Horrible Tragedy Enacted by a Jealous Husband.

A cable dispatch of Sunday from St. Petersburg, Russia, reports a shocking tragedy of a most remarkable character at Vilna. Ivan Klakwitz, a custom officer of highly respectable connection, became convinced that his wife was in league with a neighbor to aid the latter in a law suit which was pending against him. There was apparently no justification for the charge. The law suit was tried in the local courts last week and Klakwitz lost. He addressed the judge in an excited manner, and, after making a rambling statement implicating his wife in an intrigue against him, he left the courtroom.

Later in the day, however, he professed regret to his wife for his baseless insinuations and hasty temper and asked his neighbor and his wife to dine with him en familie. Thinking it better that a reconciliation should take place the neighbor accepted and a social evening was arranged for. At dinner there were present Klakwitz, his wife, his two daughters, aged nineteen and seventeen years respectively, a young son, aged eleven; his wife's mother and his neighbor and his wife. The dinner passed off very pleasantly until the third course, when Klakwitz rose, and ordering some more champagne to be opened, said that he wished all present to drink a toast to a special dish he had prepared as a surprise for this agreeable occasion. He then left the room, and within two minutes returned, bearing in his arms a large dish, covered with a dinner cover, and placing it quickly on the table, he lifted his glass on high and shouted: "To our next meeting."

He had scarcely spoken these words when a dynamite bomb, which had been hidden under the cover, exploded and instantly killed every one in the room, with the exception of the servant girl and the youngest daughter—the latter living, however, only long enough to tell exactly what had happened. The servant died within two hours. The unfortunate people who were the victims of this insane frolic were simply blown to pieces and the walls of the room in which they were sitting were partly blown out. The explosion was heard for half a mile.

WITHDRAWAL OF GOLD.

It Will be Returned for the Payment of Bonds.

A Washington special of Friday says: Since January 17th, the date on which Secretary Carlisle issued his circular inviting bids for the purchase of bonds, there has been withdrawn from the treasury department $2,800,000 in gold or its equivalent, for the purpose, it is asserted, to pay for the bonds. Since January 1st, the treasury has lost $12,440,000 in gold. Offers to take bonds continue to be received at the treasury department, but no information is obtainable as to the amount. There was a further loss of $794,000 in the treasury gold reserve and it now stands at $67,657,114, although there is no material change in the net balance. The deficiency in the revenues for the month to date approximates $10,000,000.

The Bond Injunction Denied.

Judge Cox at Washington Tuesday morning denied the application of the Knights of Labor for an injunction to restrain Secretary Carlisle from issuing bonds. The principal ground of his decision was that the applicants had no proper standing in court.

OUR LATEST DISPATCHES.

The Happenings of a Day Chronicled in Brief and Concise Paragraphs

And Containing the Gist of the News From All Parts of the World.

It was reported Wednesday that Messrs. W. E. Patterson & Sons, tobacconists, of Mount Airy, N. C., have assigned. It is estimated that their libilities will amount to from $25,000 to $30,000. Spranger Bros. are named as the assignees.

The Rosedale Manufacturing Company, at Roanoke, Ala., spinners of cotton thread, closed the doors of the mill Wednesday and quit the business. Its assets are about $50,000 and its liabilities about one-third of that amount. Inability to dispose of its products forced the company's action.

A Birmingham dispatch says: Five hundred miners at Corons, Ala., went out on a strike two weeks ago on account of a difference between them and the company, relative to the price for house rents, material, etc., returned to work Wednesday morning, the differences having been satisfactorily adjusted.

At a conference held at Richmond, Va., between the representatives of various lines composing the associated railways of Virginia and the Carolinas and a committee from the Richmond chamber of commerce, the associated railways agreed not to remove their offices from Richmond to Baltimore, as had been determined upon.

A Charleston special says: Circuit Judge Simonton Wednesday designated Augustine S. Seymour, of the western district of North Carolina, to hold the February term of the United States district court, which convenes at Greenville, S. C., on Monday, February 5th. Judge Brawley, the new district judge has not, as yet, qualified.

A persistent rumor is current at Knoxville, Tenn., to the effect that at the sale of the Marietta and North Georgia road on March 3rd the Norfolk and Western road will buy it in. This will be followed by building from Bristol to Knoxville and from Marietta to Atlanta. A branch will be constructed from some point on the Marietta and North Georgia into Chattanooga. This is the old scheme of George B. Eager.

Rufus N. Rhodes, of the Birmingham News president of the Southern Afternoon Press Bureau, has appointed H. H. Cabaniss, of the Atlanta Journal, N. G. Gonzales, of the Columbia (S. C.) Journal, and W. W. Archer, of the Richmond State, a committee on the part of the bureau to confer with the Southern Associated Press, as provided in the agreement of November 24 last.

Hon. John McBride, president of the United Workers of America, stated Wednesday that the direct cause of the Pittsburg mining riots was starvation. The miners hold the operators responsible for that condition. Being desperate, the miners destroyed property. The Pittsburg district is only part of the competitive field, comprising the mines of northern Illinois, Indiana, Ohio, western Pennsylvania and part of West Virginia.

A special of Wednesday from Halifax, N. S., says: In the heavy gale Tuesday night the schooner Gertie E. Foster, of Gloucester, was driven ashore at Strawberry Point, about forty miles below Liverpool, N. S., and will probably prove a total loss. There were sixteen men in the crew, five of whom were drowned in trying to reach the shore in the dory. The remaining eleven men were taken off the wreck.

Banker E. P. Robertson and his wife were bound and gaged by three men at their home at Maple Park, fifty miles from Chicago Tuesday night and the house ransacked. The men appeared at the house, and covering the banker and his wife with revolvers, proceeded to bind and gag them. The robbers' search was not well rewarded, as they received but $20. A posse is scouring the vicinity in search of the desperadoes, of whom a good description was secured.

An explosion of fire damp occurred in the mines of the Fayette Coal Company at Fayette City, Pa., Wednesday morning, in which miners were badly burned about the head, face and hands. The names of the miners burned are Thomas Taylor, Samuel White, C. C. Hamilton, Charles Matthews and Lewis Dewolt. While the injuries are not considered fatal, they are serious. The explosion was caused by an open light coming in contact with a small body of gas which had accumulated during the night.

The robbery of the Planters' bank of Ellaville, Ga., was solved Wednesday by Detective Bill Jones, of Atlanta. It was robbed by the cashier, Ed Clark. Speculation in cotton futures by Clark caused the robbery or shortage. The detective, after surveying the premises, discovered that the door of the safe had only been blown off its hinges, the lock being in tact, and that therefore the blowing took place after the safe had been unlocked. He confronted the cashier with this information, and he promptly admitted he was the robber.

Barney Irwin, a member of the Knoxville, Tenn., police force, was indicted Wednesday by the Anderson county grand jury at Clinton for the murder of Will Smith. The killing occurred some months ago in an express car on Knoxville and Ohio passenger train near Coal Creek. Smith told Irwin of a plot to rob the car into which Fred Garding, then a Southern Express company employe, had drawn him. After first informing Irwin of the fact, Smith had several conferences with Gerding; in fact, urged him on in the affair.

THE BUSINESS WORLD.

Dun & Co.'s Report of Trade for the Past Week.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s Review of trade for the past week says: Secretary Carlisle's decision to issue bonds and the early reports of large bids for them helped to accelerate the recovery of industries and trade, as was hoped last week. The sale of the amount offered will check the anxiety about the maintenance of note redemption, remove the only pretext for further issues of papers and then give a solid basis for greater confidence regarding the financial future. The revenue is still small, farm customs in January thus far $10,805,501 against $19,985,685 last year, and from internal taxes $3,587,979 against $11,068,498, and the volume of domestic trade is still small. The increase in the number of hands employed adds to the purchasing power of the people and dealers' stocks are so reduced that any sign of larger consumption quickly gives mills more orders. In short, the conditions are such that if not interrupted by adverse circumstances, they will give a quick revival of business.

In no direction are quotations of manufactured products higher, but while some have actually declined, the general tone is somewhat stronger. Thus a distinct improvement is seen in the demand for iron products at Philadelphia, though for some, which it was thought could not go lower, quotations have been reduced. Sales of pig iron are larger, though $10.50 is now the open quotation for Bessemer at Pittsburg and southern forge is sold for $6.75 at Birmingham; the lower price telegraphed last week having been, it is stated, for a lot of inferior quality. The Tennessee Coal and Iron company has made contracts for ore, which reduce the cost of its iron 22½ cents per ton and lower contracts for ore and freights are also reducing the cost to consumers of lake ore. Connellsville coke is quoted at $1 per ton, with the number of ovens in operation practically unchanged. The increase in demand for iron products is mainly in structual forms, cast pipe wire rods, barbed rods and wire nails, while in rails and other railroad iron business is remarkably small. Textile mills have reduced their working force; several woolen mills have started and others are reported about to start. Sales of wool are larger, amounting at the chief markets to 4,033,200 pounds against 5,661,350 for the same week last year, but prices at Philadelphia are ½ to 1 cent lower, while at New York there is more inquiry from carpet and other mills.

Trading was checked by disappointment regarding the date at which changes of duty are to take effect and there is little desire to place or accept orders until the future is more clear.

The shoe and leather trade appears to gain a little, though shipments from Boston for the week are again 24 per cent smaller than last year.

Produce markets have been decidedly dull, though wheat for May fell at one time to the lowest point on record. Western receipts for the week were 6,597,501 bushels, against 3,541,381 last year and of corn 3,452,855 against 2,758,739 last year. Wheat exports are insignificant and the stocks in sight are too large for speculators or short crop prophets. Coffee and petroleum are a shade lower.

Cotton, after a decline, has advanced a shade, although receipts continue heavy.

Failures in the United States were 430 this week against 255 last year, and fifty-five in Canada against forty last year. None are of great magnitude. The liabilities of firms failing thus far reported this year amount to $13,668,990, of which $6,702,878 were of manufacturing and $6,800,353 of trading concerns.

TWELVE THOUSAND KILLED.

Horrible Story of an Earthquake in Persia.

A San Francisco special of Tuesday says: Additional advices by the steamer Belgic, from China, announces the annihilation by an earthquake of the town of Kutschan, Persia. Twelve thousand persons were killed in the awful disaster. Ten thousand bodies had been recovered to date. The once important and beautiful city of 20,000 people is now only a scene of death, desolation and terror. Fifty thousand cattle were destroyed at the same time.

OUR FLAG INSULTED.

A Report that American Ships Were Fired Upon in Rio's Harbor.

A Sharp Engagement in Which the Insurgent Commander Surrendered.

Despatches received at London Tuesday from Rio De Janeiro, dated January 30, state that on the morning of that day Admiral De Gama, having opened fire upon one of the American war ships, a sharp engagement followed, with the result that Admiral De Gama surrendered.

NEWS CONFIRMED IN WASHINGTON.

At the navy department, it was said Tuesday morning that word had been received from Admiral Benham, announcing his purpose to protect the American vessels from the insurgent firing. The department had not yet received word from the admiral that he had carried out the program he outlined to the department. The navy department later received dispatches which, it is stated, fully confirm the dispatches from Rio.

DE GAMA SAID TO HAVE SURRENDERED.

The Rothschilds' banking house has also received a dispatch from Rio De Janeiro, saying that Admiral De Gama has surrendered. Baron Rothschild, upon being questioned as to the source from which he had received the dispatch announcing the surrender of Admiral De Gama, said that the cable message came to him from what he considered to be a most reliable source, and that he had no reason to doubt its accuracy.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Situation During the Past Week.

The review of the industrial situation in the south for the past week shows that the condition of manufacturing industries continues to be favorable and that the demand for machinery is larger than for some time past. Plants which have been shut down are now starting up, especially in the lumber industry. Southern textile mills report a fair amount of business. A feature of the situation is considerable increase in the number of enlargements of manufactories reported each week.

Fifty-five industries were established or incorporated during the week, together with fourteen enlargements of manufactories, and seventeen important new buildings. Among the prominent new industries of the week are the following: The Virginia Coal and Coke Co., of Richmond, Va., capital $100,000, chartered by W. B. Gay and others; The Owl Hollow Gold Mining Co., of Atlanta, Ga., capital $120,000, J. H. Moore and associates, incorporators; the New Decatur Gas, Petroleum and Mining Co., of New Decatur, Ala., capital $100,000; the Hygienic Salt Co., of Norfolk, Va., capital $40,000, E. E. Weise and associates, incorporators; a canning factory to cost $35,000; at Jackson, Texas, by J. F. Still and others; the Victor Flouring Mill Co., of Wichita Falls, Texas, capital $30,000, by H. M. Victor and others; and the Etna Land Co., of Fort Worth, Texas, capital $25,000, by H. G. Hendrick and associates.

A hardware company, capital $20,000, is reported at Bartow, Fla.; a stave factory with $16,000 capital at Jonesboro, Ark.; electrical works, capital $10,000, at Dawson, Ga., and a fence machine company, capital $10,000, at Houston, Tex.

A canning factory is reported at Terry, Miss.; a cold storage plant at Montgomery, Ala., a distillery at Hope Mills, N. C., and electrical plants at Searcy, Ala., Searcy, Ark., Quitman, Ga., and Shelby, N. C. Fertilizer works are to be built at Tampa, Fla.; a flouring mill at Jacksboro, Texas; machine shops at Dalton, Ga., and Longview, Texas, and an oil and gas company at Murraysville, West Virginia. Paint works are to be established at Athens, Ga.; a shoe factory at Memphis, Tenn.; steam cotton gins at Kenedy and Richmond, Texas, and knitting mill at Bonneville, Ga. Woodworking plants are to be built at Mobile, Murphy and Stevenson, Ala., Blackrock, Jonesboro, Little Rock and Nettleton, Ark., Palatka, Fla., Cane, N. C., and Lynchburg, Va.

Water works are to be built at Marion, Ala., Bartow, Fla., Quince and Quitman, Ga., Franklin, Ky., and Crawford, Kerrville and Weri, Texas.—Tradesman (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

MINERS IN CONTEMPT.

Sentenced to Three Day's Labor for Failure to Move.

Nine miners from Mingo mountain, on the Tennessee-Kentucky border, were sentenced to three days' imprisonment for contempt of court at Knoxville Friday. The company for which they have worked is in the hands of a receiver of the United States district court. The receiver ordered them to vacate tenement houses they occupied, the miners having refused to go to work at reduced wages. Ejectment notices were served on them by United States deputy marshals, but still they refused to move. They were then arrested for contempt. Certain mitigating circumstances reduced the punishment to three days and a severe lecture.

Everybody should read the paper and keep up with the times.

RAILWAY FIGURES.

Incomes and Expenses of the Roads in the United States.

A Washington special of Sunday says: A preliminary report of the incomes and expenditures of railroads in the United States for the year ending June 30, 1893, has just been published by the interstate commerce commission. It is put out in advance of the regular statistical report of the commission to meet the demand of the public for early information in regard to the operations of railroads, and in view of the present condition of the railroad industry in the country, the figures it contains are exceedingly interesting.

The report includes the returns from 479 operating companies, whose reports were received on or before February 1, 1893, and covers the operations of 145,869.58 miles of line, or 87 per cent of the total operated mileage in the United States for that period.

The gross earnings were $1,085,585,281, of which $322,805,538 were from passenger service, $639,249,365 from freight service and $23,630,378 were other earnings from operation, covering receipts from telegraph, use of cars, switching charges, rents, etc.

The operating expenses were $735,527,582, or 67.74 per cent of the gross earnings, leaving net earnings of $350,257,749, which is about 3.50 per cent on the capitalization of the roads reporting.

BISMARCK IN BERLIN.

He Receives a Royal Welcome by the Kaiser and People.

Prince Bismarck, his son, Count Herbert, and several friends left Friedreshaus Friday morning for Berlin. The train arrived punctually at the Latinte station. Prince Henry, of Prussia, the emperor's brother, the governor of Berlin and a large suit of officers were waiting the prince's arrival. The cheering and salutations from the crowd pleased Bismarck very much.

Most of the houses along the route to the emperor's palace were decorated with flags. The entire population of Berlin, swelled by thousands from all parts of Germany, had apparently turned out to welcome the senior Bismarck, and the younger element cheered themselves hoarse as the coach passed en route.

When the party arrived at the castle, the reception of the old statesman was of the warmest, most cordial nature. His majesty embraced the prince with the utmost heartiness, and a kiss pressed on the old man's cheek sealed the reconciliation between the emperor and his greatest subject. Prince Bismark's grave demeanor during his reception by his majesty was much commented upon.

CHATTANOOGA CHINAMEN

Are Given Notice to Register Under the Geary Act.

J. T. Essary, internal revenue collector for East Tennessee, has served notice on the handful of Chinaman in Chattanooga to comply with the registration proviso of the Geary exclusion act. Each Celestial is required to be photographed and his picture, accompanied by a sworn affidavit stating his business and time of residence in this country. This must be sent to Washington before he is qualified to register if his application is in proper form. This is the first move to enforce this act in Tennessee. The limit of registration is May 4th.

Gladstone Will Resign.

The Pall Mall Gazette in its issue of Wednesday declares that it learns from a source in which it has every confidence that Mr. Gladstone has finally decided to resign office immediately. According to The Pall Mall Gazette Mr. Gladstone will announce his decision in a letter to the queen before the reassembling of parliament. This decision is said to be due to a sense of his advanced age and the great strain the late arduous session imposed upon him.

A Rich Combination.

Gold, silver and lead have been discovered in Spruce hill, near Borneville, Ross county, Ohio, by C. W. Stretcher, of Xenia, who became wealthy by similar discoveries in California, forty years ago. Springfield capitalists are associated with him. They have been prospecting over six months, and will begin digging in two weeks. W. F. Mitchell and Miss Sallie Mitchell own the hill in which they have found the valuable metals.

Gold Under a Cataract.

Snoqualmie falls, in this state, has developed an attraction not down on the guide books. The story is vouched for by reputable men working on that stream.

A big piece of quartz bowlder, rich in the precious metal, has been secured from an unknown depth directly underneath the huge fall of water, and the most wonderful part of the story is the manner in which this sparkling and precious stone was secured from a place almost unapproachable.

Running logs over the 265-foot falls has been a custom for many years past, and there is no prettier sight in the world than to see the giant stick shoot out into space and then drop, head on, into the roaring water below.

During the shooting of the logs one particular log went over recently and shot straight downward and was soon lost in the pool below. After it had risen to the surface and floated down stream it was seen to have a rock imbedded in one end, which, upon examination, was found to be quartz rich in gold.

The only explanation is that the log in the mad plunge into the pool under the falls came in contact with some ledge of gold with force enough to embed the piece found in the firm wood.—[Seattle Telegraph.

The Bite of a Hog.

It it a serious thing to be bitten by any domestic animal, and the danger is probably greater when bitten by a hog than by any other. This is not because there is an active, poisonous gland with hollow tooth through which the poison is pressed. That is the way a rattleanake bites, or rather stings. The danger from the bite of a hog may be as great as from a rattlesnake, but it is the danger from blood poisoning caused by carrying on the tushes of the hog some poisonous saliva with which its mouth is filled. We call this saliva poisonous because the hog is an indiscriminate feeder, and not careful about getting particles of dirt or even excrement of other animals with its food. It is poisonous, just as are the scratches from finger nails, which always leaves an inflamed sore, hard to be healed in proportion to its abrasion of the skin. This is because with each scratch of the nail some of the dirt that always gathers under it is brought into contact with the blood. A cut with a clean knife heals more quickly, especially if treated at once with some antiseptic and the air is carefully excluded.—[American Cultivator.

A Good Guess.

Another one of Detroit's nimrods home from a hunting expedition is denying the story, but it is true.

He had been out all morning with a boy, who had seen him shoot several times before, and the birds had kept at such a distance that he couldn't get a shot.

"Well," he exclaimed in disgust after awhile, "I never saw birds so shy."

"I guess they don't know it's you, sir," remarked the boy, and he went plunging right ahead through the field.—[Detroit Free Press.

His Objection.

Butcher—"Sir, have you any fault to find with that sausage?"

Customer—"Yes; the ends are not quite to my liking."

"Why, every sausage has got two ends!"

"True enough, but this one has them too near together."

His Excuse.

The Wife—"How did you dare, sir, to scold me before Mrs. Brown?"

The Husband—"Well, you know, Maria, I daren't scold you when we are by ourselves."—[Kate Field's Washington.

The Wilson bill passed the House by a vote of 204 to 140.

Speaker F. L. Pettus has been mentioned for the Senate from his district.

Rev. Richard H. Wilmer, Episcopal Bishop of Alabama is quite ill at his home near Mobile.

There were twenty-two prisoners sentenced to the mines from the Birmingham City court Saturday.

The name of Mrs. Mary M. Force for Post Mistress at Selma has been sent to the Senate by the President.

Geo. W. Childs, editor and proprietor of the Public Ledger, of Philadelphia, died at his home at 3:30 Saturday morning.

The Republican Convention will be held in Birmingham Thursday and Friday; Feby. 8th and 9th as will also the Populite and Jeffersonian conventions.

The Montgomery miners of Acme; West Virginia while attempting to stop work in another mine; had a tilt with the Sheriff and posse which resulted in the shooting of two miners.

The jury in the Harry Hill case, which has been in progress for several days in Atlanta returned a verdict of guilty. The charge against him was forgery, and the case in many respects has been quite a sensational one. A motion will be made for a new trial.

Chairman James K. Powers of the Campaign Committee of the Alabama Educational Association is out in an appeal to the parents, teachers and friends of local self-government to do all in their power for the adoption of the Hundley School amendment to the State constitution.

The lottery men have their eyes on Port Tampa, Fla., as a suitable place to ply their trade. The question as to their right to establish a Lottery Company in Florida is now being discussed and Senator Pasco is looking into the law with a view to removing such an evil from the State should it be carried there.

The Jeffersonians have held conventions in all the counties of the state, and we have yet to see the report of one that did not endorse Kolb and the old ticket. It is a moral certainty that the genial Reuben will be re nominated in Birmingham on the 8th of next month, and the old fight will go on as in '62, but with, let us hope, less bitterness, less hatred and less vituperation. Mr. Kolb will not be any more successful this time than before.

An honest election under the new law will convince him and his followers that the old Democratic party is the party of the people and they will not leave it to follow after strange gods.—Greenville Advocate.

Mr. Morse, of Masachusetts, in his speech on the Hawiian matter got too gay and was called to order for unparliamentary language. The language used and which was read at the clerks desk was as follows:

"And yet strange to tell, at the command of their master, great Grover Cleveland, his cuckoos in House and Senate, staunch Southern Democrats, loudest shouters of white man's government; disregard all their ancient traditions about white man's supremacy and white man's government." The speaker ruled that language unparliamentary to speak of members of the House and Senate as being controlled by a master, the president. Mr. Morse explained that he had in reading his remarks omitted several words from the manuscript and he said if the words objected to were offensive he would withdraw the words "controlled by their master the president." Before Mr. Morse could proceed after his explanation and withdrawal his time had expired.

The State Canvass.

Advertiser.

The approaching contest for the Democratic nomination is not a factional or a sectional one, but is a good-natured, friendly tilt between true and tried Democrats. When the party assembles in State Convention, it will select the strongest and most available man to make the race at the head of the Democratic hosts, and when that selection is made, all loyal Democrats will give an enthusiastic and hearty support to the ticket.

***

The main question with Democrats now is whether or not the party of the State can afford to put out a ticket not in full accord with the National Democratic administration, and the overwhelming sentiment is that it cannot do so and succeed. The opposition are abusing President Cleveland and denouncing his administration on every occasion, publicly and privately, and if the Democrats select a ticket upon such a platform, it will not be a fight on principle, but a scramble for offices. But it is useless to make any such surmises, as it is very certain that no convention of Democrats would be unwise enough to make such an unpardonable error.

***

Not a single complaint has been heard from the rank and file of the party of the action of the Democratic State Committee, at its recent session in this city. Discipline and complete organization are absolutely necessary to success; therefore, realizing this fact, it is deemed perfectly right and proper that the State Committee should take entire charge of the canvass, so far as relates to the selection of delegates to the State Convention, and it will not be noted that that is all that it proposes to do. The last State Convention directed the committee to take this course, foreseeing as it did, from the result of the last campaign, that the further success of the party depended upon it.

It Will Kill Off The Trusts.

The sugar refiners under the operations of the McKinley law are reaping princely fortunes every year. The dividends they have been able to declare are immense. The raw sugar comes in free but the refined sugar is taxed. That plays into their hands both ways. The bounty system is profitable to those in Louisiana who make sugar from cane, to those who make maple sugar in Vermont and beet sugar in the West. This system however is not in accord with Democratic policies and traditionals, and finds few Democratic supporters in Congress. A tax of one cent a pound on sugar could very well be upheld by the Democrats, because it will be a revenue raising item. The McKinley bill, however, takes about twelve millions from the rest of the country to pay sugar growers, takes off $40,000,000 or $50,000,000 of duty from raw sugar and leaves the country at the mercy of the refiners by taxing refined sugar that may be imported. This is a big boanza for two classes of people, but quite a burden to the rest of the country. The Journal of Commerce of New York, taking as a basis the figures presented by Congressman Warner in the House reminds those people who might be disposed to contribute a few pennies a day to the relief of the sugar trust that in 1893, "a year of unprecedented losses and failures, the Sugar Trust was paying 7 per cent on its preferred and 12 per cent on its common stock, and the nominal capital is supposed to be not less than three times the real value of the investment. This means that the trust made at least 25 or 30 per cent. on the investment in the worst year we have had for a long time, and did it by suppressing competition and keeping the refiner's margin at a point nearly twice as high as that which prevailed in a period of tolerably free competition." The Wilson bill very effectually stops a system that will result in such monotony as that of the sugar trust. —Advertiser.

The wind and rain storm which passed over this place last Saturday night developed into a hurrican at Gate City near Birmingham. The Congregational Church at that place was destroyed. The Christian Endeavor Society was holding a meeting in the church at the time and when the storm broke upon it the sides of the little Church gave way letting the roof down upon the inmates. Several were killed and nearly all more or less injured.

How to Make The Farm Pay.

By H. Reynolds, M. D.

There is the same chance for the exercise of skill and judgment on the part of the farmer to make the farm pay as there is for the merchant and manufacturer to make his business pay. In order to make the farm pay, the energies of the farmer must be directed in a way that will produce the most profitable results. If sheep raising does not pay and dairying does, the principal attention should be given to the profitable dairying. This happens to be the case at the present time. Butter-making is very profitable to the farmer, and many are devoting their main efforts in this direction, while sheep raising, with the low price of wool, and the prospect of free wool ahead, has rendered sheep raising very unprofitable.

At the present time feeding hogs is one of the most profitable branches of farm industry. Pigs are cheap and food is plenty and cheap, while pork sells at good prices—exactly the reverse of what it was two years ago, when pork was cheap and food high. Besides the profit in feeding, there is the increase in fertilizers obtained, greatly benefitting the farmer by their fertility. Even in winter pig feeding can be made profitable by giving them warm quarters.

Some farmers greatly increase their revenues by raising early lambs. By having the lambs coming on early in the winter, keeping them in warm quarters and feeding well, they are brought in good condition for the market early in the spring, when lambs always sell for fancy prices. Others make money by raising early chickens, having the chickens hatched in the early part of the winter, keeping in warm apartments, feeding well, and bringing them in good condition for market early in spring, when two or three dollars per pair can sometimes be obtained for them.

Thus the enterprising farmer will take various ways to increase his revenues, and by giving his attention to those branches that pay best, he will be able to make his farm pay, and often times pay handsomely; but he must be alert and active, quick to see and quick to act, getting into things that pay in season, and getting out before their profit collapses.

Sand Mountain Farming.

Rev. N. W. Curdy, who lives on Sand Mountain, in this (DeKalb) County, tells us that he has raised 149 bushels of corn on two acres of land on the mountain last year. This 74 1-2 bushels per acre. When it is remembered that last year was not a good crop year and that Sand Mountain is universally acknowledged not to be very productive land, the significance of this item could be the better appreciated.

Mr. McCurdy also informs us he raised 54 bushels of Irish potatoes and 15 bushels of corn on ¼ of the same land. He planted his potatoes in five rows, and on June 1st, at second working of potatoes, planted corn between the rows.

Mr. McCurdy has long since taken an interest in intensive farming and has been instrumental in arousing an interest among our neighbors. On an acre of land by his plan he makes as much corn as the aveage farmer makes on five acres of the same soil. And herein lies the future success of farming in this section. The old plan of cultivating 100 acres of land to make a crop that should be grown on twenty acres or less must be abandoned. It destroys the timber, works man and stock to death and the results are far from satisfactory.

It is useless for us to say that Mr. McCurdy is perfectly reliable. He is a practical, progressive farmer and a blessing to the community in which he lives.—Ft. Payne Journal.

The mardi gras festivities in Mobile have drawn to a close, and as heretofore success has crowned the efforts of the people of those stirring cities. All was mirth and gayety and the large crowds that attended were pleased beyond measure. Mobile and New Orleans are hustling cities and deserve the praise which they receive.

A masked party came together in New Orleans during the mardi gras celebration, and a fight ensued in which one man was killed and several wounded.

Geo. W. Childs was indeed a model man. The press of the country continues to praise that man who was all heart.

MINISTERS OF THE GOSPEL

What Alabamians Say About The Electropoise.

Rev. C. W. O'Hara, Columbiana: I cannot find language with which to express the inestimable value of this wonderful instrument—the Electropoise.

Rev. S. J. Knowles, Headland, "The value of the Electropoise is inestimable."

Rev. Jas. A. Heard, Florence: "I am a walking advertisement of the Electropoise."

Rev. L. A. Darsey, Lafayette: Every family ought to have an Electropoise."

Rev. J. T. Heard, Birmingham: "I take pleasure in saying the Electropoise gave me permanent relief from neuralgia of the stomach and bowels."

Rev. W. C. Hearn, Talladega: "My wife and I used the Electropoise with good results."

Rev. W. M. Wharton, formerly of Montgomery: "I have used the Electropoise with great benefit to my health"

If you will send your name or that of some invalid friend, we will send you copies of letters from the above parties and from hundreds of others; people you know from every section of this and other States, testifying to the curative powers of the Electropoise.

Reports from Committees.

(Committee on Investigations.)—We beg to report that we have thoroughly investigated (Dr. Ivey's) "QUICK RELIEF REMEDIES, and find that they are pleasant to use and that (Ivey's) "Quick Relief for Catarrh" will relieve the worst cold in the head in five minutes!—[Long and loud applause.]

Rap! Rap!! Rap!!! went the gavel and (so soon) as quiet can be restored, the Speaker announced that (Ivey's) "Quick Relief" "Remedies" were sold by all leading Druggists, and could therefore be found at 50 cents per bottle at Dr. B. P. Ivey's, Montgomery, Ala.

Important Notice.

We believe in Printers' Ink and when we have anything special to offer, we let the people know about it through the newspapers, which we consider the best medium. But there is a vast difference in newspapers and we desire to use those mediums from which we get the best results. In order to decide for our own benefit we make the following proposition:

Baptist Church, Verbena—Preaching on the first Saturday and Sunday before each month.

Baptist Church, Mulberry—Preaching on the 4th Saturday and Sunday in each month. J. G. LOWREY, Pastor.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Sunday was a disagreeable day.

County Court Convened Monday.

Prof. J. M. Corderie was in Clanton Thursday.

Mr. Albert Lewis, of Memphis is visiting here.

Mr. B. E. Jones, of Lily, was in town last week.

Mr. and Mrs. W. H. Sartor visited here Sunday.

Dr. J. S. Johnson visited Strasburg Monday night.

Mr. Morgan and family visited relatives in town Sunday.

Mr. Dan May, of Montgomery, spent Wednesday in Clanton.

Mrs. O. R. Bell is visiting relatives in South Alabama this week.

A Christian Endeavor Society has been organized in Clanton.

Mr. John Hester was on a visit to relatives in Clanton Sunday.

Maj. Jno. R. Harrell, of Birmingham, was in Clanton last Thursday.

Mr. Clem Mullins and bride spent Sunday in town with relatives.

Mr. B. W. Garner, of Mulberry, was in Clanton last week on business.

Mrs. O. P. Bentley, of Goodwater, is visiting Mr. W. B. Nolen and wife this week.

Rev. Mr. Hainey preached at the Congregational Church Sunday morning and night.

Miss Bettie Mullins, a much admired young lady of Birmingham, is visiting relatives in Clanton.

The accommodation train and mail meet at Clanton. The new schedule was effected Jan. 31st.

Mr. W. A. Kemp expects to go to farming since severing his connection with the firm of Culp & Co.

Mr. M. Saunders representing Dreyfus Bros., of Montgomery, was in the city for a few hours last Monday.

Marriage License were issued Saturday to C. M. Farnell and Miss Fannie Foshee and Clem Mullins and Miss Leila Dawson.

Dr. W. H. Lamar and accomplished granddaughter, Miss Orlena Lamar, of Auburn, Ala., have been guests of Mr. T. Phillips' family.

Mr. L. C. Day, of Jemison, was in the city last Friday shaking hands with friends and old acquaintances. We are glad to see that Jemison agrees with him.

Mrs. E. C. Lawrence was the guest of Mr. W. L. Sampey's family last week, where her many friends were glad to meet her again. She was enroute to Northport.

Mr. J. M. Simpson, of Danville, Ala., was in Clanton last week. He was accompanied home by his nephews, Wallace and Hugh Simpson, who expect to enter school at that place.

It is with regret that the friends of W. A. Collier, Esq., learn that he will not return to Clanton to live. All household goods were shipped to Birmingham Tuesday, where he will reside.

Cross-ties are again being received by the L. & N. R. R., along the line. We are glad to state the fact, and glad that the farmers are seizing the advantage of paying off debts and financially bettering themselves.

Mr. W. I. Mullins has moved into the McRee residence and Mr. W. B. Nolen is occupying the J. D. Bivings house. Mr. Evans and daughter have moved into their home, formerly occupied by Mr. Mullins.

An enjoyable evening was spent at Mr. T. Phillips last Friday night, in honor of Miss Lamar, of Auburn. Her friends regretted that she did not pay our town a longer visit.

Some farmers are hauling their fertilizers from Clanton for agricultural purposes the ensuing year. It is to be honed that the majority have profited by advice and saved the fertilizers around home and will not be encumbered by this unnecessary expense.

We notice that Prof. E. Y. McMorries has planted shade trees fronting the University School, and we hint to the Professor that if he had a nice graded side walk in front that it would show the University off to great advantage.

Send your job work to us. We duplicate city prices.

The weather has gone and changed again.

County Court had a slim attendance Monday.

Sheriff Moore was in Verbena Wednesday on business.

Mr. R. Q. Lane is on a visit to North Alabama this week.

The Gins have all been running on good time for the past week.

Miss Jennie Wilson, of Bluefield, has been on a visit to Clanton.

Mr. H. Brown Northington, of Verbena, was in the city Monday.

There was a party given at Mr. J. P. Vanderveer's last Monday night.

Send in your name and a dollar for a years subscription to the VIEW.

Mr. M. H. Fink returned to Clanton last week from a business trip to Louisville.

Mrs. Ellington, of Tuskegee, is on a visit to her neice, Mrs. W. L. Sampey this week.

A few snow flakes were seen to fall Sunday evening. The first of the winter in this section.

Parties have been quite the go in Clanton for several weeks. There have been two or three a week for sometime past.

The planters are getting in good work now. Several parties were out hoeing this week and all brought in more or less game.

You may talk about girls in larger places and you may admire beauty in all its phases, but if you want to see the loviest girls and most bewitching little misses in the land just spend a while in Clanton.

There is a stagnant pool of water in the bottom below the VIEW office which should be looked after by the authorities. If it stands during the summer it will be apt to be the cause of much sickness to say nothing of mosquitoes. There would be very little cost attached to draining this place and it should be done by all means. To make Clanton the healthy place that it ought to be, all such places should be attended to before summer.

FOR SALE—Any one wanting to buy a pheaton and harness almost new at a sacrifice price should apply to the View Real Estate Agency.

Said a gentleman last week, "There are several changes that should be made in the general appearance of things around our depot that would not impress all passengers along the line with the idea of dilapidation and that Clanton is a dead town. The idea is principally conceived by the number of shanties which dot surrounding lots of owners and cut out all views of respectable dwellings, and which are anything but an ornament to the town. They are the remnants of twenty years ago, and the landlords of these shackly shanties, under no consideration, will give their consent for their removal, so how are those who are interested in the better appearance of the town able to improve it? The L. & N. railroad, with the proper encouragement from our citizens, would cheerfully donate a lot for a town park, as they have done in several towns on the north division. This would add wonderfully to the surroundings of the depot."

Mr. W. M. Wilson is hereby appointed Precinct Registrar for beat 4, Chilton County. Mr. J. M. Roper is appointed in place of A. C. Pool for beat 6. B. W. Garner.
County Registrar.

Married,

At the residence of Dr. Dawson, near Kinchcon on the evening of Feb. 4th Mr. Clem Mullins to Miss Leila Dawson, Rev. J. G. Lowrey officiating. The marriage was witnessed by a host of friends and relatives. The handsome groom with his lovely bride enters this new relation of life with fair prospects of success.

May peace, happiness and prosperity crown their path. WITNESS.

Roup In Poultry.

What is roup? It is catarrh in chickens. Can it be cured easily or at all? Mr. Burr Brown, of Macon, Ga., says it can and furnishes our readers with his remedy, which he claims never fails: When the fowl has gone to roost at night, take one tablespoonful of Darby's Prophylactic Fluid and put it in a half pint of water. Heat the water not hot, but as warm as you can hold your hand in; then lift your chicken from the roost, submerge his head in the warm mixture and hold it there until you hear the fowl gurgle. This puts the water well into his nose, and throat. Put the chicken back on the roost and he will be found all right next morning.

Darby's Prophylactic Fluid is a germicide-antiseptic and arrests the growth of the deposit which is called roup. Try it when next you have the roup in your poultry yard.—Southern Sportsman.

Offer of Gifts Withdrawn.

Because the Advertiser does not believe in carrying through a scheme that does not promise to succeed, it has decided to withdraw its offer of gifts in gold to be distributed Sept. 1st among those making guesses as to the size of the cotton crop. The reason of this withdrawal is that after a month's experience it is not found to be working well, doubtless because several other papers are offering the same inducements, and also because there is less money in circulation than usual. If any person who has sent in a guess desires to have his subscription returned because of the withdrawal of the prizes, his request will be promptly complied with by addressing The Advertiser, Montgomery, Ala.

The Singing Sands.

An examination of the phenomenal sands which emit sounds of a sonorous character, and are familiarly known as "singing sands," has given rise to various theories as to the cause of the peculiarity—that, however, of equality or of the inequality in the size of the grains being now rejected. In the eastern part of Massachusetts is a locality where this kind of sand is found, which does not present the supposed cellular structure associated with such a sound, nor does effervescence of air between moistened surfaces apply to this case. Sonorous mineral, such as clinkstone, is not present, and there is no evidence of electrical phenomena being concerned. The conclusion arrived at is that the sand, instead of being, as ordinarily, composed of rounded particles, is made up of grains with flat and angular surfaces. In the case referred to, a plain surface of felspar is apparent in many of the grains—the supposition being that a certain proportion of quartz and felspar grains is probably adapted to give the sound, while less or more of the component would fail of the result. In one of the islands of the Hebrides a sand of this sort is found which is largely calcareous. Its constitution is a mixture of large and small grains, and the larger ones are of rounded quartz. Many angular fragments of quartz are also contained, and three or four per cent. of the whole are dark granules of chert.—[New York Sun.

Don't be a Slave

To the absurd notion that tyrannizes many minds, that violent drastic purgatives will cure you of co-tiveness. In reality they only aggravate your ailment. For this obstinate trouble, as for biliousness and dyspepsia, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is an all sufficient specific. It is an efficient safeguard against malaria, and cures rheumatism, inaction of the kidneys and nervousness.

SOUTHERN NEWS ITEMS.

The Drift of Her Progress and Prosperity Briefly Noted.

Happenings of Interest Portrayed in Pithy Paragraphs.

Mr. Jeptha H. Rucker, receiver of the Alliance Warehouse Company, of Athens, Ga., received an order from Judge Hutchins Monday to pay 25 per cent. on the claims of all creditors of the company which are not involved in litigation.

A temporary receiver of the Lookout company at Chattanooga, Tenn., was appointed Monday by Circuit Judge Moon. The company's liabilities are $37,000 and its assets much smaller, about $9,000 being due the failed savings bank.

United States Circuit Judge Lurton at Nashville, Monday, ordered the receivers of the Chesapeake and Ohio railway to pay the interest on the first mortgage bonds of the road, due Feb. 1, out of the accrued earnings of the road above running expenses.

The Howard-Harrison Iron works of Jefferson county, Ala., has closed a contract with the city government of Austin, Tex., for $100,000 worth of pipe to be used in the construction of the waterworks there. The iron company will take half of the amount in cash and half in bonds of the city.

A dispatch of Monday from Knoxville, Tenn., says: The sixteen state soldiers charged with the lynching of Richard Drummond, at Coal Creek, last August, will be put on trial at the Anderson county court, at Clinton. Drummond is the miner who was supposed to have assassinated Private Daugherty, and who was afterwards lynched by the soldiers.

A special of Saturday night from Henderson, N. C., says that the coroner's jury which investigated the fatal rear-end collision which occurred there Friday has rendered a verdict that the conductor of the first section of the freight trains was guilty of negligence in not putting out signals in the rear of his section soon enough. It is rumored that a warrant will be issued for him.

A Savannah, Ga., special says: Receivers Comer and Hayes Monday turned over a certain sum, understood to be fifteen thousand dollars, as part of the rental of the Augusta and Savannah railway. The sum of the annual rental is about thirty-six thousand dollars. It is believed now no dividend will be declared, and it is said the Augusta and Savannah men are not satisfied.

At the meeting of the Emma Samson camp of confederate veterans in Gadsden, Ala., Saturday suitable resolutions were passed on the death of W. H. Forney. It was also decided that with the help of other camps funds will be raised to erect a suitable monument in commemoration of his many gallant and heroic deeds during the war and for his devotion to his people since.

The case of the Columbus Southern Railroad Company against the comptroller of the state of Georgia was decided by the United States supreme court at Washington Monday. It was held that the act of 1879 distributing taxes on transitory property of a corporation among different counties, known as the Glenn tax act, was constitutional, and the judgement of the Georgia court was affirmed.

The Darlington and Columbia dispensary cases came up in the supreme court at Columbia, S. C., Monday. Attorney General Buchanan read a suggestion to the effect that there was no utility in deciding on the constitutionality of the law at the time the cases were brought to trial, as the law had been changed, but indicated that he was willing to have a decision as to the constitutionality of the whole matter.

A report was circulated in Knoxville, Tenn., Monday that receiver Fink, General Manager Hudson, Superintendent Vaughan, and other officials of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia railway system had gone to Memphis for the purpose of closing a deal which will give them control of the Little Rock and Memphis railroad. Should the deal be consumated it would give the East Tennesse system a mileage of over two thousand miles.

One of the most horrible disasters in the history of southern Kentucky occurred Tuesday morning, near Crowhickman, a station on the Owensboro and Nashville railroad. A boiler in the portable mill of John Mercer exploded, killing five men and fatally injuring another. The explosion was caused by running cold water into a warm boiler. The bodies of two of the men were found torn to atoms in a tree seventy-five yards from the scene of the accident. All the victims were horribly mangled.

It has developed that Frank Porterfield, convicted of wrecking the Commercial bank, is almost at the end of the sixty days allowed him to remain in the Nashville jail, and that as yet no bill of exceptions has been prepared or any steps taken toward an appeal to the United States supreme court, notice of which had been given. The sixty days in jail expire February 6th, and he will then be taken to Kings county prison in Brooklyn to serve the balance of his term. The bill of exceptions may be filed at a future time, however.

The movement inaugurated in favor of a great exposition in commemoration of the centennial of the admission of Tennessee into the Union took definite shape at Nashville Tuesday night in a meeting of the commercial club, which appointed a committee to call and make arrangements for a convention to be held in about a month to consider the question. The exposition is proposed to be held in 1896 and this coming convention is to be composed of the editors of all the papers in the state, the congressmen and prominent men generally.

Rev. C. W. Lewis, colored, with many aliases, was jailed at Chattanooga Tuesday by Special Pension Examiner Fitzpatrick and the most gigantic pension frauds ever known in the south have been unearthed, which will lead to the arrest of probably a hundred negroes implicated with Lewis in swindling the government. He appeared as a witness in numberless cases and stole a notary's seal and forged the names of notaries to false affidavits. He has operated also in Kansas City, New Orleans and other points. There are twenty-seven charges against him up to date and more coming.

AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Affairs of Government and News of the Departments Discussed.

Notes of Interest Concerning the People and Their General Welfare.

The Wilson tariff bill merged Saturday from the ordeal of amendments to which it has been subjected the last few weeks. The bill is now in its perfected form, so far as the house can perfect it.

A Washington special of Saturday says: The Kearsarge has been ordered from San Domingo to the gulf coast of Nicaragua in consequence of reports that the Honduras Arabs were marching into Nicaragua.

Argument was heard before Judge Cox, of the district supreme court, Monday, on the application of Grand Master Workman Sovereign and T. B. McGuire, of the Knights of Labor, for an injunction to restrain Secretary Carlisle from issuing $50,000,000 bonds, as proposed in his recent bond circular.

The report of the house committee on elections in the Williams-Settle contest from the Fifth district of North Carolina, was submitted Tuesday. The allegations of Williams were that Settle's majority was obtained by irregularities. The report admits the irregularities, but says that they were not sufficient to change the result. Settles will keep his seat.

An effort was made by Mr. Robertson, of Louisiana, to offer his amendment putting cotton bagging on the free list in the house Saturday afternoon, but he failed to get recognition. As the tariff bill now stands there is a duty of 15 per cent. ad valorem on cotton bagging. The southern men are very much disappointed that they failed to get in this amendment and have it voted upon, for they believe it would have been adopted.

The senate, in executive session Tuesday confirmed seven nominations, including those of Charles D. Rogers, to be clerk of the district court of Alaska and Oliver A. Clauss, to be postmaster at Lehighton, Penn., against whom charges were made in the committee. Consuls—Louis H. Brohl, of Texas, at Castania, Italy; Edgar Battle, of Texas, at Acalpulco, Mexico. Postmasters—Tennessee, H. J. Cheney, at Nashville; C. H. Tyle, at Johnson City; Virginia, Bert Bussell, at Pocahontas.

By a vote of 175 to 56 the committee of the whole house adopted the income tax as an amendment to the tariff bill Wednesday. Of the fifty-six votes in the negative not more than about thirty-three were democrats and they consisted of the New Yorkers, men from Pennsylvania and three or four from New England. It was a wonderful victory for the income tax, and it was done by democratic votes. Not more than fifty republicans were present when the vote was taken and some of them did not vote.

The committee on banking and currency of the house has agreed to vote on the bill repealing the state bank tax. The vote will be taken on the bill of Mr. Cox, of Tennessee, which unconditionally repeals the state bank tax. It is understood that Mr. Warner, of New York, will vote with the southern men in favor of reporting the bill. This will give Mr. Cox's bill one majority and a favorable report to the house. Speaker Crisp, who is very much interested in this bill, will arrange for its immediate consideration by the house.

Colonel Thomas Moonlight, of Kansas, who has been appointed minister to Bolivia, has been prominent in western politics for several years. He was at one time adjutant general of Kansas, and during Mr. Cleveland's first term he was appointed governor of Wyoming to succeed Governor Warren. Gov. Moonlight was removed soon after President Harrison's inauguration. He returned to Kansas, where he has since resided. He is about sixty years old and was a colonel in the union army during the war. The position for which Mr. Moonlight has been chosen is the one to which C. H. J. Taylor, colored, also from Kansas, was appointed by the president during the extra session of congress, but who failed of confirmation.

Two Appropriation Bills.

The appropriation bills for pensions and for the District of Columbia were reported to the house Saturday by the committee on appropriations. There were no surprises in the recommendations, although material reductions from the expenditures of last year were made in both bills. The total amount recommended for pension expenses for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1895, is $151,581,570, which is practically in accordance with the last revised estimate of the commissioner. The total is $14,949,780 less than the appropriation for the fiscal year of 1894, which was $166,531,350, but is more than the sum appropriated for pensions in any year before 1893, when the amount was $160,381,787 (including deficiencies.) The appropriation for the District of Columbia, recommended is $4,927,194.97. Last year it was $5,413,233.91, and the estimate of the district commissioners for this year was $5,381,373.91. One-half of the district appropriation is paid by the government, the remainder by the district.

Brigands Make a Big Haul.

The authorities at Durango, Mex., were notified Sunday of a desperate murder and robbery, committed about eighty-five miles west of there, the perpetrators being a band of brigands led by the notorious outlaw, Francisco Reiseda. A mule train, loaded with silver ore from the Santa Maria mines, was on its way to the reducing works, when the bandits made an attack upon the guards, killing the foreman. The other guards fled, leaving the burros, with their precious cargoes, in possession of the bandits, who drove the animals to their rendezvous in the mountains.

THE NEWS IN GENERAL.

Condensed from Our Most Important Telegraphic Advices.

And Presented in Pointed and Readable Paragraphs.

A Washington special of Saturday says: Congressman Oates, of Alabama, announces through the press that he will be a candidate for governor.

A London news special says: The Rye cotton mills, at Oldham county, of Lancaster, seven miles northeast of Manchester, were burned Tuesday morning. The loss is 80,000 pounds ($400,000.)

Last Sunday four churches of Edglewood, a Chicago suburb, took up the question of increased tax on whisky and adopted memorials to congress, asking for a $1.50 tax per gallon on that liquor.

A Washington special of Tuesday says: A heavy snow storm is reported from Boston and all over New Engtand, Lockport, Auburn, Ogdensburg, Watertown, N. Y., Scranton, Pa., and other points. The winds are high and travel and telegraph communications are interrupted.

The Chicago Daily News says that 1,000 Chicago saloons have gone out of business during the past month, owing to the financial depression. As a result many erstwhile mixers of cocktails are dispensing "soft drinks" from soda water fountains, while many others are out of employment.

Burglars Sunday night forced an entrance into the American legation at Rome. The thieves broke open the safe and desks of the minister and consul-general, and then set fire to all the papers in the office. A number of archives were completely destroyed and others partially burned.

According to Saturday's advices the total visible supply of cotton for the world is 4,604,901, bales, of which 4,083,701 are American, against 4,324,268 and 3,887,468, respectively, last year. Receipts at all interior towns, 77,572 bales; receipts on plantations, 141,778 bales; crop in sight, 6,047,780 bales.

At a meeting of democrats opposed to Congressman Springer's renomination, held at Springfield, Ill., Saturday afternoon, ex-Mayor Charles F. Hayes, of Springfield, was decided upon as their choice to contest with Mr. Springer, the Saugamore county delegate. Mr. Hayes has consented to make the race.

Governor William McKinley arrived in Chicago Tuesday to attend the banquet of the Ohio Society. The governor was escorted to the Grand Pacific hotel, where he was greeted by an enthusiastic crowd. He declined to be interviewed upon political subjects, saying that free traders should do the talking at present.

One of the most disastrous fires in the history of Bath, Maine, occurred Sunday in the Sagadahoc house stables. A large part of the business portion of the city was gutted, about twenty buildings being destroyed. The fire spread so rapidly that the department was wholly unable to cope with it. The loss will reach a half million dollars.

In the district court at St. Paul, Minn., Monday, Judge Willis declared the famous anti-ticket scalpers law unconstitutional, holding that the entire act is controlled by unconstitutional provisions. The case came up on the arrest of C. E. Corbett, a ticket scalper, for the sale of a railroad ticket, without having a license and it will go at once to the supreme court.

The Homer oat mills, at Akron, O., owned by the American cereal mills, burned Sunday evening. The mills had not been in operation for some time, but there was much valuable machinery in them. The loss is estimated at $75,000 on buildings and machinery, $15,000 on stock on hand and $10,000 on boxes. Total $100,000. The insurance is $50,000.

Not a single Ohio miner appeared at Columbus Monday to attend the conference called by the operators to consider the wage question. The operators were fully represented, but so far the miners have not been heard from. The wage question seems to be further from settlement than ever, and a resumption of work in the Ohio mines, in the near future, seems very improbable.

An official telegram was received Saturday by the war department of Mexico from Colonel Juan A. Hernandez, commander at the city of Chihuahua, denying the absurd rumors and published dispatches concerning the so-called revolutionary movement in that state. He says the sensational reports are inventions solely for the purpose of disturbing public order.

A Philadelphia dispatch says: In the suit brought by the government to test the legality of the sugar trust's absorption of the Philadelphia refineries, Judge Butler Tuesday decided in favor of the trust. As the case is a test one, it is believed that an appeal to the supreme court will be taken in order that no doubt as to the legality of the purchase of the local refineries shall exist.

A special of Sunday from Columbus, Ohio, says: Ex-Governor Campbell's friends have stated that he will be an active candidate for governor in '95 with a view of securing the presidential nomination in 1896. It is claimed by these friends that the machinery of the administration is behind the movement, and the fact that Campbell dictated all of the federal appointments in Ohio is quoted in support of this claim.

Lieutenant Luca Iranoff and his brother, Stojan, were convicted at Sofia, of conspiracy to murder Prince Ferdinand, of Bulgaria. Luca was sentenced to fifteen years' imprisonment and Stojan to three years. It was the intention of the conspirators to assassinate Prince Ferdinand the day before the arrival at Sofia of the remains of Count Hartenau, formerly Prince Alexander, and once ruler of Bulgaria.

Harry Hill on Trial.

The trial of Harry Hill, the alleged forger, was begun at Atlanta Tuesday morning before Judge Clark.

DURING hard times consumers cannot afford to experiment with inferior, cheap brands of baking powder. It is NOW that the great strength and purity of the ROYAL stand out as a friend in need to those who desire to practise Economy in the Kitchen. Each spoonful does its perfect work. Its increasing sale bears witness that it is a necessity to the prudent—it goes further.

N. B. Grocers say that every dollar invested in Royal Baking Powder is worth a dollar the world over, that it does not consume their capital in dead stock, because it is the great favorite, and sells through all times and seasons.

Salted the Well.

"One of the most productive oil wells in the well-known Titusville district was sold as a salted one," said B. E. Richmond, of Meadville, Pa., to the corridor man at the Southern. "It was in the early days of the oil excitement, and capitalists were eagerly seeking lands where surface indications gave prospects of a find. Three brothers owned a small, sterile farm worth about $500, and they thought they saw a chance to sell out at a big price. They had no indications, but they had enough money to buy a few barrels of oil, and by judicious use of it they made the indications all right. Then they told about it as a great secret, they did not want to sell; what they wanted was to get money enough to sink a well. The bait took, and after a good deal of haggling a party of prospectors bought the farm for $10,000 in cash and 10 per cent of the oil the firm produced during the first two years, they binding themselves to sink two wells at once. When the brothers received the money they arranged that their 10 per cent. should be placed in the banks to their credit, and fearing exposure from their frauds, they went West, and were never heard from. The wells were sunk, and both were gushers, the 10 per cent. was placed in bank, according to agreement, until the sum reached $100,000. Years passed by and nothing heard of the brothers, they fearing to write, as they thought they might be subjected to criminal prosecution for swindling. Finally an uncle learning the true state of affairs, concluded to look them up. If they were dead he would get the money, being the nearest living relative. After two years' search he located one of them in a Colorado poor-house; the other was dead. The pauper was brought home, and lived in wealth for a year, when he died, and the money is now being enjoyed by his relatives."—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

Peculiar Names in Signs.

"It is singular to note the peculiarity of names," says a writer for the St Louis Globe-Democrat. "I was going down a street in St. Louis when I saw that A. Gander was in the grain business, which is certainly appropriate, and it called to mind a number of like instances that I have seen in different sections of the country. In Chattanooga an undertaker is named Gay; in Mobile the former keeper of a cemetery was named Graves. In South Pittsburg there is a law firm named Bright & Early. In Marion, Ind., a law firm which formerly existed was Robb & Steele. In Mount Vernon, Ill., is a sign reading, 'Fly Coffin Shop.' In Rushville a hotel firm used to be Cook & Fry. A sign in Paxton, Ill., reads, "A Sample Lawyer.' In Troy, N. Y., a butcher is named Calfkiller. Near Lynn, Mass., two farmers got into a lawsuit which was entitled Haymaker vs. Turnipseed. A man named Apple is in the fruit business at Indianapolis. Sickman is the name of a doctor in Cincinnati. Hoss & Harness is a livery stable firm in Kokomo, Ind. A man named Boatman runs a ferry in Mississippi. William Shakespeare is a barber in Philadelphia. Charles Lamb now conducts a peanut stand in Chicago. George Washington is a blacksmith in Savannah, and Charles Dickens is a gambler in the far west. All of which leads to the conclusion, in my mind, that there is nothing in a name."

THE NEWS IN GENERAL.

Condensed from Our Most Important Telegraphic Advices

And Presented in Pointed and Readable Paragraphs.

In many of the churches of the various denominations at Philadelphia Sunday the death of George W. Childs was feelingly referred to by the officiating clergymen, and his passing away was pronounced a public loss and bereavment.

At New York Tuesday morning, in accordance with the decision of United States Judge Lacomb, entered in the case of W. P. Clyde and others, Receiver Oakman, of the Richmond and West Point Terminal company, sold the stocks, bonds, judgments, claims, etc., belonging to the company at the real estate exchange.

A dispatch from Rio Janeiro received at London late Monday evening says that Admiral DeGama has given forty-eight hours' notice that he will blockade Rio and has disposed his fleet accordingly. This step is intended to assert belligerent rights for the insurgents. The action of the foreign commanders is awaited with anxiety.

Fire at Omaha, Neb., Saturday afternoon ruined a half block in the best business part of the city, and the total loss will reach at least $350,000. The Boston store loss is estimated at $21,000. Los Angeles liquor house about $50,000, church and convent $50,000, Haydens Bros.' loss is about $35,000, Thompson, Bell & Co., claim about $75,000 damages. All losses are fairly well insured.

Lichman Bros. & Co., dry goods and furniture dealers of Brooklyn, N. Y., failed Saturday morning. The firm could not collect from its debtors and could not extend its notes. The firm was reorganized on August 25th last with a capital of $600,000. The assets are put at $600,000 and the liabilities at $400,000. The firm employed 386 persons. It was one of the largest houses of the kind in Brooklyn.

The death of Mr. Childs will not alter the policy of the The Public Ledger, nor will any changes be made in the management of the paper. By an agreement entered into by Mr. Childs and the late Anthony J. Drexel, and in accordance with a provision of the latter's will, the Drexel estate will now purchase from Mrs. Child's the interest Mr. Childs held in The Ledger and will accordingly own the paper absolutely.

A meeting was held at New Orleans Monday of delegates from the Louisiana Sugar and Rice Exchange, bureau of freight and transportation, stock exchange, Mechanics, Dealers and Lumbermen's exchange, Wholesale Grocers' Association, clearing house, cotton exchange, Steamboatmen's association, produce exchange, board of trade and trunk railroad lines for the purpose of giving expression to their views concerning the legislation of congress in reference to sugar.

A New York dispatch of Tuesday says: Dr. T. DeWitt Talmage will deliver his farewell discourse in the Tabernacle on the first Sunday in March and will start on a tour in the far east with his wife and two daughters about April 1. An overland journey will be made to San Francisco, after which Honolulu, New Zealand, Australia, India and the Fiji islands will be taken in. He will return by way of the continent of Europe and expects to reach Brooklyn again about October.

The conference of health authorities called by President Oliphant, of the Louisiana state board of health, for the purpose of adopting quarantine measures and restrictions finished their labors Saturday morning and adjourned. A committee report was adopted recommending that medical inspectors be stationed at all ports of the West Indies, Central and South America, from which fruit is shipped. That all vessels be manned by acclimated crews; providing regulations to be observed in case of fever. Vessels carrying passengers shall forfeit all special privileges.

Advices of Tuesday from Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, state that President Preisoto has offered to pardon privates belonging to the insurgent forces who apply for clemency within two months. Extraordinary, but unsuccessful efforts have been made to induce members of the regular army to desert the government and to join the insurgents' forces. When it was thought the regulars would turn against the government the insurgent fleet was brought close to the shore in order that a force might be speedily landed to co-operate with the troops. The insurgents were confident of success, but the plan to get the aid of the regular troops failed absolutely.

STREET CARS ABLAZE.

Electric Railway Shops Burned at Cincinnati.

The Avandale Street Railway car sheds and machine shops at Cincinnati were burned Friday morning, entailing a loss estimated at $175,000. There were 74 or 80 cars in the sheds, of which thirty were motor cars. Nearly all were new summer cars of the latest design. An effort was made to push the cars out of the building, but the blaze was too hot, and the firemen and volunteers were driven back. In the basement were the machine shops and boiler room, and these with their contents, were entirely destroyed. The insurance is about $150,000.

A statistician estimates that Americans expend $400,000 a day for amusements.

DEATH OF CHILDS.

The Beloved Philanthropist Passed Peacefully from Earth.

The spirit of George W. Childs, the world renowned philanthropist, passed peacefully from earth Saturday morning at his home in Philadelphia.

George W. Childs was about sixty-three years old. He was known all over the country as the proprietor of The Public Ledger, of Philadelphia, and as a philanthropist. He made his paper from the day he took hold of it, a family paper. Absolute accuracy in everything was insisted upon by Mr. Childs. He was always a conservative man in his ideas, but this does not mean that he was not enterprising. In his younger days he was the proprietor of a book store. This brought him into association with literary people and finally led him into the purchase of The Public Ledger, a paper which, at that time, was financially embarrassed. Under the careful management of Mr. Childs it became a paying property, and in a few years made him a millionaire.

Although a man of great wealth no one was less ostentatious than he was. He maintained three homes, one in Philadelphia, a country place, near Bryn Mawr, a few miles out of Philadelphia on the Pennsylvania Central, and a third at Long Branch. He was especially fond of his country home which is one of the most beautiful in America.

Mr. Childs was a lavish host. He has entertained more celebrities than any other American, and his hospitality was royal. He was a close friend of General Grant's, and could have had any office within the president's giving for the asking. Indeed General Grant insisted upon honoring him with some high appointment, but Mr. Childs modestly declined it. He had a positive aversion to public office and declared that he would not surrender the contentment of private life for any public office with its accompanying annoyances.

Mr. Childs occupies a warm place in the affection of the printers of America. He paid his men a higher price than the union scale and when they volunteered to accept a lower price than he was paying, told them that he did not want to reduce their wages and he did not. A few years ago he made the National Typographical Union a present of many thousand dollars to build a home for aged printers. To all his employes he was kind. So long as a man did his duty he held his place with George W. Childs. He helped all his employes buy their own homes and was surrounded by a devoted set of men.

For many years Mr. Childs was associated with the late Anthony J. Drexel, the millionaire banker. They were close friends and business partners. Mr. Drexel's death was a severe blow to Mr. Childs.

The impression that Mr. Childs was English born is incorrect. He is a native American and an intense American, though not lacking in appreciation of foreigners of ability. Like many a wealthy man, he had a hobby, which he indulged. This was collecting timepieces, and in his private office in the Ledger building he has an amazing collection of clocks.

Mr. Child's charities have been manifold. His life has been pure and unostentatious. In his death his city will lose one of its most foremost men and his country one of the finest characters—a man who, though he never was in public station, is known and honored from ocean to ocean.

REX IN HIS GLORY.

The Mardi Gras Carnival Opens at New Orleans.

His majesty, Rex, was in full possession of his royal carnival city Tuesday, and New Orleans turned aside from business to pay homage to the king of mirth. Mardi gras is legal holiday in the state and all the banks, exchanges, public buildings and stores were closed. The weather was all that that a fastidious monarch might require. It was bright and balmy, the chill of the early morning giving way as the sun came up from the east in all its warmth and splendor. There were present in the city many distinguished strangers, including General Schoffeld, Senators Manderson and McMillan, Phil T. Harrahan, and a large delegation of railroad men; Dr. Keely, of bi-chloride of gold fame, and a host of militaty and lay strangers, who watched the parade from the clubs and other points of vantage along the route.

It was 11 o'clock when Rex appeared. He came out from his den on Calliope street with his long train of beautiful cars and with gay courtiers, a royal retinue and and a host of bands making martial music. The king was greeted with the utmost enthusiasm on all sides. There were nineteen floats in the procession. The carnival came to a close at night with a brilliant pageant and a series of balls that were social triumphs. The day passed without a single serious accident and in that respect the carnival was an exception.

Hill Gets Seven Years.

Harry Hill, in whose case the jury returned a verdict of guilty of forgery, was sentenced at noon Monday by Judge Richard Clark at Atlanta to seven years in the penitentiary. Hill will probably apply for a new trial, but it will be through new attorneys, Mr. Ben Hill and Mr. Tinsley Rucker having severed their connection with the case. The remarks of Judge Clark, Mr. Ben Hill, and of the prisoner, incident to the passing of the sentence, were full of dramatic interest. Hill emphatically declared his innocence of the charge.

Over one million letters were collected from the World's Fair post office in August.

OUR LATEST DISPATCHES.

The Happenings of a Day Chronicled in Brief and Concise Paragraphs

And Containing the Gist of the News From All Parts of the World.

Fire Wednesday morning destroyed the greater portion of the business houses of Montgomery, Mo. Seventeen stores and office buildings were burned. The loss is $130,000; insurance, about half.

The Dublin, Texas, Cotton Compress was burned Tuesday. It was completely destroyed. The property was stocked up to about $150,000, though the orignal cost was only about $40,000. The insurance is unknown.

The senate finally disposed of the election bill Wednesday. It passed by a majority of eleven. The populists voted with the democrats to repeal the laws. The bill now goes to the president as no amendments were added by the senate.

Asa Ray, a leading merchant of Albertville, Ala., was burned out Tuesday night, presumably by an incendiary. His store and stock are a total loss. The little city had a narrow escape from being totally destroyed, but was saved by hard work.

A dispatch of Wednesday from San Luis, Patozi, Mexico, states that Lewis F. Lawrence, a mining man who came there from Pennsylvania about eighteen months ago, was attacked by a band of robbers near Guadalcazar, a small town northwest of San Luis, and murdered and robbed.

The strike of the longshoremen at Brunswick, Ga., has not resulted as disastrously to shipping as was expected. Several gangs are at work for less wages than the longshoremen struck for, and all shipping will progress without serious consequences. The union men, however, are still out.

A Chicago dispatch of Wednesday says: W. W. Winchell, the local head of the Salvation Army, has summoned Colonel Robert G. Ingersoll to show cause why he is the "Prince of Paganism." It is to be a mock trial. A judge and jury will be selected, and the plaintiff and the defendant will be represented by counsel.

Fred Gerding, who created quite a sensation at Knoxville, Tenn., a short while ago by attempting to hold up and rob an express train on the Knoxville and Ohio railway, was found guilty and sentenced to two years in the penitentiary by the Anderson county court in Clinton Wednesday morning. His accomplice in the crime, Will Smith, was killed when the attempt was made by the officers who were on the train at the time.

Bill Harden, Charles Fennell, colored; John Mongazor, Jordan Cassady, white, broke jail at Swainsboro, Ga., Tuesday night and made their escape They burned the lock out of the door up stairs and broke the lower jail doors with crowbars. Wednesday morning the jail doors were found standing wide open and all the prisoners were gone. Three of the prisoners were charged with robbery and Fennell with murder.

HARRY HILL GUILTY.

Outcome of the Sensational Forgery Trial at Atlanta.

The trial of Harry Hill for forgery was concluded at Atlanta saturday. A verdict of guilty was returned by the jury.

The trial developed a variety of sensations. Hill, in a statement which he read, declared that Mrs. Fanny Porter had given him money on various occasions. The first that she ever gave him was $100, which she handed him in the Dairy Kitchen, New York, where they were lunching. That was in 1886. The following Christmas she made him a present of $100. The next year, 1887, she gave him $750. Of this she handed him $500 at her home in Atlanta and the other $250 she put in his pocket during a carriage drive. In 1889 Hill said he accompanied her part of the way to Macon. On parting she handed him an envelope which, upon opening, he found contained $300. In 1890 he received a letter from Mrs. Porter containing $350 and later in the pear she sent him $400 by express. In 1891 Mrs. Porter made the first note, which was for $1,200. This Hill discounted.

Hill proceeded to detail the aid which Mrs. Porter had rendered him from time to time; how she became a member of the Wilson Whisky company unknown to her husband and brother. This company was a bad investment and cost Mrs. Porter heavily, as neither of the other members of the concern had anything to put in it. Probably ten notes were made. Hill declared that in each instance Mrs. Porter either signed them or he signed them in her presence with her consent. Hill asserted, dramatically, that he never forged her name to a single and protested his innocence of the charge.

THEIR SALARIES RESTORED.

Shopmen and Trainmen of the East Tennessee Get their Old Wages.

General Manager Hudson, of the East Tennessee, Virginia & Georgia railroad system announced Friday that the wages of shopmen and trainmen on his line were restored on the first of the month, as agreed upon when reduced 10 per cent in August last. He says that the road is not able to restore the salaries, but that Receiver Quirk wishes to make good his promises. The restoration affects only trainmen and shopmen.

Everybody should read the paper and keep up with the times.

I Will Think of You.

I will think of you, my sweetheart, when the shadows softly creep,
And the crooning chirp of mother bird bid tiny ones to sleep,
And the twinkling glist'ning starlight throws a halo tender, sweet,
Caressing nodding flowers blooming brightly at my feet.

I will think of you, my sweetheart, for I know you think of me,
Throughout the breadth of daylight 'till all its suntips flee;
And the radiance of the morning glides so softly from its place,
To where sable shades 're waiting, the brightness to embrace.

I will think of you, my sweetheart, for in all this world today
There's no thoughts like thoughts of you can lighten up my way,
Can ease the heavy burden—can cause the clouds to part—
Can let the rays of God's light in—so I think of you, sweetheart.

EDWARD N. WOOD, in Atlanta Constitution.

FORGIVENESS.

BY FRANCOIS COPPEE.

In the house, a big hive of work people, situated in the Rue Delambre, where for six months Tony Robec had occupied a room, everyone thought that he was a widower. He could not have been a widower very long, for his little boy Adrien, who lived with him and who was always well cared for, was not more than 6 years old. Yet neither of them wore mourning.

Early every day Tony Robec, who was employed as a compositor in a printing house in the Quartier Latin, left his room with the child still half asleep on his shoulder. He left the little one at school and called for him again at night when returning from work. Then they went shopping together, after which they shut themselves up in their garret, and nothing more was seen of them until the following morning.

The kind-hearted gossips were full of pity for the poor fellow. He couldn't be more than 40 and was still good looking, although sad and pale and with silver streaks in his black beard. Behind his back they said: "The man ought to marry again."

They wished to make his acquaintance. Generally this is not difficult in such a house, where the tenants live with open doors. But Tony had a very reserved manner, and bowed so distantly and coldly—although politely—to his neighbors when he met them on the stairs that they were afraid to approach him.

"No, ladies," said the doorkeeper, who was inclined to be sentimental, "that widower will never marry again, mark my words. The other Sunday I passed him in the cemetery at Montparnasse. His wife is doubtless buried there. It cut me to the heart to see the poor man with the motherless little chap at his side. He must have doted on his wife."

Certainly Tony had been very devoted to his wife, and would not be consoled now that he had lost her—but he was not a widower.

His life had been simple, but not by any means happy. Although a conscientious workman he was not particularly good at his trade, and therefore until he was 30 he had not succeeded in making a tolerably good living, and could not think of marrying. When he did resolve to marry, he ought to have chosen a sensible, economical wife, who had known want as he had. But love does not occupy itself with such trifles. Tony lost his head over a pretty, light-minded, light-hearted flower girl of 19, honest, doubtless, but frivolous, and thinking more of her toilet than of anything else under the sun. It must be admitted, however, that she could make a dress out of a few scraps of stuff.

He had saved a little money with which to start housekeeping. Among other things he bought a big cupboard with a glass door, in which his wife could admire herself the whole day.

They were married and at first lived very happily. They had two modest rooms on the fifth floor of a house in the Boulevard de Port Royal, with a little balcony from which they had a bird's-eye view of Paris. Every night on leaving work Tony Robec disguised his workman's clothes under a smart overcoat and waited for his wife, who presently appeared from her little booth in the Rue Saint-Honore, and arm in arm they returned to their humble home.

At last a son was born and was put out to nurse. The parents went to see him once a fortnight. But at the end of a year the child died of convulsions. The parents were, however, soon afterward consoled by the birth of little Adrien. Having had such a sad existence, Clementine resolved to bring up the child herself, and gave up her little store in order to be able to attend to her baby. She took in work, but did not make more than half of what she had previously earned. Nevertheless, she continued to dress well. In vain did Tony work desperately; the household became embarrassed and steeped in debt. When the child was weaned he was sent out during the day to a children's asylum, and the mother often unoccupied, became tired of her inactivity. Just think of her poor husband, old before his time, worn out with working for and worrying about his giddy, pretty wife of 23.

One evening when Tony entered the house with the child, whom he had picked up at the asylum as he had passed, he found an envelope on the mantelpiece, from which, when he opened it, fell Clementine's wedding ring. In the letter she bade good-by to her husband and child and begged their forgiveness.

Tony's wife fled in the beginning of May. At the end of July, Tony sold the greater part of his furniture in order to pay his debts, and moved into the Rue Delambre.

Toward the end of September he received a letter from his wife—four incoherent and desperate pages plentifully washed with tears—in which she announced that she had repented and implored pardon. This was all very painful to Tony, but he was proud, and the letter remained unanswered.

He heard no more from Clementine. Christmas eve he went, as was his custom, to the cemetery at Montparnasse, there to place on the grave of his dead child a few frozen violets and roses. For the first time Tony went alone with the child, and, strange as it may seem, on entering the cemetery he suffered more poignantly than ever before the absence of that wife who had so cruelly deceived him. Where is she now and what is she doing?" thought he.

On arriving at the grave he started, for at the foot of it were strewn several little playthings such as the poor give to their children—trumpet, a jack-in-the-box, and a whistle. They had evidently just been placed there, for they were quite new.

"Oh, what pretty playthings!" cried little Adrien excitedly. But his father, having detected a scrap of paper pinned to one of the toys, opened it and read: "For Adrien, from his brother Felix, who is now with the child of Christ."

Suddenly he found the boy pressing against him and murmuring, "Mamma." There, only a few paces away, under a clump of cypress trees, knelt the mother. She was clad in a wretched dress and a thin shawl. Her eyes were sunken and her cheeks hollow and pale. She was looking at her husband, and her clasped hands were stretched toward him in supplication. Tony pushed the boy gently toward her, saying: "Adrien, go kiss your mother."

The poor creature strained the child convulsively to her breast and covered him with kisses. Then rising and turning toward her husband, but always with the air of a supplant, she said: "How good of you!"

But he, already at her side, said huskily, almost harshly: "Don't talk. Take my arm."

It is not far from the cemetery to the Rue Delambre, and they walked quickly and without uttering a word. The child, engrossed in his newly-found treasure, trotted along at their side, thinking only of his toys.

When they reached the house the door-keeper was standing on the steps.

"Madam," said Tony to her, "this is my wife. She has been six months in the country with her mother, who was ill, and now she has come back to live with me."

When they reached the room Tony made his wife sit down in the only arm chair, placed the boy in her lap, and opened a drawer from which he took an old cardboard box. Out of this he took the wedding ring, which he pressed on his wife's finger. Then, without a word of reproach or bitterness about the sorrowful past, silently, gravely, with the overflowing generosity of a simple, childlike heart, he gently pressed his lips to her forehead as the seal of his forgiveness.—[Translated for Romance.

The Monkey Laughed.

In speaking of monkeys, Mr. Alchion said that Prof. Garner has already succeeded in finding 302 words in the monkey vocabulary. "I think he will be successful," said Mr. Alchion, "in solving the monkey tongue. The sailors have always said that a monkey could talk, but was afraid if he showed any linguistic proclivities or displayed any charming flow of language that he would be made to work. I know that monkeys communicate by signs made with the tongue, but I could not understand what they meant to convey with each other. I was riding in a canoe or pirogue one day in British Honduras along a very small stream in the interior of the country—in the very heart of monkeyland.

Those little boats are easily capsized, and in fact, it only takes a sneeze to turn one over. We passed under a bending bough. A native was paddling the boat. He told me to watch out for my head. I did not hear in time, and when I stooped the boat turned over in the water. At the instant of the predicament a big monkey near the bank broke into laughter. He laughed four or five times distinctly, and seemed to be aware of the fact that I was standing waist deep in water and wet from head to foot. There is no doubt about the Professor finding the language of the monkey."—[New Orleans Picayune.

They Had to Part on the Side.

Considerable of a stir was experienced one day recently in the State Normal School at Winona, Minn. By a preconcerted arrangement a large number of the lady students came to school with their hair done up on the top of their heads in old-fashioned style. Some of the young men got wind of what the girls were to do, and in the spirit of mischief, nearly all the boys parted their hair in the middle before entering the assembly room. The unusual appearance of both sexes caused some laughter, and members of the faculty present, fearing that discipline would be destroyed, sent the young men to the president's office, where they were given the choice of leaving the school or parting their hair on the sides as usual.

The only woolen mill in South Africa is at Natal. It produces an average of 1,800 yards of cloth per month.

AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Affairs of Government and News of the Departments Discussed.

Notes of Interest Concerning the People and Their General Welfare.

On account of the pressure of public business the president could not attend the funeral services of Mr. Childs in Philadelphia.

Once more action on the nomination of Peckham was deferred by the judiciary committee at Tuesday's meeting. The matter went over for one week.

The senate committee on the judiciary Monday took no action on the case of Wheeler H. Peckham, nominated to be associate justice of the supreme court, but permitted it to go over until a special meeting Tuesday morning.

The bill to restore one thousand railway mail clerks dismissed from service in the spring of 1893 to their former position was ordered favorably reported by the house judiciary committee Friday by a vote of 6 to 3—a strict party vote.

The president Tuesday sent to the senate the following nominations of postmasters: Alabama, William O. Monroe, Eutaw; Mississippi, Lucy E. Harris, Hazlehurst; Tennessee, L. W. Bates, St. Elmo; D. C. Morris, Morristown.

The pension bureau at Washington has been notified by Special Examiner Davis, of Jacksonville, Fla., of the arrest of Ben Davis, of Pensacola, Fla., for conspiracy, transmitting false papers, and making false affidavits in a pension claim. He has been committed to jail in default of $2,000 bail.

Perhaps the most important fight in the senate will be over the sugar schedule, both Louisiana senators having declared that if a duty is not placed on sugar they will vote against the bill. The bill can be adopted without either of their votes, for all three populist senators will vote for it.

The secretary of the treasury sent to the house Monday a communication from the secretary of the navy, submitting an estimate of an appropriation of $72,365 for the construction of a fire-proof warehouse at the Norfolk, Va., navy yard. The building is to replace one destroyed by fire in December last.

It is not probable that the treasury department will receive the money from the sale of the bonds before the 15th. In round figures it will take in $58,000,000 unless gold is drawn out of the treasury in redeming legal tender notes in large quantities between now and that time. The sale of bonds will increase the gold reserve to something near $120,000,000.

A Washington special says: Effort to repeal tax on state bank circulation was beaten in the committee on banking Friday by a vote of eight to nine. The vote was taken on the bill of Representative Clark, of Tennessee, which relieves state banks from any tax on their circulation, but does not extend the relief to circulation issued by private individuals or corporations. The result is regarded as cutting off the possibility of favorable state bank legislation in the present congress.

A TOUGH old soldier was run over by a cab in the streets of Paris the other day. Jean Louis Leclerc is his name. He was born in April, 1793, and served with Napoleon at Waterloo. When taken to the hospital he seemed to be very weak and to be suffering terribly. In view of his great age, the doctors thought he must succumb, but the old fellow soon rallied, and on the day after the accident was able to go back to his home in the Rue du Rhin. So lightly did he treat the affair that he willingly accepted an offer from the driver, who was to blame, of one dollar, by way of solatium. "You see," he said, "I hate going to law at my age, although I do not despair of living to be 120."

In the courtyard of the palace of Versailles is a clock with one hand called "L'Horloge de la Mort du Roi." It contains no works, but consists merely of a face in the form of a sun surrounded by rays. On the death of a king the hand is set to the moment of his demise and remains unaltered till his successor has joined him in the grave. This custom originated under Louis XIII. and continued till the revolution. It was revived on the death of Louis XVIII. and the hand still continues fixed on the precise moment of that monarch's death.

PERSONAL.

On the first of April 1893, I sold out my interest in the Alabama Printing Company at Montgomery. I never expected to find it necessary to have any further connection with that business, but the parties to whom I sold were unable to make the payments and I have found it impossible to save my valuable interests in that company without giving to it a large share of my personal attention. This means of course, that I can give but little time to my interests in Clanton for the present, at least. But my partner, Mr. Loveless being at his post at all times in Clanton is a guarantee that the VIEW will loose none of its influence as a power for good in the county. I appreciate the hearty confidence and support extended me by all the citizens of the county and beg that the same spirit shall be extended Mr. Loveless.

I have deemed it best for the above cause to resign as County Solicitor, so as to allow the appointment of a State's Attorney, who will at all times be in the county. I appreciate greatly the courtesy entended me by the Probate Judge, Sheriff and my brother attorneys. The law firm of Hare and Loveless will continue as at present, Mr. Loveless keeping his office in Clanton, while I shall open an office on 22 Dexter Ave, Montgomery.

The Republicans say that they will not support Kolb.

Columbiana has won the fight for the court house in Shelby.

Bowman says that it will take every Jeffersonian, every Populist and a few dead horses to win the fight this time.

Kolb has again been nominated by his party for Governor. W. S. Reese, Jr., for Attorney General with the balance of the ticket as in 1892.

Shelby used the Sayre election law in its late court house election and so far as we could learn it gives entire satisfaction. If people will be sensible and only wait until it has been fully tried before condemning it that law will yet be pronounced a blessing to the country.

Some of our Democratic, and all the Populite papers delight to copy from the Sheffield Reaper whenever it has a criticism on Cleveland. Unless our information is incorrect, the editor, while claiming to edit a Democratic paper, so as to catch Democratic patronage, is himself a life long Republican. Knowing this fact it is easy to read between the lines and even on the lines the cause leading to his attack on our Democratic President. True Democrats may criticise plainly the positions of our leaders, yet they rarely go so far as to heap abuse upon them at every opportunity.

Everywhere do we see predictions of the coming good times in the South. All the unbiased northern papers see and give utterance to the fact that the South will be the first to recover from the present depression and that it will be in a better condition than ever before. The people of the South realize this already, and believe that when the Democrats all agree, which they are upon the verge of doing; when there is less idle talk and more honest hard work for the right, and when Wm. C. Oates, of America, is nominated and elected to the gubernatorial chair of Alabama, the people of the South in general and of Alabama in particular will cease to "grunt and sweat under a weary life" and be once more united in one common cause, with heart to heart and brotherly love for one another. Then, in that blissful state when all will be contentment and good will, who will say that life is not worth living and that Alabama is not the State of all States. Let every Democrat lend his aid to the good work before us and the people will reap an abundant harvest as their reward.

GETTING TOGETHER.

Washington Special to Atlanta Journal.

It can be truthfully stated that the feeling between Mr. Cleveland and many of the Democrats in Congress was not particularly cordial during his first administration, nor has there been until recently any improvement in this one.

But that they both think more kindly of each other, is becoming more and more apparent each succeeding day. Senators and Congressmen who, in the public estimation, at least have been unutterably hostile to the executive, and who never went to the White House before except to attend the State functions, call early and often and are welcome.

There are many reasons given for this change—a different one, in fact, for each man—but it probably comes from a realization of the fact that, as Senator Morgan says, "party harmony is indispensible."

There was a very good feeling existing between the President and the party until the silver fight of the extra session. It has naturally taken sometime for the bad scars made at that time to heal. There were things said by both Senators and Congressmen in the heat of debate which propably would have been left unsaid upon reflection, but they have been forgotten all around in the honest desire which is shown by all the members of the party to stand together and present a united front to the enemy.

There was never a more opportune time for this feeling, which now thoroughly permeates the Democratic side of both chambers. They realize that every Democratic kicker, every anti-administrationalist, is an assistant Republican.

There is criticism for some things done, and some things left undone by this administration, but every Democrat realizes that the party to which he belongs stands or falls by the record which is now being made.

The President and the party are in accord—hearty accord—on every issue except that of silver and that is settled so far as this Congress is concerned.

A Congressman from Georgia, one who voted for all the bland amendments, said to me yesterday:

"Free silver is very popular in Georgia, but it is not more popular than the Democratic party or a Democratic administration. If the tactics of certain men and certain newspapers in the State are continued, we will not have another Democratic administration in a quarter of a century. If there was anything to be gained politically by impugning the motives of the President, and the prominent leaders of the party, there might be some excuse, but its only effect can be but damaging, causing distrust among the masses for the party."

This seems to be the light in which all the public men here see the situation. This is more than true of the Democratic side of the Senate, which has always been described as "the hot bed of anti-Clevelandism."

Such a staunch advocate of free silver as was, and still is, Senator Morgan has this to say of the situation:

"The Democrats in the Senate are supporting the administration and supporting it heartily.

"Any one of us would go to great lengths and sacrifices to do so. Party harmony is not only desirable and necessary, but absolutely indispensible. We must have it."

Of course Senator Morgan's position on the silver question is well known, and the Senator has no regrets or excuses. So far as patronage is concerned he said: "I have not opposed the administration in but one instance, and in that I kept quiet." He said he was not a patronage man. He made few requests, except those in which the majority of the delegation joined. He had no personal requests to make.

Prominent among the Southern Senators who opposed the repeal of the purchasing clause of the Sherman act, was Senator Isham G. Harris of Tennessee.

In discussing party questions with him yesterday he said:

"I believe that the Democrats of the Senate, in the main heartily favor the tariff bill as it came from the House. There is some discussion as to the income tax and other matters, but it will eventually pass."

In regard to the "friction," said to exist between the administration and the Senate, he said:

"There is not, that I have been able to discover, any friction between the Democratic Senators and the White House. If the silver fight came up again, I would take the same position, but I do not think that it has caused any bitterness or resentment at either end of the avenue. I am far from having any prejudice against the President or any of his cabinet officers, and I do not think there is any felt against me or the Senate."

These are only sample talks of the hearty desire the Democrats have to get together and support the administration.

The Democrats in the future who jump over the traces, will be very effectually squelched. It has taken the party a long time to learn that "in unity there is strength."

It is to be hoped that the lesson will not soon be forgotten.

The little Journal is bent upon downing the big Advertiser. It is waxing warm over the Advertiser's $5,000 affair and seems to be trying to prove that that paper feels an interest in the candidacy of Col. Oates because of pecuniary obligations. If the Advertiser were to receive a $5,000 loan for every time it has been right, the old grandma would have enough money to make all the children independent for the remainder of their natural lives.

The latest from Washington is that General Shelley will offer for the Senate to succeed Senator Morgan and favor the nomination of Col. Oates for Governor.

[Since the above was written it has developed that it was only a rumor. General Shelley in an interview with an Age-Herald reporter has denied that he had any intention of entering the race for Senator.]

MINISTERS OF THE GOSPEL

What Alabamians Say About The Electropoise.

Rev. C. W. O'Hara, Columbiana: I cannot find language with which to express the inestimable value of this wonderful instrument—the Electropoise.

Rev. S. J. Knowles, Headland, "The value of the Electropoise is inestimable."

Rev. Jas. A. Heard, Florence: "I am a walking advertisement of the Electropoise."

Rev. L. A. Dorsey, Lafayette: Every family ought to have an Electropoise."

Rev. J. T. Beard, Birmingham: "I take pleasure in saying the Electropoise gave me permanent relief from neuralgia of the stomach and bowels."

Rev. W. C. Hearn, Talladega: "My wife and I used the Electropoise with good results."

Rev. W. M. Wharton, formerly of Montgomery: "I have used the Electropoise with great benefit to my health."

If you will send your name or that of some invalid friend, we will send you copies of letters from the above parties and from hundreds of others; people you know from every section of this and other States, testifying to the curative powers of the Electropoise.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Local news is scarce this week.

S. W. Catts was in Verbena Sunday.

There are nine prisoners in the county jail.

Mr. J. T. Mullins has been on a visit here.

Mr. W. I. Mullins visited Verbena Sunday.

Mr. E. T. Gullahorn was in Verbena last week.

Miss Eulah Rasberry has been visiting Strasburg.

Mr. W. J. Martin is clerking in the probate office.

Mr. B. F. Hammond, of Lily, was in town Tuesday.

Commissioners court convened Monday and Tuesday.

Mr. D. F. Jacks, of Verbena, was in the city Monday.

Mr. J. Bice, of Strasburg, was in this city Monday.

Mr. H. O. Gullahorn was a visitor to Verbena last week.

Mr. John Duke, of Georgia, visited relatives here Tuesday.

Mr. David Marbury spent a few hours in Clanton Sunday.

Rev. J. F. Smith held services at the Episcopal Church last Tuesday evening.

Mr. J. D. Hand and L. C. Day, of Jemison, were in Clanton Monday on trades.

Owing to bad weather, no services were held at any of the Clanton Churches Sunday.

A heavy rain accompanied by hard wind fell here Sunday night. The wind did considerable damage to fences, etc.

Mr. J. M. Woolley, of Jemison, was in town last week, wearing that habitual smile, and circulating among his friends.

At the party at Capt. W. A. Middleton's last Friday night, a most enjoyable evening was spent by the young people present.

Mr. Wm. Harry, of Chilton County, a former resident of Rockford was shaking hands with friends in town this week.—Coosa Advocate.

The senior wants a few bushels of potatoes and a few gallons of molasses and a few pounds of meat from those subscribers who wish to pay their subscription in one of those products.

A tramp who was up before Justice Stewart Monday was given twenty minutes to leave town under penalty of incarceration. It is useless to say that he availed himself of the opportunity to "git."

The VIEW devotes this week a column to the University School in the interest of educational matters. It will be edited by the scholars of the University, thus giving them the opportunity to display their editorial ability.

Two communications, one from Stanton and one from Jemison are not published because no names were signed to them. This paper is glad to receive these letters, but positively will not publish them unless the writer's name is signed.

Mr. Tipton Mullins has severed his connection as a partner in the firm of Mullins Brothers, though will still remain with the firm, having the position of bookkeeper. We are glad that Clanton can still claim him as a fellow citizen.

Some one attempted to break into W. F. Culp's store Tuesday night. With the use of an auger, a hole about three inches square was made in the back door just under the bar, and then abandoned. The party was either frightened away or did not know how near he came to accomplishing his purpose. The postoffice is in Mr. Culp's store. No clue has been found.

Some of the boys here are going to have a neck broken, leg broken or limb cut off if they do not quit jumping freight trains. It is the duty of parties seeing boys jumping trains to inform their parents of the fact. It is the only method they have of learning it, and the information would be gratefully received. It seems after the sad accident which so recently happened here in consequence of train jumping, that it would serve as a warning against this dangerous business.

Notice.

I want six more log teams and ten more lumber teams. Apply to me at my mill 2½ miles east of Verbena.

EDITORIAL STAFF.

YOUNG LADIES,
Miss Minnie Pinkard,
Miss Mattie S. Chandler.

YOUNG MEN,
Rev. T. B. Hayne, Prof. E. B. Denson, Master D. M. Foshee.

The thoughtful Professor McMorries is preparing for the heat of summer by transplanting shades trees in front of the University School building. This adds to the beauty as well as the comfort of the campus.

***

The beautiful new window shades add to the looks of the school building.

***

The school house is very comfortable, it being warmed with four large stoves.

***

There is no excuse for poor lessons, as everything about the school house is very comfortable and pleasant.

***

The moral influence of the University is excellent. We read from the Bible every morning the old, old story of love and faith, and begin the record of each day by calling down the blessings of God upon each pupil. The professors teach the girls and young ladies that modesty, patience and gentleness are the charms of woman; and the young men that an honest conscience is every man's first and highest right. That his sovereignty rests beneath his hat, and that no splendor can rob him and no force can justify the surrender of the simplest right of a free and independent citizen.

***

The pupils in the advance department are boys and girls old enough to see the importance of education. They are very studious, and interest among them is ever increasing. This department makes a specialty of Language, Nat. Science and Mathematics. Dr. McMorries spares no pains in giving instructions. His thorough education and experience as a teacher renders him a very competent instructor.

***

The Intermediate Department is taught by the handsome and accomplished Prof. E. C. Morries. His pupils have learned an important lesson —to "love their teacher." Not only his pupils have learned this, but every one in school. His school is composed of handsome little lads and bewitching little lasses.

***

The Primary Department is taught by Mrs. McMorries. She is a very skillful teacher as the progress of her pupils attest. One important feature of her teaching is voice culture. How important for the voice to be trained early.

***

Thirteen of the University scholars are taking music from Mrs. Bell J. Matthews, and have the advantage of practicing on her beautiful, sweet toned piano.

***

The University has recently been honored by the presence of Miss Eulah Rasberry as a pupil. Miss Rasberry is a beautiful and studious young lady, and we are glad to have her with us. We hope she may spend the term pleasantly and advantageously.

***

While we are poring over school books, Mr. Durward Foshee is listening to the peals of merry wedding bells in Arkansas. We wish Mr. Foshee a pleasant time, but hope he may speedily return. We miss his bright face and perfect lessons; and besides, his return may cheer some sad heart.

***

The absence of Mr. Jim Middleton is regretted. His business has called him from school. We wish him much success in his undertakings.

THE STUDENT.

Joseph Smith Gay.

The subject of this notice was born near Union Church, Elmore County Ala., April 24th, 1860. Baptized into the fellowship of said church on the 3rd Sunday in August, 1891, by J. L. Thompson who, also, married him to Miss C. M. Norris, Dec. 10th 1882.

He departed this life Jan. 28th, 1894, aged 33 years, 9 months and 26 days. His sun went down at noon, Bro. Gay and wife about six years ago united with the Baptist Church at Clanton, of which he remained a consistent member until his death. He was regular in his attendance at all of the services of the Church, and was always ready to bear his part in any Christian duty. He was a good citizen, a kind and affectionate husband, and a devoted Christian.

To know him was to love him.

The large audience that gathered to attend his funeral and pay him a tribute of respect, attest the highest esteem in which he was held. He died as he had lived. He fell asleep in Jesus—a triumphant death. It's sting had been removed and without a murmur he yielded up his spirit to the God who gave it.

We will sadly miss him, but our loss is his eternal gain. We sorrow not as those who have no hope. We would not recall him from that blest abode. No, we would say sleep on dear brother till the resurrection morn when you shall awake in the likeness of Christ. Then you shall be raised in power and in the image of that blessed Saviour, whom so faithfully you served.

To his bereaved and grief smitten wife, we extend our warmest and sincerest sympathy, also to all of his relatives. may the God grace, who worketh all things after the counsel of his own will, comfort your hearts and sustain you by his grace.

FOR THE INDUSTRIOUS.

If you want work that is pleasant and profitable, send us your address immediately. We teach men and women how to earn from $3.00 per day to $3,000 per year without having had previous experience, and furnish the employment at which they can make that amount. Nothing difficult to learn or that requires much time. The work is easy, healthy, and honorable, and can be done during spare time or evenings, right in your own locality, wherever you live. The profit of a few hours' work often equals a week's wages. We have taught thousands of both sexes and all ages, and many have laid foundations that will surely bring them riches. Some of the smartest men in this country owe their success in life to the start given them while in our employ. A few years ago, You, reader, may do as well. It is no risk, cannot fail. No capital necessary. We fit you with something that is new, useful, and sure. Look briskly at advertisement in this paper. Write us at once, and we will explain the whole matter by return mail. A Remedy for Roup.

Roup can be detected by the drooping appearance of the fowls, frequent sneezing, running at the nose and eyes, sometimes attended by hard breathing. The sick fowls should be placed in warm quarters, and given stimulating remedies. A solution of copperas water, injected into the nostrils and throat is a first-rate remedy, but watchfulness and precaution are far more sure and much more economical.—Australian Agriculturist.

THE FIFTY-THIRD CONGRESS

The House and Senate Called to Order in Regular Session.

Daily Summary of Routine Business in the Two Houses.

THE HOUSE.

FRIDAY, Feb. 2.—Immediately after the reading of the journal in the house, Friday morning, Mr. Catchings brought in a special order for the consideration of the Hawaiian resolutions. Two legislative days after the adoption of this order are to be given to the consideration, and the vote is to be taken at 4 o'clock on the last day. Mr. Boutelle made the point of order that his question of privilege, relating to his own Hawaiian resolution, should take precedence over the special order brought in by Mr. Catchings. He demanded the previous question on this resolution. Mr. McMillin moved that Mr. Catchings be permitted to proceed in order. On this motion the yeas were 157, nays, none. At 1:40 p. m. the special order—the Hawaiian resolution—was reported. The resolution condemns Minister Stevens' action; approves the principle of the president against interference with the independent nation; declares annexation or a protectorate inexpedient, and warns against foreign intervention. Mr. Hill's substitute declares that the president's demand for the surrender of the provisional government and the effort to re-establish the monarchy were unwarranted and contrary to the policy of the United States; approves the right of the provisional government and the effort to re-establish the monarchy were unwarranted and contrary to the policy of the United States; approves the right of the provisional government to pursue its own way and also declares foreign interference an unfriendly act. The debate was commenced at two o'clock by McCreary, of Kentucky, chairman of the committee on foreign affairs, in advocacy of the action and attitude of President Cleveland.

SATURDAY, Feb. 3.—In the house Saturday, after the reading of the journal and the transaction of some routine business, Mr. Money, of Mississippi, offered the following resolution: "Resolved, that the house of representatives of the United States of America regards with pleasure and satisfaction the prompt action of Rear Admiral Benham on the 27th ultimo, in the harbor of Rio de Janeiro, in his effort to protect the citizens and commerce of the United States." In connection, he had read the dispatches from Benham and Thompson. Mr. Money asked unanimous consent for its immediate consideration, but Mr. Simpson objected. Mr. Hitt then continued his speech on the Hawaiian resolutions, which was interrupted by the adjournment of the house Friday.

MONDAY, Feb. 5.—In the house, Monday morning, the Hawaiian debate was resumed by Mr. Morse, of Massachusetts, who had five minutes. Before he had proceeded for a minute, however, Mr. Outhwaite had called him to order for unparliamentary language. "To what language do you refer?" asked Mr. Morse. "To the insulting, impudent and unparliamentary language just used," answered Mr. Outhwaite. Mr. Morse, according to the rules, took his seat and the words excepted to were read at the clerk's desk, as follows: "And yet, strange to tell, at the command of their master, Great Grover Cleveland, his cuckoos in the house and senate, staunch southern democrats, loudest shouters for a white man's government, disregard all their ancient traditions about the white man's supremacy and the white man's government." The speaker ruled that the language was unparliamentary to speak of members of the house and senate as being controlled by their master—the president. Mr. Morse explained that he had, in reading his remarks, omitted several words from his manuscript, and he said if the words objected to were offensive, he would withdraw the words "controlled by their master, the president." Before Mr. Morse could proceed after his explanation and withdrawal, his time expired. Mr. Johnson, of Indiana, took the floor and made a strong speech, arraigning the course of the present administration in attempting to restore the deposed queen.

TUESDAY, Feb. 6.—The house at 10:11 Tuesday morning took up the consideration of the resolution of the Foreign affairs committee, censuring Minister Stevens, and Mr. Outhwaite addressed the house. Mr. Turner, of Georgia, defended Mr. Blount from the charge which had been made against him, and attacked the provisional government. Mr. Sickles, democrat, of New York, created a sensation by attacking the president's policy. He was the first democrat who had not upheld the resolution of the foreign affairs committee. Mr. DeForest, democrat, of Connecticut, defended the foreign affairs resolution, while Mr. Hepburn, republican, of Iowa, spoke in opposition. Mr. Hooker, of Mississippi, was the last speaker and in a long speech he defended the resolution of the foreign affairs committee.

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 7.—When the house met Wednesday morning it became a question whether the majority had been successful in the effort to secure a quorum. Some little time was consumed by a parliamentary wrangle, and after this was settled the house took up the Hawaiian resolution and the ayes and nays were called. The vote stood yeas 174, nays 3—no quorum. Half a dozen democrats on the floor were restrained from voting. These were Geary, of California; Sickles, of New York; Straight, of South Carolina; Swanson, of Virginia, Latimer, of South Carolina—sufficient to make the 179, necessary to a quorum. When the vote was announced, 174 to 3, Mr. Springer raised the point of order that as there were four vacant seats in the house 177 instead of 179 should constitute a quorum. After some debate the point of order was sustained and the resolution declared passed.

THE SENATE.

FRIDAY, Feb. 2.—In the senate Friday Mr. Peffer's resolution of inquiry offered Thursday as to the names of the orders for and the purchasers of the new bond issue was agreed to. Mr. Stewart's bond resolution was then laid before the senate and Mr. Vilas made a legal argument against the resolution and moved an amendment to it so as to permit the application of proceeds to the appropriations made by congress.

MONDAY, Feb. 5.—A feeling reference to the death of Mr. Childs was made in the chaplain's opening prayer in the senate Monday morning. Mr. Hale offered resolutions reciting that the tariff bill has come to the senate; that the reports of many great industrial interests and many laboring men believe that no opportunity has been heretofore given to be heard upon its provisions, and they now desire to present their objections to it before any action is taken by the senate and instructing the committee on finance to give opportunity to all parties who believe their interests affected to be heard before the committee reports its action to the senate. The resolution was laid on the table by request. The house bill to repeal the federal election laws was again taken up and Mr. Chandler addressed the senate in opposition to it. Mr. Palmer supported the bill. Mr. Frye, republican, of Maine, said that if the states could be depended upon to do what is just and fair they ought to be allowed to administer the election laws, but that if the states could not be depended upon the federal election laws should be retained. Mr. Frye did not believe any such dependence could be placed upon the states. The discussion on the relative restrictions of Mississippi and Massachusetts constitutions was carried on for some time with considerable warmth. Finally, the day's debate closed with the declaration by Mr. Palmer, that the election law was a miserable abortion. The bill went over till Tuesday and the senate, at 4:15 o'clock, after a short executive session, adjourned.

TUESDAY, Feb. 6.—The bill repealing the federal election laws came up immediately after the preliminary business in the senate Tuesday morning and Senator Hawley took the floor in opposition to the bill. Mr. Perkins, republican, of California, made an argument against the bill. It seemed to him that those who had spoken in favor of its passage had done so from a feeling of partisan prejudice. Mr. Daniel, democrat, of Virginia, replied to Mr. Perkins, favoring the bill. Mr. Frye, republican, of Maine, spoke in opposition. Mr. Frye yielded at 2:30 o'clock in order to allow a proposition to be made for an extension of time for debate, several senators having indicated a desire to speak. After many obstacles a proposition was agreed to that the general debate on the bill should close at 3 o'clock p. m. Wednesday, and that the vote on the passage should be taken before adjournment.

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 7.—The attention of the senate was occupied for fifteen minutes Wednesday morning by Senator Cameron, of Pennsylvania in the presentation of fifty or more petitions against the Wilson bill and the reading of each petition by its title. They came from manufacturers, operators and employes, representing nearly every Pennsylvania industry affected by the proposed tariff reduction. At 12:30 the house bill to repeal the federal election law was taken up, and Mr. Hoar addressed the senate in opposition to it. Mr. Gray, of Delaware, replied to Mr. Hoar. Mr. Bate, of Tennessee, closed the debate. He made an argument in support of the bill. At the close of Mr. Bate's speech Mr. Chandler withdrew the amendment heretofore offered by him and moved another, the purport of which was to make the proposed repeal effective only to the extent of prohibiting the employment of deputy marshals at elections. This amendment was rejected. Other amendments were also rejected and the bill was passed—yeas 39, nays 28—a party vote, except that Mr. Stewart, republican, of Nevada, and Messrs. Allen, Kyle and Peffer, populists, voted with the democrats in the affirmative. The senate then, at 6:15 o'clock p. m., after a short executive session, adjourned till Thursday.

AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.

An Important Announcement to Members and Delegates.

The following circular has been issued by the authorities of the State Agricultural Society:

ATLANTA, GA., February 6, 1894.

To the officers, life members and delegates to the Agricultural Convention at Brunswick:

After the most earnest and persistent effort on our part we regret to announce that the railroads have declined to issue passes to delegates to our session of the society, which meets at Brunswick, February 14.

Every influence possible has been induced to invoke the roads to reconsider their action without favorable result.

The best terms offered is two cents a mile each way—four cents for round trip.

We know these conventions and our state fairs vastly benefit every interest in our state, the railroad more than any other. While some desire to grant the passes, they are prevented by the action of a majority.

We earnestly hope as many as can do so will attend anyway, and thus preserve the life of an organization which has done so much for the material prosperity of Georgia. Respectfully, JOHN O. WADDEL, President.

SAMUEL HAPE, Secretary.

It's very generally regretted that the railroads this year departed from their usual custom of giving passes to the delegates to this convention. Every possible effort was made to induce them to do so, but to no avail. Still it is believed that that there will be a large attendance, and that the proceedings will be even more interesting than usual.

Vaillant Executed.

Auguste Vaillant, the anarchist who threw the bomb in the chamber of deputies on December 9th, was guillotined at 7:10 o'clock Monday morning at the prison De LaRoquette, Paris. Vaillant's last words, as he was led to the guillotine were, "Death to the Bourgeois." "Long live anarchy!" About 1,200 people were present. There was no disturbance.

The Drift of Her Progress and Prosperity Briefly Noted.

Happenings of Interest Portrayed in Pithy Paragraphs.

The Thomson-Houston electric light plant, at Meridian, Miss., valued at $50,000, was burned Sunday morning. Insurance about $40,000. The fire originated in the engine room.

A Columbia, S. C., special of Tuesday says: The state dispensary is evidently feeling the effect of the competition with the blind tigers, and Commissioner Traxler has announced a reduction of 50 cents per gallon on all whiskies.

At Atlanta, Ga., Tuesday morning Judge Lumpkin granted a charter to the "Cotton States and International Exposition Company." The charter grants the company a lease of life for twenty years. It was presented to the court by Judge Palmer.

A suit for $4,000 damages was filed in the superior court at Atlanta Monday by attorneys for the Southern Agricultural Works against the Western Union Telegraph Company. It arose from a three cent mistake made by a telegraph operator in transmitting a message from Texas to Georgia.

The Lookout Lumber Company, at Chattanooga, filed a deed of assignment Saturday. This step was taken following the chancellor's denial of a bill for a receiver asked by the assignee, G. H. Jarnagin, of the City Savings bank. The liabilities are scheduled at $38,250 and the assets $28,253.

B. H. Sprankle, a large real estate owner and merchant of Knoxville, Tenn., made an assignment Saturday. His liabilities amount to about $50,000. His assets are hard to estimate, as much of them are in real estate and in the present state of the market its value is problematic.

A Columbia, S. C., special of Monday says: Governor Tillman today knocked off five years from the term of Colonel J. H. Morrow, the well-known Washington horseman, who was sentenced to six years in the penitentiary for aiding in the malpractice that brought about the death of Colie Fowler year before last.

The shops of the East and West railroad, now located at Cedartown, Ga., will be moved to Piedmont, Ala., in the near future and the headquarters office, now in Cartersville, will be transferred to the same place. These will be quite valuable acquisitions to Piedmont, as several men are employed in the offices and a large number in the shops.

A Chattanooga dispatch of Sunday says: Four more arrests have been made of persons charged with obtaining pensions fraudulently, following the apprehension of the Rev. C. W. Lewis Monday last. Three are negroes and one is white. Several hundred warrants will be sworn out as fast as the evidence admits and more than thirty papers are now in the hands of the United States officers.

A Columbia, S. C., special of Saturday says: The street duel arising from the trial of the dispensary cases is the talk of the city, and interest in the matter has by no means abated. Meetze, who was shot by Miller, lies in a precarious condition and is not expected to survive his wounds. He has had several hemorrhages and has told those around his bedside that he was going to die.

The Birmingham, Ala., Rolling Mill Company signed wage contracts with its operatives Tuesday and will begin work in a few days after a cessation of six months. Between eight hundred and a thousand men will thus be given employment, and there is great rejoicing among the laboring element. One of the furnaces at Calera will also be fired up at once. The trade in the iron district of Alabama is gradually resuming its normal condition.

In chambers at Augusta, Ga., Tuesday morning Judge Roney passed an order allowing Receiver J. H. Averill, of the Port Royal and Augusta railroad, to issue $50,000 worth of receiver's certificates. The certificates will bear 7 per cent interest. They will be issued to raise money to build a new iron bridge over the Savannah river, three miles below Augusta, to improve the physical condition of the road and meet maturing obligations.

A Nashville dispatch says: The penitentiary commission has decided to locate the next state prison on the Cockerilll farm, six miles from the city. The farm is one of the most fertile in the state, has both railroad and river frontage. It contains 1,128 acres and is offered for the $75,000 appropriated by the legislature for its purchase. The choice had narrowed down to three some time ago, and the selection of this gives the state ample grounds and one of the prettiest farms anywhere to be seen.

A Savannah special says: Receiver Comer and Mr. George J. Mills left for Macon Tuesday night to attend the Southwestern railroad stockholders' meeting. They are members of the committee on proxies. Mr. Mills will represent nearly 2,000 shares and Mr. Comer about 3,000, besides the 1,198 to be voted for the Central railroad. A large number of stockholders from Savannah will attend in person and it is believed that there will be a majority in favor of the Southwestern remaining with the Central.

Following the public announcement of General Manager Hudson that the old scale of wages had been restored on the East Tennessee system, Receiver Fink in an interview Saturday said that if the earnings of the system do not pick up in the next few days, not only will the 10 per cent reduction be again put in force, but the number of employes on all divisions would have to be reduced. A payment of $300,000 made in New York on February 1st, which was due November 1st, but on which there was ninety days grace, has almost emptied the road's treasury.

A convention of orange growers met at Ocala, Fla., Tuesday to consider the depressed condition of business in Florida, and also the effect of the Wilson bill on fruit. Speeches were made by ex-Congressman Bullock and other members in favor of a higher duty on oranges than is fixed in the Wilson bill. Opinion was divided as to whether the law or high transportation charges had brought about the present depressed condition. A committee was appointed to formulate some plan by which the fruit growers might be thoroughly organized and make themselves felt in legislation affecting them, and also by the transportation companies.

The Savannah Grocery company and M. Ferst's Sons & Co., wholesale grocers, and the Wilcox & Gibb's Guano company, manufacturers of fertilizers, occupying nearly an entire block of five-story buildings, on Bay street, in the heart of the wholesale section of Savannah, were burned out Monday, and other property suffered heavy damages. M. Ferst's Sons & Co. are the heaviest losers. Their loss on their grocery stock is $150,000. The Savannah Grocery company's loss on stock is $130,000. Wilcox & Gibbs Guano company lose on the grocery buildings $75,000, on the guano company's stock and buildings $15,000, making the total loss $370,000.

Colonel James Monroe Meek, of Knoxville, one of the leading capitalists of Tennessee, made an assignment Monday for the benefit of his creditors. His assets are placed at $282,000 and his liabilities at $102,900. Inability to realize on his holdings and a desire to protect himself and creditors, are the reasons for the step. In the list of assets, two blocks of buildings in the gilt-edge portion of the business center are put down at $190,000. His residence is put down at $35,000, and his one-third interest in the Ducktown copper mines, on the Marietta and North Georgia railroad, is listed at $25,000. This Ducktown tract contains 1,000 acres of land. Other smaller real estate holdings and personal property swell the total to nearly $300,000.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK.

Dun & Co.'s Review of Trade for the Past Week.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s review of trade for the past week says: A fresh impulse has been given to business this week by the success of the treasury in obtaining gold for its reserve, thus strengthening confidence in its ability to maintain gold payments. The revenue had fallen off so much and the prospects for the loan so unfavorable until financial institutions here decided to carry it through, that some anxiety about the monetary future was natural. Investments in the ordinary sense have been affected very little, and, while more demand for time loans has appeared, the money market cannot be expected to change much with $243,000,000 of cash in the banks and more coming from the interior, while the treasury also is compelled to pay out more than it now receives in taxes. Gradual improvement in business explains the appearance of more commercial paper in the market this week than has been for a long time, though as yet the vast accumulation of idle funds is proof enough that trade has by no means regained normal proportions. Industrial recovery continues, though it is but gradual, in response to the demand of a people, whose consumption at its lowest is greater than that of any other country and more mills are now at work.

The market for cotton goods has a better tone, and more staples have been taken, particularly print cloths, with a slight advance in prices, but all qualites are extremely low, and scarcely any increase in the working force is seen.

Some demoralization is again reported in prices of woolens. Spring goods are offered at a heavy sacrifice, but there is more business in dress goods, and tapestry, carpets are in better demand, while some lines of Brussels have been reduced in price. Sales of wool are still small for the week, 4,505,700 pounds, against 8,178,000 last year

Eastern trade in boots and shoes still hesitates, with Boston shipments 23 per cent below last year, but western factories are reported a little better employed, about 15 per cent below their full capacity.

Larger demand for structural iron and steel, for railway materials except rails, for barbed wire and especially for wire nails and wire rods, gives a better look to the iron industry both east and west.

Domestic exports for four weeks have been 14 per cent lower than a year ago, while imports have been 37 per cent smaller.

Commercial failures for the week number 366 in the United States, against 255 last year and 52 in Canada, against 46 last year, the list including two of over a quarter of a million each.

McLAURIN WINS.

Nominated as Walthall's Successor by the Mississippi Legislature.

A Jackson, Miss., special says; The friends of Taylor, Campbell and Lowry held a conference Tuesday afternoon to determine which was the strongest man. After several ballots, Judge Taylor developed the most strenth which resulted in the withdrawal of the names of Lowry and Campbell from the senatorial race. When the caucus met afterwards McLauirn and Taylor were the only names presented. The sixty-seventh and last ballot resulted: McLaurin 78, Taylor 62. The nomination by the democratic caucus insures the election of Hon. A. G. McLaurin as United States senator to succeed Walthall.

Gladstone Will Resign.

The Pall Mall Gazette in its issue of Wednesday declares that it learns from a source in which it has every confidence that Mr. Gladstone has finally decided to resign office immediately. According to The Pall Mall Gazette Mr. Gladstone will announce his decision in a letter to the queen before the reassembling of parliament. This decision is said to be due to a sense of his advanced age and the great strain the late arduous session imposed upon him.

How to Live Two Hundred Years.

Mr. William Kinnear writes to the North American Review regarding longevity, and thinks some practical rules may be observed with the result of greatly prolonging life. He says that seventy per cent. of the body is water. Calcareous salts and earthy matter are held in solution. When these become excessive and resist expulsion the system becomes blocked, the stiffness and dryness of old age come on and in time death ensues simply by the stoppage of the delicate and exquisite machinery which we call life. In the first place he thinks that by a judicious selection of food and drink it is possible to minimize the amount of calcareous salts and earthy matter taken into the system. Cereals and nitrogenous food abound in these elements. Beef and old mutton especially are overcharged with salts and should be avoided by persons of advanced years. Fruits, fish, poultry, young mutton and veal contain less of the earthy salts than other articles of food, and are therefore less harmful.

Summing up, then, the art of living 200 years, Mr. Kinnear says that physical decay may be kept at bay and the approach of old age retarded by avoiding all foods rich in the earth salts, by using much fruit and by taking daily two or three tumblers of distilled water, with about ten or fifteen drops of dilnted phosphoric acid in each glassful.

It will be seen that Mr. Kinnear lays special stress on the liberal use of fruit in the daily diet. All dietary authorities concur in the opinion of the high value of all ripe fruits, such as are so extensively grown in California. Whenever the time shall come that the masses of American people discard to a great extent the greasy compounds they now call food and make more liberal use of fruits in their daily living, the period of longevity will almost certainly be increased.

THE TRUE MAN.

Take thou no thought for aught save right and truth,
Life holds for finer souls no equal prize;
Honor and wealth are baubles to the wise;
And pleasure flies on swifter wing than youth:
If in thy heart thou bearest seeds of hell,
Though all men smile, yet what shall be thy gain?
Though all men frown, if Truth and Right remain?
Take thou no thought for aught; for all is well.

Lewis Morris.

UNCLE DAN'L'S WILL.

EVERYBODY considered Nat Farley very audacious, for a seventeen-year-old boy, when he bought "Grandsir" Jackson's two horses, his express-wagon and the good will of his business. Bought it partly on credit, too! Some said the Widow Jackson was foolish to trust a boy, but they soon forgot that they had ever expressed that opinion.

Nat's purchase of the "concern" came about quite naturally. He had driven the express-wagon for a whole year before the old man's death, and therefore knew the run of the business. Moreover, he had acquired self-reliance in supporting himself ever since his mother died, when he was not fifteen years old.

The price that the Widow Jackson asked for the "plant" and good will was only three hundred dollars—small price, as Nat knew well; but he had only one hundred and fifty dollars in the world, and in the Blankton savings bank. How to get as much more was Nat's problem.

The chance was not to be neglected, however. He went around to consult his only surviving relative, his Uncle Dan'l, from whom the boy had never sought a cent's worth of aid in any previous emergency. Uncle Dan'l seemed either to dislike the security, or to be without funds. He hemmed and hawed and changed the subject so quickly that Nat went away in despair.

Still one chance remained, and he took it. Perhaps the Widow Jackson would trust him, if he offered her a high rate of interest. So she did. Nat paid his hundred and fifty dollars down, gave her a chattel mortgage on the plant at ten per cent. for the remainder, and entered into possession.

How joyfully he set at work! He rubbed down the horses and repainted the wagon himself, making it a bright yellow. He put "Nathaniel Farley, Blankton Express," in big, bold, black letters on both sides, and started upon his independent career by introducing new and energetic methods of doing business.

Of course Uncle Dan'l heard the news, but he asked no questions when Nat came to see him as usual. Indeed, Uncle Dan'l was not an inquisitive man. Neither did he disclose his own affairs to any one.

Nobody understood Uncle Daniel Farley. Some said he was rich, some said he was poor, though he owned a fine farm, and nobody knew whether it was mortgaged or not. He did not confide even in "Cousin Cynthy," who had kept house for him for thirty years.

So well did Nat manage his express business that he had paid off the widow in a year, and had over a thousand dollars in the bank at the end of three years. Then a startling proposition was made to him one summer evening, when he had delivered his last parcel and was arranging his orders for next day in the crown of his hat.

"Been running this business three or four years, hain't ye, Nat?" asked John Butman, another notably shrewd young man.

"Three," said Nat.

"Paid pretty well, haint it?"

"Tol'able well, considerin'," said Nat, cautiously.

"Must 'a' laid up somethin'?"

"Nothin' to speak off," said Nat, still more cooservatively.

"Wal, how, look a-here! I got somethin' to say to you, Nat."

Butman looked cautiously up and down the road. "Me and Dave Sawyer has both got a few spare dollars—not many, of course—tucked away in the toes of our stockin's, and we've been a-thinkin'—you remember Alf Hapgood and the two Blanchard boys?"

"First-rate."

"They went out West a-ranchin' three year ago come this fall."

"Yes, jest as I was settin' up this business."

"Wal, they've got on like a house afire; doubled their money every year, paid off the mortgage on their ranch, an' now they've got the land an' a big stock o' cattle all clear. Do ye know what that means? It means a fortune."

"Whew!" whistled Nat.

"Now see here!" pursued Butman, sinking his voice almost to a whisper. "There's milk in this cocoanut."

"What d'ye mean?"

"I mean Alf Hapgood has sent home word to his sister Almiry—you know I sometimes drop round there Sunday nights; wal, he says there's another ranch for sale right alongside o' theirs, an' he wants me an' a couple o' fellers of our sort to come out an' take it. See?"

"But—"

"It'll make every one of us a rich man, I tell ye. Not the kind of rich man they have round here in Blankton, with a few hundred dollars an' a farm you can't git your livin' on, but rich!"

"It'd take a lot o' money to begin with."

"Not a great sight. I've ciphered it all out. A thousand dollars down for the land, the rest on mortgage: two thousand to stock it, and there we are; and you and I and Dave Sawyer can do that as well as three millionaires."

Nat went home with his head buzzing. Butman's talk was only confirmatory of other things he had heard. It was the beginning then, twenty-five years ago, of ranch-life in the West, and the wildest stories had reached Blankton of the fortunes made out on the plains.

Butman and Sawyer waylaid him every day on his route, and poured into his ears such new and potent arguments for going with them that Nat soon found himself yielding to their enthusiasm, and in the end decided to go.

Several weeks passed before the preparations of all three were completed. At last came the day preceding that fixed for their departure.

Nat went to bed that night in such a fever of anticipation that his sleep was much broken, and when he heard himself called at an unusually early hour next morning, he bounded with one leap into the middle of the floor, and shouted out:

"All right! Tell the boys I'll be ready in a minute!"

"It ain't the boys!", cried Cousin Cynthy's voice through the door. "Your Uncle Dan'l's had a stroke!"

"He may pull out of this, but he'll never be the same again," said the doctor, as he stood with Nat beside Uncle Dan'l's bedside.

When the doctor had gone and Cousin Cynthia was busying herself about the sick-room Nat realized the significance of what the doctor said. It came full upon him as he watched the bent figure and infirm step of the old woman.

"He aint ever goin' to be well again," mused Nat. "She's an old woman; she must be goin' on seventy. It's all she can do to swing the housework, and more, too. There's got to be somebody to take care of him and run the farm."

Nat went out and paced up and down the narrow entry, debating in his mind the knottiest problem life had yet presented to him.

Who was there to take care of Uncle Dan'l and poor o'd Cousin Cynthia if Nat went West? Even supposing that Uncle Dan'l had some savings and could hire help enough to run the farm, how would the old man and the old woman fare at the hands of strangers?

The news of Uncle Dan'l's "stroke" had flown over Blankton so quickly that Butman and Dave Sawyer came hurrying to Uncle Dan'l's place before Nat had finished his breakfast. The three went out and sat down on the woodpile, discussing the new situation.

For an hour the other young men plied Nat with all the arguments in favor of going West; but his decision hardened under their words. The considerations by which he had tried to persuade himself to leave his stricken uncle seemed very sordid and contemptible when urged from the lips of outsiders.

"It's no use, fellows," said he.

"What's no use?"

"I can't go with you. Got to stay with Uncle Dan'l."

"Foh! don't be a born fool! You ain't got to do anything of the sort," said one.

"He'll be all right just as soon as he comes out o' this," said the other, and both poured protestations on him.

"'Taint any use, fellows; 'taint any kind of use," said Nat, firmly, when he got a chance to speak. "I'm awfully sorry! 'Twould 'a' been tiptop to 'a' gone with ye, but it's no use talkin' now; I can't go!"

"Wal," said Dave, "I s'pose a man could get his salt off'n Uncle Dan'l's farm if he liked his victuals pretty fresh; but as for 'gittin' on,' you might as well blow soap-bubbles for a livin'."

"Salt or fresh, don't cal'late on my shiftin' ground on this matter, fellows. My mind's made up!"

Uncle Dan'l slowly recovered from his shock, but his strength, both mental and physical, was shattered. He became able to go about the house and dress and feed himself, and to understand matters of every-day business; but he was no longer the man he had been.

He seemed to pay no heed to Nat's presence, but treated it quite as a matter of course; and when it came to shingling the barn, painting the house and new-flooring the stable, Nat was not only told to "do jest as he liked," but he was left to foot the bills.

As these were repairs which were imperatively needed, Nat had them done. From the fact that he did pay the bills it may be the thought flitted through his head that as the farm was reasonably sure some day to come to him, he was only doing himself a service.

Although these expensive repairs made quite a hole in Nat's hoard in the bank, he made no complaint. As for Uncle Dan'l, he saw the improvements going on without comment.

Thanks to Nat's energy and thrifty management, the place soon took on quite a different air. The neighbors noticed it, but Uncle Dan'l gave it no attention. The only week-day interest left to him in life seemed to be found in a pile of old Farmer's Almanacs—the accumulation of many years. On Sundays he went to meeting as ever before, for he had long been one of the chief props of the North Parish, and everything relating to it was still dear to his heart.

Meantime as the months rolled on, reports came back from the plains of the success of Butman and Sawyer. Nat was not surprised, therefore, when, at the end of the first year, Alf Hapgood came home to spend Thanksgiving and to report that Nat's former partners were succeeding beyond their wildest expectations.

Things had not gone so well with Nat. Of money he had gained none; on the contrary he had spent most of his hard-earned savings on the farm. Nor had he gained even thanks. Uncle Dan'l, if he felt gratitude, never showed it.

As for his own conscience, Nat was not quite sure, on a review of the circumstances, that Uncle Dan'l might not have got some one to run the farm on shares and done better without him. What wonder that hope faded from his heart, ambition gave way to a certain stolid apathy, the brightness and cheer disappeared from his face, and the neighbors presently discovered that Nat Farley was another man.

Another year went by before Nat awoke from his lethargy. One afternoon Cousin Cynthia came running out to him in the field with the announcement that "something had happened to Uncle Dan'l." Nat hurried in.

Something had indeed happened to Uncle Dan'l. The poor old man was lying on his face in bed. His dear North Parish and earth and all its interests were as nothing forever more to Uncle Dan'l.

On the afternoon of the day when Uncle Daniel was buried, Nat was looking round the farm with the belief that he had inherited it as "next of kin," when Squire Proctor drove up to the door. The squire was the lawyer, too, who lived in the middle of the town. Nat ushered his visitor into the low-studded parlor.

"Perhaps you didn't know, Mr. Farley, that your uncle left a will?" said Squire Proctor.

"No," said Nat. "He never said anything to me about it."

"Well, I drew one up for him and here it is, and it must be offered for probate."

Squire Proctor drew the document from his pocket, put on his spectacles, cleared his throat and read the will.

Nat sat silent for several minutes after the reading ceased. He stared at the lawyer with a look of stupidity. Presently he said huskily:

"Read that again, squire, won't you?"

Squire Proctor slowly re-read the will. There could be no mistake this time.

The furniture in the house was given to Cousin Cynthia, in recognition of her long and faithful service. The live stock and farm utensils were to be sold to pay the funeral expenses of the testator, and to build him a suitable monument. The farm itself together with all buildings thereon standing was given in fee to the North Parish for a parsonage!

"Yes, I understan' now," said Nat, quietly. "I guess it's all right—that's all, I s'pose?"

"That's all the will," said Squire Proctor, adjusting his spectacles, "but here's a codocil:

"'I give and bequeath to my nephew, Nathaniel Farley, the red leather trunk which stands in my bedchamber, together with all its contents.'"

"Yes," said Nat, submissively. "I know it, and I'm obliged to him, I'm sure."

"Perhaps its contents are of value," suggested the lawyer, sympathetically.

"Wal, I don' know; it's his clo'es. He'd worn 'em a good deal, and he warn't so big as I am by a good deal, but it don't make any difference. He meant well, I guess, an' I'm obliged to him all the same."

The lawyer rose to go. Nat followed him out of the house, watched him unhitch his horse and get into his buggy, when, with an air of seizing an opportunity, he called out:

"I say, square, you don't know anybody that wants to hire a good stout farm hand, do you?"

"No, but haying season is coming on, and I guess you won't find any trouble in getting a job, I guess."

As the law allowed him a certain number of days to remain upon the place, Nat quietly busied himself in tidying things up and getting the property in shipshape condition to hand over to his successors.

As for Cousin Cynthia, who was going away to live with a widowed sister, she duly began, with many tears and lamentations, packing up the household effects. Nat, busied with his own affairs, took no heed of her movements.

One day, however, she came to him as he was mending the stone wall on the ten-acre pasture near the house, and asked: "What d'you want done with that trunk of yours?"

"Wal, I guess you may have it, if you'll take it."

"Mercy sakes! how you talk. That's all you've got of his. You ought to hold on't for a keepsake."

"P'raps you're right, but I don't want what's in it. The clo's ain't any use to me. You might empty it out an' put my things in it."

"I wouldn't empty it for nothin' in the world, 'less you was there to see," objected the scrupulous old woman. "If ye could only come in for ten minutes or so—"

"All right," said Nat, patiently, brushing his hands on his overalls.

As he went to the house a gleam of wild hope touched him. He suddenly remembered a story he had once read of a lot of money having been found in a trunk left by will. Possibly Uncle Dan'l had hidden money in the old red trunk. Nat watched the unpacking of it with some interest, though his hope had quickly died out. It was well that his expectations were small.

"There, that's every mite there," said Cousin Cynthia, putting the last garment out on the floor, and throwing three great bundles of old Farmers' Almanacs on top of the heap. "Goodness me! how dusty things do get—what shall I do with these old almanacs?"

"Burn 'em up!" said Nat, half contemptuously, and went out of the house quickly.

In a few days Nat handed over the farm to Squire Proctor, his uncle's executor. As the lawyer had predicted, he himself found no difficulty in getting a place with one of the neighboring farmers for the coming haying season.

A few days later, news came from the West which once would have stirred Nat deeply, but now did not rouse him from his apathy. The news was that Butman was coming home to marry Almiry Hapgood, and then go into partnership "out West" with her brother Alf. Thus Dave Sawyer would be left without a partner. He wanted one with five thousand dollars. Nat had not so many hundreds left, for the greater part of his hoard had gone to improve the parsonage farm.

The day after Butman came he went to see Nat. Butman had the bright eye, the ringing voice, the jovial air of a successful man.

"Why, Nat," he cried, "you're gettin' to look like an old man. Say—you must get out of this little town. Brace up and go out on the prairies, where you can square your elbows. Dave is lookin' for just such a man as you."

"Oh—I guess Blankton is good enough for me," said Nat, feebly trying to assume a jocular air.

"Uncle Dan'l used you mighty mean, from what I've heard," said Butman.

"Oh, he meant well, I guess," said Nat.

"Didn't leave you anthing at all, I heard."

"Trunk full of clothes and old almanacs," said Nat. He was interrupted by Cousin Cynthia who approached, breathless and excited.

"My goodness! Mercy me, Nathaniel Farley!" she cried. "Who'd ever'a'thought—ugh—yeh—I'm so out of breath that I can't tell you—I—I—you remember them Farmers' Almanacs?"

"Them in Uncle Dan'l's trunk? Yes—what about 'em?"

"Who'd ever 'a' thought—land's sakes, I sha'n't get my breath agin for a week! You know you told me to burn 'em up?"

"Wal, what if I did?"

"I—I didn't think I should ever do it, but we was needin' kindlin' to-day, and there wasn't a shavin' in the house nor any paper neither, an' I—I happened to see them almanacs, and I—I broke the string and went to tear one on 'em up, when—who'd ever 'a' thought! but he was allers a curious kind o' man, Uncle Dan'l was—"

"What are you trying to say?" interrupted Nat, losing his patience. "Can't you out with it without goin' round Robin Hood's barn?"

"Wal, now, you better just find out for yourself," exclaimed Cousin Cynthia, drawing a package from under her shawl. "You better just look at these 'ere almanacs before you go givin' on 'em away again to be burnt up—there they are just as you give 'em to me."

The old woman handed the parcel to Nat. She and Butman stood watching his proceedings.

Nat sat down in the grass and carefully went through the old volumes. Between the leaves were bank notes to the value of seven thousand dollars.

"I told ye meant well," said Nat.—Youth's Companion.

An Old Idol.

A letter in the Philadelphia Times describes a curious old idol recently discovered on the banks of the Sabine River in Texas. The image was nearly four feet high and was of a three-headed man, with the scales of a turtle covering the entire body. The idol is hollow and contained the skeleton of a young child placed in it in an upright position, the head fitting into that of the god. Whether the child was thus sacrificed to the god or the image merely used as a repository of the dead body cannot be decided. The carving on the idol shows a degree of skill uncommon among the Indians as existing now or as found here by the early settlers, and as the banks of this vicinity were evidently erected by a people antedating these, it is probable that the image was of their religion also. It is of stone, and is composed of four or five pieces neatly cemented together with a substance not recognized by any mason who has seen it. The union of the several stones employed in it is so cunningly done that only a close examination reveals it at all. The eyes are of agate, and cut with the skill of a finished lapidary; and, by some contrivance, are so arranged as to move in the head from side to side and to close by the shutting down of lids of silver. The panther claws are also of silver, and the feet are of obsidian highly polished. One of the three heads wears a benign expression, while another grins maliciously, and the third frowns heavily and shows clenched teeth of obsidian; doubtlessly the three countenances showing the various attributes of the god represented.

A Curiosity of the Law.

Additions to rented premises, when made by the tenant, should never be fastened with nails, but with screws, says a St. Louis lawyer. The reason for this lies in the fact that should he wish to move away and take with him the boards and other lumber composing the improvements he has made, he can simply draw out the screws and take the planks. If he fastens them with nails, however, he can remove nothing, and the improvements become the landlord's property. The fact results from a legal quibble, insisting that articles fastened with screws are for temporary use, and if put in place by the tenant are his own property.

AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Affairs of Government and News of the Departments Discussed.

Notes of Interest Concerning the People and Their General Welfare.

The day of St. Valentine in Congress was one of exceeding dreariness. There were probably fifty congressmen present, and they gave but scant interest to the tedious speeches being delivered on the Bland bill.

Secretary Herbert received a dispatch Monday from the Panama Railroad company, stating that the city of Para arrived at Colon with Admiral Stanton and the officers and crew of the Kearsage. All were safe and well.

The senate has confirmed the nominations of George D. Bryan to be collector of customs at Charleston, S. C. Postmasters—Alabama, O. W. Monroe, Eutaw, Tennessee, L. W. Bates, St. Elmo; D. C. Morris, Morristown.

The debate over the seigniorage bill continued Thursday in the house, and was decidedly interesting at times. Jerry Simpson made one of his characteristic speeches in favor of the bill, and, indeed, there were a number of interesting speeches.

The senate committee on judiciary Monday decided to report the Peckham nomination to the senate without recommendation. Senator Hoar was absent and the committee decided evenly in its vote, Messrs. George, Vilas, Lindsay, Platt and Mitchell voting for confirmation, and Messrs. Pugh, Coke, Hill, Teller and Wilson against.

Thomas R. Jernigan, who has been appointed consul general at Shanghai, was consul at Osaka, Japan, under Cleveland's first administration, and the records of the state department show that his grade ran the highest known in the foreign service. He is a good lawyer. He was unanimously indorsed by the democrats of North Carolina.

Postoffice Inspector Dice, who was instructed by the Postmaster-General to investigate the operations of the Honduras National Lottery Company, in its relations with the postal service, in a report to the department says that the lottery company at Port Tampa, Fla., has erected and occupies a large two-story brick building, estimated to have cost with the printing outfit, about $50,000. The foreign name by which the lottery is designated, he says, is a mere subterfuge.

The regular treasury statement issued Tuesday shows that the receipts from customs dues at New York for the first ten days of this month aggregated $2,651,373, as against $4,321,475 in February, 1892. Of this 16.1 per cent. was paid in gold and 60.3 in silver certificates, the balance being divided up among other classes of money. With the sale of bonds the treasury is not only gaining gold, but also gold certificates, having now on hand of the latter $497,950.

Since the last day of January the treasury balance has increased in round figures, $58,000,000, the assets today standing at $791,000,000. This increase practically represents the money received from the bond issue, all of which, with the exception of about $2,500,000, is now in hand. The principal and premium of this bond issue aggregated $58,000,000, and figures obtained at the treasury show that the net gold gained by the issue is about $41,000,000. On February 1st, the gold in the treasury stood at $64,000,000, and today it is $105,000,000.

The senate has confirmed the following nominations: Thomas B. Ferguson, of Maryland, envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary to Sweden; John Barrett, of Oregon, minister resident and consul general to Siam; Thomas R. Jernigan, of North Carolina, consul general to Shanghai, China; Delaware Kemper, of Virginia, consul to Amoy, China; John Malcolm Johnstone, of South Carolina, consul at Pernambuco, Brazil. Collectors of customs—Marion M. Hutson, district of Beaufort, S. C.; William R. Keenan, district of Wilmington, N. C.

The president Monday sent to the senate the following nominations: John Barrett, of Oregon, minister resident and consul general of the United States at Siam; Thomas R. Jernigan, of North Carolina, United States consul general at Shanghai, China; United States consuls—Adolph Billhard, of Ohio, at Moscow, Russia; Arthur Decima, of California, at Mazatlan; John Malcolm Johnston, of S. C., at Pernambuco, Brazil; Daniel C. Kennedy, of Missouri, at Malta; Delaware Kemper, of Virginia, at Amoy, China; E. G. Mitchell, of Arkansas, at Newcastle, New South Wales; George W. Nichols, of New York, at Clifton, Ontario; Marshall H. Williams, associate justice of the supreme court of Arizona; John L. McAtee, associate justice of the supreme court of Oklahoma; United States attorney, Lytton Taylor, of Tennessee, district of Alaska.

A RAGING BLIZZARD.

Snow, Wind and Rain Play Havoc in the Northwest.

The worst blizzard that ever struck Chicago for far as the weather bureau records show, for twenty-three years, swooped down upon the city Sunday. Street traffic is greatly impeded, and walking is accompanied with great danger to life and limb. Many persons have already been injured by being blown to the ground, against walls and posts by the wind. The velocity is sixty miles an hour, the highest ever recorded for the city, and almost double the velocity of the wind blowing a blizzard in the western states.

A LEVEE BREAKS

And Thousands of Acres of Valuable Land Overflowed.

A report reached Memphis that the levee at the Horn Lake landing, about fifteen miles below the city, was broken, sweeping about 5,000 acres of valuable land worth several thousand dollars. There is a narrow strip of land dividing the Mississippi river from Horn Lake at the point where the break occurred. The water is reported to be pouring into the lake at an enormous rate, and it is feared that the channel of the river will be changed into the lake. If this should occur the loss will be great, as the lake is not leveed and the water will sweep over its banks and flood the surrounding country and inundate the tracks of the Yazoo and Mississippi Valley railroad.

A fire at Colliersville, Tenn., Monday destroyed the bank of Colliersville and the dry goods stores of Mitchell & Wadley and P. H. Humphries Co. The total loss is $30,000.

Colonel J. W. Alspaugh, of Greensboro, N. C., who assigned a few days ago, filed another paper Wednesday making A. H. Ottley & Co., of Reidsville, preferred creditors to the amount of $3,600 additional.

The attorney general of South Carolina has rendered an opinion that the provision of the county government bill which was supposed to disarrange the whole tax machinery of the state, really amounts to nothing, as the present county government will remain in force until 1895, when the new law goes into effect.

Judge Woods of the Roanoke, Va., hustings court, rendered his decision in the local option contested election case of that city Wednesday, declaring the election of September 5th last valid. Prohibition will go into effect April 1st unless the decision is reversed by the higher court. The "wets" will appeal.

Bank President George N. Henson, of Chattanooga, who on February 5th, so tragically killed J. B. West in an elevator cage, was released from custody Wednesday on a $10,000 bond, which he gave at once. So numerous were his sympathizers that he could as easily have found bondsmen had the amount been half a million.

The Virginia state senate Wednesday refused to order the engrossment of the Wickham resolutions looking to the settlement of West Virginia's portion of the debt of the undivided state. The resolutions were antagonized on the ground that the settlement would be in the interest only of speculators. A motion to reconsider was passed and the matter will come up again.

A Birmingham, Ala., special of Tuesday says: The grand confederate reunion to be held in this city on the 25th, 26th and 27th of April, promises to be a huge affair. Times are hard throughout the south, but encouraging letters continue to pour into the hands of the management here from all of the southern states, and if indications are not misleading, there will be an enormous gathering of the old confeds.

Dispatches from Meridian, Miss., are to the effect that the section of country west and northwest of that city was visited Sunday night by a terrific rain and wind storm. No very material damage on account of the wind, beyond the uprooting of timber and the demolition of fences has been reported, but the almost unprecedented rainfall wrought considerable damage to freshly plowed lands.

A special from Dallas, Texas, states that the themometer was 22 degrees above Tuesday morning. Passengers from Kansas, Oklahoma, the Chrokee strip and the Indian Territory report the most terrible blizzard recorded in history. A great many lives have been lost and the suffering from cold is intense. The greatest loss has been among the stripers who are poorly provided with houses, food and clothing.

A Savannah dispatch says: Messrs. Frank H. Miller and A. O. Bacon, attorneys for the Southwestern railroad, made a request of Receiver Comer Tuesday that he turn over to that road the money belonging to it now in the Central's treasury. Mr. Comer replied that he would be very glad to do so, but would first have to obtain an order of court to that effect. There is about $242,000 in the Central's treasury belonging to the Southwestern.

At the meeting of the Tennessee Historical Society at Nashville, Tuesday night, there was a letter read from W. E. McElwee, of Rockwood, Tenn., describing a coin found in an Indian mound in that county. It bears an urn burning incense on one side, with the inscription in Hebrew, "shekel of Israel." On the other is a fig or olive branch, and the words in Hebrew, "Jernsalem, the holy land." A similar coin was exhibited, but how the coin got into the mound is a matter of mystery.

Princess Colona Gets Left.

Judgement was rendered at Paris Thursday in the case of Princess Colona, who instituted proceedings to obtian a judicial separation from her husband. The judgment dismisses the demands of the princess on the ground that Prince Colona is an Italian subject and, therefore, outside the jurisdiction of the French courts.

THE NEWS IN GENERAL.

Condensed from Our Most Important Telegraphic Advices

And Presented in Pointed and Readable Paragraphs.

The full force of the storm was felt in the New York harbor Monday morning, where the gale had full scope for its wild rush. Incoming steamers are doubtless getting their full share of it off the coast.

About 220 Weavers in Wamsutta Mill No. 6 at New Bedford, Mass., left work Tuesday morning when notified of a reduction in wages, to go into effect Monday. The mill was to have run on increased time.

A Philadelphia dispatch says: The Public Ledger appeared Monday morning with the name of George W. Childs Drexel at the head of its editorial columns as editor and publisher, in place of that of George W. Childs.

Representatives of the leading newspapers and news associations of the east met in New York City Monday and formally resolved to perfect an organization for the collection of the news of the world and its distribution among themselves and their clients, east, west, north and south.

Advices from London state that though there was an uncertain tone in the bar silver market Monday the price made an advance of ¼d per ounce. At the close of the market Saturday the price was 29½d. Early in the morning the market showed a disposition to advance and at the close the price had reached 30¼d.

The southern ice exchange met at Knoxville, Tenn., Tuesday in annual session, but only about one hundred and fifty members were present. Owing to the large number of absentees, the exchange adjourned to April 11th, when a meeting will be held in Atlanta. The officers of the exchange will then be elected.

Wednesday the Indian council sold 36 lakins of rupees, chiefly in telegraphic transfers at 13⅛ pence. Commenting on this action, The London Daily News says: "The council evidently is carrying into effect the government's intention to refrain from placing an artificial value on the rupee, Wednesday's allotment being the lowest ever recorded."

A special from Scituate, Mass., says: Captain St. John and the seven members of the crew of the Minnie Rowan, which went ashore off First Cliff Point, were safely landed Wednesday night by the life saving crew of Fourth Cliff. They were badly frost bitten and terribly exhausted after their experience of the previous eighteen hours, having spent a greater part of the time in the rigging.

A cable dispatch of Tuesday from London says: Professor Tyndall, the expert in hypnotism, who has recently returned from the United States, has addressed a letter to the home secretary, Mr. Henry Asquith, asking for an interview with Mrs. Maybrick in her prison, in order that he may try to induce her to consent to be hypnotized and thus, if possible, establish her innocence.

The excitement occasioned by the bomb explosion at the cafe of the Hotel Terminus, at the St. Lazare railway station, Paris, Monday night, has not abated, and the outrage is the subject of discussion in all public places. It has been ascertained definitely that at least twenty-four persons were hurt. The name of the bomb-thrower is Leon Breton. The police believe that he is a member of an anarchist group who have headquarters at Neuilly-Sur-Seine.

Advices of Monday from Calcutta, India, state that the India Currency Association has entered a strong protest, which has been addressed to the government in regard to the disorganization of trade in consequence of the changes in the silver policy. The protest says that the present state of affairs shows that the closure of the mints did not do any harm, though its advantages were temporary and were suspended by the abnormal importations of silver, of piece goods and through other causes.

A New York special of Monday says: The modifications of the Richmond Terminal plan of reorganization that have been substantially agreed upon are a reduction of the assessment on the common stock from $125 to $10 per share, and for the assessment a percentage of new bonds and preferred stock will be given, as well as common stock, on the basis originally contemplated. In consequence of this change the underwriting syndicate will be reduced 25 per cent, that is, from $15,000,000.

YELLOW FEVER AT RIO.

The Plague Said to Have Spread to the American Squadron.

A dispatch of Thursday from Rio states that yellow fever, which has been so prevalent in that city, has at length communicated to the foreign squadron. Several sailors on the American men-of-war are reported to have died and others are ill with it. The American admiral is reported to have ordered the cruisers, Newark and Detroit to leave the port owing to the spread of the disease.

A Steamer Grounded.

The Eastern Line Steamship Company at Philadelphia received a telegram Wednesday from Capt. Jones, of the grounded steamer Oxford, dated Key West, and which stated that there are eight feet of water in the Oxford's hold and engine rooms. It is feared the vessel and cargo will be a total loss.

Isn't there a way to prevent so many accidents by electric cars in the cities? It is becoming almost a common occurence for some one to be run over and killed outright or disabled for life. If the cities would enact laws prohibiting fast running by these cars it might do some good. In some cities the electric cars run so fast it is almost impossible for a person who is not constantly on the watch to get out of the way. We believe in progress but when human life is sacrificed in this way it seems that this particular kind of progress needs attention.

A writer from Bullock County to the Age-Herald says that there are numbers of Jones men in that county who will not vote for Col. Oates for Governor. It seems strange that the editor of this paper should not have heard of a few of them. The probability of Col. Oates' candidacy for Governor was frequently discussed in that county last year and the editor having been present at a number of these discussions, wonders that he did not hear that all these people in the good old county of Bullock were against the Colonel.

One Man's Experience.

Greenville Advocate.

Mr. W. W. Thaggard came into our office a few days ago to renew for another year. Knowing him to be one of our farmers who thinks first of raising all that he can for his home consumption, and then looking after his cotton crop, we asked him for a statement of his crop the past year, and here it is:

"I work one hand besides myself, that is, I run two plows, my hired help takes one, and I the other. We made 200 bushels of corn (by the way the poorest crop I ever made), 500 bushels of Cook oats and about $2,000 pounds of fodder; made two barrels of good syrup, killed hogs enough to make me 1,500 pounds of meat and put up 200 pounds of lard. Saved ten bushels each of cow and ground peas, fattening my stock on the rest. My wife has been selling butter, chickens and eggs all the year. Besides this I have made fifteen bales of cotton. I have sold ten which have netted me $375. I have five bales on hand which I have been saving for hard times." Mr. Thaggard added that he could and would raise wheat if there were any mills near enough to grind it.

Mr. Thaggard is a young man about thirty years old. He began without anything and now owns a nice farm of 120 acres of good land; has a comfortable dwelling and is out of debt. He made it all farming on the red land of Butler, and many of his neighbors are doing as he does—first looking out for the wife and children and then making as much cotton as possible for pocket change and pin money.

If every farmer in Butler would follow his example there would be no more prosperous country in the world than right here. We would never hear of hard times, and every one would be happy.

We were told the other day that a certain individual had made the boast that he had been reading this paper for nearly three years and had got ahead of the editors, telling them that he had paid this one and that one who had been formerly connected with the paper his subscription. We knew his game all the while, as the writer has been connected with this office since the first month of the paper's birth, and if the fellow had paid a cent he would have been given proper credit for same, but now if he can afford to tell lies at the rate of $1 a lie (although they come high,) and be known as that kind of a man, we can do our part in helping keep his soul on the cool side of purgatory, by not presenting his account again and thus save him from telling another $1 lie. — Geneva Mirror.

Cotton and Corn.

Talladega Mountain Home.

Sometime ago our countryman H. M. Burt, addressed some inquiries to Hon. H. D. Lane, Commissioner of Agriculture, concerning cotton seed as a fertilizer for cotton and corn, to which the following is a reply by Mr. B. B. Ross, State Chemist, Agricultural and Mechanical College, Auburn, to whom the inquiries were referred by Mr. Lane. The information given is valuable to all farmers and the Home gladly avails itself of Mr. Burt's permission to publish it.

Auburn, Ala., Dec. 6, '93.

Mr. H. M. Burt, Talladega, Ala.

Your card of recent date addressed to General Lane has been referred by him to me, and in answer to your inquiries I would say that both cotton seed and cotton seed meal, mixed with acid phosphate, should give good results with corn and cotton.

Where cotton seed itself is employed it is in most cases best to compost it with winter stable manure and acid phosphate in order to render its constituents more available for plant food when applied to the soil.

With the price of seed as it was some weeks ago, it would be cheaper for the farmers living near the oil mills to buy meal and sell their seed than to employ the latter as a fertilizer.

Cotton seed meal and acid phosphate mixed will make a first-class fertilizer for either cotton or corn, but an addition of a small amount of kainite (to supply potash) will be advisable:

A ton of good cotton fertilizer can be obtained by mixing together 1,000 pounds of acid phosphate, 700 pounds of cotton seed meal and 200 pounds of kanite; while for corn it would be advisable to use 1,000 pounds of cotton seed meal and 800 pounds of acid phosphate, with 200 pounds of kainit.

We can on many of our soils, however, dispense with the kainit entirely without very great detriments to the crops.

If cotton seed is used instead of meal along with acid phosphate, larger proportions will be required for corn than for cotton, and a relative smaller amount of acid phosphate will be required.

Experiments with natural phosphates from Florida which were made here last year showed results nearly equal to those secured with the use of cacid phosphates, but as these are the results of one season only the conclusion therefrom cannot be drawn with absolute certainty. The value of the crude phosphates is inflenced largely by their mechanical condition, and even the manufacturers of the pulverized phosphate claim that the phosphoric acid is rapidly available.

The phosphoric acid in an acid phosphate, however, should be chiefly in a soluable condition, and in this state is undoubtedly more rapidly available for the use of the plant.

In general I should think the acid phosphates preferable to the crude article. B. B. Ross.
State Chemist.

An exchange says that the fellow who couldn't spare a dollar for his home paper a year, sent fifty two-cent stamps to the city to find out how to "raise beets," and received a postal in reply to "take hold of the top and pull," This fellow is a near relative to the man who sent one dollar to find out "how to make money," and received a card in reply telling him to "get a job in the mint." He is also related to the man who sent one dollar to "know how to make $1,000 a year without work," and received a card telling him to "put $10,000 out on interest at 10 per cent." Another of his relatives sent one dollar to find out "how to write without pen or ink," and the reply was to "write with a pencil." The cheap literature of the north is just full of such fake advertisements, for the nefarious purpose of catching the unsophisticated.—Ex.

MINISTERS OF THE GOSPEL
What Alabamians Say About The Electropoise.

Rev. C. W. O'Hara, Columbiana: I cannot find language with which to express the inestimable value of this wonderful instrument—the Electropoise.

Rev. S. J. Knowles, Headland, "The value of the Electropoise is inestimable."

Rev. Jas. A. Heard, Florence: "I am a walking advertisement of the Electropoise."

Rev. L. A. Darsey, Lafayette: Every family ought to have an Electropoise."

Rev. J. T. Beard, Birmingham: "I take pleasure in saying the Electropoise gave me permanent relief from neuralgia of the stomach and bowels."

Rev. W. C. Hearn, Talladega: "My wife and I used the Electropoise with good results."

Rev. W. M. Wharton, formerly of Montgomery: "I have used the Electropoise with great benefit to my health"

If you will send your name or that of some invalid friend, we will send you copies of letters from the above parties and from hundreds of others; people you know from every section of this and other States, testifying to the curative powers of the Electropoise.

HORRIBLE CRIME.

A YOUNG WOMAN ASSAULTED AND MURDERED.

A NEGRO FOUND DEAD IN THE WOODS.

From a gentleman who was in Clanton Monday the following facts and reports concerning the horrible crime near Stanton, were gathered:

Last Wednesday Mrs. Mary Rucker, aged twenty-four, was caught about two hundred yards from home, assaulted and murdered. She was not found until the next day. An examination disclosed evidence of her having been choked, then ravished. After accomplishing their purpose the brutes beat her over the face and head fracturing her skull. Apparently not satisfied with this, they then shot her three times; one ball entering her throat through the lips, another passing through the ear and grazing the side of her head, the third missing its mark, passed through the other ear.

When discovered, and as soon as the fact became known, a number of citizens collected and set to work immediately.

Two negroes who were hired in the neighborhood were suspected and at once taken in charge.

It is said that blood was discovered on their clothes. When questioned, they disputed between themselves as to who was the guilty one. Being released to settle the matter, they fled from the spot. The next morning one of them was found dead in the woods, riddled with with bullets. The other, with a few scratches made good his escape.

Mrs. Rucker was a young woman and had not been married but about six months. Her husband is a thrifty young farmer and liked by all his neighbors.

Indignation is at fever heat and if the brute is caught it is very likely that he will be summarily dealt with.

The Crime Reported from Stanton.

Stanton, Ala. Feb. 19.—[Special to the VIEW.]—This part of Chilton county has been in a terrible state of excitement for the past few days over the rape and murder of Mrs. Mary Rucker, wife of Jessie Rucker, who lives one mile from Ruddick P. O., familiarly known as Clanton-ford.

Mr. Rucker left home on Wednesday evening to spend the night at his brother's, George Rucker, leaving his wife and mother at home. They were to go to his sister's to spend the night. The elder Mrs. Rucker left early, expecting her daughter-in-law to come after the evening work was done.

She never came, and the next morning Mr. Rucker returning home found no one. He went to Mr. H. Foshee's, brother to his wife, and also to Mr. Robert Robucks in search of her, but obtained no tidings, and a more thorough search was instigated. Several neighbors joined in the search, and Mrs. Rucker was tracked to the Clanton road, where the tracks ceased, and signs of a scuffle were seen, and also, signs showing that some one had been dragged into the bushes. Here the men separated, and soon Mr. Rucker was heard to utter an exclamation and seen to fall. Hurrying to the spot, the men found Mrs. Rucker dead with three bullet holes in her head, another skull crushed with a light-wood knot.

The alarm was soon given, and a large crowd of citizens gathered. Suspicion rested on two negroes, one of whom worked for Mr. Rucker, and the other for John Sexton, who were soon captured and brought face to face with their crime. They confessed to the crimes. The infuriated men lost control of themselves and the negroes were cut loose to fight each other when they made a dash for liberty. One was overtaken, shot and left in the woods. The other, at this writing, is still at large, but is reported badly wounded.

Mrs. Rucker was buried at Mt. Carmel Church in the presence of a large congregation. She had been a member of the Church for only ten days and had been married only four months.

This is the saddest accident that has ever happened in our section of the county.

To Keep Skippers Out of Meat.

Greenville Advocate.

Now that the farmers are ready to hang up their meat to cure, it is a good time to tell them how to keep skippers and worms out of it. Here is how it is done:

Take a nickle's worth of powdered borax to each 1,000 pounds of meat, and as you take the meat out of the salt to hang it up in the smoke house, sift just a little of the borax on the flesh side of each piece, this will effectually keep out the skippers and hairy worms that usually destroy so much meat in this country.

We got the above from Mr. E. Wright, who lives near Ft. Deposit, an old time meat raiser. A man who always has plenty of home raised meat in his smoke-house, and who to-day has ham's of last year's killing, as pretty as any put up in the northwest, and much sweeter and—cheaper.

Cut this out and try it. The borax will not hurt the meat, and if put on according to directions will leave no taste.

Mr. J. D. Rasberry left last week with his family for Texas.

The Baptist sexton will ring the wedding bells in the near future.

Lily Loquacity.

Mr. A. S. Jones gave a valentine party the 14th inst.

Mr. J. P. Hayes has returned from Memphis, much to the delight of all.

There was a party given at Mr. J. C. Edwards last Thursday night.

Miss Gena Jones was at home on a visit recently.

Miss O. M. Garner has secured another school at Maplesville, and is still teaching.

A musical entertainment was given at Mr. Crayton Rasberry's last Saturday night.

Mr. B. F. Hammond is all smiles. He has a little girl at his house.

Mr. Seaborn Jones was a visitor to Clanton last Saturday.

Mr. John Young and family, of Indiana, are visiting Mr. DeShazo.

Topics of The "Turn-Around."

As news is seldom seen from this part of the good world we will pen you a few lines:

Farmers are busy preparing for the coming season and to raise more cheap cotton. I think the farmers would do better to raise more corn and oats and the like, and let cotton alone.

Mr. Seat Estes, of Elmore, has been visiting Mr. Walter Kendrick.

We are sorry that the weather was so disagreeable the 14th that our many friends from Elmore and elsewhere couldn't attend the valentine party. But are glad to know that there were enough to have a pleasant time. The valentines were read by the Hon. Blocker Williamson.

Miss Mary L. Mitchell, of Verbena, and Bessie Mitchell, of Coopers, attended the party at the residence of Mr. W. H. Kendricks last Wednesday night.

The farmers are getting in a hustle and we think it is time. Last year they were hustling in politics and came very near being hustled out of meat and bread. Probably they will act more prudently this year and look after bread and meat first.

Cooper Comment.

Prof. H. L. Davis spends his leisure hours down the road. Truly he must have found some amiable damsel to cheer his inner thoughts. Expect he will be moving his boarding house soon.

There is a young man not much over forty who is very much interested in mail matters. He must have a faint lingering hope that his intended better half will not give him the g. b. But the letter he looks for will never come. An object of pity is he not?

The folks again enjoyed the "social hop" at Mr. Elias Miner's last Friday night. Mr. Miner seems to live to make the young people enjoy life.

Mr. Gray seems to be following a life of seclusion. The cause seems to be the loss of a fair lassie.

Dr. W. T. Wise has been looking very lonely for the past week. Be hopeful Dr. Wise for into each life some rain must fall, some days be dark and dreary.

We have a domestic economist in our midst, Mr. J. C. Dennis, who has purchased a pair of red shoes to save blacking. Others are thinking of following suit.

Prof. J. L. Davis visited his uncle H. L. Davis last Sunday eve.

Mr. F. M. Connell, of Pratt Mines, was in town Saturday.

When Col. Oates said that President Cleveland was a friend to the South he knew what he was talking about.

A NEGRO OUTRAGE.

AN OLD STORY REVIVED.

WHO VOTED IN FAVOR OF THEIR OLD ARE LIVING AT THE LOUISE HOME, WASHINGTON, D. C.

(From the Washington Post.)

Eight years ago, when negro outrages in this city were more frequent than now, there occurred a case of assault in broad daylight on our streets, which, at the time, was noted in the city press, but which has now been forgotten. While your reporter was out at the Louise Home yesterday he had a conversation with the victim of that assault, Mrs. Ann Atkinson. She is now 58 years old. She repeated the story to me and seemed overjoyed at her recovery:

"I was born in King George County, Va., on a plantation about twenty miles from Fredericksburg, in February, 1816. Eight years ago I was attacked by a negro who made a grab for a little satchel I was carrying on my arm. In the struggle which followed the man knocked me down and dragged me along the pavements for a distance of 20 feet. After securing the satchel he ran off and I was picked up and carried to the Home. An ugly gash over my left eye was sewed up and my left arm, which was dislocated, was set. As a result of my experience, congestion of the brain and nervous prostration followed. So nervous was I that I could not bear even the noises of the Home, and I was removed to a quiet spot in the country where I subsequently regained a portion of my former health. The shock to my nervous system, however, had weakened my former excellent constitution, and its effects began to tell upon me in my daily life. The physicians attached to the Home did all they could to relieve me. I took to sudden staggering as I walked, accompanied by severe pains in my limbs. In addition to this I had sinking spells with palpitation of the heart and shortness of the breath, which not only alarmed me but caused me much annoyance. Severe pains in my back appeared, and altogether this old frame was in a pitiable condition. In the meantime the physicians were treating me with powerful nerve tonics. About this time I noticed severe pains in my right arm, which extended from the shoulder to below the elbow and then worked back again into the neck, threatening my head. These I recognized as rheumatism.

"I read in the Episcopal Recorder, a religious paper published in Philadelphia, of the marvelous cure of a person by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People who had my symptoms to a dot. I sent for two boxes which were furnished promptly. From the start I began taking them according to directions and almost immediately experienced relief. Before the bottom of the second box was reached I was almost entirely cured. However, like Rory O'More, I believed in odd numbers and I sent for the third box which cured me entirely. The rheumatism disappeared and my right arm was free from pain while I could use it to write at any or all times. The dizziness and palpitation of the heart were gone and I was a well woman again. Since taking the last box I have not had an ache nor a pain. I freely assert that these wonderful Pink Pills for Pale People, and nothing else, effected this marvelous cure, and I am grateful for the Providential manner by which my attention was directed towards them."

An analysis of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills shows that they contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, sciatica, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effect of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, pale and sallow complexion, all forms of weakness either in male or female, and all diseases resulting from vitiated humors in the blood. Pink Pills are sold by all dealers, or will be sent post paid on receipt of price (50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50—they are never sold in bulk or by the 100), by addressing Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Schenectady, N. Y., or Brockville, Ontario.

Contempt of Court in France.

French judges have summary ways in cases of contempt of court, as an anarchist named Rentiere, who appealed against a sentence of six months' imprisonment passed on him for swindling, has found out to his cost. In the court of appeals the president asked him why he sought to have the sentence altered. The anarchist, in a clear voice, replied very deliberately: "I have appealed solely in order to be able to tell you this—I have spent all my life in prison, and I consider it unjust that the innocent should suffer while on the bench of this court are seated cruel wretches (des bourreaux) and murderers." The president had the last word. His retort was: "We confirm your sentences of six months' imprisonment and we order you to be detained further two years for contempt of court (outrage aux magistrats.")—Ex.

The Face Bag.

To keep the face clean without the use of soap make a little bag of cheese cloth and fill it with bran, oatmeal or almond, and when you wash your face use this bag in place of soap. When the bag is dried, it may be utilized again if the meal is almond, but where oatmeal is used it should be renewed every day.—Exchange.

THE FIFTY-THIRD CONGRESS

The House and Senate Called to Order in Regular Session.

Daily Summary of Routine Business in the Two Houses.

THE HOUSE.

MONDAY, Feb. 12.—In the house, Monday morning, Mr. Breckenridge, of Kentucky, called up the urgent deficiency bill. It made an appropriation of $50,000 for the enforcement of the Chinese exclusion act and various amounts for the payment of United States witnesses. As there was a disposition to debate the bill, Mr. Breckenridge withdrew it and Mr. Heard proceeded with District of Columbia business, which was the special order. At the request of Mr. Tucker, Mr. S. S. Turner, the newly elected member from the 7th Virginia district (to succeed Governor O'Farrell) was sworn and took his seat.

TUESDAY, Feb. 13.—The debate on the Bland silver seignorage bill was resumed in the house Tuesday. Some routine business preceded it. The speaker laid before the house the Hawaiian message of the president, transmitted Monday. At the request of Mr. Burrows the correspondence accompanying the message was read. The message and correspondence were referred to the foreign affairs committee. Mr. Kilgore, of Texas, and Mr. Bell spoke in favor of the seignorage bill. Mr. Bell believed that the extravagance of the last administration was responsible for the financial distress of the present one. Mr. Johnson, of North Dakota, said that the bill, in its effect, would not only destroy the parity between gold and silver but between different issues of paper money.

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 14.—Messrs. Quigg and Straus, the members elect from New York city to succeed Fellows and Fitch, were sworn in Wednesday morning, although their credentials had not arrived. A letter from Brawley was read, stating that his resignation as a member of the house of representaties had been forwarded to the governor of South Carolina. Mr. Island made an effort to limit the time for general debate on the seignorage bill, to reduce the time allowed each speaker from one hour to twenty minutes, but without success. The bill was then taken up, and Mr. Stone of Kentucky spoke in favor of it. Mr. Walker, of Massachusetts, followed Mr. Stone and opposed the bill.

THURSDAY, Feb. 15.—The house bill providing for the erection of public buildings at New Port, Ky., and Brockton, Mass., was favorable reported from the committee on public buildings and grounds Thursday morning. Without being able to fix a limitation to the debate, the house went into committee of the whole on the seignorage bill.

THE SENATE.

MONDAY, Feb. 12.—In the senate Monday morning, Mr. Cullom, of Illinois, presented a large number of petitions against the placing of wool on the free list. He said that they were signed by 30,000 wool growers owning 6,000,000 sheep, or one-seventh of all the sheep of the United States. Among the petitioners, he said, was the Navajo Indian tribe, owning 1,500,000 sheep, on which those Indians were substantially getting a living and becoming independent citizens. He expressed the hope that the finance committee would give the matter due attention. Petitions from West Virginia against putting coal and lumber on the free list were presented by Mr. Faulkner, of West Virginia. Mr. Cockrell, of Missouri, presented a memorial of the St. Louis Merchant's exchange declaring that the present stagnation in business is due to the uncertainty of congressional action on the tariff bill and praying that the question may be settled as speedily as possible, and he expressed his satisfaction at finding that the exchange had recognized the egregious blunder which had been made in putting all of the distress last summer on the Sherman silver purchase act.

TUESDAY, Feb. 13.—A bill was reported by Senator Coke and passed the senate Tuesday continuing in force the act for the protection of fish in the Potomac river. The senate bill making labor day, the first Monday in September, a legal holiday, was reported by Mr. Kyle, from the committee on education, and placed on file. Then at 12:30 Senator Gray resumed argument on the Hawaiian resolution.

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 14—The senate at Wednesday's session considered the house bill, requiring railroad companies in territories to maintain stations at towns established by the interior department.

THURSDAY, Feb. 15.—When the senate met Thursday Senator George presented credentials of Senator-elect McLaurin, of Mississippi, and the oath of office was administered to the new senator. A bill was presented by Mr. Hoar "to prevent lottery practices" throughout the national and foreign mail service. Mr. Harris presented a bill to prevent conflict between federal and state courts in all cases affecting private rights. The house bill to compel the Rock Island Railroad Company to stop its trains at Enid and Round Pond, Oklahoma, came up at 12:30 as unfinished business, and Mr. Platt, of Connecticut, took the floor in opposition to the measure.

TO FREE POLAND.

An Extensive Conspiracy Unearthed by Warsaw Police.

The police at Warsaw, Poland, claim to have discovered an extensive conspiracy, the object of which was to secure the freedom of Poland. The conspirators are said to include nihilists as well as persons not usually found affiliating with members of that sect. A large number of arrests have been made. Among those taken in custody are the entire editorial staff of two journals published at Warsaw and many Catholic priests. The conspiracy is said to have extended to many other places in Poland. At Kielce a police visit was made to the seminary and college there which resulted in the seizure of a large number of pamphlets calling upon the youth of Poland to rise and free their country of Prussian oppression.

BUSINESS OUTLOOK.

Review of Trade for the Past Week by Dun & Co.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s for the past week says: Improvement in business still appears in many directions, but it seems to be in part balanced by loss in others. The general gain which began some time ago and was strengthed a little by the success of the treasury loan, has scarce answered expectations.

Reports of resumption of work continue to indicate that the industries are doing more than in December and yet the record for their actual gain is disappointingly small. The marked increase which appears in offerings of commercial paper has almost wholly ceased and the accumulation of unemployed funds continues so that endorsed mill paper has been taken at 2½ per cent. The bond operation has not advanced stocks nor stimulated speculation and the lowest price ever known for wheat has been recorded. Doubtless the uncertainty which remains with the tariff bill yet in the senate and currency measures of importance pending in the house, has some hindering influence, but there is still seen an increase in the demand for many kinds of goods because of the exhaustion of stocks in the hands of the dealers by consumption, which though less than usual, is nevertheless greater than in any other country.

The volume of domestic trade does not materially increase, exchanges indicating a decline, compared with last year, of 19.5 per cent elsewhere and 34.9 per cent at New York.

The actual production of pig iron February 1st was 99,242 tons weekly, against 98,087 tons January 1st and 171,201 a year ago. The apparent output was slightly less in January than in December, but the increase in stocks unsold only 13,327 tons, against 19,457 in December.

There have been large sales of steel billets, lifting the price to $16.25 at Pittsburg, and a better demand for wire nails, wire rods and barbed wire, while the Pittsburg price of Bessemer pig has advanced to $10.75. Philadelphia notes larger transactions, and improvement appears at Chicago. The decrease in shipments of boots and shoes from Boston for the week was only 14 per cent., but trading runs so largely to low priced goods that in value the decrease in business must be greater.

Textile fabrics are gaining a little. Inquiry discloses larger stocks of cotton goods held by dealers than was supposed and quite a large proportion of mills likely to close before long unless orders increase, but the number reported starting is again several times the number reported closing. Sales of wool were decidedly larger last week, 5,773,040 pounds, against 6,855,750 last year and the markets were all more active, but this week is comparatively quiet. Many mills have opened in an experimental way and have made up goods to try the market, with results not yet largely encouraging. There is a better demand for dress goods and for some worsteds, but in general the trade is extremely dull.

Recent sharp reductions in cotton goods have not brought out the extreme business expected. An auction sale of silks resulted in better prices than anticipated. Foreign grades do not improve, domestic exports at least falling below those of the corresponding week last year, though for the year, thus far, the increase is 7 per cent, while the imports are 40 per cent less than last year.

The failures for the week were 385 in the United States, against 222 last year and sixty in Canada, against forty-four last year, several being of more than ordinary importance.

SHERMAN'S SOLDIERS ACT.

They Favor Atlanta, Ga., as the Meeting Place of the G. A. R.

At the regular meeting of William T. Sherman Post, 146, Grand Army of the Republic, of Bloomington, Ill., Tuesday night, the following resolutions were adopted unanimously and with great enthusiasm:

"Resolved, That this Post has learned with much pleasure that the common council of Atlanta, Ga., a few weeks ago, passed unanimously a resolution making an appropriation and calling for the appointment of a committee to visit the annual national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic this year at Pittsburg and formally invite the veterans to hold their next annual encampment at Atlanta, and that the mayor, prominent citizens and the entire city press of Atlanta endorsed the resolutions in the most cordial manner.

"Resolved, That it is the sense and desire of this post that the Grand Army of the Republic shall accept the invitation in the same spirit with which it shall be tendered, and that the national encampment of the Grand Army of the Republic for 1895 shall be held at Atlanta, Ga."

William T. Sherman post contains many very distinguished soldiers, Among them ex-Governor Fifer, of Illinois, and General John McNulta. The late General Giles A. Smith and W. W. Orme were members of the post. Of its four hundred or more members, fully one-half marched with Sherman "from Atlanta to the sea."

STORMS IN GERMANY.

Many People Lose Their Lives and Much Property Destroyed.

Cable advices of Wednesday from Berlin state that the hurricane that swept over the northern part of Germany has caused great loss of life. Six fishing boats belonging to Rinderort on the Baltic sea were lost and twenty-two men on board of them were drowned. Eighty crafts of various descriptions were sunk in the river Elbe. Advices from Altona, on the Elbe, show that eleven persons were drowned there. Eight foresters were killed in the woods near Ziegnort, in Pomerania, by trees that were blown down in the storm falling upon them.

Fraudulent Election Inspectors.

Peter Neville, one of the New York inspectors of elections found guilty of neglect of duty and fraudulently manipulating the election returns, was on Wednesday sentenced by Judge Barrett, in the court of oyer and terminer, to one year's imprisonment.

OUR LATEST DISPATCHES

The Happenings of a Day Chronicled in Brief and Concise Paragraphs

And Containing the Gist of the News From All Parts of the World.

The international regatta recently announced to be given in Austin, Texas, next June, has been declared off. The citizen refused to subscribe.

Ernest C. Cave and Joseph Hughes, of New Orleans, have sued the Louisville and Nashville railroad for $5,000 damages, for bodily injuries in the wreck at Gulf Port last year. The plaintiffs are postal clerks and allege that the accident was due to a defective frog.

During Wednesday night's gale the bark New Light, Captain Avis, lumber laden from Savannah for Philadelphia, was stranded on Hogue beach, twelve miles west of Beaufort, N. C. The crew was saved. The vessel is a total loss. The pilots report seeing the masts of two schooners sunk on Outer Diamond Lookout shoals.

The will of Mrs. H. P. Clarke, who died at Columbia, S. C., last week, was probated Thursday. She was a granddaughter of the late P. T. Barnum and inherited a large part of his estate. Her estate is worth $600,000 and is divided equally between her husband and their two children, one a girl five years old and the other an infant. The husband is sole administrator.

A sensation which has cast the dispensary excitement into the shade for the time being has been created at Charleston, S. C., by the announcement of a shortage in the accounts of John L. Weber, late school commissioner of Charleston county. The shortage was announced in Columbia by the state superintendent of education, who places the sum of the defalcation at $1,237.

There were no new developments Thursday at the Gaylord mine in Plymouth, Pa. The rescuers are working hard through solid coal to reach the entombed miners. So far, they have been unable to communicate with them in any way. Should they all be alive now it is safe to say that they will starve before they can be reached. In this event eleven widows will be left to care for forty-five orphans.

Application for charter was filed at Chattanooga Thursday by A. S. Ochs, Newell Sanders, J. P. Smartt, J. W. Trigg and Z. C. Patten, incorporators, for the Chattanooga and St. Louis Steamboat Company. This organization is the finale to the transfer last fall of the property and paid up stock of the Chattanooga Steamboat Company to a few of the wealthier shareholders.

At a meeting of the board of directors of the Associated Press at Chicago Thursday Victor F. Lawson was elected president, Horace White, of the New York Evening Post, first vice president; A. H. Belo, of the Galveston News and Dallas News, second vice president; Melville E. Stone, secretary and general manager; Charles S. Biehl, assistant secretary and assistant general manager; George Schneider, treasurer.

The old Kentucky Paper Company at Louisville has been placed in the hands of a receiver on the supplementary petition of Granger & Co., who hold a mechanic's lien on the property for about $10,000. Suit to establish this lien was brought last November. Thursday the Louisville and Nashville railroad sued the paper company on a claim of $8,500. The paper company is indebted to the amount of about $100,000 and the plant is valued at $300,000.

Judge Bradley, of the district supreme court, at Washington Thursday refused to grant the petition of Carroll L. Riker, of Chicago, for a mandamus to compel Secretary Carlisle to issue to him a pro rata share of the $50,000,000 bonds used on the basis of proposals submitted by him. Judge Bradley, in denying Riker's application, said that he had no authority to grant the application, and that secretary Carlisle's power in the premises was discretionary.

The wholesale dry goods house of Jones, Witter & Co., at Columbus, O., and several small buildings adjoining, were burned Thursday morning. The total loss is placed at $240,000, distributed as follows: Jones, Witter & Co., on stock, $180,000; T. E. Miller, on building, 40,000; adjoining property $20,000. Insurance on stock $106,000, on building probably $18,000. The adjoining property is well insured. Three firemen were severely but not fatally injured.

A Brooklyn, N. Y., dispatch says: The jury before which John Y. McKane, of Gravesend, was tried for violation of the election laws, came into court Thursday morning and rendered a verdict of guilty with a recommendation for mercy. The punishment provided by law is not less than two years' imprisonment nor more than ten. McKane was charged with a number of offenses against the election laws, but the particular one that brought him to grief was his obstructing the execution of an order issued by Justice Gaynor to permit the inspection of the registry lists of the town of Gravesend, in which Coney island is embraced.

THE QUESTION OF WAGES.

President Thomas Abrogates the Contract With His Employes.

A Nashville dispatch says: The committee called on President J. W. Thomas, of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railroad, Wednesday in a body and conferred on the recent order issued by him abrogating the contract with the men in the employ of the road as to wages. The road asked a temporary reduction the 1st of December and asked for a renewal lasting till March the 1st. This was granted, and as times had not improved, President Thomas thought it better to abrogate the contract than keep on asking for temporary delays in restoring wages. Nothing was accomplished at this meeting. President Thomas said that there could be no restoration of wages until times improved so as to justify him in putting back the 10 per cent. reduction made December last.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Situation as Reported for the Past Week.

The review of the industrial situation in the South, for the past week shows that there is a steady increase, week by week, in the number of new industries established, or in process of organization, especially in the textile manufacture. Preparations are under way to increase the pig iron output, and several furnaces will go into blast within a short time. The revival in manufacturing of all kinds is general throughout the Southern States. Many plants are being enlarged and improved, causing a notable increase in the demand in machinery.

Sixty-one new industries were established or incoporated during the week, together with fifteen enlargements of manufactories, and nineteen important new buildings. Among the important new industries of the week are the following: The New York Coal and Coke Co., of Richmond, Va., capital $100,000, W. E. Clyde and others, incorporators; the Cleveland Compress and Warehouse Co., of Houston, Texas, capital $150,000, by W. D. Cleveland and others; the Tri-State Shirt Co., capital $100,000, of Huntington, W. Va., W. S. Booth and associates, incorporators; a cotton compress at Velasco, Texas, to cost $100,000, by Morris Sims and others; the Standard Light and Power Co., of Fort Worth, Texas, capital $60,000, W. H. Stratton and others, charterers; the Glen Alum Canuel Coal Co., of Wharncliff, W. Va., capital $50,000; the Morton & Helm Lumber Co., of Brookhaven, Miss., capital $50,000; the Shemield Huntington Hardware Co., of Americus, Ga., capital $50,000; the Carbon Hill Colliery Co., of Richmond, Va., capital $30,000, by J. L. Kelly and others, and a knitting mill at Newport News, Va., to cost $25,000.

Brick works are to be built at Kingwood, W. Va.; canning factories at Pensacola, Fla., Columbus and Thomasville, Ga.; cat works at Augusta, Ga., and electrical plants at Winchester, Ky., Meridian, Miss., Gallatin, Tenn., and Gainesville, Texas. Flour and grist mills are reported at Bringks, N. C., Fingerville, S. C., Hartsville, Tenn., and Warrenton, Va.; foundries and machine shops at Hillsboro and Belton, Tex., and gas works at Newport News, Va. Mining companies have been organized at Atlanta, Ga., Culp, Ark., Mansfield, La., and Buckeye, Tenn.; oil mills are to be built at Birmingham, Ala., and Kenedy, Texas, and a phosphate company has been chartered at High Springs, Fla. Sugar mills and refineries are in contemplation at Bronsard, Cottonport, Lafayette and New Iberia, La.; a tannery at Pooler, Ga., and a tobacco factory at Atlanta, Ga. Mills for the manufacture of lumber are to be built at Hull and Brewton, Ala., Atlanta, Ga., Gallup and Jackson, Ky., Dubberly and Howcott, La. Jackson, Miss., Ahoskie, N. C., Graham and Memphis, Tenn., Springdale, Texas, and Montrose, W. Va.

Among the enlargements for the week are acid works at Blacksburg, S. C.; cotton mills at Bynum and Randleman, N. C., Fort Mill, S. C., Stonewall, Miss., Lawrenceburg, Tenn., and Cairo, Texas, and woodworking plants at St. Augustine, Fla., Gainesville, Ga., Flatwoods and Central City, W. Va.—Tradesman, (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

PARIS EXCITED.

An Anarchist Hurls a Bomb into a Cafe —Twenty People Wounded.

Edeon Breton, 23 years old, threw a bomb in the cafe of the Hotel Terminus, at the St. Lazare railway station, Paris, Monday evening. The bomb exploded in the middle of the room and wounded twenty persons. An instrumental concert began in the cafe, which is on the ground floor of the hotel, at 8 o'clock. Shortly before 9 o'clock a pale, thin young man, paid for a drink which he had taken at a table in the middle of the room and started to leave. When near the door he turned suddenly, drew a bomb from his coat and threw it toward a group of persons who had sat next to him. The bomb struck an electric light fixture, then fell on a marble table and exploded. The station was rocked by the shock. The mirrors, windows and doors were blown to atoms. The ceiling and floor were rent, and the walls were cracked.

A dense, offensive smoke filled the cafe, and in the obscurity the bomb-thrower escaped. When the smoke cleared away five persons were found seriously wounded and fifteen had slight injuries. The bomb had been filled with bullets and rough bits of iron, which had riddled the furniture and walls and inflicted most of the wounds. After leaving the cafe the bomb-thrower started down the street on a run.

Three policemen passed the spot in an omnibus at the moment, and they gave chase to the miscreant and soon overhauled him. He drew a revolver and shot one policeman and a woman in the throng on the street, but other policemen overpowered the bomb-thrower, and then had some difficulty in protecting him from the vengeance of a mob. They succeeded, however, in taking him to the police station.

A later dispatch states that it has been ascertained definitely that at least 24 persons were hurt. The name of the bomb thrower is Leon Breton. The police believe that he is a member of an anarchist group who have headquarters at Neuilly-Sur-Seine.

BRETON IS A SPANIARD.

The History and Real Name of the Bomb Trower Discovered.

After considerable trouble the police of Paris have finally established the identity of the man who threw the bomb in the cafe of the Hotel Terminus Monday night.

The authorities believed that the name "Leon Breton" given by the man when he was arrested was an alias, and inquiries to establish his identity were pursued in every direction. It has now been ascertained that his right name is Emile Henry. He was born of French parents in Barcelona, Spain, September 20, 1872. He recently lived in London, where the police knew him to be an anarchist. The English police, it appears, were aware that he had left London January 18 last, and proceeded direct to Paris, where he has been since.

ANOTHER BOMB FOUND.

A bomb was found Wednesday morning in the doorway of the Banque de la Sairete Generale. It is now in the hands of the police, who are having its contents examined.

A BOTTLED MESSAGE

Which is Supposed to Tell the Story of a Lost Steamer.

A London cable dispatch of Thursday says: A small bottle has been picked up on the beach of Gigha, one of the Hebrides islands, containing a piece of paper on which, written with a pencil is the following:

"September, 1893.—Sinking in mid-Atlantic. Hornhead. Collision with an iceberg. (Signed) MATE."

The steamer Hornhead was a British vessel of 2,363 tons, owned by the Ulster Steamship company, limited, of Belfast. She was commanded by Captain Scott. She sailed from Baltimore August 19, and Hampton Roads August 20, for Dublin. Until the discovery of the bottle nothing had been afterward heard of her.

Yellow Faces are not Pretty.

Still less so are the symptoms of the complaint that makes faces yellow—liver trouble. It is indicated by pains in the right side and through the right shoulder blade, by nausea, vertigo, sick headache, sour breath and furred tongue. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters remove it completely, as well as constipation and dyspepsia, its associates. Prevent malaria, rheumatism and kidney complaint with this sterling remedy.

There is no harm in talking about your neighbor if you find only good things to say.

100 Bus. Wheat From Two Acres.

This remarkable yield was reported by Frank Close, Minnesota, on two acres of Marvel Spring Wheat. Speaking of this wheat, this new sort takes the cake. It is the greatest cropping spring wheat in the world. Farmers who tried it the past season believe seventy-five to one hundred bushels can be grown from one acre, and are going to get this yield for 1894. At such yield wheat pays at 50c a bushel. Salzer is the largest grower of vegetable and farm seed in the world.

IF YOU WILL CUT THIS OUT AND SEND IT with 7c postage to the John A. Salzer Seed Co., La Crosse, Wis., you will get free their mammoth catalogue and a package of above spring wheat.

If every man would commence to reform the world by reforming himself, how quickly the work would be accomplished.

For impure or thin Blood, Weakness, Malaria, Neuralgia, Indigestion and Biliousness, take Brown's Iron Bitters—it gives strength, making old persons feel young—and young persons strong; pleasant to take.

Hope for success and then fortify hope by deserving it.

WELCOME WORDS TO WOMEN.

Many times women call on their family physicians, suffering, as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another with pain here or there, and in this way they all present to their easy-going doctor, separate diseases, for which he prescribes, assuming them to be such. when, in reality, they are all only symptoms caused by some womb disorder. The suffering patient gets no better, but probably worse, by reason of the delay, wrong treatment and consequent complications. A proper medicine, like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, directed to the cause would have promptly cured the disease.

MRS. HARRY TAFFAN, of Reynolds, Jefferson Co., Neb., writes: "For two years I was a sufferer. A part of this time had to be carried from my bed. Was racked with pain, had hysteria, was very nervous, no appetite and completely discouraged. A few bottles of 'Favorite Prescription' effected a perfect cure." Sold by all dealers in medicine.

Royal Buckwheats.

For generations it has been the custom to mix the batter for buckwheat cakes with yeast or emptyings, retaining a portion of the batter left over from one morning to raise the cakes for the following day.

If kept too warm, or not used promptly, this batter becomes excessively sour and objectionable. Buckwheat cakes raised by this means are more often sour or heavy than light and sweet. If eaten daily they distress the stomach and cause skin eruptions and itching.

Instead of the old-fashioned way we have been making buckwheat cakes this winter with Royal Baking Powder, mixing the batter fresh daily, and find the result wonderfully satisfactory. They are uniformly light and sweet, more palatable and wholesome, and can be eaten continuously without the slightest digestive inconvenience. Besides they are mixed and baked in a moment, requiring no time to rise. Following is the receipt used:

Two cups of pure buckwheat flour (not "prepared" or mixed), one cup of wheat flour, two tablespoons of Royal Baking Powder and one-half teaspoonful of salt, all sifted well together. Mix with milk into a thin batter and bake at once on a hot griddle. Once properly tested from this receipt, no other buckwheat will find its way to your table.—Domestic Cookery.

Nothing on board a United States man-of-war strikes the visiting landsman more forcibly, observes the Chicago Herald, than the seemingly almost constant sound of the boatswain's whistle. That instrument sends its thin and wandering strain of music up and down the deck every few minutes from sunrise to sunset. This means that somebody is busy all day long in one or another sort of active duty requiring summons by signal.

The novel idea of a grand transcontinental boulevard as evolved by Dr. John T. Nagle, of New York City, is one that the Detroit Free Press feels should not be rejected without consideration. Once completed it would be a thing of beauty and a favorite resort, for those to whom it was accessible, from one ocean to the other. The work of its construction would be a boon to the unemployed and a trifling expense to each of those contributing. It cannot be condemned as a chimerical or impracticable scheme and may in time be adopted.

The proposed expeditions, one British and one American, to the Antarctic regions will awaken worldwide interest, remarks the New York Press. It is half a century since the Southern polar regions were explored. Meantime Lieutenant Peary, and Dr. Nansen have demonstrated that long inland journeys in the frozen regions are no longer as hazardous and impracticable as was once the case. While mankind has penetrated the deepest recesses of Africa and almost unlocked the secrets of the North Pole, the land of eternal ice at the southern extremity of the globe remains enshrouded in almost as much mystery as if it were a distinct planet.

As made up from the news returns of the year by the Chicago Tribune, the number of legal executions of the death sentence in 1893 was 126, as compared with 107 in 1892, 123 in 1891 and 102 in 1890. Of this number of 126 only forty-seven were whites, while seventy-six were negroes, two were Indians and one a Chinaman. One woman alone was of the number. Thirty-three of the executions were in the North and the rest in the South. In the same time the lynchings were a little less numerous than in 1892, the victims here numbering 200 (198 men and four women.) Of course, the large majority of these were Southern negroes, 154 of the 200 being of this race, while thirty whites, five Mexicans and seven Indians made up the remainder. The South contributed 183 of these demonstrations of lawlessness, the number of suicides continues to increase at an alarming rate. The Tribune's figures for 1893 are 4436 against 3890 in 1892, 3331 in 1891, 3340 in 1890 and 2224 in 1889. Of the number for last year 3578 were men and 858 women. It has been observed before that among professional men, physicians head the list of self-murderers and this is true of 1893 to a striking extent, the number of doctors in the list rising from thirty-seven in 1892 to fifty-three. Of murders reported, the number of 6615 for 1893 shows a slight falling off from the previous year's record of 6791, but a considerable advance over the 1891 figures of 5903.

A WINTER LOVE-SONG.

The sad fields, veiled in falling snow,
They are not sad to me;
Not chill, to me, the winds that blow,
However chill they be:

The eddying flakes that sped away,
With music they drift down,
Through myriad, lacing branches gay,
Or dead leaves, crisp and brown.

No bloom upon the whitening hill,
No green leaf on the tree;
The music is sad music: still
It is not sad to me.

For song, with my heart's muffled might,
Keeps measure, blow for blow;
My love's warm breast is pure and white,
And softer than the snow.

—Robert Burns Wilson, in the Century.

STORY OF A NUGGET.

NOTED western financier wears on his watch chain a tiny nugget of gold, set about with small, but exceedingly fine, diamonds, and if you should chance to strike this money king when he is in one of his rare communicative moods, he will tell you, if you ask, the following story of how from the nettle danger, he plucked, not only the flower of safety, but of fortune, as well.

"It was when the gold fever in California was at its height that I sold out all I had at home and went to join the throngs streaming to the new El Dorado. It was what you might call a groundhog case with me, for if I did not strike it rich I was ruined, as I had nothing in the world except the little pile I took with me to the mining country. I fell in with a fellow calling himself Peter Sharp, and sharp he was, too. I afterward learned that he was a fugitive from justice in England, that heaven alone knows what his real name was, as he had as many aliases as a leopard has spots. But he was a good judge of ground where gold would be likely hidden, and was above all a very amusing, agreeable companion, so I was very glad on the whole of his company. We decided to make for the extreme corner of the gold-bearing region, and to do our own prospecting, so that if we found the precious metal none could benefit by it but ourselves.

"Sharp was pretty nearly broke and I had to pay for both our outfits, but I did not mind this, as his knowledge of geology, which, while limited in extent, could be depended on so far as it went, offset this. Well, we kept on edging away from the overswarmed districts toward the north, until we should find a spot where Sharp saw indications of the thing we were after. Finally we fell in with a man going to Sacramento, but on stopping to talk with us, this fellow soon guessed at what we wanted and at last volunteered to go back with us. Sharp took to the man, who gave his name as Harold, but I did not somehow fancy him from the first, and my instinct was not at fault. The fellow was an escaped convict from the East, and had been put in for life for the murder of his father-in-law to secure that relative's money. But Sharp caught so eagerly at his offer to go with us that the whole thing was settled before I could have taken my companion to one side to have remonstrated. We journeyed on for several days, at last reaching a little dip between two great, almost perpendicular rocks, where Sharp said a river had once trickled down from the mountains, washing down ore with it.

"He was right as to that, though we found far less than we had hoped for, and after a month or six weeks there we had exhausted the resources of the place. We each had about a thousand dollars in nuggets and nearly as much in dust. Harold then proposed our going down to Sacramento to bank it, so we set out. But not having noticed the way we came, on going back, we lost our bearings for a day, and at last came upon a shaft like a big well cut square down into the earth about three hundred feet or more.

"'That place was sunk by miners,' said Sharp, examining the sides carefully.

"But Harold laughed and asked, 'What miners?' Gold war only found in this State in '49, and thar warn't no mining done here before then, for thar warn't much 'sides Injuns about.'

"'All the same, this shaft was cut by human beings,' persisted Sharp. 'Look here, man, here you can see where the pickaxe, or whatever the fellow had, slipped. Sure's you're alive, somebody that knew a thing or two about mining was once at work here, though I can't say how long ago. Maybe they were at it when old Columbus landed in this country.'

"Harold here seemed to give in, and leaning over the sides of the well-like thing said in a sort of speculative tone, 'Wonder if there's any gold down there yet? What do you say to one o' us goin' down to see?'

"We both assented and Sharp volunteered to be the one, but Harold stopped him. 'No. Blank here had better go; he's the lightest and me and you, Sharp, kin lower and haul him up.'

"So ropes were untied from about the baggage and knitted into one long length, and attached to my wrist. As I stepped to the opening Harold caught me: 'You will be heavy enough without that extra fifty pounds, and kick off your boots, too.'

"So, with the jest that I thought I might trust the money with them, I put off the belt and boots and, with only my knife in the band of my trousers, was dropped over. I had gotten within seven or eight feet of the bottom when the rope all at once parted and I fell headlong into a pool of dirty water and mud.

"'What did you do that for?' I heard Sharp cry, and Harold answered something, which I did not hear, but Sharp shouted again, quite angrily, 'I'm going to kill and rob him in no such way.'

"Then Harold talked awhile, but still I could hear nothing, though I could imagine the argument that was going on above. I was actually on trial for my life. Would Sharp be firm in his friendship for me, true to his manhood? But even as I asked myself this question with a beating heart there sounded from above a pistol shot, and I felt a sharp sting in my shoulder, just below the collar bone. Another and another came, one splintering the rock over my head and the other burying itself in the mud in the bottom. I could make out a ledge projecting a few feet out from the perpendicular wall, and under this I ran for shelter from the murderous rain that was falling down that old shaft. Here I was safe, and after several more shots there was silence and the two villians must have gone on, thinking I lay dead there where no man might bury me and where only a whitened skeleton might be found in future years for some one to marvel over for a moment and then to leave.

"It had been late in the afternoon when I descended, but was already dark as could be down there, and even if I had anything with which to have kindled a light, every match I had had been destroyed by the water into which I had fallen. I walked round and round my prison, longing in vain for the torch, at least, that Sharp and the other rascal were to have lowered after me, but leaving my starting point, I felt my way about until I came back to it, and calculated that the shaft was five by five feet. But I could discover no outlet, save that far above my head. Then I reconnoitered to see what was in the pit besides water, mud and me. On one side away from the little pool I came across a heap of bones of various animals, as near as I could judge, and handling these I discovered something that sent the delicious intoxication of hope once more thrilling through my veins, and this was while many of these bones were brittle with age and had long been bare, there were others that still had fragments of flesh hanging to them in a way as if some animal had eaten a meal here.

"Reflection came then whispering that these creatures to which these bones belonged might have fallen over into the pit, and the latest comer devoured all the remains that he found and so sustained life for a few days. But I could not relinquish my hope so soon and tried to believe that these were signs of some animal making this its den and that this animal must have some exit. Repeating this to myself I fell asleep at last, worn out with the fatigue and nervous excitement of the day. I was awakened by the snuffing of some animal in my face, but I could not make out what this animal was, though there was a full moon looking down the shaft at me, like a mild beneficent eye. I lay quite still, not daring to move a muscle, but presently the cold, damp nose of the unseen inspector of my body tickled me into a sneeze. There was a low growl and sharp teeth seized my wounded shoulder in such a way as to cause me the intensest agony, but I controlled myself, and presently the teeth let go and the creature, whatever it was, walked away and I could hear it crunching the bones between its powerful jaws.

"I meant, if possible, to learn which way it went on leaving the bottom of the pit, but on this occasion I was disappointed, for after awhile the sound of its tearing and gnawing was over, and though I ran at once to the spot where I thought it was, the animal was gone. All next day I waited for its coming with impatience that you must have known something of my position to appreciate, and growing hungry myself was glad to eat a bit of the uncooked flesh it had left, and which was a piece of mountain sheep. It was some time before I could prevail on myself to touch the water at the lowest part of the pit, but thirst, keen and parching, at last overcame my objection, and I drank long and deeply.

"It was again near night when my visitor came again, and this time I marked the spot where it seemed to enter, and moved toward it, but the sharp eyes of the animal noted my action, and with a growl of fury attaked me so suddenly that I had only time to catch up the nearest object which happened to be a thigh bone of some large beast, and this I brought down with a terrible thwack upon the head of the aggressor. It fell back for an instant, when I plucked out my knife and stuck it to the hilt in which I hoped was the creature's neck, but which proved to be its shoulder. Then, unable to withdraw my blade at once, I again struck with my bone, and stunned the animal for a moment. When it arose again I could hear it crawling away, and reaching out seized it by the tail; it turned on me with a snarl and caught my hand in its teeth, and I felt upon my flesh the warm drip of blood that told me that the creature was wounded, perhaps badly. As I made no move, it soon dropped my hand and went on whining piteously, and, guided by this and by putting out my fingers with as light a touch as I could upon its sleek skin, I followed it the few feet that lay between it and the wall. In a moment it was gone, and I was at a loss to know where. But I knew the exit must be within a very short distance of me, so I lay for a second recruiting my strength, and after a minute or two, felt a cold breath of air in my face.

"This came as if down a funnel in the earth and following it I soon had my face at the opening. Where the animal could go, I could follow, so I prepared to go up the channel. It was quite narrow at first, but widened out presently and I guessed that I was in another shaft of the old mine. After crawling on for a half hour, my progress being impeded by rocks and debris that had fallen into the place, I saw ahead of me the faint glimmer of day and in another ten minutes was in the open air.

"I was afraid to go on at once to Sacramento, for I might run into my rascally companions if they had halted on the road, when I thought that they would kill me to keep me from telling of their crime. So for the next day or two I lingered about the spot, living on the wild berries and such small game as I could ensnare After some trouble I found a bit of flint, with which and the steel of my knife I kindled a fire, and beside the use this was to me in cooking my food I made me several torches with which I proposed to explore the old mine. This I did pretty thoroughly, to find that the vein of metal it had once contained had been very nearly worked out, and was about to close my investigation and proceed on my journey when a sudden rainstorm came up. The water fairly poured down the old shaft washing its sides clean, carrying with it also a quantity of dirt.

"I was amusing myself after this fall of rain looking over into the tunnel to see the effect of the deluge, when my eye caught sight of this little nugget I wear here on my charm. I picked it out and rubbed it clean, when I could have leaped with joy, for if things were as this piece of metal indicated there was a rich vein of gold running almost parallel with the one that had been removed from the mine and which had never been discovered by the ancient miners. I could scarcely wait to begin my search, so eager was I. But I had no pick-ax, Sharp and Harold having taken even that, so I had to improvise one of a branch of a tree with a pick of one of bones that were in the bottom of the main shaft. But luckily the soil was soft from the recent rain, and I had no difficulty in digging out several very fine nuggets, one of which I afterward sold for $3000 in San Francisco.

"I stayed there for three weeks, working alone and bringing in all nearly $50,000 worth of metal from the mine, which I buried as soon as found. I now saw that in order to go deeper in the thing I would have to have assistance, and with some of the smaller nuggets I set out once more for Sacramento, traveling mostly by night, for those were wild times, and the roughest element on earth was abroad in those mountains. But at last I got to the city, and the first man I saw was Harold, standing in the door of a saloon. He staggered back, and they watching me closely, stepped forward once more and fired at me. The ball passed through my hat, and as I drew my pistol to fire back, his friends surrounded him and hauled him back into the building. I went on then to see an assayer I knew to be an honest man, and showing him my specimens, told him my story. He pronounced the nuggets fine ones and said I would have no difficulty in making up a company to work the mine, if it was found to be all that I claimed for it. But he told me that unless I meant to settle with Harold and Sharp myself, there was little hope of bringing them to justice, as they were well known there and had friends by the score of their own sort, whereas I was a stranger.

"However, I had the thing taken out out of my hands, for no doubt in dread of me, the two left town that night. Two weeks later Sharp's body was found a few miles out with his throat cut from ear to ear and with all his pockets turned out, so that he met his death at the hands of his partner in crime. Of Harold nothing was heard for some years, until one day, while riding with a party through the mountains, we came upon a body fairly riddled with bullets and suspended by a rope from a tree, where the scoundrel had suffered death at the hands of some lynching band, and met only then with his just rewards. I sold my mine for nearly $100,000, besides the nuggets I had taken from it by myself, and which were worth at least $50,000 more. It proved to be a comparatively small vein that I had discovered, but very rich while it lasted, and made the modest fortune of every one of the stock company to which I sold it. Those mountains are rich in just such stories, but I think few can equal the true one I have given you." Philadelphia Times.

Byron's Big Swim Outdone.

Dr. Judson Daland, of Philadelphia, recently swam the classic Straits of Messina, where are the rock of Scylla and the whirlpool of Charybdis so dreaded by the ancients. We are assured that the oldest inhabitant of Faro, a neighboring fishing village, has no recollection of the feat having been accomplished before. Dr. Daland entered the sea at Faro, and, after much battling with adverse currents, he passed the Rock of Scylla and landed at Reggio in Italy. The straits at the northern extremity, between the Faro tower and the rock of Scylla, where the swim seems to have been accomplished, are two and a half miles in breadth but the actual length of the swim is given at about six and a half miles. The time occupied was two hours and twenty minutes. Dr. Daland has beaten Byron, for he had a more dangerous current to deal with, and he was able to go to the opera after his swim, while Byron, on his own testimony, had the ague."—British Medical Journal.

THE FIFTY-THIRD CONGRESS

The House and Senate Called to Order in Regular Session.

Daily Summary of Routine Business in the Two Houses.

THE HOUSE.

In the house, Monday, Mr. D'Armond, of Missouri, offered an amendment to the rules which proposes to fine a member for refusing to vote $50 and authorize the speaker then to count him as present to aid in making a quorum. Referred to the committee on rules. The resolution introduced last week by Mr. Tawney, of Minnesota, calling upon the secretary of the interior for an official statement of the construction placed by the pension bureau upon the law of December 21, 1893, declaring pensions to be a limited vested right, was adopted. At 12:30 Mr. Bland renewed his motion to go into committee of the whole seigniorage on his bill, and that general debate be closed in thirty minutes. On a division the vote stood, ayes 105, nays none. The yeas and nays were ordered and the vote resulted yeas 151, nays 4. Mr. Bland moved a call of the house.

When the house met Tuesday morning it was still in a deadlock on the Bland bill. Sergeant-at-Arms Snow reported the arrest of seven members—Apsley, Hilborn, Lucas, Marvin, Gardner, Post and Randall—under the order of Monday. They were all republican, and on their coming before the bar of the house, it developed that they were present Monday, two being absent by leave of the house. All were excused. At 12:45 o'clock Mr. Bland moved that the house resolve itself into committee of the whole on his bill to coin the seigniorage of the treasury bullion, and that general debate thereon be closed in ten minutes. On ordering the previous question, the house divided, 117 to nothing, and the yeas and nays were ordered. The vote by yeas and nays resulted: Yeas, 152; nays, 5; 12 less than a quorum.

After the reading of the journal in the house Wednesday, Mr. Reed asked for a report from the sergeant-at-arms under the order to arrest absentees. That official reported all absentees either in Washington or en route hither, except those sick and excused, and seven others who had been sent for. Mr. Reed asked if any were under arrest. Sergeant-at-Arms Snow responded that there were none. Mr. Bland moved to take up the seigniorage bill and the yeas and nays were ordered without division. The vote resulted. Yeas, 159; nays, 10; which was 10 short of a quorum. The vote on the second roll-call was: Yeas, 157; nays, 10; twelve less than a quorum. Mr. Reed made an effort to induce Mr. Mr. Bland to permit the house to proceed with the debate, but it was unavailing.

In the house, Thursday, Mr. Cummings, of New York, rose to a question of the highest personal privilege. He said that while on the floor of the house, he had been approached by a deputy sergeant-at-arms, who told him that he was under arrest. He refused, he said, to recognize service, and warned the official or his bosses to touch him at their peril. The Record would show that he had been in attendance day after day ever since congress met last summer, and he denounced the arrest as an outrage. He further stated that it was a disgrace, in his opinion, to hold a session of the house on Washington's birthday, and, in honor of the memory of that patriot, he moved that the house adjourn. After some parleying, the motion was put, and, on a division, the house voted: Yeas, 102; nays, 124. The announcement of the vote was received with applause on the democratic side. The yeas and nays were ordered, however, before the question was decided. The motion to adjourn was defeated—yeas 117, nays 140. This is regarded as indicating the practical strength of Mr. Bland's supporters. The vote against adjournment being 39 short of a quorum.

THE SENATE.

In the senate, Monday, a resolution was offered by Mr. Call in relation to claims against the United States, under the treaty of 1819, with Spain, and he explained that attorneys and speculators were sending out blank powers of attorney to claimants whom he advised to avoid these speculators, and to rely on congress. The resolution went over without action.

Mr. Allen (populist) presented a resolution in the senate, Wednesday morning, directing the attorney general to inform the senate whether he had, in an opinion to the secretary of the treasury, held that silver certificates are not legal money, and, if so, to transmit the opinion, with all the correspondence, to the senate. The resolution, after slight amendment, was adopted. A discussion started, which was brought about by Mr. Chandler, the ex-leader of the anti-Peckham forces. In his usual sycophantic manner he asked Mr. Voorhees who composed the sub-committee preparing the tariff bill.

In the senate, Thursday, Mr. Hoar had read a newspaper article alleging the circulation of lottery tickets in Florida. Mr. Pasco stated that the people of Florida were taking steps to put down the foreign lottery in Florida, and denied the existence of drawings in the state. Mr. Washburn inquired how the senator from Massachusetts (Mr. Hoar) intended to suppress this lottery evil, when he had denied, in the last congress, the powers of the federal government, under the constitution, to suppress a much worse form of gambling—dealing in options and futures on exchanges. Mr. Hoar replied that his proposition was to prevent the importation of lottery appliances, a power which congress possessed. On motion of Mr. Gorman the senate agreed, when it adjourned, that it be to meet Monday. Washington's farewell address was read by Mr Martin, and the senate, at 1:35, adjourned till Monday.

THE NEWS IN GENERAL.

Condensed from Our Most Important Telegraphic Advices

And Presented in Pointed and Readable Paragraphs.

The American Newspaper Association is holding its eight annual meeting at New York.

The first convention of chiefs of police of Illinois, met at Bloomington under the auspices of the National Association of Chiefs of Police.

The Forty-second annual reunion of the Ancient and Accepted Scottish Rite of Free Masonry in the valley of Cincinnati is being held in that city.

A special to the Globe-Democrat from Agnas Calientes, Mexico, says: Congressmen Wilson and Tairney have arrived from Elpaso. Mr. Wilson is far from well as yet, and was feeling so badly that the party decided to stop over here two or three days to give Mr. Wilson the benefit of the hot baths.

The State Labor Congress composed of delegates from each Trades-Union, Farmers' Alliance and Knights of Labor organizations in California met in San Francisco. The congress was called to define the position of the wage-workers and producers of the state upon politico-economic questions, with a view of securing legislation to protect the interests of the people.

Ex-President Harrison has left Indianapolis, accompanied by his private secretary, Mrs. McKee, and his grandchildren, to give his course of lectures in Stanford University. The ex-president will occupy rooms in the University building, specially fitted for him. Mrs. McKee and her children will remain in San Jose. The party will be gone six weeks.

The steamer State of Missouri, owned by the Memphis and Cincinnati Packet Company, sprang a leak and sank in eight feet of water in New Madrid bend, seventy miles below Cairo, Ill. The boat had on board about 700 tons of freight. She also had a large number of passengers, most of whom were eastern people going to New Orleans on a pleasure excursion. No lives were lost and the cabin passengers will be put to no inconvenience aside from the delay.

The last heard of General Manigat's yacht the Natalie, which left Savannah, Ga., with a cargo of arms, was from Nassau, N. P. She had just put in there February 10th under stress of weather, so the captain reported, but according to General Manigat's idea, the captain, Antonio Selma, has betrayed him and is playing a game to sell Manigat into the hands of the Haytian fort. According to dispatches from Kingston, General Manigat will not trust himself on board. He has sent instructions to his supporters in Hayti to take up arms at once and not to await his coming.

FATAL HAZING.

Thirty Students of a College Strangled by Chlorine Gas.

About thirty freshmen of Cornell University at Ithaca, N. Y., were strangled by the sophomores releasing a large quantity of Chlorine gas in the dining hall, where the freshman banquet was in progress.

It was with great difficulty that the freshmen were resuscitated, and some of them are very weak from the effects of the gas. The freshmen were in the midst of their first year's festivities when the presence of the gas was discovered.

In a few minutes they were overpowered, some becoming unconscious while others suffered the peculiar and maddening sensations produced by chlorine.

Search was made for the sophomores who were guilty of the outrage as soon as possible after it became known, but no trace was found of them. A colored woman employed as cook died from the effects of the gas and Thomas McNeal, of Pittsburg, Pa., one of the students, is supposed to be fatally ill.

PUCK'S EDITOR DEAD.

Joseph Keppler, Celebrated Caricaturist, Passes Away.

Joseph Keppler, the caricaturist, the editor and part proprietor of the comic journal Puck, is dead. At the time of his death he was fifty-six years old. The immediate cause of death was heart failure, resulting from a complication of spinal and lung troubles. Mr. Keppler published a World's Fair edition of Puck in Chicago, and devoted himself to it with so much ardor that his health gave way. He returned to New York in the fall a sick man, and his condition steadily grew worse until his death. As editor and caricaturist of Puck his name attained a world-wide celebrity.

Carolina's Dispensary Profits.

The quarterly statement of the operations of the South Carolina state dispensary, which has been looked forward to with much interest, has been made public. The statement shows that the profits of the dispensary for the past quarter has been $67,139. The profits for the last quarter were $82,198.16, making the total net proceeds from the six months of the dispensary's existence $99,337.16.

The Happenings of a Day Chronicled in Brief and Concise Paragraphs

And Containing the Gist of the News From All Parts of the World.

Senor Cruz, the Guatemalan minister, has announced that his government has suspended payments on its external debt in consequence of the depreciation of the price of silver.

J. A. Wardlaw & Co., leading grocers of south Chattanooga, Tenn., have lost their entire stock of goods by fire. The building, a two-story brick, was gutted by the flames. The loss is about $10,000 and the insurance $11,000.

A Raleigh, N. C., Special says: The revenue collectors are receiving notices by the score of the closing of registered distilleries, owing to the three-gallon law. In one county (Yadkin) all save six out of forty registered distilleries have closed.

After a caucus held at New Orleans between the governor and his advisers and leading representatives of the sugar interests, it was stated by a close friend of the governor that the appointment of a successor to Senator White would be given to north Louisiana, and lay between ex-Governor McEnery and Representative Blanchard.

Secretary Herbert has received a cablegram from Admiral Benham, at Rio, announcing that the Aquidiban had gone out of the harbor, where she joined the Republica, and that both vessels stood away to the south. This is taken to indicate that the rebel ships were not on their way to do battle with Peixoto's new fleet, which is daily expected at Rio from the north, but were on their way to Mello's stronghold at the island of Desterro, probably to secure reinforcements.

The North Carolina state geologist gives information that the coal now being mined in Moore county is by far the best ever discovered in the state. It is almost hard coal. The geologist has put in press a report on the water powers of North Carolina, with a special view to their utilization in the transmission of power by electricity. He says that all the kaolin deposits in the state are to be analyzed and tested during this year. Interest in gold mining in the state is greater than in thirty-five years.

A London cable dispatch says: According to the Scotch-unionist press the conservative, unionist and liberal election agents have been warned that a dissolution of parliament will, without doubt, occur within thirty days, and instructions have been given to make preparations for a new election. It is also said that Mr. Gladstone will probably not stand for re-election, in which case Sir James Carmichael will doubtless be the liberal candidate for the Midlothian seat, occupied by Mr. Gladstone since 1880.

A Jackson, Tenn., special says: The prejured witnesses in the Howard case are still held, pending sentence. The confession implicating Howard in the scheme to murder General Bullock came from self confessed perjured lips, but the details caused considerable interest when the statement was published. The fact that the perjurers stand convicted but have not been sentenced is taken as an indication that Howard will be brought from Columbus, O., and made to answer for the crime of subornation of witnesses.

The Rhode Island state prohibition convention has adopted a platform in which the national platform of 1892 is endorsed, the emancipation of women and woman suffrage declared for, the course of the republican and democratic parties in state politics ridiculed, the opinion of the United States supreme court that state courts are responsible for the existence of the liquor traffic is endorsed, and the declaration made that the tariff question should be placed in the hands of reliable business men and tariff legislation be given an opportunity to be tried.

The German government commission, which was formed at Berlin to consider the price of silver has had its first sitting. Count Von Pasadowsky, secretary of the imperial treasury, presided. In addressing the committee Count Von Pasadowsky said that the imperial government, despite its own gold standard, had perceived the depreciation in silver and considered that the subject demanded exhaustive examination. Hence its decision to have the question discussed by experts of different views and callings with the object of raising and rendering stable the value of silver and securing a basis for practical measures.

The official returns from all but nine of the sixty-seven counties of Pennsylvania send Grow's plurality up to the unprecedented figure of 180,233, a gain of 45,087 over the plurality given the republican candidate for state treasurer last fall, whose vote it was expected then would stand as the "high water mark" of republicanism in Pennsylvania for a long time to come. All of the official returns show republican gains over the election night estimates; therefore, it is fair to assume that the official figures from the nine missing counties will produce increases that will give Grow not less than 185,000 plurality.

The word "cuckoo" is beginning to savor of the chestnut.

Five of the Wamsutta mills at New Bedford, Mass., started up Monday.

The Louisville and Nashville railroad will withdraw from the Southern Passenger Association.

Mr. Sigmund Spaeth, of Falls City, Neb., has patented an air ship which he verily believes will be a success.

Pendergrast the murderer of Mayor Harrison, of Chicago, will hang March 23rd. His motion for a new trial has been overruled.

The President has named Harrison Purcell Register of Land Office and Larry H. Hunter Receiver of Public Monies at Montgomery.

Mr. Wilson's condition does not improve. It is said that he has typhoid fever. He has been removed to Guadalajara, Mex., where it is thought he will have better sanitary surrounding.

The friends of Mr. Kolb are hoping that dissentions among the Democrats will aid them to defeat our party. This is a weak straw, for with all our differences we are one and will make the strongest fight ever waged by Democracy.

The Third Party and a few weak Democrats claim that an endorsement of the administration and of President Cleveland would win the party. That cry is worse than nonsense. The solid sentiment of Alabama Democrats is for holding up the hands of our President and Congressmen.

Col. Lyman W. Martin, of Russell County is a candidate for Attorney General. He is an able lawyer and a sound Democrat. Though twice defeated for the nomination, he has never grown lukewarm toward his party. Those who know him well believe he will win the race, and that if he does, will fill his office with honor to the state.

The stability and efficiency of the VIEW depends entirely upon the patronage of the Democracy of Chilton County, and yet many men who throw up their hats at the good work of the VIEW make no contribution to its support either by their personal subscription or by their endorsement of it to others. No surer plan to kill off a Democratic paper could be pursued than indifference on the part of its friends.

The governor of Massachusetts knows how to treat anarchists. The leader of a mob in Boston went before the Legislature and threatened to "clean out the house" if not given what he wanted. Upon notice of the fact, the governor went to the scene and meeting the leader face to face made him qualify his remarks by stating that the house would be cleaned out by the ballot. The leader of lawlessness then sneaked off to his pals.

That was a remarkable convention held in Tuskegee last week by the negroes. Five hundred black farmers with a number of educators and professional men assembled to talk over the condition of the negro, and to urge measures for his mental, moral and financial improvement. Practical questions were handled in a sensible manner and the results of the meeting are sure to be far reaching. The negro is urged to buy land, improve his home, educate his children, avoid lawsuits and live virtuously and honestly.

The Hundley amendment is steadily growing in favor. Very wisely its friends have kept it out of politics so to speak. Democrats and Populites all favor an enlarged educational fund, so that in no wise is it a partisan measure. Our children must be educated, and the present school fund is not sufficient. The district that is averse to the measure can safely vote for it for the sake of the public good, because, should it not need the extra tax it will not be compelled to levy and collect it unless the majority of that district so decide.

A SOLID DEMOCRACY.

Mobile Register.

Not without satisfaction, we note that the press of the State is rapidly wheeling into line, declaring that there is no doubt that the State Democratic Convention will commend the National Democratic administration. The Register was the first of Alabama papers which asserted that the State party could not afford to take issue with the national party, and we cited the deplorable state of affairs in Texas as proof that no possible good could come and much harm from a division, no matter on what phase of the administration's policy. We were alone at that time, even our esteemed contemporary, the Montgomery Advertiser, contending that the national questions need not be considered in a state canvass. The change has been rapid; paper after paper has come to our assistance. Mayor Rich has written his able letter taking the same view, and is backed up by Colonel Oates, strongly supporting this position, so that when at length, Capt. Johnston, the presumed representative of everything antagonistic to Mr. Cleveland, allows his organ to announce that he believes that the State Convention should reaffirm the national Democratic platform and commend the administration and congress for what they have done in redeeming the pledges of the party, we feel that the battle for the integrity of the party in Alabama is won. The party will present a solid front to the opposition and under the guiding star of true Democracy.

The joint Farmers Institute and State Agricultural Society which was in session at Birmingham last week adopted the following resolutions which it will pay every farmer to read and be governed by:

"Resolved by the State Agricultural Society of Alabama in regular convention assembled, That we respectively submit to our brother farmers of Alabama for their consideration the following resolution:

That the over production of cotton in our opinion in the main is the cause of the present low price of the same, which is now less than the average cost of production in Alabama, and, in view of the fact, we recommend that the acreage of last season be reduced 20 per cent, and that said 20 per cent of acreage be planted in crops that will supply home consumption demands, such as corn, oats, potatoes, sorghum, tobacco, etc., thus avoiding the heavy tax of transportation and profits that consumers always pay and at the same time raising the price of our main staple by the average of production. Also, be it

Resolved by the State Agricultural Society of Alabama, That we invite to Alabama all honest and industrious farmers that should be desirous of changing their home, and extend to them a cordial welcome, assuring them that the right hand of fellowship will be extended to them, and that feeling that is always accorded one good citizen from another will be extended them by the farmers of the State.

Resolved second, That we will cordially endorse and sustain our honorable commissioner of Agriculture and his exelency, the governor of Alabama, in a vigorous and continuous effort for immigration made through the department of Agriculture under existing laws.

We have recently traveled through Elmore, Coosa, Tallapoosa, Dallas, Wilcox, Butler, and Pike counties. Throughout the counties considerable farm work has been done. Large tracts of fresh land have been cleared, fences fixed, logs piled and every thing gotten in readiness for the crop. A spirit of cheerfulness is exhibited by the sons of toil that means much for the future of this country. Of course we heard more or less about politics. Saw representatives of all shades of political faith. There are Kolb men in all the counties united by us, but with a few exceptions, we saw no evidences of bitterness. Two years ago discuss to politics with a Kolb man always meant to arouse a bitter talk, but we rejoice to see the change. Many good men have gone off with Mr. Kolb because they believed him wronged. Once they branded every Democrat as a thief and ballot box stuffer, now they argue that it is possible for a neighbor to be a Democrat and yet be an honest man. If this spirit is cultivated by both sides it will not be long before we can once again rejoice in harmony of a united brotherhood.

The Manufacturers' Record, in reviewing the business conditions of the South for the past week, says:

Special reports from all parts of the South show revival of confidence and a general expectation of a steady improvement in business in all lines near by. There is a broadening out of business interests, factories are gradually resuming operations, and the inquiries for machinery for the improvement of old plants, as well as for new ones, is larger than for six or seven months.

During the past week there has been many evidences of the way the south is attracting the attention of outsiders who are looking for desirable investments as well as homes.

An unusual number of excursions from the north and west, carrying capitalits and homo-seekers, have been inspecing mineral, timber, farming and factory lands in Arkansas, Alabama, Mississippi and Texas.

A large number of prominent coal operators of Chicago and other western cities have been examining Kentucky coal fields, with the view of handing Kentucky coal on a large scale and also investing in coal properties.

At Norfolk a belt railroad, a warehouse and compress company and several other new enterprises are taking shape.

At Atlanta a $500,000 has been formed to engage in establisning country banks, wherever good openings are found.

Among other important enterprises reported for the week is a $500,000 cotton mill in South Carolina, a 11-mile canal in Florida by Baltimore capitalists; an extensive coke plant in West Virginia, a $125,000 coal company in Kentucky, a $90,000 brick and tile company in Mississippi, etc.

There is an increased demand for municipal improvements noted, and during the week a number of contracts were let for sewerage systems and water works and electric light plants.

Burned the Records.

Mountain Home.

On last Friday night the door of the courthouse of Clay county was prized open and the clerk's office entered by an unknown party. Nine record books, including State and civil dockets, two civil final records, one State final record and execution docket, were stolen. Saturday morning parts of some of the covers of the books were found about a quarter of a mile from the courthouse, where they had been burned. From the fact that a pile of shavings was found in the office and the party tried to open M. H. Whatley & Co's oil tank it is believed that the thief originally intended to burn the courthouse. It is the general opinion that the work was done by some party having a case in the circuit court, which met last Monday.

Dogs have been put on the track of the guilty one and efforts are being made by the officers of Clay county to run him down.

Col. Oates opened his campaign for Governor last Monday in Athens. The ground was covered with snow but he had a fair audience. He makes a clean bold fight; advises every Democrat to stand by President Cleveland. Admits that there are questions about which they disagree; yet he is our President and so he gives him loyal support.

After all, Col. Oate's declaration that while not agreeing with the administration at Washington in everything it has done, he stands ready to defend it, because it is the administration of a Democratic President, is not likely to prove detrimental to his candidacy for Governor, as some wise-acres were shouting a short while ago.—Birmingham News.

R. A. Moseley, Jr., chairman of the Republican State Executive Committee has issued a call for a meeting of that committee to be held in Birmingham March 29th. The purpose of that meeting is to decide what course Republicans will pursue in the present campaign.

The Bethlehem Iron Company's Steel Mill at Bethlehem, Pa., started Monday giving employment to one thousand and one hundred hands. Times continue to improve and confidence is being restored rapidly.

Mr. Wiley Ramsey was in town last Friday.

Mr. R. M. Adams, of Lily, was in town Monday.

Mr. R. Ehrman has returned from a trip to St. Louis.

When you know, hear or learn news inform the VIEW.

Mr. J. M. Potts is building a new fence around his place.

The boys have the baseball fever again. No more foot ball. It is a thing of the past.

Mr. W. B. Nolen has moved into the W. T. Cullen residence, which he recently purchased.

Mr. Russell McDonald, who has been in bed for several weeks, is improving, we are glad to state.

Mrs. Wm. Wright and Miss Mattie Wright have returned from a visit to relatives in Bessemer.

Prof. E. Y. McMorries gave the University grounds a thorough clearing and cleaning last week.

Mr. S. A. Blasingame spent Sunday here with his family. He has started up his saw mill near Verbena now.

Mr. J. M. Dewberry, of Montgomery, editor of the Educational Exchange was in Clanton last Wednesday.

Mr. W. M. Wilson is having his house painting and plastered on the inside. He will move into it as soon as completed.

Friday, Saturday and Sunday last were disagreeable days. Icicles clung to trees, the rain descended; snow, the beautiful snow fell, people staid in doors and stock like to froze.

A hatchet party was to be given to the gallant lads and wee maidens of our town at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jno. Garner last Friday night; but owing to bad weather it was postponed.

The young people of Clanton should endeavor to organize a Literary Club. We need something to break the monotony and promote a more social and congenial feeling. But must have some one to take the lead.

One of our merchants while out hunting doves last week, flushed a drove, shot and killed one; but he was accused of being to stingy to shoot twice—to get two—wasting to much ammunition at once. Draw no conclusions. Nor let no merchant take it to heart.

Mr. Jno. Milford, a farmer who lives seven miles west of Clanton was in the city Thursday. Mr. Milford is a Democrat through and through and a strong Oates man. He says that he likes Oates because he says what he thinks, and usually thinks right. Mr. Milford feels sure that if Oates is nominated he will carry the banner of Democracy successfully through the fight.

The town boys expect to confront the University boys, cross bats and defeat them in a game of ball soon. The "U. S." boys have very appropriate initials, and might easily be christened "untiring sports," from the amount of self-application devoted by the nine to the game. They seem to stand by the old adage, "that practice makes perfect," and that "the early bird catches the worm."

Last summer we moved our family to Clanton believing it to be a wonderfully healthy place. At once we went to work to encourage people to move here for school, social and religious advantages. A lack of public spirit had allowed a huge pond to form in the very heart of the town. We interested ourself in the ditching of that nuisance. It was deemed unsafe to drain the pond because of the hot weather. "Let us put it off until winter." Nearly every family in town had fever before the summer was over. Winter is nearly gone and yet the pond remains. Hot weather will soon be here. Will the community sit down and make no effort to rid itself of so serious a menace? If so, our boast of a healthful town must cease.

Died.

At the residence of her son-in-law, B. F. Hammond, Mrs. Elijah Sanford, on the evening of Feb. 23rd. She was 72 years of age. She lingered only a short while and passed quietly and peacefully away.

The VIEW has received an invitation to the marriage of Miss Corinne Clyde Simmons to Mr. Charles Linwood Jinks on Tuesday March 6th at West End, Birmingham, Ala.

The suggestion of "Nemo," in this issue is worthy of consideration. Why may not the young people have the pleasure of an evening spent at a spelling bee and at the same time raise the necessary funds for the completion of the cemetery.

The appeal from our friend, Mr. H. B. Northington, will not fall on unheeding ears. Democrats have apparently been idle and taking little interest in our county organization, but we can assure our friend that at the proper time Chilton will come up with a thorough organization and that a gallant fight will be made.

The proposition that a spelling bee is a good and harmless entertainment has never been denied. The people of Clanton never failed to appreciate or partitipate in a good thing; then why not have at an early date the spelling match that was planned for sometime since. By this means we can increase the cemetery fund, perhaps, sufficiently for that laudable undertaking to be at once completed. NEMO.

In Memoriam.

Mrs. Mary P. Cullen, nee Stewart, was born in Pike County, Ala., Jan. 15, 1860. She was converted at Clanton camp ground in the summer of 1876 under the pastorial care of Rev. A. J. Briggs, Sr. On May 13th, 1886, she was happily married to Mr. W. T. Cullen, of Clanton. She died about nine o'clock, Jan. 17, 1894, at the residence of her father-in-law, Judge H. J. Cullen, of Clanton, Ala.

The above is but the outline of a beautiful and symmetrical life-history of one of our purest and noblest women. Perhaps from its dedication, our church here has never had a more consistent and lovable character and surely no death more triumphant.

Sister Cullen came of a good family, which dates its origin back to "bonny Scotland." In her veins flowed good blood which showed itself in her life and character. Of her it might be said that she possessed a sound mind in a sound body, and that her mind showed itself in self-possession and decision. Physically she was of fine form and carriage, adorned with a beautiful suit of raven hair, the picture of health. Intellectually she was above mediocrity, possessing a liberal education, her mind was well stored with useful information, which she applied to practical purposes of life. She was a woman of culture, thought and refinment. Endowed with these powers, and strengthened by the admonitions and fervent prayers of a godly mother, the prospects of her young life was indeed flattering. Standing at life's golden gateway, young, strong, vivacious, the world presented its allurements, and facinations, gently pleaded "set your affections upon me, I will lead you along the flowery pathway of life, amid its joy and glee, only to bring you at last into its coveted heaven of happiness." But she cast the chalice of worldly pleasure from her lips and "chose rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasure of sin for a season." Like Mary of old she hath chosen that good part which shall not be taken away from her. Calm, serene, and unassuming, she relied upon God with the strong assurance of faith.

In her family relations, she was most pleasantly and happily situated. The mother of five children, one of whom preceded her to that better land. These she guarded with the tenderest cares and affection and sought to bring them up in the nurture of the Lord. When God in his wise providence, saw best to take the first-born to himself, transplant him from the garden of earth to that above, with calmness and resignation she gave him up, saying "I shall see him again."

As a wife, she was fully devoted, joining hand in hand with her husband, she fought the battle of life faithfully. The noblest treasure of her heart, she lavished upon him to whom she had given herself. His interest was her care and his presence her joy and comfort. His wish was the law of her life.

While we love to linger on the sunny side of life, call to mind the generous acts, the beautiful traits and the sweet spirit of devotion, which runs through this entire life, yet we must approach that point towards which the shadows converge. This scene is not one of gloom and despair, but is lighted with a soft mellow radiance, which gleams from the realms of celestial light. There is a kind of sadness which springs from sympathy and pity, but there is also a joy which springs from victories won. The death bed becomes the couch from which God's child wakes into an endless day. Calling her husband, her mother, her brothers, her father-in-law, her sisters-in-law, then her little children, she conversed freely with each one in reference to their eternal good. May God help each one to keep those precious vows. She said she would like to stay and help to raise her children, but she must go and that God would provide for them. Her house was fully set in order. She made every arrangment that was necessary for herself and family. After invoking God's richest blessings upon each one of her family and relatives, extending her hand to each, she gently spoke the sweet "good-bye."

But the great love of her heart reached beyond the family circle, and many of her friends were called, to whom she spoke the same sweet words, "good-bye," sending glad farewells to all of her absent friends and loved ones.

Thank God, this writer too, after bending low and fervently pleading with God in prayer was permited to grasp her hand and hear the sweet inspiring "good-bye." Oh how those loving words quiver in our hearts today. The scene beggars description. Human words lose their force and beauty. None but the facile pen of an angel could record such glorious triumps. They are written in the Lamb's book of life. They are the triumphs of Christian faith. Oh, how the community will miss her, how the church will miss her, but Oh God, who can know how those little children will miss her.

May God send his guardian angel to attend them. Dear friends, you sorrow not as those who have no hope; you know where she is. You may see her again if you will love and serve her God. "The Master is come and calleth for thee." Her pastor,
B. E. Feagin.

An Appeal to The Democrats.

Democrats of Chilton, are we going to sit idle and do nothing and let our political enemies have a walk over? Democrats of Chilton I say no, by all that it good let us get together, let us organize, let us fight for organized Democracy. I have been told that there is no County Democratic Executive Committee. The chairman of our last executive committee; Hon. W. A. Collier; has moved to Birmingham. Is it the duty of Hon. W. A. Collier to call a meeting of the Democrats in Chilton to organize? If it is not his duty, some one ought to call a meeting of the Democrats of Chilton.

We must organize and fight for pure Democracy.

We should stand by the old Democratic ship and if she should go down in defeat let her go down with her colors flying.

H. B. Northington.

Although many of the lumbermen throughout Chilton County have complained of "hard times," during the past year and their mills didn't run on full time, yet, the report of the "Southern Lumber Manufacturer's Association," which met at Memphis last week, says that not a single member of that association has succumbed to "hard times." Saw mills are starting up anew since the rise in lumber, and the old cry should be dropped and saw mill owners look forward with brighter anticipations.

It may not be generally known, but the good women of Chilton county are using the spinning wheel and loom as they have not done since the war. The men and boys of the county are beginning to wear homespun and home woven and homemade jeans and they are in no wise ashamed of such garb. This is a sure way to solve the problem of "hard times." With meat in the smoke house, corn in the crib and a good oat crop planted, and no debts being contracted for "store bought clothes this years cotton crop will put Chilton County nearly out of debt. A long pull, a strong pull and a pull altogether is what we need in order to bring about better times.

YOUNG LADIES,
Miss Minnie Pinkard,
Miss Mattie S. Chandler.

YOUNG MEN,
Rev. T. B. Haynie, Prof. E. B. Denson, Master D. M. Foshee.

Everything has gone well at the University for the past week. Notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather we have had a good attendance.

***

The blackboards on last Wednesday morning had on a bran new suit, which made them shine brightly.

***

Prof. McMorries has removed all rubbish from the campus and also has the campus well drained.

***

The boys are longing for the weather to moderate so they can have a fine game of ball.

***

The University has recently been honored by the presence of several new pupils. We extend to them a happy welcome. The beautiful bouquets that the University girls are wearing testify that the hand of Nature is again releasing spring.

***

Rev. T. B. Haynie, one of our best school mates visited friends at Central, Alabama, on Saturday last. But we are glad to say he was back on Tuesday morning with bright smiles and ready to resume his course of study.

***

Prof. J. M. Dewberry, of Montgomery, paid us a pleasant visit on Wednesday last.

***

We are glad to say that Mr. D. M. Foshee, who has recently been visiting Arkansas, has returned. He reports having had a fine time.

***

Master Clyde Davis walks to the University School from Ehrman's mill, a distance of three and one-half miles, and it "goes without saying" that the school has not a pupil more emulous of his studies. And Clyde is a little boy, only twelve. A boy of his age who shows that kind of pluck will be heard from later.

What Alabamians Say About The Electropoise.

Rev. C. W. O'Hara, Columbiana: I cannot find language with which to express the inestimable value of this wonderful instrument—the Electropoise.

Rev. S. J. Knowles, Headland, "The value of the Electropoise is inestimable."

Rev. Jas. A. Heard, Florence: "I am a walking advertisement of the Electropoise."

Rev. L. A. Darsey, Lafayette: Every family ought to have an Electropoise."

Rev. J. T. Beard, Birmingham: "I take pleasure in saying the Electropoise gave me permanent relief from neuralgia of the stomach and bowels."

Rev. W. C. Hearn, Talladega: "My wife and I used the Electropoise with good results."

Rev. W. M. Wharton, formerly of Montgomery: "I have used the Electropoise with great benefit to my health."

If you will send your name or that of some invalid friend, we will send you copies of letters from the above parties and from hundreds of others; people you know from every section of this and other States, testifying to the curative powers of the Electropoise.

SOUTHERN NEWS ITEMS.

The Drift of Her Progress and Prosperity Briefly Noted.

Happenings of Interest Portrayed in Pithy Paragraphs.

The South Florida Fair Association's winter fair at Orlando, has been opened.

The annual convention of the Southern Lumber Manufacturers' Association assembled at Memphis.

The international regatta recently announced to be given in Austin, Texas, next June, has been declared off. The citizen refused to subscribe.

Henry Singleton and Horace Smith, the negro convicts already serving life sentences at Jackson, Miss., who killed fellow convicts, one a man, the other a woman, in the state prison, will not hang on March 22d, the date fixed by the circuit court. An appeal has been taken to the supreme court.

Atlanta, Ga., is to have a crematory, and after a few months one-third of the garbage of the city will be incinerated. The city will pay $10,000 for the trash burning machine, and $1,500 for a building to cover it. The matter was decided at a meeting of the city council recently.

General Jubal Early slipped and fell down the stone steps of the postoffice at Lynchburg, Va., and sprained his back. He was badly stunned and at first was supposed to be seriously injured, but after being carried home he rallied and his physician states that he is not badly hurt and will be out in a few days.

A Columbia, S. C., special says: Governor Tillman has appointed, in conformity with the recent legislative act, a board to select a site for a county seat of the county of Berkely, as now constituted after the hard fight made against it in the legislature. S. W. Scruggs, of Greenville, was appointed as an outside member of the board.

It is reported at Jackson, Miss., that petitions are being circulation for the pardon of ex-State Treasurer, W. L. Hemingway, sentenced December 1, 1890, to five years in the penitentiary for failing to turn over to his successor in office $415,612.19. Hemingway denied his guilt then and still denies it. It has always been a mystery where or how such a large sum of money went.

Advices from Pensacola, Fla., state that the steady rains during the past ten days have caused a freshet in all the streams in that section. News has just been received that the town of Geneva, Ala., on the Choctawhatchee river, near the Florida line, is more than half submerged in water, and the river is still rising. The flood at that point is said to be the greatest since the memorable flood in April, 1865.

A dispatch from Frankfort, Ky., says: In addition to his other woes Colonel W. C. P. Breckinridge is just now troubled by the appearance of another strong candidate for his seat in congress. He already has two opponents for the seventh district nomination, Messrs. Settle and Owens, and it is said that ex-Governor Proctor Knott will be in the race. The name of the ex-Governor is used by his friends in such confident tones as leave no reasonable doubt as to his being a candidate.

Thirty-three coal operators of Kentucky and Tennessee, representing, they say, sixty mines having an annual output of 3,000,000 tons, employing ten thousand miners, met at Knoxville to protest against free coal. Kentucky and Tennessee senators were petitioned to vote against free coal. The most noteworthy incident was the reading of a paper by C. M. Woodbury, of Mingo mountains mines, advocating free coal.

The grand lodge of the Ancient Order of United Workmen at Nashville have elected the following officers for the ensuing year: J. H. Thompson, of Nashville, grand master workman; Hon. George W. Winstead, of Knoxville, grand foreman; W. F. Jones, of Kenton, grand overseer; Dr. R. R. Freeman, of Nashville, grand receiver; W. H. Weakley, of Nashville, grand recorder; J. F. J. Lewis, of Knoxville; James T. Aydelot, of Tullahoma, and J. H. Thompson, of Nashville, supreme representatives.

At a meeting of the bondholders of the Savannah and Atlantic railroad property owners on Tybee island and others interested in that resort, held at Savannah, $19,000 was subscribed towards the rebuilding and restoring of the storm-swept Tybee railroad. These are subscriptions to the receiver's certificates, which will constitute a first lien on the property and will bear 7 per cent interest. This is more than half the amount needed to rebuild the road and was subscribed by eight members of the meeting, most of whom were bondholders.

Samuel Spencer, C. M. McGhee and Henry Fink, receivers of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia road, have issued a circular to the employes of the entire system, announcing a general reduction in wages, effective April 1st, of engine and trainmen, switchmen and shopmen whose wages were restored February 1st. The reduction is 10 per cent. Of employes whose wages were not reduced under former orders there is a reduction of 5 per cent. Of employes whose wages were reduced under former orders 5 per cent. an additional 5 per cent. cut will be made, or 10 per cent. in all.

The populist state committee of Tennessee met at Nashville and heard suggestions from a large number of populist editors and politicians. Besides the committee, of which John H. McDowell is chairman, there were over 100 county chairmen of populist committees, editors of populist papers and members of the party in attendance. The chairman states that there will undoubtedly be a full ticket put out for the supreme bench and for governor, but is not certain about the procedure to be taken in the legislative question. Each county will probably be left to decide for itself.

Chaingangs are unconstitutional in South Carolina. So says the supreme court in a decision filed at Columbia. The case comes from Charleston, where a prisoner was put on the chaingang for thirty days. An appeal was taken on the ground that the punishment was not legal except upon conviction by a jury of twelve and that a sentence to work in the chaingang is void in law. The supreme court holds that a jury under twelve is constitutional, but that the sentence to work on the chaingang is null and void on the ground that this additional imposition to "fine or imprisonment" exceeds the limit prescribed by the constitution.

WASHINGTON'S BIRTHDAY.

Its Observance in Many Cities of the Country.

WASHINGTON.—All the executive departments closed in honor of Washington's birthday, though congress remained in session. Patriotic services were held by the Oldest Inhabitants' association and by the veteran fire companies. Meetings were held by the Sons and Daughters of the American Revolution, and there was a parade by the district militia. The convening of the third annual congress of the Daughters of the Revolution was the chief event of the day's celebration.

NEW YORK.—The annual dinner of the Southern Society took place at the club rooms. The New York Sons of the Revolution held their banquet at Delmonico's at night.

PHILADELPHIA.—The Pennsylvania Society of the Sons of the Revolution held its annual banquet at the Aldine.

TOPEKA, KAN.—The Kansas society of the Sons of the Revolution celebrated the day with a general convention. Addresses were delivered by distinguished speakers. Officers of the society for the ensuing term were elected.

DETROIT.—The annual banquet of the Michigan club was held. Among those invited this year were Thomas B. Reed, Henry Cabot Lodge, Senator Spooner, Honoro Mercier, Lorrin A. Thurston and ex-Minister Stevens.

BALTIMORE.—The spot in which the old congress met in 1776 was marked by the planting of a bronze tablet. The tablet's extreme dimensions are three and a half feet wide by four feet high. Its center is a flat plate, surrounded by an ornamental border. The plate is two feet and ten inches wide by three feet high, and contains in relief a picture of old Congress hall.

CONFESS THEIR GUILT.

Four of Howard's Witnesses Say They Swore Falsely.

A Jackson, Tenn., special says: Another dark chapter was added to the checkered career of G. F. B. Howard, alias E. Ross, Joseph Leger and William Lord Moore, preacher, railroad president and swindler, when four of the witnesses in his late trial, E. H. Brockaway, William J. Gleason, Edgar E. Smith and George H. Heatley, appeared in the federal court. They publicly confessed that they had perjured themselves when they swore in Howard's behalf. The young men told their pitiful story of how, in answer to a want advertisement in The New York World in December for young men to go to the southwest, they first met Howard in New York and his subsequent treatment of them. The sympathy of the crowd went out toward the poor wretches when Heatly told of the plot which the wily swindler had concocted in jail and advised three of them to get Brockaway out of their number and out of the way for confessing.

The listening crowd was struck dumb with astonishment. Continuing he told of Howard's plot to furnish them tools to break jail and advised them to make way with Fred Brown, the English clerk of William Lord Moore, whose testimony was so damaging to Howard, and also to slay E. S. Bullock, the attorney who so ably prosecuted Howard in behalf of the government. This would have occurred had not the plot been discovered and he (Howard) moved to a steel cage.

STATE EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE

Third District—J. H. Hodges, Perry; W. E. Steed, Butler.

Fourth District—B. H. Richardson, Columbus; J. C. Crenshaw, LaGrange.

Fifth District—J. W. Hale, Conyers, W. T. Kimsey, Jonesboro.

Sixth District—M. H. Sandwich, Thomaston; E. E. Pound, Jackson.

Seventh District—D. H. Hamilton, Rome; J. B. Foster, Marietta.

Eighth District—J. M. Smith, Smithonia; H. W. Baldwin, Madison.

Ninth District—Geo. L. Bell, Atlanta; Howard Thompson, Gainesville.

Tenth District—A. L. Wooten, Louisville; T. L. Hunt, Sparta.

Eleventh District—J. L. Beach, Brunswick; W. M. Clements, Eastman.

SCHOOL SUPERINTENDENTS.

The National Department in Session at Richmond.

The National Department of School Superintendents is in annual session at Richmond, Va. Heretofore there has not been an annual meeting of this organization held in the south. There is quite a large attendance of city school superintendents from all over the south, and important subjects will be discussed by prominent educators. Among other distinguished gentlemen who are on the program is Dr. J. H. Phillips, superintendent of the Birmingham public schools. He will treat of "The South and Its Problems."

Succeeds Mr. G. W. Childs.

At a meeting of the executive committee of the International League of Press Clubs, held at New York Mr. Clark Howell was elected first vice president to fill the vacancy caused by the death of Geo. W. Childs. The executive committee discussed the coming international convention to be held in Atlanta and made some arrangements in regard to the convention.

AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Affairs of Government and News of the Departments Discussed.

Notes of Interest Concerning the People and Their General Welfare.

All the executive departments were closed on Washington's birthday though congress remained in session.

Mills, of Texas, has withdrawn from the senate committee on finance, and will no longer act on either the subcommittee or the full committee.

A cable message received at the navy department from Rear Admiral Boham confirms the report of the arrival of the government dynamite cruiser, Nictheroy, in Rio harber, where she anchored. The admiral says, in his dispatch, that it was reported that the rest of the loyal fleet will arrive at Rio from Bohia February 22.

The president has sent to congress another bulky batch of Hawaiian correspondence. It includes President Dole's letter to Willis, already published, and Willis' reply with several other communications. Willis, in his letter transmitted to Secretary Gresham, says: "This letter will, on my part, end the correspondence upon the subject."

The house committee on military affairs has ordered a favorable report on the bill providing for the dedication of the Chickamauga and Chattanooga National Military park. The expenses of the dedication are limited to $20,000, and the date fixed for September 19, 1895. The secretary of war is directed to directed to arrange the exercises.

Attorney General Olney has instructed the United States attorney for Florida to make full and accurate copies of the legal proceedings in the cigarmaker's cases at Key West, Fla., with the view of having the record complete, so that the cases, if decided adverse to the United States, may be appealed to the supreme court of the United States. The absolute discretion of the secretary of the treasury to decide what constitutes a violation of the alien contract labor law has been uniformly upheld until now by the inferior courts, before whom the question has been taken. The Florida courts, in two of the cigarmakers' cases, have held differently, and released contract laborers on writs of habeas corpus.

River and Harbor Bill.

The river and harbor bill will be reported to the house March 1. The committee's work is further advanced in this congress than it has been for many years. The bill will carry an appropriation of about $9,000,000, exclusive of $8,000,000 in round numbers in the sundry civil bill. This latter appropriation is expended under the contract system, which the committee has found to be both a wise and economical method of completing public work. Work on eighteen rivers and harbors is now carried on by contract. Under this system contracts are made in advance and money appropriated as the work of progresses. In many cases a saving from 25 to 50 per cent is made under this system as compared with the methods of previous years.

Silver Certificates.

Attorney General Olney in reply to a formal request, has sent to the secretary of the treasury an opinion in regard to the legal status of silver certificates, in which he holds as follows: "Silver certificates are just what they purport to be on their face and by their terms—that is, they attest the fact that the United States has on deposit so many silver dollars which will be paid to the holder upon the presentation and surrender of such certificates. If they can be regarded as money at all, it is only because the United States agrees to receive them for customs, taxes and all public dues, and only to that extent and for those specific purposes. In my opinion," the attorney general adds, "they are not lawful money within the meaning of section 4 of the act of June 20, 1874, and section 9 of the act of July 12, 1892."

An Old War Claim.

An interesting case has been reported to the house by the committee on war claims, which recommends that Mrs. Flora A. Darling, who was arrested in New Orleans in 1864 by the military authorities while traveling under a safe conduct signed by General N. P. Banks, be awarded $5,633 damages. Mrs. Darling was the wife of the confederate brigadier general, Edward I. Darling, and was a New Hampshire woman. She had gone to New Orleans to attend her husband during his last illness and was starting to return home when arrested. Ten thousand dollars in confederate bonds, $5,000 in the notes of Louisiana and Tennessee banks, and valuable jewelry which she carried, were confiscated. Mrs. Darling's claim was for $15,683, but the committee ruled out the confederate bonds, sustaining the claim for the state bank notes and jewelry.

FIRE AT THE FAIR.

The Illinois State Building Considerably Damaged.

Another world's fair fire has occurred in the east wing of the Illinois state building. It was undoubtedly of incendiary origin, but prompt response on the part of the fire department prevented much damage.

The chief danger from the fire was the probability that it might extend to the art palace, which is now used as the storehouse for the Columbian museum. For this reason a second and third alarm were quickly turned in, bringing a large number of engines to the grounds.

Fears for the safety of the art palace were well grounded, for early in the progress of the fire flying brands alighted on the northwest dome of the building, and in a few moments that portion of the building was ablaze. A squad of guards soon extinguished the blaze, and remained on the roof to prevent more brands from lodging. The loss of the Illinois state building is nominal. Joseph Hallak, a fireman, fell thirty feet from the northwest corner of the building, but escaped with slight injuries.

BUSINESS REVIEW.

Report of Trade for the Past Week by Dun & Co.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s review of trade for the past week says: This has been a week of record-breaking. In wheat, in silver, in some forms of iron and steel, in Connellville coke, and in well known cotton and woolen goods, the lowest prices ever known have been made, and it is gratifying that failures of importance have not resulted. The great fall in wheat had a perceptible influence upon the tone of business generally, and there was less confidence in Wall street, less improvement in manufactures and a greater decrease in the volume of payments, through clearing houses, which were 24.4 per cent less than a year ago outside of New York, and 44.7 per cent less than a year ago here, notwithstanding unusual transactions in grain.

While no action specially affecting business prospects was taken at Washington the continued discussion of revenue and monetary measures and the uncertainty regarding them have a constant favorable influence, and in different markets have caused sudden fluctuations in prices. Wheat at 60½c, is lower by 4½c than it was for a single day last year, and lower by 1½c than it had ever been in the previous seventy-seven years. A visible supply of over 79,000,000 bushels February 10th, with sales and receipts from farms continuing large, has completely destroyed faith in the official reports of the yield last year and caused enormous liquidations. Some trust companies have arranged to advance money against wheat as collateral security, but with results not as yet encouraging.

Cotton declined an eighth with increasing distrust of short crop estimates. Receipts from plantations this week have been larger than a year ago, and at no time small enough to support the idea that the crop of 1893 was but 6,600,000 bales, which would mean that less than 300,000 bales have yet to come into sight in over six months.

The slight recovery in prices of iron products has not been maintained. Bessemer pig has declined at Pittsburg to $10.65 and gray forge to $9.65 and steel billets are sold below $16 there, while at Philadelphia most rolling mill products are lower than ever.

Shipments of boots and shoes from the east are 19 per cent. less than a year ago, with cheaper grades predominating in orders and in manufacture and not many factories fully employed. Textile industries do not seem to have gained within the past week, for as many works have closed as have resumed work, and in woolen and cotton manufacture rather more. There has been a sharp break in print cloths to 2¾ cents; some of the best known cottons have been put at the lowest prices ever made and there is more talk of general closing of mills. Some woollen mills of large importance have stopped, one because a reduction of wages was resisted, and in textile works such reductions have been more numerous and largerthan in any previous week. The demand for woolen goods does not improve and sales of wool decreased sharply after the brisk activity two weeks ago, being only 4,114,591 pounds for the week, against 5,586,800 last year. Though some grades are scarce and prices relatively higher west than here, the markets do not advance.

Exports of merchandise were about $500,000 smaller for the week than last year and for six weeks the increase has been only $3,100,000, or 7½ per cent., but imports last week were little more than half as large as last year and for the year thus far the decrease is about 42 per cent. There is no change of importance in the money markets.

Failures for the week have been 323 in the United States against 197 last year, and thirty-five in Canada against thirty-six last year.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Situation as Reported for the Past Week.

The review of the industrial situation in the South for the past week shows that to judging from reports received of new industries in process of formation, of enlargements of plants now in operation, and especially by the increased inquiry for machinery of all kinds, the South is rapidly recovering from the effects of the financial stringency. The week just ended shows a better record in these respects than for a year past. All branches of productive industry seem to show the same favorable symptoms. Iron producers are in stronger position, with no pressure to sell. The lumber interest, which has been much depressed, is slowly recovering, and the demand for its output is increasing.

Forty-three new industries were established or incorporated during the week, together with fifteen enlargements of manufactories, and fifteen important new buildings. Prominent among the new industries of the week are the following: The Ohio-Tennessee Coal and Lumber Co., capital $7,500,000, T. B. S. Morgan and others, incorporators, offices at Huntsville and Jamestown, Tenn.; the Talbott Sons Co. foundry, capital $250,000, at Richmond, Va., Allan Talbott, president; the Glady Fork Boom and Lumber Co., of Parsons, W. Va., capital $200,000. D. D. Hazlitine and associates, incorporators, and the Luray Caverns Co., of Luray, Va., capital $100,000, L. C. Condon and others, incorporators.

The L. H. Hall Coffin Co., capital $80,000, has been organized at Atlanta, Ga., by L. H. Hall and associates; the Georgia Standard Gobre Co., at Cartersville, Ga., capital $50,000, by W. H. Howard and others; the Union Mining and Manufacturing Co., at Dugger, W. Va., capital $50,000. by Edward Thomas and associates; the Cairo Lumber and Manufacturing Co., capital $50,000, at Cairo, W. Va., by N. W. Rollins and associates; the Texas Disc Plow Co., capital $35,000, at Dallas, Texas, and the Summerville Brick and Tile Co., at Summerville, S. C., capital $26,000, by E. B. Hillega and others.

Aluminum works are reported at New Orleans, La.; cotton mills at Macon, Ga., and Spartanburg, S. C.; a distillery at Louisville, Ky.; electric plants at Fort Smith and Little Rock, Ark., Biloxi, Miss., Lynchburg, Va., and Terra Alta, W. Va., and flour and grist mills at Efird's Mills, N. C., Harms, Tenn., and Danville, Va. Gas works are to be built at Ocala, Fla., and Olive Springs, Tenn.; an ice factory at Fort Worth, Texas; iron working plants at Hillsboro, Tex., Petersburg and Richmond, Va., and Wheeling, W. Va.; an oil mill at Birmingham, Ala.; tobacco factories at Louisville, Ky., Statesville and Thomasville, N. C., and woodworking plants at Piedmont, Ala., Lake City, Fla., Augusta, Ga., Little Rock, Ark., Louisville, Ky., Columbia, N. C. and Nacogdoches, Texas.

The enlargements for the week include a rolling mill at Max Meadows, Va.; a flouring mill at Athens, Tenn.; a foundry at West Point, Ga.; an oil mill at Belton, Texas; phosphate works at Bine Springs and Wade, Fla., and cotton mills at Montgomery and Union Springs, Ala., Harden and Haw River, N. C., Blackburg, S. C., and Memphis, Tenn.—Tradesman (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

To Try Howard's Witnesses.

The federal court for the western district of Tennessee convened in special session in Nashville for the purpose of trying Smith, Brockway, Heatley and Gleason, the four New York witnesses held in jail there, charged with perjury in the late celebrated Howard case.

An Official Guide for the Married.

In Belgium it is the custom to give certificates of marriage in the form of little books with paper covers. These books, which are often produced in the course of law proceedings, and are taken in evidence, are apt to become dirty and dog's-eared. The Burgomaster of Brussels has therefore hit upon a new plan. Henceforward a charge will be made for the books, which will be neatly bound in morocco and gilt-edged. They will be something more than a mere certificate.

A summary of Belgian law on the marriage state is given in them for the use of young couples, and among a mass of other miscellaneous information are directions for the feeding and care of infants. There are also places for entering the names and birthdays of the children of the marriage, the authorities considerately affording space for twelve such entries. To poor persons the books will be issued free of charge. One of the town councillors was in favor of adding directions for obtaining a divorce, but his suggestion was not adopted.—London News.

She'll Reform Him.

Minister—You say you are going to marry a man to reform him. That is noble. May I ask you who it is?

Miss Beauti—It's young Mr. Bondclipper.

"Indeed! I did not know he had any bad habits."

"Yes, his friends say that he is becoming quite miserly."—N. Y. Weekly.

Ugly Tempers

Are a product of bad digestion. Your dyspeptic is almost invariably a cross-patch. The way to renew cheerfulness of disposition and an equable temper soured by indigestion, is to take a course of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which not only banishes dyspepsia, but also relieves biliousness, constipation, chills and fever, rheumatism and kidney trouble. Use it with persistence three times a day.

It is never too late to mend, but the longer you put off the mending the more you have to mend.

Ladies needing a tonic, or children who want building up, should take Brown's Iron Bitters. It is pleasant to take, cures Malaria, Indigestion, Biliousness and Liver Complaints, makes the Blood rich and pure.

He is the wisest who is content to make money slowly and take the rational pleasures of life as he goes along.

An Important Difference.

To make it apparent to thousands, who think themselves ill, that they are not affected with any disease, but that the system simply needs cleansing, is to bring comfort home to their hearts, as a costive condition is easily cured by using Syrup of Figs. Manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co.

Get wisdom, young man, even if you have to marry for it.

Many persons are broken down from overwork or household care. Brown's Iron Bitters rebuilds the system, aids digestion, removes excess of bile, and cures malaria. A splendid tonic for women and children.

It pays to take some stimulants now and then. That is, it pays the saloon keeper.

A Chapter on Divorces.

In Ohio a divorce was recently granted because "the defendant pulled the plaintiff out of bed by the whiskers."

In Illinois a decree was obtained by a long-suffering husband because "during the past year the defendant struck this plaintiff repeatedly with pokers, flat irons and other hard substances."

A New Jersey wife got a divorce because "the defendant, the husband, sleeps with a razor under his pillow to frighten this plaintiff."

A Virginia wife was set free because "the defendant does not come home until 10 p. m., and then keeps this plaintiff awake talking."

A Tennessee court liberated a wife because "the defendant does not wash himself, thereby causing the plaintiff great mental anguish."

A Connecticutt man got a divorce because "the defendant would not get up in the morning, nor call the plaintiff, nor do anything she was told."

A Michigan wife was released because the husband did not provide the necessaries of life, saying "he would not work his toenails off for any woman."

A New York wife was granted a divorce because her husband threw the baby at her when she hit him with the coal bucket for spitting on the stove.

A Missouri divorce was once granted because "the defendant goes gadding about leaving the plaintiff supperless, or if he gets any he has to cook it himself."

In Pennsylvania a henpecked husband was relieved from the yoke of matrimony because "the defendant struck this plaintiff a violent blow with her bustle."

A Wisconsin man got a divorce because his wife kept a servant girl who spit on the frying pan to see if it was hot enough to fry.

In California a defendant husband was adjusted guilty of cruelty because he did not provide water at his house, neither would he repair the house to make it comfortable.

A decree was granted in Massachusetts because "the defendant keeps this plaintiff awake most of the night quarreling."

An Indiana applicant testified that "my wife would not walk with me on Sundays and pulled a tuft of hair out of my head."

In Minnesota a decree was given to the wife because "the defendant never cuts his toenails, and, being restless in his sleep, scratches this plaintiff severely."

A Kansas wife was released from her husband because, as she stated in her petition, "the defendent pinched the nose of this plaintiff, causing it to become very red, thereby causing the plaintiff great pain and anguish of mind."

A New York man, in petitioning for divorce, pleaded that "the plaintiff would not sew on this plaintiff's buttons, neither would she allow him to go to fires at night." a species of oppression decided by the court to be cruel and inhuman, and therefore entitling the plaintiff to a decree.

Uses of Electricity.

In the transition through which the whole world is passing, in placing itself upon another basis, the electrical field is one that is making great strides in the economical appliances. Electricity is slowly but surely making a revolution in housekeeping, and pleasantly robbing that department of a great deal of its drudgery, and the tendency is still onward in developing new appliances which add to the luxury of our latter-day civilization. The latest device in this way is an electrically heated shaving pot. The pot is hollow, like the bottom of a champagne bottle, the lamp being fixed inside. The lamp is about eight candle power, and its cost is about two cents.

The transmission of power by electricity, a pomblem which has exercised the minds of electrical engineers for years, has been solved in one way among others by the transmission of 10,000 volts from a waterfall twenty-eight miles distant, by which the cities of Pomona and San Bernardo, Cal., are lighted in a very satisfactory manner.—Hardware.

ALASKA A FAMINE LAND.

THE FOOD SOURCES OF THE ESKIMOS DESTROYED.

An Effort to Save the Starving by Domesticating the Asian Reindeer —Small Herds for Each Family.

FOR some years the Indians and Eskimos in the northern half of this continent have lived most precariously. Their usual food resources have repeatedly failed them. They have been reduced to extreme destitution, and many have perished of starvation. One year or another famine has afflicted the entire inhabited region from Labrador to Alaska.

Little as we know of the history of the Eskimos on the American mainland, it is certain that thousands formerly lived where hundreds are now found. Captain French, an experienced pilot along the Labrador coast, says, there is now only one Eskimo where twenty used to live. Years ago the Indians killed many of them, and they have been gradually diminishing ever since on account of the growing scarcity of seal, fish, birds and other game, and also because of their contact with civilization, their close winter houses inducing consumption and other diseases.

The condition of these few thousands of people on the islands and along the coasts of Alaska appeals all the more to our sympathy because their sources of food have been destroyed by the industries of white men.

Right across the narrow sea from Alaska, on the shores of Asia, and extending some ways into the interior, live hardy, active and well-fed tribes, allied to the Eskimos of our continent, who own tens of thousands of domestic reindeer. The flesh and skins of these animals supply them with food, shelter and clothing. As far as their own people are concerned, they do not know what starvation means. During the past two years the matter has been well looked into, and it has been found that there is no reason why the domesticated reindeer should not thrive in Alaska and further east. Indeed, there seems to be no reason why these animals should not be a source of wealth and security to the natives clear across the northern part of this continent. On the shores of Alaska, and further inland, the mosses and grasses thrive on which these animals live in Asia.

The Rev. Sheldon Jackson, our general agent of education in Alaska, had the honor of suggesting the importation of domesticated reindeer. A considerable sum of money contributed by the public in 1891 and a grant of $15,000 from the Government in 1892 enabled Mr. Sheldon, with the assistance of Captain Healy and the revenue cutter Bear, to try the experiment. It is now so far advanced that its success, as far as the practicability of raising reindeer in Alaska is concerned, is assured. Mr. Sheldon's report on the work has been printed by the Government, and the facts given here are taken from it.

It was objected to the work at the outset that though the natives of Alaska would kill their deer and sell the meat, they would not sell live animals. In Kennan's book he says that in the two and a half years he spent in Siberia not one of his parties was ever able to buy from the Koraks and Tchuctchees a single living reindeer. It was also said that the animals would not bear transportation across the sea. The work of 1891 was planned on a small scale, to test the correctness of these assumptions.

It was found that the natives would sell reindeer, though it took days of palaver to overcome their reluctance to part with live animals. Sixteen were finally purchased. They were kept on shipboard for over three weeks, passed through a severe gale, and were finally landed in good condition at Unalaska, after a sea voyage of over 1000 miles. It was thus proven that they could be transported on shipboard as easily and safely as other domestic cattle. The reindeer thrived during the winter at Unalaska, and by spring two additions had been made to the herd.

In the summer of 1892 operations were much enlarged, in view of the success of the preliminary experiments and with the aid of the Government grant. A herd of 175 selected animals was purchased in Siberia and landed at Port Clarence, on the Alaskan coast. This point was selected for the reindeer station because it is the nearest good harbor to Siberia, and because it is a central point from which the animals may easily be distributed.

Four Siberians who are well acquainted with the management of reindeer were taken to Port Clarence and placed in charge of the herd. Under their direction a few Alaskan Eskimos are learning the care and management of reindeer. The intention is from year to year to increase the number of Eskimo apprentices to the herders. The Eskimos who are learning the business are all young men. As soon as each of them has demonstrated his capacity and learned the business a small herd will be given to him as a start in life. From year to year the number of these native herders will be increased, and some of them will be set up in business as herders on their own account, and in this way the herds will naturally become more and more distributed throughout the country, until at last they overspread the entire northern region as the northeastern corners of Siberia and Lapland are now covered. There is no doubt that practically the whole of Alaska is good grazing ground for reindeer.

The importation of reindeer is no longer an experiment. The practicability and advantages of the enterprise have been demonstrated, and it will be a great thing for Alaska when the herding of reindeer is firmly established there on a large scale. The natives will have a permanent, regular and abundant supply of food, and with more generous nourishment, the population is likely to increase in numbers. Then a change from the condition of hunters to that of herders will be a distinct advance for the Eskimos in the scale of civilization. Reindeer easily travel 100 miles a day, and their introduction will help to solve the question of Alaskan transportation.

A new and profitable industry will also be added to the country. Reindeer skins are marketed all over Europe and are worth in their raw condition from $1.50 to $1.75 apiece. The tanned skins (soft, with a beautiful yellow color) find a ready sale in Sweden at from $2 to $2.75 each. Reindeer skins are used for gloves, military riding trousers, and the binding of books. Reindeer hair is in great demand, and from reindeer horns is made the best glue. Smoked reindeer tongues and tanned skins are among the principal products of the great annual fair at Nijni Novgorod, Russia. In Lapland there are about 400,000 head of reindeer, sustaining in comfort some 26,000 people. Mr. Sheldon says there is no reason, considering the greater area of the country and the abundance of reindeer moss, why arctic and subarctic Alaska should not sustain a population of 100,000 people with 300,000 head of reindeer.

The work is prosecuted, with the aid of Congress, and it is expected that before many years the industry will be self-supporting.—New Orleans Picayune.

Temper at the Breakfast Table.

"Many persons afflicted with a peculiar derangement of the digestive organs are seized with an almost uncontrollable irritability as soon as they sit down to eat, more particularly at the breakfast table," remarked an experienced Arch street physician. "This is caused by a premature secretion of the gastric juice, due to a too vivid anticipation of food. To avoid possible insanity, such persons require careful medical treatment. I once attended a young lady professionally whose rather stern father was so often obliged to send her away from the table for unreasonable bursts of temper that he grew suspicious of her sanity and caused her to be watched. It appeared that as soon as she reached her room she seized a pair of scissors, opened a trunk and, drawing forth a roll of ribbon, proceeded to snip it into small bits. The trunk was nearly full of such snippings, and it was remembered that she was continually purchasing ribbon. I cured her of such manifestations of wrath by treating her for dyspepsia."—Philadelphia Record.

Physiological Effect of Music.

The results of numerous experiments made with scientific care by a Russian physician, to determine what, if any, are the physiological effects produced by music, are thus summarized: An influence on the circulation of blood is noticed, the pressure sometimes rising and sometimes falling, though the action of musical tones and pipes, both on animals and men, expresses itself, for the most part, by increased frequency of the beats of the heart; the variations in the circulation consequent upon musical sounds coincide with changes in the breathing, though they may also be observed quite independently of it; the variations in the blood pressure are dependent on the pitch and loudness of the sound and on tone-color; in these variations of the blood pressure, also, the peculiarities of the individuals, whether men or lower animals, are plainly apparent, and even Nationality, in the case of man, is claimed to exhibit some effect.—New York Tribune.

AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Affairs of Government and News of the Departments Discussed.

Notes of Interest Concerning the People and Their General Welfare.

The members of the democratic caucus are very secretive, and the chairman had laid special stress upon the necessity of secrecy as to all that takes place until the bill is finally agreed upon.

Judge Cox in the equity court has declined to issue a mandamus to prevent the pension commissioner from reducing the pension of Judge Charles D. Long, of Michigan, from $72 to $50 a month.

Congressmen are discussing the fate of the Bland bill when it reaches the president. It is accepted that the senate will pass the bill although the administration may make a hard fight against it.

A dispatch has been received at the state department from Minister Thompson, at Rio de Janeiro, stating that it was reported that the insurgents had captured Lopa. The name is probably misspelled, and is understood to mean Sapo, a town on the coast eight miles out of Desterro.

A cable message received at the navy department from Rear Admiral Boham confirms the report of the arrival of the government dynamite cruiser, Nictheroy, in Rio harbor, where she anchored. The admiral says, in his dispatch, that it was reported that the rest of the loyal fleet will arrive at Rio from Bohia February 22.

The president has sent to congress another bulky batch of Hawaiian correspondence. It includes President Dole's letter to Willis, already published, and Willis' reply with several other communications. Willis, in his letter transmitted to Secretary Gresham, says: "This letter will, on my part, end the correspondence upon the subject."

Superintendent Kimball, of the life-saving service at Washington, has received a telegram from the keeper of the Dodies (North Carolina) station, stating that the schooner Florence C. Megee, of Philadelphia, from Port Tampa, Florida, to Baltimore with phosphate, went ashore near the station. The crew of ten men were saved in life boats.

The secretary of war has received from Second Comptroller Mansur his decision in the case of General Sickles, which, while setting forth strong constitutional arguments against the qualifications of any retired army officer to enter congress, finds that General Sickles cannot be divested of his retired pay, amounting to $5,625 annually, and continues to hold his military office.

After conferring upon the subject, Secretaries Lamont and Herbert have decided that there shall be no more contests at football between the cadets at Annapolis and West Point. The action is taken because of a conviction that the inter-academic matches are detrimental to discipline and to the studies of the cadets. Orders have been sent to the two academies to this effect.

The senate committee on finance met Tuesday morning only to adjourn promptly, Mr. Voorhees stating that the tariff bill was not ready. The chairman and Mr. Jones, of Arkansas, were the only democrats present, and they retired at once to the caucus, leaving the republican members in full possession of the committee room. The republicans remained half an hour discussing the situation and preparing their plan of action. Nothing definite was agreed upon.

The silver men point with gratification to the advance in wheat, cotton and the stock markets since the passage of the Bland bill. Cotton closed 8 points higher Friday than it did Thursday. This was on the strength of the probably early passage of the coinage bill. Last fall, when the unconditional repeal passed the senate, silver, cotton and wheat all slumped together, and they have been going down, down, down ever since, until the eve of favorable action on the Bland bill.

Hawaiian Reports.

A volume of nearly eight hundred pages, exclusive of maps, has been laid before the senate representing the testimony taken by the senate committee on foreign relations, and their findings of the facts thereon, under the resolution directing them to inquire whether any, and if so, what irregularities have occurred in the diplomatic intercourse between the United States and Hawaii in relation to the recent revolution. The report of the majority of the committee was prepared by Chairman Morgan, of Alabama. It exhaustively reviews the facts, laws and precedents, protectorate, and finds nothing irregular in the appointment of Blount, but in effect says that the evidence taken by the committee under more favorable circumstances leads the committee to different conclusions than those which he formed. This report is concurred in as to all its essential findings by the republican members of the committee—Sherman, Frye, Dolph and Davis. They characterize it as an exceedingly able document, but they dissent on five points.

SEIGNIORAGE BILL PASSES.

The Measure Goes Through by a Majority of Thirty-Nine Votes.

The Opposition Present a Solid Front to the Last.

By a vote of 168 to 129, or a majority of 39, the Bland silver seigniorage bill passed the house at 5 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Thus the long fight has ended by a victory for the silver men in the house. It was a close call, however. To the very last moment the eastern democrats and republicans refused to vote, and it was only by the aid of the speaker's vote that a quorum was secured on the adoption of the order from the committee on rules.

With the exception of two hours' debate, the fight in the house was one continuation of roll calls. The opposition offered all sorts of amendments calculated to prevent the passage of the bill, but each and every one of them was voted down and Mr. Bland's bill, as amended by himself, was finally passed.

It provides for the coinage of the seigniorage and for the coinage of the silver purchased under the Sherman law. It further provides that the treasury notes outstanding, issued for the purchase of this coin, shall be redeemed in silver and silver certificates.

The passage of the bill means much for silver. The majority of 39 in its favor shows how the sentiment in the house has changed since the Sherman law was repealed. This fight over, the house will now spend several weeks in passing appropriation bills which are on the calendar. The bill to repeal the 10 per cent tax on the state banks will be considered.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Situation During the Past Week.

The weekly review of the industrial situation in the South shows that the improvement which has been noticeable since the first of the year is distinctly and steadily continuing, being the more marked in ironworking than in woodworking industries. Several new blast furnaces have been blown in and the iron product is increasing, demonstrating that southern furnace men can sustain themselves at present rates. The coal output at large collieries is increasing and there is a considerable movement in erecting new coke ovens. Reports from one thousand sources in the south in the past week show that general business is very much better, and the demand for machinery has trebled since January first.

For y new industries were established in the south in the past week, together with eleven factories that will be enlarged. Prominent among the new industries are the following: The Stonington Brick and Pottery Company, with $90,000 capital, at Stonington, Miss.; a $600,000 Plumbago and Mineral Paint Co., at Bessemer City, N. C.; a $125,000 coal company at Covington, Ky.; a $140,000 cotton mill by W. A. Watson and others at Fort Mill, S. C.

F. Roberts and others will establish fertilizer works at Valdosta, Ga., seventy-five barrel per day flouring mills will be built at Chilhowie, Va., by J. W. Lankford and at Newport, Ky., by Newport Mill Company, 100 barrel mill will be built at Mt. Sterling, Ky., by the Monarch Milling Company. C. P. Wiggins and others have organized a foundry company at Little Rock, Ark., and the American Fixture Company with $30,000 capital, has been chartered at Dallas, Tex.

Water works are to be erected at Martinsville, Va., and Elizabethtown, Ky.

Among the large new buildings in prospect in the south are the following reported for the week: Business blocks at Clarksburg, West Virginia; Baptist church at Huntsville, Ala.; Presbyterian church at Rock Hill, S. C.; Sixty room hotel by Clark Bros., at Bartow, Fla.; $18,000 jail at Harrisonburg, Va.; $20,000 Odd Fellows' temple at Morgantown, W. Va.; $75,000 Presbyterian church at Houston, Texas; school building at Meridian, Miss., and court houses at Gonzales, Tex., and Joplin, Mo. —Tradesman (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

THE PUGILISTS ON TRIAL.

They Appear Before the Court of Record at Jacksonville.

A Jacksonville, Fla., special says: The criminal court of record convened this morning, the street around the court house being crowded with spectators anxious to see the two pugilists. Corbett was the first to arrive and was soon followed by Mitchell. Besides the two boxers there are arraigned for trial Joe Vendig, J. E. T. Bowden, Henry Sihler, R. H. McMilan, B. F. Blake, of the Duval Athletic club, and Billy Thompson and William A. Brady, as aiders and abetters.

The trial of Corbett was first begun and the result of this will decide the ballance. The champion is charged with engaging in a fight and meeting in pursuance of previous appointment, one Charles Mitchell, whom he did then and there beat, bruise, wound and ill treat. John E. Hartridge, attorney for the club, waived arraignment and pleaded "not guilty." Twenty witnesses were called and all answered. The entire morning was consumed in picking a jury.

A Colored Convention.

A number of representative negroes of Alabama have called a convention of the race for March 2, in Birmingham. The convention is called in accordance with resolutions of the National Colored Convention held in Cincinnati last November. The object is to discuss generally the emigration of the race to Africa. The men who issued the call stand with Bishop Turner, who says that Africa is the natural home of the negroes and the sooner they return there the better.

THE FIFTY-THIRD CONGRESS.

The House and Senate Called to Order in Regular Session.

Daily Summary of Routine Business in the Two Houses.

THE HOUSE.

By a vote of yeas 167, nays 53, the house, Monday, agreed to discharge the committee on ways and means from further consideration of Mr. Hatch's anti option bill and send it to the committee on agriculture for report. Mr. Boutelle offered a resolution reciting that the United States would not permit the representative of any government to remain in the capital who had intrigued with its enemies for the overthrow of its government; and that the same rights should be conceded to other governments, even the weakest; therefore be it resolved, that Minister Willis be recalled and a minister sent to Honolulu who will represent the sentiments and wishes of the United States. The speaker ruled that it was a question of privilege, and sent the resolution to the committee on foreign affairs. Mr. Bland moved to take up and discuss his seigniorage bill until 4 o'clock. A vote was taken and resulted as follows: Ayes, 168; nays, 5; which was 6 less than a quorum. At 1:30 Mr. Bland withdrew his motion and offered one to take up the bill for consideration, removing all limitations of debate. This was agreed to by a vote of 119 to nothing.

The house was again without a quorum Tuesday on the Bland seigniorage bill. Failing to obtain a quorum, Mr. Bland withdrew his motion to submit debate and the house proceeded to debate the bill without limit.

In the house, Wednesday morning, Mr. Kilgore offered a resolution asking the sergeant-at-arms if he had withheld the salary of members for the time absent without leave, if not, why not; and whether in his opinion the law could be enforced. It was ruled out on a point of order. Mr. Bland moved to take up the seigniorage bill and limit the debate to 3 p. m. Thursday. No quorum voted and a call of the house was ordered. A bare quorum was finally obtained, Speaker Crisp voting to make it.

In the house, Thursday, Mr. Cummings, of New York, endeavored to have the bill passed appropriating money to rescue the wreck of the Kearsage, but Mr. Kilgore, of Texas, demanded the regular order. The regular order was the vote on the adoption of the special order to limit debate in the seigniorage bill to two hours, on which the quorum failed to vote Wednesday, and the clerk called the roll. Exactly a quorum voted and the special order was adopted, 166 to 13, Speaker Crisp having voted to make the require number. The long struggle was over and a vote upon Mr. Bland's bill was finally taken. The bill being read a third time, Mr. Tracey moved to recommit the bill. Lost, 72 to 160. The motion on division received 72 votes in the affirmative and 160 in the negative. The yeas and nays were called, resulting: Yeas, 132; nays, 167. At 4:40 o'clock, the speaker said: "The question is, shall the bill pass?" In response thereto, a mighty volume of sound rolled out "aye." Some one demanded a division, which was had, resulting: Ayes, 154; nays, 54. Mr. Tracy called for the yeas and nays, and the request was supported by a sufficient number to secure them. The roll was called, and at 5:15 o'clock the vote was announced: Yeas, 168; nays, 129. "So the bill is passed," said the speaker, following which there was applause from its friends. The bill appropriating $45,000 for the raising of the Kearsage was then called up by Mr. Cummings and passed unanimously. The house then, at 5:30 o'clock, adjourned.

THE SENATE.

In the senate, Monday, Mr. Morgan, chairman of committee on foreign relations, reported the opinion of the committee on the subject of Hawaii. At 12:40 the senate proceeded to execute business, and at 1 p. m. adjourned to enable the democratic senators to resume their caucus meetings.

After the transaction of some unimportant business Tuesday morning, the senate, at 12:50, went into executive session, and at 1:25 adjourned until Wednesday.

In the senate, Wednesday, Mr. Voorhees offered a resolution appointing Mr. Mills a member of the finance committee during the absence and disability of Mr. Vance. He asked immediate action on it, but Mr. Hoar suggested that it had better lie over till Thursday. It accordingly went over. Mr. Frye then addressed the senate on the Hawaiian question. The senate at 2 p. m. went into executive session.

The resolution offered Wednesday by Mr. Voorhees, appointing Mr. Mills a member of the finance committee during the absence of Mr. Vance, was laid before the senate Thursday morning. Mr. Voorhees withdrew it, saying: "By request, indeed, by the demand of the senator from Texas, from which he has refused to be persuaded, I withdraw the resolution." Mr. Frye then resumed his speech on the Hawaiian question.

Nevada is turning its attention largely to hop culture in the valleys. The soil and climate is exactly suitable to the perfection of hops, which do not do well in a wet climate.

New Orleans has a smaller police force than other American city of corresponding size.

BUSINESS REVIEW.

Trade for the Past Week Was Very Discouraging.

R. G. Dun & Co's review of trade for the past week says: A waiting condition of business is one in which weekly fluctuations means nothing. Business of all kinds is hesitating until more can be determined about the future and meanwhile orders, which will keep hands at work for a time, are given and accepted, this week increasing, as in some others decreasing without affording reasonable indications of the future.

Prices are again greatly depressed, as low or lower than ever having been made in wheat, silver and some manufactured products, and neither cotton, wool nor raw iron has advanced.

The gutted money markets continue to show that the volume of business is still inadequate to employ the circulation available, and the withdrawal of about $60,000,000 from the New York market by the sale of government bonds does not cause the expected strengthening of rates. With gradually decreasing shipments of merchandise to other countries, foreign exchange rises and some exports of gold are expected.

The volume of domestic trade does not seem to increase. In all clearing house payments the decrease is 44.6 per cent for the week, against 37.8 for the previous week, and about 35.5 per cent for the month thus far.

Cotton was a sixteenth lower, with considerable trading; the receipts from plantations still exceeding those of last year, but the exports showed a relatively large increase, while Ellison reports foreign consumption nearly full. Takings of northern spinners since January 1st have been 38 per cent smaller than last year's to date.

A further decline in silver takes the price below the lowest previous record, and is partly due to a heavy shipment from New York during the week. The treasury deficit in February is somewhat smaller than in January, for, though custom receipts do not enlarge and for the month thus far are 36 per cent less than a year ago, the internal revenue for the month shows some increase over last year.

Industrial changes have been few, but a little better demand for some textile goods has started more mills than have stopped. There is a better feeling in fancy cottons, though some goods are a shade lower. Woolen dress goods are steady with fair demand, and though orders for heavy woolens and worsteds are light, they are a little better, some agents having made fair progress.

A larger demand gives encouragement in iron and steel manufacture and increased the output of mills, though it is yet only 50 to 60 per cent of their capacity.

Hence, fierce competition continues to depress prices, and while the recent slight advance in steel billets and pig iron has been lost, some other products are selling lower than ever.

Prices of commodities now average about ½ per cent higher than a month ago, but 11.7 per cent lower than a year ago; and, excepting this year, have never been as low on the whole as they are now.

Failures during the past week numbered in the United States 288 against 193 last year, and in Canada 51 against 37 last year.

The Bengal chamber of commerce at a recent meeting discussed the resolution that the best interests of the country demand that the mints be reopened. Afterwards the chamber adopted, by a vote of 69 to 15, an amendment to the effect that the mints should not be re-opened. A feature of the silver question in India is the abormal movement of all produce towards the ports, the object being to raise money in Europe upon products so forwarded.

COL. OATE'S CAMPAIGN.

Delivers His First Speech in the Gubernatorial Race.

Colonel Oats opened his gubernatorial campaign at Athens, Ala. In his speech he defended Mr. Cleveland and said the president is for free coinage by international agreement. Colonel Oates stated that he is for free coinage but wants a dollar's worth of silver in each dollar. He ignored all state issues, confessed and denounced ballot box stuffing; explained that pressure was brought to bear on him that caused him to recede from his determination not to enter a scramble for the nomination, and not await a tender of the same from the convention. He thrashed over the straw about the land loan and subtreasury; made light of the plank in the Jeffersonian platform—demanding that circulation be $50 per capita. He spoke of his confederate record and made a plea for the support of the old soldiers.

The two most striking utterances in his speech were: First, that Cleveland said the money power of New York could exhaust the treasury in forty-eight hours, and, therefore congress must be careful as to the character of the bill for coining the seigniorage; and second, that the ratio of the coinage of silver, interested only the bullion owners.

Skipped to Mexico.

A well known distiller, William H. Headly, of the Headly and Peak Distilling Company of Lexington, Ky., is probably in Mexico, a fugitive from justice. He left a few days ago and a letter received from him states that he has duplicated warehouse receipts, and that his future address is Don Carlos hotel, City of Mexico. It is impossible yet to estimate the amount of the forgeries. The banks at Lexington claim to be secure.

A statistician estimates that Americans expend $400,000 a day for cigarettes.

The Bank of Lowndesdale, S. C., has suspended. The depositors and stockholders will both probably be paid. The failure was probably caused by the inability to rediscount papers.

A special from Nebraska City, Neb., states that J. T. White has been found guilty of criminally libelling J. Sterling Morton. The libel consisted of hanging Secretary Morton in effigy recently.

The New York Herald Montevideo cable says that the sanitary state of the city of Rio is appalling. Yellow fever is rampant. For several days burials reached ninety a day, and it is impossible to state the number of new cases.

O. C. Gregory, assistant cashier of Gregory & Sons' private bank at Dexter, Mich., was found unconscious in a vault of the bank. He had been sandbagged and the vault robbed. It is said the thieves secured several thousand dollars.

There are distressing rumors afloat in Washington as to the condition of Chairman Wilson, of the ways and means committee. Investigation shows that they are all based upon an Associated Press telegram sent from the City of Mexico, 500 miles from Guadalajara, stating that Mr. Wilson's temperature is higher.

The South Carolina state constables have seized two cases of choice brandy consigned to Senator Don Cameron, of Pennsylvania, Helena island. The brandy came from Washington. The senator is unfortunate, as he has been getting his cases all along unmolested, and seemed lulled into security by accustomed evasion of detection.

Ex-Cashier William K. Burr, Jr., of the St. Louis National bank, who is under a warrant of arrest charging him with embezzling about $12,000 of the bank's funds, appeared before United States District Commissioner Crawford and gave security for his appearance. Mr. Burr claims that he is guilty of no criminal intention, and when his story is told he will be declared innocent of any intent to defraud.

The Columbian Fire Insurance Company of America located at Louisville, Ky., has assigned to S. H. Sullivan. The assets are about $250,000 with contingent liabilities of $125,000. Assignee Sullivan attributes the company's condition to the action of insurance commissioners of other states who have criticised the company's standing and refused to allow it to do business in territorities under their rule.

An interesting case has been decided by the supreme court at Nashville. It was that of Emmet G. Bennett vs. W. H. and S. E. Glass. Bennett married a Miss Glass, and after they had lived together happily a short time, she went back to her parents. Bennett thereupon entered suit against them for $20,000 damages, alleging that they had alienated his wife's affections. After one mistrial he secured a verdict for $7,500.

The Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railway and the Louisville and Nashville railway have withdrawn from the Southern Railway and Steamship association. There was a meeting of the association in Louisville and after considerable discussion these lines decided to withdraw. It was freely prophecied that the withdrawal of these two systems meant the disintegration of the association, but no other railroad has signified its intention to get out of the association.

Now, that the bill consolidating New York and Brooklyn has passed both houses of the legislature, and has received the governor's signature, public opinion solidly endorses it. Brooklyn has more than 1,000,000 inhabitants, and is altogether too large and important a city to remain sidetracked as a mere suburb of New York. When the provisions of the enabling act are carried out and voted upon, the greater New York, as the newspapers call it, will have a population of 3,000,000, and an area of about 325 square miles.

Miners Name a Ticket.

Representatives of the miners of the Birmingham, Ala., district met in secret session, and after an all-day conference passed a resolution endorsing the Jeffersonian populist platform on account of its plank opposing convict labor in the mines, but declined to endorse that party's state ticket. They nominated John A. Loyd and C. R. Bray, both miners, for the legislature.

Prohibition in Iowa.

A prominent man, living near Omaha, Neb., has just received a letter from Governor Frank D. Jackson, of Iowa, in which he states that if the Iowa legislature does not repeal or modify the prohibitory law so as to afford relief for the river counties, he will call the legislature in extra session for that purpose. This is the first declaration made by the governor on the subject.

In his letter to the Sheriff of Chrenshaw County on the white cappers, Governor Jones among other things says:

"If the lawlessness has assumed the flagrant shape of disguised bands roaming over portions of your county and beating citizens in the night time, it is of course the duty of the sheriff to learn of it and to take prompt steps to suppress it. If those who complain to me are not mistaken, a state of affairs exists in portions of your county which is a disgrace to our laws and civilization, and which can be effaced only by the speedy bringing of the offenders to justice and punishment."

The Washington correspondent of the Louisville Courier Journal has the following to say about Kolb's visit to Washington:

"Kolb was here about ten days ago, and was a very busy man, holding frequent conferences with leading Republicans. On last Tuesday night week, Kolb met a number of Republicans at the residence of Senator W. E. Chandler, and a long conference was held and an understanding was reached by which the Republican National Committee is to put up money and use their best efforts to help elect Kolb Governor. Senator Chandler when interviewed to-day, took good care not to deny that he had met Kolb, but said that he could not say anything about Mr. Kolb, especially of his movements of late. "But," he added, "I can say this, that the Republicans of the Senate, or rather a number of the party leaders here think that they see in the Kolb movement in Alabama a tendency toward a free ballot and a fair count, honest elections and protective tariff for the South, and they are glad to give to the Kolb party in Alabama and to similar parties in the South the encouragement of approval. I can say no more than this now. From what has been represented to us during the past two weeks there is everything to make it plain that we should give these people our confidence. There has been no party action, I may say, and none will probably be taken." The Democrats of Alabama can see through this scheme without glasses.

A New Industrial Era.

Kansas City Times.

The passage of the Wilson bill by the House of Representatives by a decisive majority marks the beginning of a new industrial era for the United States. For the past thirty years the face of the nation has been turned backward upon all questions effecting economic and industrial conditions and we have been praising, preaching and practicing middle age customs in the treatment of economic and industrial problems, so far as they can be affected by legislation. Had such legislative policy prevailed at any other time than in the latter part of the nineteenth century, when new inventions have caused tremendous advances in mechanics and brought about material improvements by accomplishing the division of labor and the substitution of machinery for the work of the hands, it would have retarded and thwarted the growth of the nation, would have checked intellectual progress, if it had not really and actually produced retrogression. But the impetus which has given to trade and commerce by the invention of steam motor power, and the subsequent production of mechanical agencies, has carried the nation forward as it were, by force, and with its back to the future.

In short, Speaker Crisp was correct in his statement when he declared the protective policy which had been practiced in the past by the United States was similar to that which has kept China stationary and isolated for the past thousand years. We have attempted nothing more nor less than the building up of a legislative Chinese wall around the United States, blocking and impeding commerce and preventing the extension of American influence in other parts of the world. Had it been continued America would stand a hundred years from to-day as she does now, and Republican politicians would still be preaching the policy of protection to her "infant industries."

With twenty years of untrammeled commerce, beginning with the passage of the Wilson bill, America will be the mistress of the world's commerce, trade and industry. Chairman Wilson correctly described the day of the vote upon the passage of the Wilson bill as one of the most glorious in our history, and that the record of the House that day would permanently record no passing event, but a great epoch in American history, and that in the future it would be a matter of pride to every man who voted for that bill to point to the record of that day and the part he played in its proceedings.

In short the work of Congress, signalized by the passage of the Wilson bill, is the result of the triumph of natural laws and human progress McKinleyism has retarded and thwarted the operation of this law for a period, but the reaction will be all the more powerful and effective, and the progress of the nation henceforth will be the more rapid for the temporary check which resulted from the protective policy which, though administered for half a century or more, is really but a moment of time in the life which this great nation is destined to complete.

The Valuable Citizen.

The citizen who is of most value to the community, town or city is not always the man who posseses the most wealth the highest intelligence or the most aristocratic lineage. Of course the two former will increase a man's usefulness if he will exert them in the proper direction. But the valuable citizen par excellence is the man who believes thoroughly in his town its people and professional men. He does not make it his business to decry the honesty of his local banker or merchant or the ability of the resident lawyer or physician. But instead he is an enthusiastic advocate of all things that pertain to the welfare of his own locality. He has the interest of its schools, churches, societies and people at heart and exploits their excellence abroad. We need more of this class of citizens and have the material in our midst to construct them.—Ex.

Husband.—"Why, it's just a year ago tomorrow that we were married."

Wife.—"So it is; and, do you know, I am wearing the same pair of shoes that I was married in, and they are not half worn out."

Husband.—"So am I."

Wife.—"Why, how strange. Mine were made by the Hamilton Brown Shoe Co., of St. Louis—their Ladies' Hand Sewed."

Husband.—"And mine are their Men's $4.00 Shoe."

"Well, let's stick to them for shoemakers for the rest of our lives, for their shoes wear as finely as they look."

Baptist Church, Mulberry—Preaching on the 4th Saturday and Sunday each month. J. G. Lowrey, Pastor.

LOCAL BREVITIES.

Peach trees are blooming.

March came in like a lamb.

Clanton needs public spirited citizens.

Mr. A. C. Holt has been on the sick list here.

Prof. J. M. Corderne was in town last week.

Mr. David Lodge, of Stanton was in town last Thursday.

It takes vim, push, enterprise and public spirit to build a town.

Mr. T. J. Henerson, of Mulberry Creek, was in Clanton last Monday.

Mrs. W. I. Mullins and Miss Lizzie Mullins visited Jemison last Friday.

Mr. Charles Biving, of Durham, has been on a visit to his relatives in Clanton.

Rev. J. G. Lowrey filled his appointment at the Verbena Baptist church last Sunday.

There will be a meeting of the citizens of Clanton next Saturday at the court house for the purpose of organizing a debating society. This is a good move and the young men should have signed the list should be out.

In another column will be found a call of the chairman for a meeting of the County Democratic Executive Committee of this county. There is an important meeting. A chairman is to be elected, a vacancy filled and other important matters attended to, and it is very necessary that every member be present. Let every member lay down his work and attend by all means upon that day.

The young society people spent an enjoyable evening at the residence of C. W. Hare, Esq., last Friday, the occasion being a "tacky party." All "tacked," and some didn't, but had a glorious time; and time, as is his peculiar way of doing, flew. About an hour all tore themselves away with feelings of regret. The charming hostess, Thomas was pronounced a most excellent hostess, and all are anxious for time to roll around when she again be manager of affairs in the "four hundred."

The young men of Clanton are organizing a farce-comedy company for the purpose of presenting the laughable play the "Deestrick Skule." The play will be liberally patronized as it is not only worth attending but will be given for the benefit of the Methodist Church. It is useless to add that it will be in no sense immoral and nothing may be attended by all with perfect propriety. The cause for which it is being organized is a guarantee that it will be conducted as it should and will be presented in about two or three weeks.

A supper was given at the Opera House last Monday night for the benefit of the Baptist Church by the ladies of Clanton. Although the attendance was not as good as expected, the ladies were more than cleared and a snug sum laid aside for the Church. The industrious belles who ran the postoffice realized profit from their U. S. issue, as well as all love-sick stags present received letters. It useless to say that the letters worked like a charm in cases of lost love and possessed restorative power, revival of blighted hopes, etc. Through the courtesy and hospitality of Messrs. J. Culverer and W. L. Sampey the young ladies present were invited to the dinning hall and treated to a delicious repast—leaving the young gents murmuring and fiddling in their pockets as though totally embarrassed. They, however, mustered sufficient courage, at the disappearance of the young ladies, to venture to suggest that if there was anything left that they were invited to repair to the piano on the great departure.

The evening was most pleasantly spent by all.

Sampey all the young ladies present were invited down to the dinining hall and treated to a delicious repast—leaving the bashful young gents murmuring and fumbling in their pockets as though financially embarrassed. They, however, mustered sufficient courage, on the reappearance of the young ladies to venture to suggest that if there was anything left that they were cordially invited to repair to the place of their recent departure.

The evening was most enjoyably spent by all.

A representative of the VIEW spent last Tuesday in Jemison. Never having been to that city, we expected to find a small place with one or two stores. Our suprise may be imagined when upon alighting from the train we discovered ourselves in the midst of a thriving little city with ten or twelve stores, a two story hotel and several manufacturing industries. The hotel which is run by Mrs. Maroney is conveniently located and the traveling men are given the best of attention. The people of that place are all hustling business men and we would not be surprised ere long to learn that Jemison had doubled her population.

Registrar.

Mr. H. T. Estis is hereby appointed as County Registrar for beat nine.

B. W. Garner,
County Registrar.

Notice.

The members of the Democratic Executive Committee of Chilton County are requested to meet at Clanton on Thursday, March 15, 1894, to act upon the resignation of the chairman, elect a new chairman and attend to other important business. By order of chairman. W. E. Stewart,
Secretary.

Charged With Counterfeiting.

Monroe Mims was arrested at his home near Jemison last Friday by Deputy United States Marshal, Dudley. He was charged with passing counterfeit money and was carried to Montgomery where he had his preleminary trial before Commissioner Seals and in default of $500 bail was committed to jail to await the action of the next United States grand jury.

It seems that this is not the first time that he has been in trouble of this kind. He was arrested once before on the same charge and his father had the case compromised. The counterfeits are said to be very poor, but good enough to pass upon an unsuspecting person.

Along The Alabama Midland.

For many years those who lived in South East Alabama were constant in singing the praises of the "Wire Grass region." Its possibilities were untold and they believed that all they needed was a railroad. After a time of waiting the railroad is theirs. Only those who used to travel through Pike, Dale and Henry counties by private conveyance can fully appreciate the change. Then it was often difficult to find convenient lodging places, now the railroad has invited thousands of thrifty farmers and tradesmen from this and other states to settle in that beautiful section and the country is rapidly filling up with cozy farm houses and neat villages. The pine forests are disappearing before the axe and saw of the lumberman and millions of feet of yellow pine timber are being sold in northern markets. The Alabama Midland is a new road, but perhaps is one of the best equipped in the South. Every day there enter and leaves the Union depot of Montgomery two elegant trains of cars coming and going to and from points in Georgia and Florida. Making as it does, close connection with the L. & N. R. R., it handles a large passenger traffic. The Division Passenger Agent at Montgomery, Mr. Lee McLendon, though a young man, is a thorough business man, and aided as he is by an able corps, few tourists are left in ignorance of the merits of his road. Everything connected with the Alabama Midland is on a substantial and business like scale. Whether you go through the elegant headquarters in Montgomery or into the passenger and freight depots along the line you are impressed that business men are at the helm. Major B. Dunham, the General Superintendent, Mr. Lee McLendon, the Passenger agent, Mr. Thompson, the General Freight Agent, Mr. Andrews, the Cashier, Mr. Havlow, Master of Transportation, their associates and numerous employees all seem imbued with the same ambition, and that to keep their road abreast of the times. We verily believe that the people of the "wire grass region" are made more energetic by reason of the presence of the Alabama Midland and its tireless promoters.

Last week we visited Abbeville the terminus of a branch recently built by the Midland. An elegant old town, for years pegging away, content only to be a small town, but now new life is astir, railroad activity has seized even the old inhabitants and better homes, stores and public enterprises are to be builded; and thus we might go on giving instance after instance of how these lower counties are coming to the front encouraged largly by the presence of a railroad.

The farmers of Henry County are in a good condition, have some money ahead, and have planted largely of oats. The prospects for another hog crop are good. Cane, corn, peas and ground peas form a large share of what is produced by near every farmer in that section.

COUNTY NEWS.

Neighborhood News Gathered by Our Correspondents.

Maplesville Music.

The festive whistle of the fishing boy is heard again in the land.

Farmers are getting to work in earnest. Gardeners too are quite busy.

Mr. Herbert Woolley's friends were glad to see him again at home.

Mr. Dawson Williams has been very sick with malarial fever but is better.

Mr. Potts, of Pensylvania, is here looking after the steel interest of the M. T. & M. railroad. We are always glad to see him, as by his urbanity he has made friends with all he has met here.

Dr. Eaton, of Dayton is visiting Mrs. Glover.

Verbena Views.

Bill Pitts, Esq., of Montgomery, spent Sunday in Verbena.

Miss Geneva Brown, of Autauga, was the guest of relatives here this week.

Miss Maggie McQueen, a charming young lady of West Autauga has been the guest of relatives in Autauga.

Messrs. T. M. Barnette and W. G. Merriwether visited their farms in South Alabama recently.

Miss Bettie Mullins, of the Magic City, is visiting her grandfather, Mr. K. Wells, to the pleasure of her many friends here.

S. W. Catts spent Sunday in Verbena.

It looks like there will be more fertilizer sold here than ever before. We can't see for the life of us, how the farmers expect to pay for it in cotton at six cents a pound.

If the farmers of Chilton would follow Mr. F. A. Gulledge's example in raising meat their smoke houses would be at home. He recently killed 8 one year old hogs the largest weighing 308 pounds, the others averaged 194. He also has the model hog pen.

Stanton Stories.

We are having some pretty weather now. Farmers are busy plowing and the ladies are trying to get gardens planted.

Mr. Frank M. McCarty has started the slab coaling again and that is prospects of things being lively.

Prof. Hick's school is progressing rapidly and the scholars appreciate him highly.

Rev. J. W. Donaway preached a fine sermon last Sunday on "Baptist doctrine."

Mr. Murry preached at the Episcopal Church Sunday.

Miss Carry Day is visiting her aunt, Mrs. Prichard this week.

Mr. Lum Dyer and wife occupied their new home last week.

Mr. Enoch Adams returned from school last Friday to see his brother, who is quite sick. We hope ere this is in print that he will be convalescent.

I am glad to report every one in our town enjoying good health. No sickness.

Lily Loquacity.

The grim monster, death, has again visited our community and taken another one of our oldest friends, Mrs. Sanford.

Mrs. Lizzie Perdue and Miss Inez Hammond, of Birmingham, came down the 24th ult., to pay their last respects to their grandmother, Mrs. Sanford. Miss Inez will remain at home a few weeks.

Mr. P. D. Wilson, of Clanton, was here on a visit to his best girl last Sunday.

Miss Geneva Jones, who has been teaching at Montevallo for sometime past is now at home much to the delight of her many friends.

Mr. R. J. Jones visited his girl at Montevallo last week.

Our genial young friend, Mr. John Jackson, of Autauga, was here to see his best girl last week.

Mr. Young and family after spending several days here have returned to Syllacauga.

Mrs. Goodwin, of Maplesville, was here on a visit to her sister, Mrs. B. W. Garner.

The little infant of Mr. T. J. Denoir's whose mother died a few months ago was laid to rest one day last week.

Every family in the county ought to take the VIEW for this year.

DO YOU WANT A HOME?

If so call and see me, and I am sure that I can please you.

A YEAR
FOR THE INDUSTRIOUS.
If you want work that is pleasant and profitable, send us your address immediately. We teach men and women how to earn from $5.00 per day to $3,000 per year without having had previous experience, and furnish the employment at which they can make that amount. Nothing difficult to learn or that requires much time. The work is easy, healthy, and honorable, and can be done during daytime or evenings, right in your own locality, wherever you live. The result of a few hours' work often equals a week's wages. We have taught thousands of both sexes and all ages, and many have laid foundations that will surely bring them riches. Some of the smartest men in this country owe their success in life to the start given them while in our employ years ago. You, reader, may do as well; try it. You cannot fail. No capital necessary. We start you with something that is new, easily learned. A book telling all about it is free to all. Help yourself by writing us to-day—now is the time. Delays are costly.

THE NEWS IN GENERAL.

Condensed from Our Most Important Telegraphic Advices

And Presented in Pointed and Readable Paragraphs.

The Hecla mill of the Calumet Woolen company, the largest mill at Bridgeport, Conn., has started up after a shut down of six months. Two hundred operatives are employed.

While experimenting with chemicals, Dr. A. A. Hutchins, of Clyde, O., had both his eyes blown out and received other serious injuries. He will probably die. The building in which he was conducting his experiments was almost completely wrecked.

A train on the Illinois Central railroad was derailed three miles from Durant, Miss. The smoker struck a broken rail and with the ladies' coach was thrown down a high embankment. Severe injuries were inflicted upon nearly all the passengers.

The will of Joseph Keppler has been filed for probate. It is dated January 7, 1894, eleven days before his death. The executors are the widow, Pauline, the son, Udo, Louis C. Raegener and Edward Stieglitz. His entire estate is put in trust during the life of his life. On the death of the widow the entire estate goes to the children, share and share alike. The estate is valued at $500,000.

Governor Patterson, of Pennsylvania, has planned a trip to Florida. If nothing happens to prevent it he will go from Philadelphia, in company with Secretary Harrity, Adjutant General Greenland, Attorney General Hensel, J. Henry Cochran, of Williamsport; Colonel E. De V. Morrel, of Philadelphia, and Colonel Rollin H. Wilbur, of Bethlehem. The party will be gone about two weeks.

At a meeting of the fusion democratic state central committee of Kansas at Topeka a call was issued for a state convention to meet in Topeka, July 3, to place in nomination candidates for state offices. The committee ignored the proposition of the stalwart committee for a compromise for the differences between the two factions of the parties, and it is possible that two democratic state conventions will be the result.

The petition for secession of the silver states, which has been in circulation at Georgetown, Col., but afterwards withdrawn, recites that the undersigned declare the government of the United States in the establishment of an infamous banking system that eats out the substance of the people, increases all forms of indebtedness, centralizes wealth and has resulted in the building up of a plutocracy that aspires to govern the nation.

The National Electric Light Association met in its seventeenth annual session at Washington with 250 delegates in attendance, including most of the prominent electricians of the country. In his opening address President E. A. Armstrong, of Camden, N. J., said that 2,300 central stations had been established and that the association represented two hundred million dollars of capital, supporting 100,000 men and as many families.

The report telegraphed from Georgetown, Col., that citizens of that place were signing a petition in favor of the silver states seceding and joining Mexico, proves to be a canard. The leading men of Georgetown, which is in the heart of the silver belt of Colorado, say they have not heard of any such movement and declare that nowhere in the country can people be found more loyal to the government and constitution than those of Georgetown.

The trial of the case of Mrs. John Bibbehup Martin (Victoria Woodhull) against the trustees of the British museum, the plaintiff charging the trustees with exposing upon the shelves of their library books containing statements libeling her character, has been concluded. The jury brought in a verdict awarding Mrs. Martin £1 damages, but the court reserved judgment pending argument of counsel upon points arising from the jury's answer.

Joseph Don Jan was tried in the United States district court at Baltimore on the charge of violating the postal laws by sending a threatening card to Vice President Stevenson. The jury returned a verdict of guilty and Judge Morris sentenced Don Jan to the penitentiary for eighteen months. The man is evidently not strong minded, but showed from his actions and his desire to run the country that he was of that class of cranks which are liable to become dangerous.

The Edinburg Evening News declares that Mr. Gladstone has resigned, to take effect at Easter. Also that the premiership was offered to Lord Roseberry, who declined it, and was then offered to Earl Spencer, who accepted it. Though the condition of Mr. Gladstone's eyes is regarded as a sufficient reason for his wishing to lay down the cares of office, it is not believed to be the real reason for his resignation, if the present report that he has resigned is true.

The trustees of the Brooklyn tabernacle have not acted on the resignation of Dr. Talmage, and it is now said that he will remain. The doctor's farewell sermon announced for Sunday may be turned into a jubilee sermon. Within the past few weeks the trustees have raised $60,000 to pay on the church debt, and the collections have increased so that they fully meet the running expenses of the tabernacle. The pastor feels very much encouraged and it is now predicted that he will remain for life.

The Salvation Army of the United States and England has large colonization schemes brewing for Mexico. A syndicate of capitalists interested in the work of the army has purchased from the Mexican government 200,000 acres of land in the state of Chiapas in southern Mexico. A member of the syndicate has sailed for England, where he is to meet Gen. Booth. It is expected plans will now be perfected by which 5,000 families will be put on the great tract working under the direction of the officers of the army.

The world's sugar plantations produce every year 9,000,000 tons of sugar.

CORBETT ACQUITTED.

The Jury Brought in a Verdict of Not Guilty in Short Order.

Slugger Mitchell is Greatly Pleased With the Turn of Affairs.

A Jacksonville special says: Once more the prize fighters have gone up against the "peace and dignity" of the state of Florida as Governor Mitchell would phrase it, and once more the "peace and dignity" has been knocked out in short order.

At 3:15 o'clock Friday afternoon the jury in the case against James J. Corbett, charged with violating the laws of Florida by engaging in a prize fight, retired to make up a verdict. At 4:07, or sixteen minutes later, the jury returned and the foreman handed the verdict to the state's attorney, who read: "We, the jury, find the defendant not guilty."

A broad smile spread over Corbett's face as he heard these reassuring words and the sports who crowded the courtroom would have cheered had they not been informed by Judge Phillips when the jury came in that he would send any person to jail for contempt who dared to express audible approval or disapproval of the verdict.

Charley Mitchell was present when the verdict was announced and he leaned over and grasped Corbett by the hand and whispered congratulations. Mitchell, of course, considered the verdict in the light of a practical acquittal for himself, as a case against him of a similar nature is pending. There were four women in the courtroom at the time, two of them members of the "After Dark" company, and they braved the wrath of Judge Phillips to the extent of airily waving their hands to Corbett.

The proceedings leading up to the verdict were very tame. Court convened at 9:30 o'clock a. m. and the state resumed the examination of its witnesses. The attorneys for the prosecution tried to elicit testimony to show that the fight was brutal and to make the witnesses admit that from the very brutality of the contest Corbett and Mitchell must have harbored malice against one another. The state, however, did not make much headway on this line, and it then attempted to bring in the check for $20,000 which Corbett received in public after the fight. All of the witnesses had seen a piece of paper handed Corbett, but all were innocent of any knowledge of its character.

JUDGE GROSSCUP'S DECISION

A Knockout to the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Judge Grosscup has rendered a decision in the United States district court at Chicago which will make the interstate commerce law practically inoperative, for the reason it will in the future be impossible to convict any one for acts violating its provisions. The court held that General Freight Agent James, of the Lake Shore road, and Gordon McLeod, agent of the Merchants' Dispatch freight line, the witnesses who refused to answer questions put to them by the grand jury, were right in the position which they took and that they cannot be compelled to answer. James and McLeod were asked questions which were intended to draw out information as to illegal cuts in rates made by the companies which they represent. Both refused to answer on the ground that the fifth amendment to the constitution of the United States gives every man the right to refuse to make disclosures which will criminate himself.

From Judge Grosscup's decision the government cannot appeal and the railroads will not. Attorney A. G. Safford, who represents the interstate commerce, was greatly disappointed when the decision was announced. He acknowledged the decision cripples the commission in so far as prosecutions are concerned.

Interstate Commerce Commissioner Morrison has been interviewed upon Judge Grosscup's decision. He was fully apprised of the sweeping character of the decision, but he thought it would probably render it impossible, under the existing law, to convict one man by the testimony of an accomplice, unless the latter is willing to testify. Said he, "the decision affects the interstate commerce commission to the extent that it will make it difficult to secure convictions. It will have no other effect, for, of course, it will still be impossible to secure evidence outside of the parties directly implicated. If the decision stands it will put us back in the same position where we were before the amendment was adopted." Commissioner Veasey expressed views similar to those of Mr. Morrison.

REORGANIZATION EFFECTED

By the Atlanta Consolidated Street Railroad Company.

A Boston dispatch says: The deal between the bondholders and the shareholders of the Atlanta Consolidated Street Railway Company, having for its object the placing of the road upon a sound financial basis, has been consummated through the efforts of Mr. Joel Hurt, the president of the company. The shareholders have paid off the entire floating indebtedness of the company and considerably over ninety per cent of the bonds have already been deposited with the trust companies to be stamped. The deal means much for the road and places it free from any floating indebtedness.

WILL GLADSTONE RESIGN?

Rumors That He Will Quit Again Revived.

The subject of Gladstone's resignation has been revived in a way suggesting that there may be some foundation in the report. The leading newspapers of London publish articles almost identical in substance, indicating that Mr. Gladstone will resign at an early day. The reason given in each case is that the premier's eyesight is failing so fast that his vision may become wholly obscured if he does not immediately retire from active political duty.

A fire at Hilton's steam saw and planing mills, at Wilmington, N. C., destroyed the planing mill, dry kiln, six box cars, offices, a large quantity of dressed lumber and sash and blind factory. Loss estimated at abou $25,000; insurance $15,000. Saw mill was not damaged.

Despite reports current to the effect that Judge Key will resign as United States judge from eastern Tennessee, he has announced that he will never resign, but will hold his position for life. Judge Key was appointed by President Hayes in 1879, and has served continuously ever since.

The jury in the case of F. J. Wood, Jr., charged with embezzling and misappropriating the funds of the late Ninth National bank of Dallas, Texas, after being out three days brought in a verdict of acquital. The case occupied the court for two weeks and was ably contested on both sides.

The Odd Fellows of Alabama are going to erect somewhere in the state a widows' and orphans' home. The project has been discussed for some time and it is now stated they are looking for a desirable location. One of the smaller cities or towns in the state will be selected, probably Jasper, Ala.

The court of sessions has convened in Charleston, S. C., with Judge Townsend presiding. One hundred and forty-five criminal cases are to be disposed of, forty-six of which are brought under the dispensary law. The dispensary cases will not be handed to the grand jury, however, till it has finished its other business.

Representatives of commercial bodies of Birmingham, Mobile, Montgomery, Huntsville and Tuscaloosa, Ala., met at Montgomery and decided to issue a call urging all the towns in the state to organize commercial associations and to send delegates to the state convention of the commercial bodies in Alabama to meet in Birmingham on April 25th, for the purpose of forming a permanent state organization.

A rate war on an east bound freight has broken out among the railroads at Memphis. The withdrawal of the Louisville and Nashville from the Southern Railway and Steamship Association precipitated the row, and at a number of notices of a 10 cent reduction on freight to all eastern and foreign points were posted on the bulletin boards. The Louisville and Nashville did not meet the cut, but will probably do so.

The starving people of Starr county, Texas, have received comparatively light assistance in response to their appeal to the world for help. Their condition cannot be described. Many ranches have been deserted and a number of deaths from starvation have occurred. Cattle and other live stock have died by the thousands. The county is literally burned up and water for domestic purposes must be hauled long distances.

The federal authorities at San Antonio, Texas, have been notified that a delegation of about fifty Chinese are on their way to Texas from Mexico. The party is now expected to reach the border at Pedras Negras and will attempt to smuggle themselves across the Rio Grande at that point. They are all laborers and were engaged in railroad construction work in south Mexico until a few weeks ago, when their camp was visited by an American who contracted to land them all safely in the United States for $50 per head.

A notable case is being tried in the superior court at Raleigh, N. C. It is that of Josiah Turner, who, twenty-four years ago, was editor of the Sentinel, the leading democratic paper of North Carolina. He was put in jail by the state militia in Orange county by order of Governor Holden, that county being under martial law. Turner brought suit two years afterward against Holden and got judgment for $8,000 damages. Holden was impeached and convicted, and afterward lost his mind and died. Turner did not get his money and now sues Holden's widow for it.

Samuel Spencer, C. M. McGhee and Henry Fink, receivers of the East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia road, have issued a circular to the employes of the entire system, announcing a general reduction in wages, effective April 1st, of engine and trainmen, switchmen and shopmen whose wages were restored February 1st. The reduction is 10 per cent. Of employes whose wages were not reduced under former orders there is a reduction of 5 per cent. Of employes whose wages were reduced under former orders 5 per cent. an additional 5 per cent. cut will be made, or 10 per cent. in all.

The Southern Association of wholesale druggists, including representatives of nearly all the leading jobbing houses in the south, finished its annual meeting at Memphis after a two days' session. The officers chosen to serve during the ensuing year are: P. P. Vanvleet, Memphis, president; D. D. Phillips, Nashville, first vice president; M. A. Falls, Atlanta, second vice president; F. W. Schumacher, Waco, Tex., third vice president; A. G. Cassells, Vicksburg, Miss., secretary; J. C. Lyons, New Orleans, treasurer. It was voted to hold the meeting next year in Atlanta not earlier than Tuesday of the second week in February.

RUMORS OF WAR.

Reported Fighting Between Russian and German Troops.

Rumors of a battle between Russian and German troops on the frontier have been current in military circles in Moscow for several days. One version of the fight is as follows: A squadron of Russian dragoons saw a party of Prussian Uhlans making a target of a frontier post on which the Russian arms were displayed. The Russian commander requested the Prussians to stop firing at the post. The Prussians ignored the request. A skirmish followed in which several men on both sides were killed. The Russians pursued the Prussians for some distance after the fight.

NET WORK OF OCEAN CABLES.

Submarine Wires Abound Everywhere Except in America.

The world is now so netted with cables, great and small, and new ones are laid so frequently, that there is much demand for the services of the cable-laying ships. A list of the world's cables, long and short, set down in tabulated form, occupies twenty large and closely printed pages. The cable map of the world prepared by the United States navy department shows that the Mediterranean is thickly netted with cables west of Malta. So is the North Atlantic between the thirty-eighth and fifty-fifth parallels. The North sea, the Red sea and the Arabian sea have many cables. The only great unbridged spaces are the Pacific, the South Atlantic and the great stretch of the Indian ocean between Madagascar and Australia. There is no considerable cable north of Stockholm or south of Nelson, New Zealand. The Black sea is completely girdled by land lines and crossed by one cable. The Gulf of Mexico is crossed, though not at its widest, by several cables, and the waters of the West Indies are becoming thickly netted with short cables.

Coast communications in the United States and Europe are maintained mainly by land lines, but in Africa, South America and much of Asia the same thing is maintained by means of long or short cable loops. It thus happens that this country, although more thoroughly equipped with telegraphic lines than any other in the world, has a comparatively small amount of cable within her own waters. This may perhaps account in part for the fact that cable making is only just beginning to be an important industry in the United States.

The navy of the United States, however, has done a vast deal for the art of cable-laying. Commander Sigsbee has invented a highly effective sounding machine for ascertaining the depth of the ocean, an absolutely necessary preliminary to cable-laying. Lieutenant Commander Z. L. Tanner of the navy devised an ingenious case for deep sea thermometers, and also improved a thermometer frame invented by an Italian navy officer. The navy department has also issued an elaborate treatise on cable-laying, and made soundings for the proposed Pacific cable route.—New York Sun.

Devotion to Principles.

Old Mrs. Geewilikins reads in a New York paper a short account of a ballet, but as her eyesight is poor makes a mistake.

"Land sakes, Josiah, the good times have come, and women are voting in New York. This paper says the cast of the ballot was very fine, and a large number of girls took part and were good at the figures. The paper says some of 'em, it is sure, were grandmothers, though they were spry. That's devotion to principles Josiah, even grandmothers comin' forward on the stage of duty and usin the ballot. I wish I was there."—Princeton Tiger.

Lamps Require Much Care.

The wise man who made the interesting remark that it required a gentlewoman to make a drinkable cup of coffee might have gone on and claimed that it required a patrician to keep lamps in order. The ordinary servant cannot do it. She regards anything beyond filling the oil tank as a work of supererogation. Occasionally entreaties may prevail upon her to trim the wick, but she always does that with the scissors, which is the worst possible method.

The lamps should be wiped with cheese cloth. The wicks should be trimmed with the sharp edge of a visiting card or with a poker, heated redhot and passed over the wick. This last method is a little troublesome, but it removes the charred part evenly. Wicks used for a long time, even when they do not become very short, grow thick and are apt to give forth an unpleasant odor. They should be renewed once a month at least. In duplex burners one wick should be trimmed in the opposite direction toward the center.

Burners should be wiped free from bits of charred wick and drops of oil every day. Every now and then they should be boiled in strong soapsuds, to make them perfectly clean. When they have been used a long time, they need replacing.—Hardware.

A Good Furniture Polish.

A good furniture polish may be made by putting equal parts of spirits of wine, vinegar and olive oil in a large bottle and shaking thoroughly every day for a week, when it will be ready for use. This polish should be applied to the furniture with a soft woolen cloth and thoroughly rubbed in. If the furniture is very dirty it may be rubbed clean with a woolen cloth dipped in kerosene.—Ladies' Home Journal.

KNOWLEDGE

Brings comfort and improvement and tends to personal enjoyment when rightly used. The many, who live better than others and enjoy life more, with less expenditure, by more promptly adapting the world's best products to the needs of physical being, will attest the value to health of the pure liquid laxative principles embraced in the remedy, Syrup of Figs.

Its excellence is due to its presenting in the form most acceptable and pleasant to the taste, the refreshing and truly beneficial properties of a perfect laxative; effectually cleansing the system, dispelling colds, headaches and fevers and permanently curing constipation. It has given satisfaction to millions and met with the approval of the medical profession, because it acts on the Kidneys, Liver and Bowels without weakening them and it is perfectly free from every objectionable substance.

Syrup of Figs is for sale by all druggists in 50c and $1 bottles, but it is manufactured by the California Fig Syrup Co. only, whose name is printed on every package, also the name, Syrup of Figs, and being well informed, you will not accept any substitute if offered.

How the Gorilla Walks.

The usual pictures of the gorilla do not represents him as I have seen him. He has not only a crouching habit, but he walks on all four of his legs and has the motion of most quadrupeds, using his right arm and left leg at the same time, and alternates with the left arm and right leg. It is not exactly a walk or a trot, but a kind of ambling gait, while the chimpanzee uses his arms as crutches, but lifts one foot from the ground a little in advance of the other. They do not place the palm of the hand on the ground, but use the back of the fingers from the second joint and at times the one I have described above seemed to touch only the back of the nails, but this was when she was scarcely moving at all. I am now preparing to photograph some of them, and I think I can give a more reliable picture of this animal than I have ever seen heretofore. —McClure's Magazine.

CURES OTHERS

To build up both solid flesh and strength after grip, pneumonia, fevers and other prostrating diseases, there is nothing to equal Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery.

PROSTRATION FOLLOWING GRIP.

MRS. GARRETT.

MRS. REUBEN GARRETT, King George C. H., Va., writes: "I was taken with grip which finally resulted in pneumonia. Was prostrated for three months. Had a terrible cough and was emaciated and very weak. Was fast drifting into 'quick consumption.' The doctor gave me medicines all the time. I grew weaker. He advised cod liver oil emulsion. I took two bottles of it without any relief. I had pain in my left shoulder and back. I wrote you, and you prescribed your 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I took only one bottle before I felt better. After two bottles I could sit up, and felt I had been saved from the grave. I increased rapidly in flesh and strength."

WHY NOT YOU?

CLIP, SAVE AND SEND TO US

A complete set of our 13 advertisements, of which this is No 1. The set is worth $25, and we will give you that amount for it in the following way. If sent in all at one time by a regular subscriber to this paper (name and address of both subscriber and paper, together with the name and address of both advertiser and paper, and dates of papers from which they are clipped, and proof of same) we will send you THE EXCHANGE FOR WHAT IT IS WORTH, OR WE WILL ALLOW YOU $25 TOWARD THE PURCHASE OF ONE OF OUR NEW, LARGE SIZE, ALL STEEL PUMPING WINDMILLS WORTH $40. Only one Feed Cutter to any one person.

This makes the cash payment only $15 for this Feed Cutter, which will be found as large or larger and as good for any purpose as any now in use on the market, the Aermotor was in existence when it first appeared, and will drive from the field all competitors and take and hold the lead in Feed Cutters as it does in the Aermotor, the Aermotor Steel Fixed and Steel Tilting Tower have no equals and no rivals. The talent which the Aermotor Company has shown in perfecting, manufacturing, setting and holding the windmill business of the world, can be turned to many fields in the agricultural implement line and it proposes to show what it can do by taking up a number of articles, making them of steel and putting them in their final shape on a single stroke, as was done in the case of the Windmill and Steel Tower, and it proposes to furnish them at greatly reduced price.

This Feed Cutter, for the present, will only be furnished on the above terms. THESE TERMS GIVE TO THE SERIES OF ADVERTISEMENTS A CASH VALUE OF $25. We shall offer other articles for which we will accept these advertisements or single copies of them, in part payment. One will be a Steel Hand Truck, in which we feel a special pride in showing our skill as workers and improvers of old articles. The cash payment with this will be ridiculously small.

The third advertisement in this series will show a Steel Cutaway Harrow, and from then on new ones. It is a PERFECT POLE SAW WITH PERFECT SAFETY GUARDS, and runs with very much less power than ordinary hand saws and has a better cut. TWO $10 SAWS AND FRAME WILL BE GIVEN FOR SIX AND FIVE COPIES CLIPPED AS ABOVE OF ADVERTISEMENT No. 3.

In localities where we can we are going to make liberal offers to secure copies of these advertisements in part payment for Aermotors. If you have any thought of using a windmill this year write us at once, stating what you think you will need, whether Pumping or Geared, and if possible we will make you a liberal offer.

The past year, though one of unparalleled financial depression was one of great prosperity to the Aermotor Co. The fact that the Aermotor Co. in the past six years has increased the Cost of Wind Power to the Consumer to One-half of the former Price has reduced greatly to its benefit and has brought to its factory an enormous volume of business. Even at the very low prices at which we sell Steel Windmills and Steel Towers, made in the most perfect manner, of the most perfect material, and GALVANIZED AFTER COMPLETION, THUS PERFECTLY PROTECTING EVERY PORTION OF THE METAL, it is possible to issue a few cents on each mill, and these few cents on the enormous number of mills are wholly satisfactory to the Aermotor Co. which has already derived more pleasure from the service it has rendered a great number of people and from the profit it takes in doing well whatever it puts its hands to, than from the money it makes from its enterprise.

This year, because it buys its material more cheaply and expects an enormous increase in its ever growing business, it offers its patrons a real increase in the quantity and quality of material employed in the construction of its Steel Towers. The accompanying diagram, 3 1-2 by 4 1-4 shows the smallest angle that will be used by it in the corner posts of Towers even for the 8 ft. wheel. For the 10 ft. we use 4 by 4 by 7-16 inches of Lesse of angles for Towers, cold-rolled and very straight and perfect are now being delivered at our works. Others who have few irons, and therefore a variety of 2 1-2 angle which they are using for 6 ft., 10 ft., and even for 12 ft. wheels, will read this paragraph with surprise and sorrow, since we have not previously given them any information concerning what we will do for 95.

The Aermotor Co proposes to distribute $500 IN CASH IN PRIZES for the best essay written by the wife, son or daughter of a farmer or user of a windmill, answering the question, "WHY SHOULD I USE AN AERMOTOR?" For conditions of competition and amounts and numbers of prizes send for particulars to the Aermotor Co., Chicago, or to its branches, at San Francisco, Kansas City, Lincoln, Neb., Sioux City, Iowa, Minneapolis, Buffalo, or 65 Park Place, New York City. Aermotors Pumping and Geared same price, all fitted, all Galvanized after Completion, delivered free on cars at Chicago and shipped to any one, anywhere, at the following prices:

8-ft. $25. 12-ft. $50. 16-ft. $125.

THE FIFTY-THIRD CONGRESS

The House and Senate Called to Order in Regular Session.

Daily Summary of Routine Business in the Two Houses.

THE HOUSE.

In the house, Friday, on motion of Mr. Holman, unanimous consent was given to swear in the Hon. Galusha A. Grow, as representative at large from Pennsylvania, at the present time, in the absence of his credentials. A resolution of the committee on the judiciary, directing an investigation of Judge Jenkins' restraining order in the Northern Pacific railroad case, was reported by Mr. Boatner, of Louisiana, with a requst for unanimous consent for its consideration, but Mr. Kilgore, of Texas, objected, and it was withdrawn. The house resolved itself into committee of the whole and took up and passed the fortificat ons bill. The appropriation carries in the bill as reported amounts to $2,219,654, being $5,218,759 less than the estimate and $9,599 more than the total of the last fortifications bill. Debate was confined to brief statements by Messrs Livingston and Bingham. The house again went into committee of the whole on the pension appropriation bill. This bill carries an appropriation of $151,581,570 for the years 1894-95, against estimates of $162,631,570, and an appropriation for the present year of $161,531,350. A lengthy and heated debate followed, but no action was taken on the bill

In the house Saturday several private pension bills were passed by unanimous consent and at 12:35 o'clock the house went into commitee of the whole on the pension appropriation bill, Mr. Outhwaite in the chair.

The house, Monday morning, nonconcurred in nearly all the senate amendments to the urgency deficiency bill, and then went into committee of the whole on the pension appropriation bill.

Some minor routine business preceded the resumption of the debate on the pension appropriation bill in the house Tuesday. Quite a heated discussion was precipitated at the beginning of the session over a resolution instructing the secretary of the navy to appoint a naval cadet from the fifth South Carolina district. Mr. Boatner, of Louisiana, from the committee on the judiciary, asked unanimous consent for the consideration of the resolution directing the investigation by that committee of writs of injunction issued by United States Judge Jenkins on behalf of the Farmers' Loan and Trust Company against the Northern Pacific Railroad Company. There was no objection and the resolution was adopted.

The house, Wednesday morning, resumed the consideration of the pension appropriation bill.

THE SENATE.

The morning hour of the senate Monday was taken up with routine business of local interest to various sections of the country. The Bland silver seigniorage bill was received from the house and referred to the committee on finance. Mr. Allen presented an amendment to the rules providing that it shall be the duty of the committee to which the bill, resolution or other measure was referred, to report it back within thirty days, and if the committee shall fail to report in that time, the senator presenting it shall have the right to call for a report under certain restrictions. The proposed amendment was referred to the committee on rules. The senate, at 2:05, on motion of Mr. Gorman, went into executive session.

In the senate, Tuesday, Mr. Hill offered a resolution that, whereas the secretary of the treasury has announced a defict of seventy-eight millions for the current fiscal year, and whereas the Wilson bill proposes to discard seventy-six million revenue from present taxes, and meet the double deficiency by new internal and direct taxes. Resolved, that the finance committee frame an amendment to said bill, omitting internal and direct taxes newly proposed and instead thereof make provision for sufficient revenue by taxing other foreign imports and otherwise revise the tariff without creating a deficiency. He asked that it be laid on the table for the present. Mr. Harris moved the second reading of the seigniorage bill and said that there was no more earnest advocate of silver coinage than himself, but believing as he did that there was at least one question that should take precedence of its consideration, without any breach of confidence he was able to state that the committee on finance was on the very eve of reporting the tariff bill. He therefore objected to further proceedings with the seigniorage bill. Under that objection he claimed that the bill would go to the calendar. A discussion followed. At 2 o'clock, under an arrangement made during the debate, Mr. Stewart did not press his motion to take up the Bland bill, but gave notice that he would make the motion at the same hour Wednesday.

In the senate, Wednesday, Mr. Morgan, from the committee on foreign relations, reported a resolution requesting the president to inform the senate, if not inconsistent with the public interest, whether the government of Great Britain had occupied Bluefields or any other place on the Mosquito reservation, in Nicaragua, with a military force; to state the character and strength of such force, and the claim of authority on the part of the British government so to occupy that country. The resolution was agreed to. Mr. Harris said that, after conference with his colleagues, he believed that the majority of them were in favor of the immediate consideration and disposal of the Bland seigniorage bill, and he asked unanimous consent that it be taken up for consideration. This precipitated a lively debate.

AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Affairs of Government and News of the Departments Discussed.

Notes of Interest Concerning the People and Their General Welfare.

Comptroller Eckels has called for a statement of the condition of national banks at the close of business on Wednesday, Feb. 28.

Two hundred thousand dollars of the fifty million dollar loan have not been taken up, the subscribers defaulting and failing to make the necessary deposit within the time named.

General Gordon, of Georgia, has introduced in the senate a bill to establish a bonded warehouse at Atlanta. He also introduced a memorial from a number of prominent drug firms of Georgia protesting against the alcohol provision in the Wilson bill.

Labouisse, president of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange; J. O. Bloss, president of the New York Cotton Exchange; and other members of these exchanges, appeared before the house committee on agriculture in opposition to the Hatch anti-optional bill.

Saturday was a dull day at the capitol. The senate was not in session and there was hardly a handful of members of the house present to discuss the pension appropriation bill. On the senate end, however, the finance committee was hard at work all day on the tariff bill.

The president, Secretary Gresham and Captain Robley D. Evans arrived at Washington Tuesday afternoon on their return home from their gunning trip in North Carolina waters. Good luck fell to the lot of the sportsmen, for there was a large collection of wild swan, geese and ducks on the deck.

The president sent to the senate Wednesday night a further statement of Hawaiian matters, accompanied by a brief message of transmittal. The correspondence included three dispatches from Minister Willis, one dated February 10th, acknowledging communications from the state department, and others dated February 14th and 15th, respectively.

The secretary of war has received from Second Comptroller Mansur his decision in the case of General Sickles, which, while setting forth strong constitutional arguments against the qualifications of any retired army officer to enter congress, finds that General Sickles cannot be divested of his retired pay, amounting to $5,625 annually, and continues to hold his military office.

The democratic members of the senate finance committee have begun the fifth week of the consideration of the tariff. It is not thought that the bill will be submitted to the senate before Monday, the 19th instant. As soon as the debate is begun, the majority will insist that the daily sessions of the senate be held from 10 to 6 and that no other business be permitted to interfere with the discussion of the bill.

Once more the committee on finance has delayed the tariff bill, or, to be more correct, the protectionist democrats have delayed the committee. There have been so many delays that there is no feeling of certainty as to when it will be reported. The committee is still struggling with the trusts which are backed by protectionist democrats who say they will vote against the bill if their interests are not protected.

The rooms of the senate committee on judiciary, wherein proceedings are usually conducted in the utmost secrecy, were thrown open to the public Wednesday morning and for more than an hour the committee listened to arguments favoring the proposed change in the constitution intended to provide for the recognition of the existence of God. A number of clerical looking gentlemen and many ladies made up the audience.

The attorney general has appointed Marion Erwin as a special assistant to the United States attorney for the southern district of Georgia, and L. E. Parsons, Jr., as a special assistant to the United States attorney for the northern district of Alabama. Mr. Parsons will be assigned to duty in the preparation and prosecution of the cases against a number of witnesses charged with perjury in the case of Jeff Harrison, charged with train robbery in October, 1892.

In the United States supreme court the case of the Plant Investment Company, of Connecticut, against the Jacksonville, Tampa and Key West Railroad Company and the trustees of the internal improvement fund of the state of Florida was remanded to the circuit court to be dismissed for want of jurisdiction, the result being an affirmation of the decision of that court. The suit was brought by the investment company to enforce the conveyance to it of certain lands included in the grants to the railroad in payment of the services of the plaintiff company in the construction of the road.

A fine wedding was spoiled in Ocala, Fla., recently when Schoolmaster McAddin failed to show up and marry Arch Jacobs' daughter. Mr. Jacobs had cooked for the occasion eight turkeys, five hogs, four chickens and any amount of small truck.

The Commercial Gazette, of Cincinnati, is to have new men in control of its property and management. Some days ago a Washington special stated that P. S. Heath, the well known Washington correspondent, in connection with his brother, Fletcher Heath, of Hamilton, O., was negotiating for a controlling interest in the paper.

Governor Tillman has granted a pardon to William E. Boykin, of Camden, who pleaded guilty to violating the dispensary law and was sentenced to pay $100 or go to jail for thirty days. Boykin sold cider, not knowing that it contained alcohol. The governor warns all cider sellers that this plea of innocence will not avail hereafter.

The Illinois Democratic State Convention will be held at Springfield, June 27. Candidates for state treasurer and superintendent of public instruction will be nominated, and if a majority of the delegates are so instructed, a candidate for United States senator will be named by the convention. This much has been decided by the Democratic State Central Committee at a meeting in Chicago.

Three daughters of Joseph Schenk, a wealthy citizen of Sanborn, ten miles west of Rockport, N. Y., have steadily become violently insane, and a few days ago ran away to the woods where they were subsequently found wild and almost naked. The young ladies are highly educated and accomplished, and are well known in social circles. The girls are eighteen, twenty and twenty-seven years old respectively.

A Columbia, S. C., special says: The reform campaign is now on and April 4th has been practically decided upon as the day for the big conference of representatives from all the counties to be held in Columbia. Every day additional counties are falling into line. Already about ten counties have called meetings at which these representatives are to be selected. It is now apparent that this will bring on the real campaign at once.

At the semi-annual meeting of the directors of the North Carolina insane asylum at Raleigh, the resignation of Mr. Wood, the superintendent, was tendered, to take effect June 1st. It was accepted with great regret, and by a unanimous vote Dr. G. L. Kirby was elected his successor. The new infirmary, it is announced, will be completed and turned over to the directors June 1st, but will hardly be occupied this year. There are now 294 patients in the asylum.

Columbia, S. C., will strennously oppose the removal of the headquarters of the internal revenue service from that city to Greenville, as contemplated by Collector Townes, whose home is in Greenville. Colonel Townes was visited by a board of trade committee on the subject, and he stated that in addition to the fact that most of the department's business is in the up country, the matter was a personal one with him. He stated that he would serve the committee with a copy of his official application so that counter petitions might be prepared.

The Chattanooga Times is in receipt of a letter from General H. V. Boynton, announcing the postponment of the dedication of the Chickamauga and Chattanooga National Military park from September, 1894, to September, 1895. The reasons given for the postponement are that the tariff question occupying the attention of congress would prevent final action on the bill, appropriating funds for the dedication in time for this year and that the Grand Army of the Republic would probably meet in Atlanta, Ga., next year and could thus easily participate in the dedication.

WAR SHIP WANTED,

Our Representative at Nicaragua Asks for One.

The department of state has received the first official information of the operations of the British naval forces at Bluefields, near the mouth of the Nicaragua canal. It came in the shape of a dispatch from United States Minister Baker at Managua. He says that the United States consul at San Juan Del Norte, Mr. Braida, telegraphs him that the soldiers from the British war ship Cleopatra have been landed at Bluefields and strongly urges that a United States war vessel be sent at once to the place. There is no explanation in the minister's dispatch for the reason for the landing of the British forces.

Senator White Resigns.

A New Orleans special says: Governor Foster has received the resignation of Hon. E. D. White, as United States senator from Louisiana, to take effect Monday, March 12th. The governor at once accepted the resignation and appointed Hon. Newton C. Blanchard, representative from the fourth district, as senator.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Situation as Reported for the Past Week.

The review of the industrial situation in the South for the past week shows that improvement is now the rule in Southern industries and mechanical circles. The number of newly established industries is above the average. Enlargements of manufactories to meet increasing demands are in large numbers, and enquiries for machinery of all kinds continue to be heavy. During the past week the textile and woodworking industries have been specially active. Prices for iron and coal continue to be low, but there is an increasing demand preventing accumulation of stocks in first hands. Reports from all points in the South as to business conditions are uniformly encouraging and satisfactory.

Forty-nine new industries were established in the South during the past week, prominent among which are: The Bandcroft Coal Company, capital $200,000, at Charleston W. Va.; a $10,000 ice factory at Dallas, Texas; the Petersburg Iron Works of Petersburg, Va., capital $100,000; the Dodson Printers' Supply Company, of Atlanta, Ga., capital $100,000; the Spring Creek Oil and Gas Company, capital $100,000, of Spencer, W. Va., and the Bartlett Paving Company, at New Orleans, La., capital $100,000. Electric lighting plants are to be built at Cochran, Ga., by W. H. Mobbler, and at Georgetown, Texas, by M. P. Kelley & Co. Lawler & Sons will establish flouring mills at Martin, Tenn., and others will be built at Clifton and Morgan, Texas, and Quebec, Tenn. A $40,000 water and light company has been chartered at Bastrop, Texas, and a $100,000 coal and lumber company at Charleston, W. Va. Cotton mills are reported at Abbeville, S. C., Newport News and Petersburg, Va., and wood working plants are to be built at Little Rock and Center Point, Ark., Apalachcola, Fla.; Abbeville, Ala., Port Royal and Sumpter, S. C., Charlotte, N. C., Colmes oil and Oak Cliff, Texas, Meridian, Miss., and Hamilton, W. Va.

Among enlargements of the week are brick works at Rome, Ga.; a tannery at Alexandria, Va.; cotton mills at Newnan, Ga., New Orleans, La., and Pacolet, S. C., and wood working plants at Cargile, Ark., Meridian, Miss., Bristol, Tenn., and Portsmouth, Va.

The following important new buildings are reported: Business houses at Cordele, Ga., Louisville, Ky., and Starksville, Miss.; a $30,000 court house at Forsyth, Ga., and a $50,000 one at Sulphur Springs, Texas; a $25,000 office building at Fort Worth, Texas, and an opera house at Memphis, Tenn.—Tradesman (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

ROBBERS BLUFFED.

A Plucky Express Messenger Saves His Train from Robbery.

Train No. 5 on the Mobile and Ohio, was held up three miles below East St. Louis by three masked robbers. At the point revolvers the desperadoes compelled the engineer and firemen to accompany them to the express car. A third man stood near the car and when he saw the engineer and firemen jump from the engine yelled to the express messenger to open the door and stated that if he did not he would hit the door with a stick of dynamite. The messenger refused and told the robber if he came into the car he would kill him. It appears that the robbers were not prepared for a fight, for, upon receiving the express messenger's answer they left.

ENGLAND'S NEW PREMIER.

Lord Roseberry Installed as Gladston's Successor.

It has been officially announced that Queen Victoria has accepted the resignation of Mr. Gladstone, and that Her Majesty had summoned Lord Roseberry and offered him the post of prime minister in Mr. Gladston's stead which has been accepted.

Lord Roseberry is the fifth earl of that name. His real name is the Right Hon. Archibald Philip Primrose. He was born in 1847; was educated at Eton and Christ Church, Oxford. As a young man he became a devoted follower of the turf and had considerable success. In 1876 he made his first speech in the house of lords and acquired his reputation as an authority on foreign affairs. In 1878 he married Hannah, daughter and heiress of Baron Meyer de Rothchild, the greatest matrimonial catch in Europe.

Virginia's New Election Bill.

The Virginia senate, after an animated discussion, ordered to its engrossment the Walton bill providing for grafting the Australian ballot system on the Anderson-McCormick election law. The fight was over efforts made by a number of senators to have the counties and cities in their districts exempted from the operations of the law. The bill as passed up applies to the whole state.

PUZZLES FROM A MINE.

THE HISTORY OF THE DIAMOND SHROUDED IN MYSTERY.

Does Nature Scatter Her Gems Broadcast From Some World in Space?—South Africa's Mines.

As is pretty widely known, the diamond mines of South Africa, situated chiefly in Griqualand West, consist of large depressions, filled with earth, varying in color from yellow to gray and blue, which is described as a tough, dry mud of volcanic origin, sometimes hardened into rock. This mud, or "blue," as it is technically called, is enclosed in a basin of rock geologically known as "pipe," which is supposed to be a crater of an extinct volcano, into which the mud has been injected from below. The four principal pipes or mines lie within a radius of a few miles, and are known as Kimberley, De Beers, Dutoitspan and Bultfontein. The general features of all are alike; in each, the upper part of the soil is yellow, changing, at from fifty to one hundred feet from the surface, to a blue ground of greater density. The diamonds were first discovered in the yellow earth; and when the miners had cleared that out, they imagined that they had come to the end of the diamond; but it was soon found that they were even more abundant in the blue ground; and since that time the mines have been carried down to 600 and 800 feet without any diminution in the yield; on the contrary, the deeper the excavations are carried the better appears the output.

The "blue," when excavated, is carried up and spread on the ground, where it lies for months, to be disintegrated by air and water, and is then washed and picked over carefully by hand to find the diamonds. Scattered through the blue earth are not only diamonds, but a great variety of crystals, agates, iron pyrites and other substances, among which Mr. A. A. Anderson, the traveler, believes he found many well-worked flint implements from different depths; and Mr. M. E. Barber, as early as 1871, reported the discovery of many worn and perfect flint implements at Colesberg Kopje, in diamondiferous soil, from considerable depths, which, if confirmed, would add another to the many puzzles connected with the diamond mines, especially if the volcanic theory is to be maintained. Mr. Anderson, however, looks upon the blue ground as occupying the bed of an ancient lake, and that the diamonds, flint implements, fossil wood and other substances had been brought down by an ancient river, now represented by the Vaal, distant twelve miles or more, the bed of which at various points, and the rocky banks on both sides, are rich in diamonds, the rock of the river bed being of the same nature as that which encloses the mines. Geologists generally incline to the volcanic theory, but believe that the diamonds are of an earlier date than the upheaval of the mud containing them from an enormous depth.

The great majority of South African diamonds are amorphous, cloudy, yellowish-looking, soapy-feeling masses, varying in size from a pin's head to a small pebble; but some are perfect octahedrons, white and very brilliant. These are, of course, the most valuable; and, singular to relate, although these varieties occur in all the mines, yet the general characteristics of the gems, whether dull or brilliant, white or yellow, are sufficiently distinctive to enable an expert to say at a glance from which mine a diamond has come, the same holding good of Vaal River gems, and of those from Jagersfontein, in the Orange Free State.

Here, then, is another puzzle. How is it that gems so apparently similar, having presumably a common origin and embedded in the same matrix, have acquired varying characteristics? Dame Nature is an adept at hiding her secrets even from the prying eyes of scientists, for although the diamond mines of South Africa have been known and worked for more than twenty years, scarcely anything has been added to our knowledge of the gem itself. The ancients called it Adamant, and we still regard it as the hardest of all things; yet it is easily smashed by a well-directed blow, can be cut in flakes by the dishonest jeweller, and is often found so cracked and flawed as to crumble to pieces untouched; nevertheless the splinters will pierce the hardest rock, and even when reduced to the finest powder, will cut and polish all other gems.

Until the discovery of the South African mines, all diamonds came from India and Brazil; but it was, of course, the Indian mines which supplied the Old World; and, strange as it may seem, to our belief in the superiority of modern craftsmen, the jewelers of ancient India, and possibly of Rome also, had discovered the art of engraving and even of piercing the diamond, an art which our modern jewelers find most difficult.

Thousands, perhaps millions of years the diamond has been in existence, yet its origin is still a mystery. Pure carbon, the chemists call it, but in what alembic it is distilled they know not. Embedded in mud, it remained undefiled; yet sometimes it will be found tinted by some chemical process so as to become pink, blue, yellow, and even black, but it always remains a diamond, not to be confounded with the commoner crystals which often bear it company. In the Vaal River diggings it would seem to have a constant companion in a curiously streaked pebble, known as the "banddoom," which, when a digger finds, he knows that diamonds are near. In these diggings the gems are not found in "blue" ground, as at Kimberley, but sometimes at a depth of from twenty to seventy feet in yellow ground, and under immense boulders, although often in shallow beds of fine red sand or under a hard crust of lime. The puzzle here, again, is to know how all those gems came there.—Chambers's Journal.

A. B. Myers, of Hanover, Penn., lost both his hands in an accident years ago. He was recently married, and signed his marriage certificate with a pen held in his teeth. His penmanship is fine.

The register of a country hotel in Maine one day recently contained names of Mongolians, Russians, Prussians, Italians, Turks, Greeks, Canadian, French and Germans, each written in the owner's language.

A lake of boiling mud, two miles in circumference, exists in the island of Java, near Solo. Masses of soft, hot mud continually arise and fall, and huge mud bubbles explode like balloons, with reports like guns, at the rate of three a minute.

A Japanese audience, when they wish to express disapproval of a bad play, do not hiss or hoot or make any hideous and inconvenient noise; they merely rise to their feet and turn their backs to the stage, upon which the curtain immediately descends, and the play is forthwith tabooed.

A cat, imported from Madagascar, is in the possession of W. C. Robinson, of New Castle, Penn. The animal has no tail and runs like a rabbit. The cat is a great rabbit hunter, and can follow Mr. Bunny into almost any burrow. Mr. Robinson claims that it caught nineteen rabbits one day recently.

Ancient critics said Homer was a plagiarist. Nancrats charged that Homer stole all his work from a preceding poem; Aelian mentions one Syagrus who preceded Homer and wrote a poem on the siege of Troy, and Suidas says Homer got his best passages from a poem by Corrinnus on the same subject.

The California Indian's bow is made from the white sap of wood of the cedar, the outside of the tree being the outer side of the bow. The stick is scraped and polished with pieces of obsidian. Then it is roasted in ashes and bent into shape. Their arrows are made of button willow, twigs of the buckeye and canes.

Wet Weather Philosophy.

As I was passing through F street on a recent showery morning, I saw an umbrella-mender sitting in front of the door of an office building, working away on a heap of broken umbrellas, which evidently he had collected from the tenants inside. The rain was falling steadily, and the man must have been wet to the skin before he returned their property to his customers. I could not forbear asking him why he thus invited a bath.

"Why shouldn't I?" he asked in response.

"Because it is a bad advertisement for your trade," said I. "A tailor should be always well dressed, a shoemaker always well shod; by the same logic, a man who deals in umbrellas ought to be dry when other persons are getting soaked with rain."

"You're dead wrong," he answered, promptly. "There's no suggestion of positive suffering in old clothes or well-worn shoes—many people like them better than new ones. But when I offer to mend a man's umbrella I make a great deal more of an impression on him by coming into his presence with a wet back. He says to himself at once: 'Is it really so wet outside? I can't stand that sort of thing. It would give me my death!' And out comes his umbrella at once to be put in repair. So, you see, I trade on my miserable appearance. It is just as much of a tool for me as my nippers or my wrench."—Kate Field's Washington.

Largest Library in the World.

The largest library in the world is the National Library of Paris, containing more than 2,000,000 printed volumes and about 200,000 manuscripts. The British Museum has a collection of about 1,500,000 volumes and exceeds the St. Petersburg Imperial Library only by 12,000 volumes. The Royal Library at Munich contains about 900,000 printed works, and it is exceptionally rich in pamphlets, while the Berlin Royal Library has 800,000 volumes, that of Copenhagen 510,000, that of Dresden and of the University Library at Gottingen each has 500,000. The Imperial Library at Vienna has 400,000, while the University Library in the same metropolis has 370,000.—New York Independent.

TARIFF THE ISSUE.

Meeting of the Democratic Congressional Campaign Committee.

The democratic congressional campaign committee met in Washington and discussed the question of raising funds for the printing of documents and the location of headquarters. There was no uncertain sound at the meeting regarding the position the party shall take relative to the campaign. Tariff is to be the issue. "Democrats," said one speaker, "have been preaching the gospel of tariff reform for many years, and we cannot afford now to repudiate the performances of our representatives in congress, no matter what form the pending tariff bill shall take." The executive committee was authorized to select headquarters.

Russo-German Treaty.

The committee of the German reichstag having in charge the German-Russian treaty have rejected the amendment offered by the conservatives limiting to one year the time when either party to the convention shall be entitled to give one year's notice of its abrogation. The committee then adopted a number of articles including that fixing the term of duration of the treaty at ten years as originally proposed.

Mitchell Wins Too.

The attorney-general of Florida has nol-prossed the case against Charles Mitchell for fighting by previous appointment, and also the cases against the Duval Club members and others for aiding and abetting a fight by previous appointment. This action was taken in accordance with the verdict of acquittal rendered by the jury in the Corbett case.

Roseberry Takes Possession.

A London cable dispatch says: The offices occupied by Mr. Gladstone, as premier, have been formally taken possession of by Lord Roseberry. The new premier was cordially greeted by the retiring premier upon his arrival at the rooms in the official residence in Downing street.

Issued Duplicate Receipts.

It is believed in Lexington, Ky., that duplicated warehouse receipts have been issued covering the entire 8,000 barrels of liquor contained in the three warehouses of the Headly & Pack distillery in that city, and also that W. H. Headly, the absconder, had an accomplice in the work. Many arrests are looked for.

Gladstone is Ailing.

A cable dispatch from London says: Mr. Gladstone is confined to his bed on account of a severe cold.

The Tallow Tree.

Our foreign Consols quite frequently send home curious and interesting accounts of the things that come under their observation while in line of duty. These articles, valuable from many points of view, are never seen by one in each 10,000 of our population, because the documents in which they appear, being classed with other "Government publications," are seldom consulted.

In this way much that is interesting and valuable to the scientist and general reader is overlooked. For an instance the descriptions of the curious vegetation of China, especially the "tallow tree." This tree is the Stillingia sebifera of the botanist, the root of which produces oil, the bark the famous "rice paper" and the berries tallow. The greasy berries are of a light scarlet and resemble those of the coffee of commerce, both in size and color. In preparing the tallow the beans or berries are first steamed and then pounded in order to separate the mesocarp from the kernel.

This pulp is then placed in a bamboo seine and the mealy portions separated from the hulls, the tallowy substance having the oil expressed from it in large, primitive wooden presses, while the chaff or hulls is converted into fuel. The oil thus obtained is used for oil stoves, lighting purposes, etc. The whole tree from root to leaf is surcharged with oleaginous matter, and broken limbs and abrasions in the bark have been known to exude pure oil for days in succession.—[Detroit Free Press.

Frederick Stoya, an engineer in Burlington, N. J., who claims to have served as a surgeon in the Franco-Prussian war, has succeeded in growing chicken nails on the stumps of two of his fingers. Last November Stoya mashed two fingers of his right hand, necessitating amputation at the first joint. About two weeks later, after the fingers had began to heal nicely. Stoya conceived the idea of grafting nails on the stumps and he selected and killed a healthy young chicken. While the body was yet palpitating he removed two of the chicken's nails. Then, carefully lifting the skin of the wounded fingers, he inserted the chicken nails and awaited developments. The nails have now become thoroughly set and serve to protect the ends of the wounded fingers.

The Fall River cotton mill corporations do not appear to have been suffering greatly from the hard times of 1893. The annual statement of thirty-four corporations, owning fifty-six mills, shows that they have paid in dividends during the year $1,623,600, which is an average of 7 9-10 per cent. on a capitalized stock of $20,378,000. One mill paid a dividend of 20 per cent., and several made from 10 to 12. The workpeople in these mills felt the pinch, however, for there was a reduction of wages during the year of from 9 to 10 2-3 per cent., and there were shut-downs of from two to nine weeks.

Col. Oates is making telling speeching all over the State. At every appointment large and enthusiastic crowds greet him. Many Kolb men have begun to regard his speeches most favorably, while others have been won.

The Jewish elite of Birmingham is arranging to produce a negro minstrel. But wont they look cunning with their pretty faces pasted over with burnt cork and their little dimples and 'witching lips enlarged by the brush of a green room artist.

Mrs. Andrews, wife of Rev. G. W. Andrews, Chaplain of the Talladega college, and Miss Strong, matron of the same institution, while attempting to cross the railroad were run into by the train, and Miss Strong seriously injured. Mrs. Andrews was considerabiv shocked but not hurt.

On Davis tram road, about twenty-five miles from Mobile last Wednesday a party having a pleasure trip on a hand car started down an incline, when the car got under headway and became unmanageable. Several jumped off and fell a distance of twenty feet. West Hogan had his thigh broken and head injured. Sam Pearce sustained severe injuries. Sam Maple had his ankle wrenched. Two ladies were also hurt.

Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, Geo. W. Stone, is dead. Last Sunday at 11 o'clock his soul took its flight to that country from whose bourn no traveler returns. He had been in feeble health for several months, and confined to his bed for several days. Justice Stone had served on the supreme bench for twenty seven years altogether. In his death the State loses one of its most honored and beloved citizens. His remains were followed to their last resting place by a large concourse of admirers of every profession from every part of Alabama.

Those good Democrats in Chilton County who have stood by Kolb under the belief that he nor his Weaver electors went into an obligation to support Harrison, in case there was no chance of Weavers election, must feel somewhat mortified to know now that such a compact was entered into. Ben DeLemos asserted it sometime ago, the Alliance Herald and prominent Jeffersonians denied it, but here comes Rev. J. M. Whitehead, editor of the Living Truth, himself an elector on the Weaver ticket, and says there was a written contract prepared by Bowman and and signed in the presence of Kolb by each of the electors. Notwithstanding the Supreme Court records write Kolb down as a deceiver, and the State Examiner's investigation of his accounts show him to have been wonderfully loose, to say the least of it, with the State's funds, and Mr. Guice's undisputed assertion that he fraudulently raised cotton weights, yet the good people have clung to him and claimed that he was being persecuted and believed that he was a good man. Whenever Kolb has been with his followers who thought themselves still Democrats, he has denounced as a lie that he and his electors had formed any compact with Harrison's crowd. Whitehead is a Populite from principle, he believes in standing or falling by the truth, and so he speaks out the facts. Now let all honest men ponder them well. If any of our readers have gone off with Kolb believing him to be a Democrat we beg them to pause before another step is taken. Testimony from Republicans unite to convict Kolb of doing his best to lead good Democrats bodily into the Republican camp. Besides what is shown of his deception during the last campaign comes a latter fact, and that his conference for hours two weeks ago, with prominent Republicans in Washington. What can he mean but that he is seeking Republican money to further his schemes. He can get that money only on condition that he furnish Southern votes in return. Will our Southern white men allow one office-seeker to trade them in a lump simply that he may gain office? Nay, verily.

WE ARE AFRAID.

Greenville Living Truth, Feb. 22, 1894.

We know that Capt. Kolb is a great and good man, but he has some very ugly stories told on him by that wicked gold-bug the Montgomery Advertiser, and the thing that hurts us most is the fact that they have been proven to be true. Mind you that we don't say that they are true—but simply that they have been proven to be true. We remember that the false witnesses appeared against JesusChrist and on their testimony he was nailed to the cruel cross.

We can't see how a pious, modest, good man like Capt. Kolb, childlike in his guileless innocence could ever have been guilty of the ugly things testified to by old man McRae of Barbour County. We don't believe that he did it, still they have proved it on him by creditable witnesses.

Now we know Bill Oates. He is a bad man. He has gone over to the Wall street money power, body and soul, and has no sympathy with the common people. He is an Oates man from the crown of his head to the sole of his feet.

But he is a hard man to handle. The Democracy will nominate him—they are "bleeged to," as Uncle Remus said by Brer Rabbit's climbing the tree. Oates is a fighter from way back. He is as brave as Julius Caesar, and is as cool in the midst of danger and conflict as an iceburg in the Artic Ocean. He has had great experience. He knows how to handle men. He is magnetic. He can speak all day and fight all night if the occasion arrises for it. He has any amount of nerve. He has all the money he wants behind him.

Now the thing that we are afraid of is this: Oates will insist on Kolb meeting him on the stump. Captain Kolb can't afford to refuse. If he accepts Oates will subject him to great tribulations, temptations and trials. We are afraid that Oates will take old man McRae—that old Barbour county Scoth farmer, around with him to the joint debates. Oates is able to do it. There will be some fool in the crowd who will call for a speech from McRae. They will make him tell the old, old story on every stump, in Alabama. Oates will have men in the crowd to back the old man up—uncle Henry Shorter for instance. Our great and good Capt. Kolb will be put at a disadvantage.

We would regret to see so good a man as Capt. Kolb put on the defensive in a campaign like this—with the witnesses all against him. But Oates the wicked plutocrat and Democrat would not be apt to stop here. Capt. Kolb boasts that he is a true Democrat. Now Oates will insist on his telling whether he voted for Weaver or not—in every County in the State. If he says that he did Oates will insist that he is not a Democrat, for Weaver is a Populite. If he says that he did not, the Populites will get cold on him. He will be between the devil and the deep blue sea. Capt. Kolb at one time stood with both feet on the Ocala demands. Oates will want to know if he stands there yet. If he does, he is a Populite and not a Democrat. If he does not he has gone back on the Alliace, as the Jeffersonian platform would seem to indicate. In either case he will be in a corner. Oates will put on the Screws, (not Wallace) without mercy and our great and good man will have to grin and endure. The ordeal will be terrible, and we are in great trepidation of spirit now about it. We write this beforehand, so as to brace him up, so that he may be able to stand it if he can. We felt that it was our duty to put him on his guard. He is our candidate—we will vote for him in preference to Oates, hence we beg him to be prepared for the worst. Oates is a wild, howling hyena, with no more compunctions of conscience than a Foe Gee Cannibal.

Capt. Kolb has been exceedingly kind and considerate to us by keeping us out of dangerous pit-falls of late, and it would be base ingratitude if we were not to reciprocate in kind.

We hope that he will receive these kindly suggestions in the spirit that they were intended, and take such steps as may enable him to avoid these breakers that are clearly ahead. Of course we do not want to be understood as suggesting suicide, if anything better can be thought of.

Greenville Living Truth, Mar. 6, 1894.

We had no intention of producing anything like a panic on our great and good candidate for Governor, Captain Kolb, when we wrote that article week before last, predicting what course the plutocrat Bill Oates would take towards him when he opened his campaign in Alabama. But it seems that it did have that effect, for no sooner did the voracious man-eater turn up in Athens, than simultaneously our great and good Capt. Kolb bobbed up in Washington. We are glad that he has discovered a means of escape without a resort to suicide. Let us all thank the Lord and take courage. If our candidate can't meet the "howling hyena" it is some comfort to know that he can cut-run him.

THE WHOLE TRUTH.

One of the Weaver Electors Admits That Ticket Was in the Interest of Harrison and Kolb Knew it.

Greenville Living Truth.

Ben DeLemos has asserted—as has been asserted before—that the Weaver electors in 1892 were obligated to vote for Harrison in the event of a contingency.

The Alliance Herald ever and anon rises to deny the allegation and to defy the alegator. It challenges Ben DeLemos to make the proof. It looks from the constant denials of the Alliance Herald that much depends upon keeping the truth—if it be a truth—hidden from the public eye.

Now it happens that the editor of this paper was one of the electors for the State-at-large, and he desires nothing but the truth. He advocates honest politics, and believes that nothing should be done under cover—that the light should be let in upon.

Ben DeLemos has told the truth, and the Alliance Herald is singularly ignorant if it don't know it. After the Lake View convention, the electors were summoned to Birmingham by P. G. Bowman. Most of them responded, and at Birmingham, in Colonel Bowman's office, in the presence of Capt. Kolb, the electors did sign an agreement that had been written out by Col. Bowman, or under his direction, and presented to them by him by which they obligated themselves in writing to vote for Harrison in the electorial college if it should be apparent at that time that Weaver could not be elected.

The editor of this paper signed it voluntarily as one of the electors because as a choice between Cleveland and Harrison he would have voted for Harrison if there had been no obligation to that effect. He would do the same to-day if that alternative were presented. If he had no such preference between the two gold-bug candidates, still he would have signed the obligation, if thereby chances would have been increased for making Weaver President. It was nothing to be ashamed of and nothing to conceal. To one who loves open politics and square dealing, this constant effort to cover up and conceal a thing that was honestly done, grates harshly on the sensibilities, and for one we propose to put an end to the attempted concealment—by letting on the light. It may not strike the vigorous Jeffersonian as the proper thing to do, but for a straight-out-from-the-shoulder Populist, as we are, it is eminently fitting and appropriate that the truth be told. The masquerading in Democratic grave clothes by those who are honestly opposed to Democracy ought to cease.

Eugene Cook, an eleven year old boy, while attempting to board a moving dummy in Birmingham last Thursday fell under the wheels and had his head crushed to a jelly.

Mr. Robert H. Smith of Mobile, died in that city last Thursday from an over dose of morphine.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."
DR. G. C. OSGOOD, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
DR. J. F. KINCANNON, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

The crowds continue to pour into W. I. Mullins' store because he gives them bargains.

Mrs. Jarroll of Mountain Creek was so unfortunate as to have her fingers cut off by a passing train.

The loafers, who during the past winter, have found our town such a pleasant place of abode, living so cheap, climate so well adopted, and expense so little in every particular, seem so well pleased and attached to the place, that, in consideration of the foregoing facts, it is thought they will also establish a summer resort here.—An enterprise that will greatly benefit the town, (?) and they merit the highest praise?

Mr. J. N. Thornton, who once ran the "Spectator" column in the VIEW is editing a similar column in the Orange Tribune, Texas. We hope that during his sojourn in the West he will not lose his scalp, but that he may ever continue to grow wise, witty, fat and funny. From accounts given of himself, his old chums feel an uneasiness for his welfare, and advise John to procure gun, pistol and razor when going out on his explorations. The latest is that he came near having his hair parted in the middle with a cheese knife while on a tour of investigation.

Messrs. Sullivan and Johnson, principals and proprietors of the Alabama Practical Business College of Montgomery, Ala., are paying railroad fare of all students entering their College. This offer should be taken advantage of by all young and middle aged men and women in this county. If you can't attend now, send them the names of all your friends that desire a thorough busines education, and receive by return mail, a nice package of beautiful penmanship worth many dollars.

Died,

At the residence of N. J. Calaway little Nannie Victory Lenoir a sweet little babe of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Lenoir. Little Nannie was three months and three days old, when she departed this life Feb. 28th, 1894. Nannie fell asleep in Jesus with her dear mother, who had just gone before her. Nannie was too precious to stay on this earth, and her pure little departed spirit leaves us sad and lonely and wondering why our Master gave it and should so soon claim its care. But the will of God be done.

Asleep in Jesus peaceful rest,
Whose wakening is supremely blest,
No fear, no woe shall dim that hour,
That manifests the Saviour's power.
HER AUNT.

DEFEND THE FARMER.

One of the most grievous mistakes made by the average youth in the town or city is to look down upon the countryman as a being inferior to himself, as belonging to a race beneath his own and made for him to sport with. Of course this belongs wholly to youth, for as men reach maturer years their good sense repudiates all such idle folly. But with the youth it is fair to say that the idea is a prevailing one. Young man you could hardly labor under a more palpable mistake. The philosopher will tell you unless our weak city blood was constantly reinforced from the hard veins of the country we should become an effeminate race, to be easily overwhelmed in two generations and utterly worthless. Our hardest thinkers, best workers, shrewdest lawyers, noblest statesman, divinest preachers and greatest generals have the hardy blood of farm-raising tingling in their vigorous bodies, brains and hearts. But this is not at all. Without the "hayseed," of whom you speak so disrespectfully, you, young man, would be a naked savage. To him you look for the fine wool of which your loud clothing is made. Without him you would be a naked fool, instead of a dressed up one. To him you owe the covering of your pinched foot and womanish hand that despises honest sunshine and wholesome labor. Without him your table would not be and its dainties of bread and fruit and fowl would have no existence. Take him from the land and your children would be beggars and your grandchildren naked savages, wondering amid the owl inhabited ruins of the cities his energies have built. No, my son, whatever you say, spare the honest toiler of the soil. He may lack the latest slang and be behind in the cut of his clothes, but his mind is strong and his body is strong, and all these things he gives toward making the high cultivation you enjoy, too often forgetful from whence it comes. His trade has been abused too long by our law-makers and too much has been put upon him to carry. Help to relieve him, now that it is in the hand of the young Democracy to do so. If we do so honestly, we will ever have his mighty resources with us, if we do not, 'tis his to withdraw his brawny arm and vigorous mind and heart from our side; and pray what would we do without him? —Talladega Reporter.

COUNTY NEWS.

Neighborhood News Gathered by Our Correspondents.

Topics of The "Turn-Around."

Misses Susie Mercer and Susie Allen, two charming young ladies of Elmore, have been the guests of Miss Daisy Kendrick.

Mr. W. H. Kendrick, visited Montgomery last Wednesday.

The young people of the neighborhood enjoyed a dance at Mr. J. W. Mims last Friday night.

A party of young people near this place visited the "Turn-Around" recently.

Lily Lequacity.

One of our gallant young men has been making frequent visits to Calera. There must be some attraction in that town.

Prof. G. L. Speer has closed his school for a season.

The farmers are pleased to see such beautiful weather and are moving along rapidly with farm work.

Miss Ollie Garner has discontinued her school and is now at home to spend some time.

Mr. Jno. Fox, of Stanton, was here on a visit to relatives last week.

Complaints are made frequently at this place because the VIEW does not reach us as early as it should.

Verbena Views.

Messrs. Joel Barnette and Joe Williamson, of Montgomery, spent Sunday with relatives in Verbena.

Messrs. A. A. Clisby and John Morris, of Montgomery have been visiting here.

There will be a musical at the Academy Friday night. Every body is invited.

S. W. Catts was in Verbena Tuesday.

Miss Neva Marbury, one of Bozeman's charming young ladies, has been the guest of friends in our city.

Mr. S. Scott, of Montgomery, visited one of the fair ones of our town Sunday.

Miss Lilla Gulledge gave her little Sunday School class a delightful little sociable on the evening of the 9th inst.

We have heard that the Clanton boys have got the base ball fever, and we hope they will have it bad enough to give our boys an interesting game of ball.

Hon. G. A. Northington and lady have returned from a pleasant visit to Bozeman, Autauga Co.

Mr. Henry Wingate, of Enzley City, has been in our city frequently of late.

Business is brisk.

A large number of farmers from Autauga and Coosa Counties have been here buying fertilizer.

Jemison Jottings.

Visitors—Rev. Mr. Wells, of Perry County to his sister, Mrs. J. C. Woolley; Miss Anna Bristow, of Calera, to her sister, Mrs. Silsby; Berney McNeil, of East Lake to his parents; Miss Swindle, of Sylacauga, to her aunt Mrs. Bailey; Mr. Ed Terrell and wife of Bessemer to his sister, Mrs. George Shaw.

Miss Mattie Ruffin spent Saturday and Sunday with relatives at Helena.

Religious.—Rev. Mr. Robinson, of Blocton, preached at the Cumberland Presbyterian Church Wednesday night; Rev. Mr. Wells Thursday night; Rev. Mr. Stevens filled his regular appointment at Baptist Church Sunday. The Sabbath School at the Methodist Church was reorganized on the 4th inst.

Misfortunes.—Mr. B. I. Veazey three miles north east of here lost his house and all its contents by fire. Mr. Henry LeRoy, a former resident of this place, passed through here enroute to Hot Springs, Ark., for rheumatism.

Mr. McMeans has moved his family to the mill at Wessinger Hunters.

Messrs. Chas. Durham, Thos. Hand, James Wolley and John Adams spent several days in the river hills. They killed quite a number of birds and squirrels and Mr. Hand killed an eagle measuring 6 feet from tip to tip. Monday night the citizens held a meeting to discuss the advisability of incorporating the town. The sentiment was about equally divided.

$3,000.00 A YEAR FOR THE INDUSTRIOUS.

If you want work that is pleasant and profitable, send us your address immediately. We teach men and women how to earn from $5.00 per day to $3,000 per year without having had previous experience, and furnish the employment at which they can make that amount. Nothing difficult to learn or that requires much time. The work is easy, healthy, and honorable, and can be done during daytime or evenings, right in your own locality, wherever you live. The result of a few hours' work often equals a week's wages. We have taught thousands of both sexes and all ages, and many have laid foundations that will surely bring them riches. Some of the smartest men in this country owe their success in life to the start given them while in our employ years ago. You, reader, may do as well; try it. You cannot fail. No capital necessary. We start you out with something that is new, solid, and easy. A book telling of advice is free to all. Help yourself by writing for it to-day—may be worth fortunes. Delays are costly.

Where They Eat Tobacco.

Perhaps there is nothing more peculiar about the Eskimos of Point Barrow than their methods of using tobacco, which, of course, they procure from the whites. They know good from bad tobacco. When they get hold of a few plugs of commissary tobacco from a vessel of the United States navy, they show a marked appreciation of it. The habit of chewing the weed seems to be universal. Men, women, and even unweaned children keep a quid, often of enormous size, constantly in the mouth. The juice is not spit out, but swallowed with the saliva, without producing any symptoms of nausea.—Washington Star.

Always Came True.

Little Dick—"Does wishing with a wish-bone ever come true?"

Little Dot—"I wished ten different times, and it came true every time."

"Did it?"

"Yes, I always got the short end of the bone, and everybody said I wouldn't get what I wished for, and I never did."—Street & Smith's Good News.

What a Shaking

A poor fellow gets when chills and fever seize him in its tenacious clutch! Why don't every one protect himself against it with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the great antiperiodic? That specific uproots every trace of malaria from the system. It is equally efficacious, too, for rheumatism, kidney trouble, dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness and nervous troubles.

A good way to beautify your home is to beautify your conduct in it.

Dr. Kilmer's SWAMP-ROOT cures all Kidney and Bladder troubles. Pamphlet and Consultation free. Laboratory Binghamton, N. Y.

Try to live on earth so that heaven will not be too much of a surprise to you.

For Impure or thin Blood, Weakness, Malaria, Neuralgia, Indigestion and Biliousness, use Brown's Iron Bitters—it gives strength, making old persons feel young—and young persons strong; pleasant to take.

In undertaking any doubtful policy, if at first you don't succeed, don't try again.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

It Pays.

It pays to read the papers, especially your own family paper, for often in this way good business opportunities are brought to your attention. For instance, B. F. Johnson & Co., of Richmond, Va., are now advertising, offering paying positions to parties who engage with them, devoting all or any part of their time to their business interests. It might pay you to write to them.

Rider Haggard writes 4,000 words of a novel at a sitting.

For Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Stomach disorders, use Brown's Iron Bitters—the Best Tonic. It rebuilds the Blood and strengthens the muscles. A splendid medicine for weak and debilitated persons.

A great gain worth striving for is to gain the respect of one fellowmen by good conduct.

THE THROAT. "Brown's Bronchial Troches" act directly on the organs of the voice. They have an extraordinary effect in all disorders of the throat.

Morning—Beecham's Pills with a drink of water. Beecham's—no others. 25 cents a box.

Blood Poison

After Approach of Death, New Life by Taking Hood's.

Mr. Wm. E. Greenholtz
Baltimore, Md.

"For four years I was in intense suffering with an abscess on my thigh. It discharged freely and several times

Pieces of Bone Came Out.

Last February I had to take my bed for four weeks, and then it was I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. I soon got on my feet, but was very weak and went to the Maryland University Hospital, where they said my trouble was chronic blood poisoning and gave me little hope. I returned home and continued taking Hood's. I have used six bottles and the abscess has entirely disappeared, and I have been in Fine Health Ever Since.

I know if it had not been for Hood's Sarsaparilla I should be in my grave. I have gained in weight from 147 a year ago to 170 pounds to-day.

THE NEWS IN GENERAL.

Condensed from Our Most Important Telegraphic Advices.

And Presented in Pointed and Readable Paragraphs.

After a suspension of three months the Laughlin Nail Company at Martin's Ferry, Ohio, has resumed work. 700 men and boys are employed.

All the mills in the Phœnix Iron Works at Phœnixville, Pa., are closed, and this vast plant, which usually employs from two to three thousand men, is idle.

The Walton bill to graft the Australian ballot system on the Anderson-McCormick election law, was defeated in the Virginia house of delegates by a tie vote. A motion to reconsider was entered.

The Jackson Brewing Company at Cincinnati has made an assignment to John D. Bobe. The assets are $400,000, while the liabilities are but $150,000. The assignment, it is said, is only temporary.

The Colorado legislature has adjourned sine die. The extra session called by Governor Waite had continued fifty-two days at an expense of $75,000 without giving life to any of his pet projects or doing anything to aid the unemployed. Only a dozen bills have been passed.

Advices have been received from San Antonio of a premature explosion occurring at Sierra Mojara mines. Three of the miners were killed and several injured. The authorities have arrested the superintendent of the mine upon the charge of being responsible for the accident.

William G. Wilson, son of Congressman Wilson, who was on his way to Guadalajara, Mexico, to the bedside of his father who has been seriously ill with an attack of typhoid fever, has received a telegram informing him that his father's condition is slightly improved. He will be removed to the United States as soon as he is able to stand the journey.

The Illinois democratic state central committee met in Chicago and decided to hold the state convention at Springfield on Wednesday, June 27th. The committee also decided to refer the matter of a United States senatorial nomination to the county convention, being the same action as taken by the committee in 1890, which resulted in the election of Senator Palmer.

A terrific explosion occurred in the waste separating building of the Sepuano Chemical Company, at Gisstown, N. J. The force of the shock was so great that it was felt in towns fifteen miles away. Fortunately, there was only one man in the building at the time and he was blown to atoms. The separating building was destroyed, and surrounding structures ware damaged.

Four men out of a gang of nine shaft sinkers were killed in the Richmond shaft at Scranton, Pa. The accident was caused by a fall of shelf rock from the side of the shaft, near the bottom, and the consequent explosion of a blower of gas. Five others made their escape with slight bruises. The men were at the bottom of the shaft, almost 400 feet below the surface.

For the fourth time a train has been held up and robbed by bandits at Forest Lawn, Ill., a station on the Mobile & Ohio railroad, fourteen miles from St. Louis. At 10 o'clock General Superintendent McLarin received a telegram from Pittsburg crossing stating that the southern train had been attacked and held up by three masked men at Forest Lawn. The dispatch was barren of details.

Judgment has been rendered in favor of Dr. Amick, of Cincinnati, against the St. Louis Clinique. This medical journal questioned the merits of his treatment for consumption which many physicians here say is the only cure for this disease. Amick keeps his formula to himself and sends free medicines proving to the consumptive he can be cured. All this is against the medical code, hence the attack and vindication.

Queen Victoria's speech proroguing parliament was purely formal, only fifteen lines in length and begins: "Upon this occasion, when your labors have been unprecedented in amount and duration, I regret that your release from them will be little more than nominal." The queen then thanks the commons for the supplies granted, and concludes with the remark that she anticipates lasting advantages from the laws enacted.

The supreme court of Michigan is hearing arguments in the case brought against several state officers and the state board of canvassers for wholesale frauds. The frauds were in connection with the recent elections in which the vote for constitutional amendments, raising the salaries of state officers, was changed completely. By the changes the amendments were declared carried, when in fact they had been lost by decisive majorities.

The Lehigh Coal and Iron Company, which went into a receiver's hands in April, 1893, has been declared restored to solvency. Judge Jenkins, of the United States circuit court, has entered an order discharging the receivers and directing that the estate be returned the corporation. Duplicate copies of the order will be filed in the United States circuit courts in Milwaukee, Madison, Wis., and St. Paul, Miss. The company failed for $1,250,000. Under the direction of Judge Jenkins it has transacted a business of $6,000,000 during the last year, and is able to pay all its creditors in full.

MR. WILSON IMPROVES.

He is Now Considered Out of Danger—Exaggerated Reports.

A special to the St. Louis Republic from the City of Mexico says: Dr. Provost says that the bulletins from Guadalajara indicated that the fourteenth day passed safely in Congressman Wilson's case, and that he is so much better that he may be considered as no longer in danger. Previous reports regarding his condition were greatly exaggerated.

TRADE REVIEW.

Report of Business for the Past Week by Dun & Co.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s review of trade for the past week says: With no more definite information than a week ago regarding the outcome of the financial or revenue disputes, perhaps more people have come to the belief that the end will answer their wishes. Certainly rather more are taking limited risks in business. The slowly growing demand for goods caused by gradual exhaustion of stock left by dealers has further enlarged the working force in manufactories. The fall of silver to 27½d and below 60 cents here and after a slight recovery, its renewed weakness, have an unfavorable influence in some markets. The announcement that import duties are to be imposed by India, if confirmed, may increase the difficulty. The passage of the seigniorage bill by the house late on Thursday has not had time to produce much effect, but is not financially reassuring. More works have resumed or increased hands or hours than have stopped or reduced, but numerous reductions in wages continue to lessen the purchasing power of those at work. The demand for distributors is almost exclusively for medium or low priced woolen and cotton goods, for $1.50 and not for $3 boots, and for shoes rather than boots.

Some salesmen and traders find indications that stocks of the higher priced goods remaining on hand are much larger than usual and bankers judge that much of the demand for commercial loans is virtually for renewals to carry such unsold stocks. In all branches of the woolen manufacture, the demand is yet far below the usual mark, but is somewhat improved in worsted and dress goods, and leading mills have been taking wool quite largely, so that in three chief markets, the sales have been 4,898,200 pounds for the week against 5,198,200 last year, in part because scarcely any foreign wool has been imported for months, and supplies are short. Western markets are also broader without improvement in price.

Continued weakness appears in prices of metal products, notwithstanding some increase in actual business. Pittsburg offers steel bars here at 1.15, which is only one cent at the mill, plates at 1.25 at tidewater, and beams delivered here at 1.35. Moderate orders for cast pipe have been placed, and some large structural contracts, with others expected. Even in the Pittsburg region, little over half of the force is employed, and only 57 per cent on the Connellsville coke ovens are yet in operation.

A few more furnaces are in blast; southern pig is weaker, and 5,000 tons of southern warrants have been taken by English holders, who now have 45,000. There are heavy transactions in lake ore at Pittsburg and it is said with ore at $2.75, coke at 5 cents and wages reduced 20 per cent, many furnaces can make iron at a profit, even at present prices. The decrease in domestic trade reported by clearings is 40.8 per cent for the week and 25.6 outside New York, a little less than last week.

Imports of merchandise still show a decrease of 40 per cent. while exports of domestic products for three weeks are 5 per cent larger than last year.

The most encouraging feature of the week's record is the continued decrease in number and importance of failures. For the third week of February, liabilities thus far reported are only $2,886,346, and for three weeks of the month only $11,420,418, of which $5,045,847 were of manufacturing and $6,281,693 of trading concerns. The number reported in February is 1,200 against 2,080 in January, and the full liabilities were probably less than $15,000,000, against $30,946,497 in January.

In November and December the amount exceeded $60,000,000. For the past week the failures have been 264 in the United States against 206 last year, and 42 in Canada, against 52 last year, scarcely any being of much importance.

BURIAL OF GEN. EARLY.

Laid to Rest at Lynchburg—Many Old Veterans Do Him Honor.

The funeral of General Jubal Anderson Early took place at Lynchburg Monday afternoon from St. Paul's church, T. M. Carson, the rector, officiating, assisted by Revs. Hall and Fleming, of the Presbyterian churches. The procession, which moved from the residence, was an imposing one and was witnessed by thousands of people who lined the thoroughfares along the entire route. Hundreds of old veterans who served under the dead general during the war were present from all sections of the state and marched on foot in the procession.

Many distinguished confederates were among the honorary pallbearers, including Generals Eppa Hunton, L. L. Lomax, Fitzhugh Lee, Dabney Maury, ex-Governor McKinney, Col. C. S. Venable and Colonel Robert E. Witenss. A detachment of the Richmond Howitzers also took part in the ceremonies. The corps of cadets of the Virginia Military institute, about 200 strong, was conspicuous in the line.

From the church the procession moved to Spring Hill cemetery, where all that was mortal of the dead confederate was laid to rest, the Lynchburg Artillery Blues firing a salute of seventeen guns over the grave.

TO BE HELD IN APRIL.

Fourth Annual Reunion of United Confederate Veterans.

The general commanding announces that the fourth annual meeting and reunion of the United Confederate Veterans will be held as stated in General Order No. 115, current series, from New Orleans headquarters, in the city of Birmingham, Ala., on Wednesday and Thursday, April 25th and 26th. All confederate organizations and confederate soldiers and sailors of all arms, grades and departments are cordially invited to attend the reunion of their comrades.

The Kola Nut as a Stimulant.

Half a kola nut will, says Mr. C. F. Scott Elliott, in his report on the botany of Sierra Leone, enable a man to go without food and support great fatigue for twenty-four hours or more. It is an excellent nerve tonic, and is especially good for keeping the brain clear and active at night. It prevents sleep, however, almost too thoroughly, and should not be taken less than four hours before bedtime. It is said to remove immediately and thoroughly the unsteadiness and stupidity due to drunkenness. It grows freely everywhere, thrives wherever planted, seems to require no special condition of soil and yields at the rate of £800 per acre. Another property attributed to this nut is that of rapidly clearing foul water and improving beer.—Invention.

Chinese Marriage Customs.

A correspondent offers the following interesting Chinese custom for publication: "When a Chinaman desires to marry, his parents intimate that fact to a professional 'matchmaker,' who thereupon runs through a list of her visiting acquaintenances and selects one whom she considers a fitting bride for the young man; and then she calls upon the young woman's parents, armed with the bridegroom's card, on which are inscribed his ancestral name and the eight symbols which denote the day of his birth. If the answer is an acceptance of his suit, the bride's card is sent in return, and should the oracles prophecy good concerning the union, the particulars of the engagement are written on two large cards, tied together with red cords."—Notes and Queries.

Home-Made Cough Candy.

An excellent home-made cough candy that the children will take simply because it is candy, can be made of slippery elm, flaxseed and sugar. Steep a gill of flaxseed in half a pint of boiling water. In another dish put a cupful of broken bits of slippery elm and cover this also with boiling water. Let these stand for two hours. Then strain them both through a muslin cloth into a saucepan containing one and one-half pounds of granulated sugar. Extract all the liquor you can, stir the sugar until it is melted and then boil it until it turns candy. Pour it out once when it reaches this point on greased papers. This is the old-fashioned rule. The candy is more palatable if the juice of two lemons is added to it after it has cooked for two minutes.—Home Companion.

AT THE TURN OF THE ROAD.

There the rough road turns, and the valley sweet
Smiles bright with its balm and bloom,
We'll forget the thorns that have pierced the feet
And the nights with their grief and gloom,
And the sky will smile, and the stars will beam,
And we'll lay us down in the light to dream.
We shall lay us down in the bloom and light
With a prayer and a tear for rest,
Tired children who creep at night
To the love of a mother's breast.
And for all the grief of the stormy past,
We shall be sweeter at last—at last!

Sweeter because of the weary way
And the lonesome night and long,
While the darkness drifts to the perfect day
With its splendor of light and song.
The light that shall bless us and kiss us and Love us
And sprinkle the roses of heaven above us!

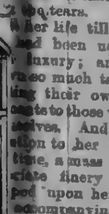
A PINK SILK PARASOL

BY JUDITH SPENCER.



"WHAT are we going to do now?" queried Anne.

"If Pa had only stayed quietly at home!" sighed Margaret.

"But he didn't," said Helen. "And the lecture tour ended in disaster; and he has returned with empty pockets, and a cold which

"Oh dear! and we were so well off

"Poor little Mother married again," murmured, dolefully.

"Treason!" cried Helen, stoutly; not one word against Pa Pendergast the dearest old visionary thing that ever lived!"

"He certainly tries to make a force for us," smiled Anne.

"And has only succeeded in reducing us to the verge of—beggary!" supplemented Margaret.

"The expressman is stopping at the house," said Helen; "but, of course, it's a mistake."

"Yes; nothing comes to us now—but trouble," ended Margaret.

A moment later and Helen called excitedly, ecstatically, "Oh, girls, it is for us, for us you live!" Then, less joyously, "But—there's seventy-five cents to pay."

At last the necessary amount was made up, the expressman departed, the girls and their mother, in a state of unusual excitement, gathered round the huge, irregular bundle which by their united efforts, they dragged into the middle of the living-room.

"Who could have sent it?" wondered Anne.

"What do you suppose it is?" queried Helen.

"Rags—old clothes," Margaret said, scornfully.

"Nidget" in a general chorus of derision.

Even as Helen cut the strings the lopsided bundle burst asunder and the contents of crumbled ball and all kinds of forlorn and old finery upon the floor.

A bit her lip, Margaret's eyes grew wrathfully and Helen laughed. But mother's face worked piteously, and was all that she could do to keep back tears.

In her life till now, Mrs. Pendergast had been used to comfort, and to luxury; and she had always had so much taste and delicacy in fixing their own left-off but useful duds to those who were poorer than themselves. And it was a bitter humiliation to her now, when, for the first time, a mass of dingy and inappropriate finery had been literally heaped upon her doorstep, without accompanying message from the city cousin, from whom it undoubtedly had been sent.

"There isn't a practical thing among it!" laughed Helen, who was trying herself with whatever came to hand. And even Margaret could not help smiling at the comical figure her pretty young sister made in a crushed French bonnet perched foolishly on her fair curls, a faded shawl altogether too-ample olive redingote enveloping her pretty form, and over her head the bony skeleton of a splendid parasol—its melancholy ribs uplifted now, as if imploring

Margaret laughed hysterically; but just then Pa's querulous voice was heard in the room above, and the mother started up as from an excuse to hasten away. But Helen cautioned, "Stay, girls, and hear the letter of thanks to Mrs. Frances, which Helen had insisted on her to write, was finished.

"Listen, girls, while I read it," she said; "but don't interrupt. If you have anything more to say just wait until I get to the end.

"DEAR MRS. FRANCES:

"Your generous rich relative," she read, regardless of the rising storm of dismay, she hastily went on, "was so thoughtful of you to send such a lot of old clothes (which I possibly make use of), and to pay the express (which is unusually high in this part of the country). We now understand why it refused to give than receive!" Fortunately, we don't know what it would take such stuff as we consider it's the ragman"—

"Helen, don't send such a letter!" Margaret snatched the perfectly little note she had written from Helen's hand, while the young girl recklessly over the shoulder, prompting nonsense. She heard her sober elder sisters, and with a dispositeam she found a way to fan out all everything.

Margaret laughed Helen, who was

A PINK SILK PARASOL.

BY JUDITH MONROE.

"WHAT are we going to do now?" queried Anne.

"If Pa had only stayed quietly at home!" sighed Margaret.

"But he didn't," said Helen. "And the lecture tour ended in disaster; and he has returned with empty pockets, and a cold which ...tions to maintain!"

...he knew and we were so well off ...a little Mother married again," ...d murmured, dolefully.

...reason!" cried Helen, stoutly; ...one word against Pa Pendergast ...decreed old visionary thing that lived!"

...he certainly tries to make a for... ...for us," smiled Anne.

...and has only succeeded in reduc... ...s to the verge of—beggary!" ...mented Margaret.

...expression is stopping at the ...said Helen; "but, of course, ...nothing comes to us now—" ...ended Margaret.

...moment later and Helen called ...estfully, "Oh, girls, it is for ...re as you live!" Then, less joy... "But—there's seventy-five cents ...last the necessary amount was ...up, the expression departed, ...curls and their mother, in a ...of unusual excitement, gathered ...the huge irregular bundle ...by their united efforts, they ...dragged into the middle of the ...room.

"...could have sent it?" wou... Anne.

"...but do you suppose it is?" ques... Helen.

"...old clothes," Margaret said, ...!" in a general chorus of ...

...even as Helen cut the strings ...bundle burst asunder and ...its contents of crumbled ball ...and all kinds of forlorn and ...finery upon the floor.

...but her lip, Margaret's eyes ...wrathfully and Helen laughed. ...mother's face worked piteously, ...was all that she could do to keep ...the tears.

...her life till now, Mrs. Pender... ...been used to comfort, and ...luxury; and she had always ...so much tact and delicacy in ...their own left-off but useful ...nts to those who were poorer than ...selves. And it was a bitter hu... ...to her now, when, for the ...e, a mass of dingy and inap... ...finery had been literally ...d upon her doorstep, without ...accompanying message from the ...city cousin, from whom it un... ...ly had been sent.

"...s'n't a practical thing among ...," laughed Helen, who was ...g herself with whatever came ...hand. And even Margaret ...not help scolding at the comical ...her pretty young sister made ...crushed French bonnet perched ...ishly on her fair curls, a faded ...ther too-ample olive red... ...ercloping her pretty form, and ...her head the bony skeleton of ...splendid parasol—its melan... ...uplifted now, as if imploring ...

...laughed hysterically; but just ...'s querulous voice was heard ...room above, and the mother ...d of an excuse to hasten away. ...came. The debris had dis... ...d, and the letter of thanks to ...Frances, which Helen had ...ered to write, was finished.

..."...ten, girls, while I read it," she ...'t don't interrupt. If you ...anything more to say just wait ...hold it on at the end.

..."...generous rich relative," she ...and, regardless of the rising ...of dismay, she hastily went ...it was so thoughtful of you to ...such a lot of old clothes (which ...possibly make use of), and ...prepay the express (which is un... ...ly high in this part of the ...

..."We now understand why it ...e blessed to give than receive!' ...fortunately, we don't know ...who would take such stuff as a ...less it's the ragman"—

..."...shan't send such a letter!" ...garet snatched the perfectly ...little note she had written ...Helen's hand, while the young ...shed merrily over the success ...unpromptu nonsense. She loved ...her sober elder sisters, and with ...ry disposition she found a way ...ing fun out of everything.

...anxious and busy days came ...Pa Pendergast was serious... ...ly ill for a time, and before he was ...really able to be around again he was ...planning another of those disastrous ...lecture tours, with which he was always ...trying to retrieve their fallen for... ...tunes. At last, however, they had ...managed to persuade him to put it off ...until the fall.

...There was no family in all the vil... ...lage who had once stood so high, or ...who were more respected in these ...days of their misfortunes. "Pa's" ...failings and good qualities were alike ...freely discussed, and his wife com... ...miserated for having allowed her vis... ...ionary spouse the control of her com... ...fortable little fortune, which, under ...his childlike incapacity for business, ...had disappeared in an incredibly short ...number of years.

...Anne and Margaret were now the ...main support of the family, one ...teaching music and the other having ...a good position in the village school.

...The "little Mother" and Helen ...were the "household angels;" and it ...was no light task to keep things nice ...and comfortable with their extremely ...limited purse, and to prevent "Pa" ...from seeing too plainly the ruin he ...had wrought.

...The neighbors were very kind, and ...often some little delicacy found its ...way to their scanty table—given with ...so much friendly good-will that sensi... ...tive little Mrs. Pendergast was no ...more hurt by the attention than the ...neighbors were when Helen brought ...them bunches of Mayflowers from the ...woods in spring.

...But of late Helen's fingers had been ...busier than ever. Upon careful re-ex... ...amination the "bundle" had shown ...possibilities which had not been ap... ...parent at the first. And the old party ...dresses, dyed—for Helen had mas... ...tered the dyepot's mysteries long ago ...—were now transformed into four ...pretty silk petticoats which would ..."rustle delightfully" under their ...woolen gowns.

..."Just the last things in the world ...any of us really wanted," Helen ad... ...mitted; "but the silk wasn't fit for ...another thing, and as it didn't cost us ...anything I guess we can afford to be ..."swell" for once!"

...Then in some magical way her deft ...fingers had fashioned for herself as ...dainty a gown from the voluminous ...old gray opera cloak and the best of ...the well worn redingote as ever a ...pretty maiden wore to church on a ...bright Sunday in spring.

...The battered Paris bonnet bloomed ...anew with apple blossoms, freshened ...over the kettle's reviving steam. But ...the crowning feature of the costume ...was a beautiful pink silk parasol, ...which Cousin Frances would certainly ...never have recognized as the "skele... ...ton" of her famous bundle, newly ...clad in the pink lining of the opera ...cloak, and adorned with the freshest ...flounces of the chiffon gown.

..."Girls, how do I look?" was Helen's ...anxious question, as arrayed for the ...first time in all her glory she was ...about to start with them for church.

..."Just too sweet and lovely!" Mar... ...garet said, with enthusiasm; and the ...mother, who thought her girls were ...always perfect, echoed Margaret's ...words.

...But Anne was troubled. Such finery ...seemed hardly in accord with their ...straightened circumstances, or with ...the almost Quakerish simplicity of the ...quiet town; but Helen was so happy ...that she could not bring herself to ...speak her doubts which, after all, ...might prove without foundation.

...She was keenly alive, however, to ...the sensation which Helen's appear... ...ance caused, and which, all during ...the service, divided the attention ...of the congregation with the ...good minister's words. And ...after the service, Anne's straining ears ...caught more than one fragment of un... ...friendly criticism, which seemed float... ...ing in the air.

..."It does beat all," old Mrs. Sharp ...whispered to her neighbor, "how folks ...behind-hand in their rent can buy such ...finery!"

..."P'raps Pa Pendergast has some... ...how made his everlastin' fortune," was ...the audible answer.

..."Did you see how Chan Bassett ...kept lookin' at her? He can't afford ...to dress a wife like that. I heard Mis' ...Bassett tell him so durin' the collec... ...tion."

..."Jest see that pink parasol! Why, ...Many couldn't get one, plain dark ...blue, for less'n five dollars. An' silk ...petticoats, too, I know by the rustlin'. ...They're up an' down extravagant, or ...else they ain't so poor as they've been ...makin' out."

..."An' the neighbors sendin' 'em in ...cake an' pie at every bakin'!"

...Helen's cheeks were like roses as ...they went on their homeward way, ...and Anne wondered if she, too, had ...overheard the gossips' whisperings, or ...whether the deeper flush was only the ...reflection from the pink silk parasol, ...which she held so bravely overhead. ...Margaret was less observing, and was ...evidently quite unconscious of any un... ...usual stir going on around them.

...It was the first Sunday in many ...months that Chauncey Bassett had not ...walked home with Helen. He had ...been with his mother on the church ...steps when they came out, but he had ...only bowed and then had looked away. ...It was certainly strange, thought ...Helen, but—if he didn't want to come, ...he needn't! And no one, not even ...Anne, should know she cared!

...The weeks rolled around, and sum... ...mer followed spring. Every Sunday ...Helen went to church in her brave at... ...tire, and walked home afterward with ...Anne and Margaret; and Chauncey ...never came.

...She never mentioned him; but ...Anne, watching her darling with jeal... ...ous eyes, saw how her cheeks grew ...paler, and how listless she seemed to ...be as the summer days went on.

...One night as Anne lay pondering ...upon these things, with Margaret ...asleep beside her, she heard a stifled ...sob from the cot where Helen lay. ...That was all; but it was not long be... ...fore Anne had determined what to do. ...And the next day, on her way home ...from the village, she stopped at Mrs. ...Bassett's for the first time since that ...spring Sunday when Chauncey had ...lingered at his mother's side.

..."It's ever so long since I've had a ...chance to run in," Anne began, with ...friendly apology. "But I've been so ...busy, teaching right along. It was ...fortunate for us that the Bentons ...wanted their children to make up ...all they lost when they had ...whooping cough last spring. If ...it wasn't for that and for two of ...Margaret's music scholars, who have ...kept right on, I hardly know what we ...should have done?"

...It was not like Anne to speak so ...freely of their affairs; but Mrs. Bas... ...sett showed no signs of unbending yet.

..."You know how it is," Anne con... ...tinued, with heightened color. "Pa ...tries to do all he can; but he's always ...so—unfortunate."

..."Then that last lecture tour wasn't ...a success?" said Mrs. Bassett, falling ...into Anne's skilfully opened net. ..."Everyone thought he must 'a' been ...makin' money, the way Helen came ...out this spring."

..."And didn't she look sweet?" cried ...Anne. "But people shouldn't judge ...by appearances! I'm going to tell ...you, Mrs. Bassett tho' I should hate to ...have it get around. A cousin of ...mother's in the city sent us a—a bun... ...dle of old clothes. And Helen is just ...the most ingenious, most economical ...girl you ever saw! Those things ...weren't suitable for us at all, and I ...thought they'd be of no use whatever; ...but Helen turned them and dyed them, ...and made the old worn out party silks ...into the prettiest petticoats you ever ...saw—and one for each of us! Then ...the poor child needed a new dress, ...badly; she hadn't a thing fit to wear ...to church, and we couldn't afford to ...buy anything; so she went to work ...and somehow made that pretty gray ...and olive gown out of just ...nothing! And her bonnet, too—you ...ought to have seen it when it came! ...And," hysterically, "all that never ...cost us a single penny!"

..."You don't mean to say!" ejacu... ...lated Mrs. Bassett, in amazement. ..."But—that pink silk parasol?" she ...queried. "'Mandy Ward priced one ...in the city, an' they asked—sixteen ...dollars!"

..."She made that, too!" cried Anne. ..."Oh, you don't half know how clever ...Helen is! You won't let this go any ...further, though?" she added, anxious... ...ly. "I wouldn't like every one to ...know, because—well, because it was ...the first time any one had ever sent ...old things to us—and poor little ...Mother—cried."

..."I won't tell a livin' soul but Chan,' ...Mrs. Bassett said, earnestly. "But I ...must tell him. He'll be home to... ...night, you know, over Sunday. An' ...—an' I'm comin' 'round to see your ...ma, right soon."

...Anne went her way with a lighter ...heart; and she had not far before ...Chauncey Bassett himself came into ...view. To her surprise he stopped.

..."It's ever so long since I've seen ...you," he began awkwardly.

..."Why haven't you been around?" ...she asked in her pleasant way, noting ...curiously his wane and troubled face.

..."I'll tell you why," he said, sud... ...denly. "It's because I can't think of ...any one or anything but—Helen! And ...I never realized until—until one Sun... ...day morning in the spring" (Anne ...sighed) "how far above the farmer's ...son—the poor book-keeper—she was. ...Then I saw that the best I could ever ...hope to give her would not be worthy ...of her—not even as much as she is ...having now" (Anne smiled); "and I ...knew that it would be better for me ...to—to forget her—before she ever ...dreamed I had begun to care. I ...thought I could turn my thoughts ...away; but I can't; and though it is ...madness to think she could ever care ...for me, yet I must see her and tell ...her; and, unless you tell me not to, I ...am coming this very night.

..."Come," said Anne, with a reassur... ...ing smile.

...Supper was over and the girls were ...putting the things away. As Margaret ...disappeared in the china closet with a ...pile of plates, Anne said cheerily: ..."Oh, I met Chauncey Bassett as I was ...coming home, and, do you know, he ...said he was coming around—to-night."

..."Anne! you—you didn't say—any... ...thing?"

..."You dear little goose! Not a ...word that the town crier couldn't pro... ...claim with propriety. But I thought ...he was looking thin and worried, poor ...fellow. There, I'll wipe the teacups, ...for you had better go light the lamp ...in the parlor, and put on your pretty ...gray gown, directly."

..."If he had waited until he had seen ...his mother, I'd have hated him—al... ...most," thought Anne, an hour later, ...when, above the murmur of voices in ...the little parlor she heard Helen's ...laugh ring gayly, as of old.

...And the next day, being Sunday, ...the village gossips had something new ...to talk of; for Mrs. Bassett actually ...waited and kissed Helen on the church ...porch. And Chauncey walked home ...with her again, as he used to do; but ...though his face was radiant, no one ...could get sight of her smiles and blushes ...then, for carefully and almost rever... ...entially Chauncey was shielding her ...lovely face with the pink silk parasol. ...—Independent.

THE FIFTY-THIRD CONGRESS

The House and Senate Called to Order in Regular Session.

Daily Summary of Routine Business in the Two Houses.

THE HOUSE.

At 12:35 Friday, after the passage of senate bill, by unanimous consent, the house took up the District of Columbia appropriation bill, general debate to close at 3 o'clock.

The speaker laid before the house Saturday the reply of Secretary Herbert to the Boutelle resolution calling for information as to his authority for placing the commander of the naval forces at Honolulu under the orders of Blount. The consideration of the District of Columbia appropriation bill was then resumed. At 3:25 o'clock the bill was reported to the house with a favorable report. The amendments which were agreed to increased the total amount carried by the bill by $49,200, making it $5,206,778. Futile efforts to recommit the bill were made by Mr. De Armond and Mr. Walker and at 3:30 o'clock it was passed—111 to 11. On motion of Mr. Sayers, the house in committee of the whole took up the sundry civil appropriation bill, making it the unfinished business for Monday's session.

Monday being District of Columbia day, the house engaged in the consideration of matters relating to the district.

The house, at 1 o'clock Tuesday, on motion of Mr. Sayers, resolved itself into committee of the whole on the sundry civil oppropriation bill, Mr. Lester, of Georgia in the chair.

The house, at 1:10 p. m. Wednesday, on motion of Mr. Sayers, went into committee of the whole on the sundry civil appropriation bill, Mr. Lester, of Georgia, in the chair.

THE SENATE.

In the senate, Friday, Senator Peffer, populist of Kansas, introduced a resolution to investigate the rumors regarding sugar speculation. It went over until Saturday.

In the senate, Monday morning, Mr. Blanchard took the oath of office as senator from Louisiana. Mr. Peffer's resolution for the investigation of the newspaper statements as to senators having been engaged in stock jobbing speculations in the sugar certificates laid before the senate, and on motion of Mr. Gorman was laid on the table, by a vote of 33 to 27.

After some routine business in the senate, Tuesday morning, on motion of Mr. Gorman the committee vacancies were filled. Mr. Bate was made chairman of military affairs, Mr. Blanchard chairman of the committee on improvement of the Mississippi river. The Bland seigniorage bill was then taken up at 12:30 and Mr. Stewart addressed the senate in advocacy of it.

After routine morning business, Wednesday morning, the senate resumed consideration of the Bland seigniorage bill. At 2 o'clock Mr. Harris called attention to the agreement to take a vote on Mr. Allison's motion to reconsider the vote by which the seigniorage bill was passed to a third reading, and a vote was ordered, resulting: yeas 28, nays 45. Upon the announcement of the vote, Mr. Manderson moved to recommit the bill to the finance committee, with instructions to strike out the second section. Mr. Manderson's motion was defeated by a vote 44 to 227.

FAIR EXHIBITS.

France Heads the List in the Amount Shown and Sold.

Collector John M. Clark has just transmitted to the secretary of the treasury his report on the customs' administration of the World's Fair. The document is a complete history of the foreign exhibits, and is the first authentic information regarding the displays from foreign countries.

The exhibits arrived through twenty-four frontier ports in the following proportion: New York, 65 per cent; Baltimore, 18; San Francisco, 5; Port Huron, 2; Detroit, 2; Laredo, El Paso, Tacoma, 1 each; Philadelphia, one-third; other ports, three and two-thirds per cent. Exhibits came from sixty foreign nations, states and colonies, consisting of 162,600 packages, valued in the statement of the exhibitors at $64,797,698, and requiring 8,000 cars to transport them. About 25 per cent of these goods remained in the country.

France led all nations in the amount of goods brought to the fair and sold during its progress, while Germany is a close second. These two countries sold two-fifths of all foreign goods disposed of during the fair. The aggregate value of all foreign goods entered for consumption was $2,566,822, and a net duty of $217,320 was collected on these. The government received a net profit of $602,152 out of customs at the fair, after deducting $234,634 for expenses.

Against the Wilson Bill.

A movement to hold a big convention of workingmen in Washington, April 6 or 7, to protest against the passage of the Wilson bill by the senate has been inaugurated in Philadelphia. Delegates representing about fifty of the largest manufacturing establishments in the city, employing about 20,000 operatives, held a meeting at the Kensington to take action upon a protest against the bill.

The Manufacturers' Record publishes letters from eighteen governors replying to the question whether national aid should be given to secure the construction of the Nicaragua canal. Considerable divergence of opinion is shown, but the majority believe that the importance of the canal and the necessity of its being controlled by Americans justify national assistance, provided this can be given in a way not to enrich individuals at the expense of the country.

The Birmingham Rolling Mill Company has just purchased 30,000 tons of steel blooms in Ohio, and has taken an option on 20,000 tons additional. This steel is transported to Birmingham to be rolled, and is much the same sort of an arrangement as carrying coal to Newcastle. The ores in the Birmingham district make as good steel as those of any other section of the land, and nothing but the lack of money to put a steel mill on a paying basis prevents this enterprise from becoming one of the most important of the district.

The coroner's jury in the case of Henrietta Jackson, the colored woman who met her death on the night of February 20th from chlorine gas poisoning, has rendered the following verdict: "That the said Henrietta Jackson, in our opinion, came to her death by reason of the inhalation of chlorine or other irritant gas, manufactured and introduced into a room in the Masonic block in the city of Ithica, N. Y., where the deceased was at work, by a person or persons to this jury unknown." This concludes the inquest and it now remains for the grand jury to find the perpetrators, if possible, but from present indications they will not be successful.

DA GAMA YIELDS.

He Takes Refuge on a Portugese Corvette at Rio.

Official dispatches from Rio confirm the reports that the insurgent Admiral Da Gama has left his flagship and taken refuge on board of the Portuguese corvette Mindell. The commander of the Portuguese warship has cabled to the minister of marine and colonies, asking for instructions in regard to restoring the vessels, comprising the insurgent squadron, under command of Admiral Da Gama, to the Brazilian government, to whom they presumably belong.

TRADE REVIEW.

Report of Business for the Past Week, by Dun & Co.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s review of trade for the past week says: Evidences of present improvement in business multiply, but confidence in future improvement does not seem to increase. There is more business and a larger production by industries, for the season has arrived when greater activity is necessary if dealers' stock are to be replenished, and those who cannot make calculations beyond a few months are the more anxious to crowd as much trade as they safely can into those months.

Undertakings beyond a short time are not made with great freedom and in spite of a larger demand, prices of manufactured goods tend downward.

The most distinct gain is in iron and steel manufacture. The output of pig iron March 1st was 110,166 tons, having increased ten per cent during the month, though it is still 37.8 per cent less than a year ago. Shipments of boots and shoes from the east are 14.8 per cent smaller than a year ago for the same weeks, and purchases are still mainly of medium or low-priced goods.

In textile manufactures and dry goods there are increased activity and replenishment of stocks, as is natural at this season. But the demand thus far falls much short of expectations, and its character indicates economy in consumption.

The volume of domestic trade shown by clearings decreases for the week only 17.4 per cent. outside New York, and 34.9 per cent. here, compared with last year. In foreign trade changes are also for the better, exports having been large, and for four weeks, 14 per cent. larger than last year, while the decrease in imports for February was 37 per cent. Thus, customs revenues do not improve, and for the week have been 51 per cent. less than last year, the decrease in internal revenue being 16 per cent.

Money is weak with further decrease in the demand for commerical loans.

Failures are growing less important and somewhat fewer also. For the week ending March 1st, the liabilities for the week thus far were only $2,237,832 and for four weeks of February, $14,886,091, of which $6,732,615 were of manufacturing and $7,697,127 of trading concerns.

The number of failures during the past week has been 248 in the United States, against 193 last year, and sixty in Canada, against thirty-two last year. Scarcely a single one is of importance, and it is gratifying that the consequences of great reverses last year have been so far overcome.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Situation as Reported for the Past Week.

A review of the industrial situation in the South for the past week shows that the new industries established are somewhat less in number than for the preceding seven days, but the unusually large inquiry for machinery still continues, and many reports are received as to intended improvements in manufacturing plants. The principal matter of interest is the increasing desire among Southern lumbermen to bring about some concert of action whereby prices can be raised to a profitable point. It is believed that an arrangement will be made to this effect. Furnaces and ore and coal mines are running to full capacity, but prices are not encouraging. The very favorable weather for the season is being taken advantage of by farmers, whose prospects for the future are more satisfactory than those engaged in other occupations.

Forty-eight new industries were established in the south during the week, prominent among which are the United States Tobacco Co., of Richmond, Va., capital $500,000; the Barbour Coal and Coke Co., of Phillips, W. Va., capital $500,000; the Baltimore Blind Co., of Wheeling, W. Va., capital $100,000; the Porter Broom and Lumber Co., of Parsons, W. Va., capital $100,000; the Cornicana Water Co., of Cornicana, Texas, capital $100,000, and the Abbeville Cotton Mills Co., of Abbeville, W. Va., capital $100,000.

Canning factories are to be built at Union Springs, Ala., Tullahoma, Tenn., Sulphur Springs, Texas, and Richmond, Va. An electric light plant will be established at Lampasas, Texas, flour and grist mills at Monticello, Ky., Long Hollow, Va., and Clifton, Texas, a $50,000 hardware company is reported at Huntington, W. Va., and ice factories at Lake City, Fla., and McComb City, Miss. A brick company with $100,000 capital has been chartered at Leesburg, Va., and a $ 0,000 builders' supplies company at Roanoke, Va. Cotton mills are reported at Anniston, Ala., and Carrolton, Ga., a phosphate plant at Gainesville, Fla., oil mills at Carrollton and Cochran, Ga., and wood-working plants at Maryville, Tenn., Ter a Alta, W. Va., Abbeville, S. C., and Gastonia, N. C.

Waterworks are to be built at Shenandoah and Winchester, Va. Among the enlargements reported for the week are a flouring mill at Mooresville, N. C., an oil mill at Austin, Tex., cotton mills at Columbus, Ga., and a woodworking plant at Dubberly, La.; also the following important new buildings: Business houses at Woodhaven, Ala., Cordele, Ga., Asheville, N. C., Holland and Ft. Worth, Tex., a $35,000 church at Petersburg, Va., a $30,000 hotel at Van Buren, Ark., an office building at Little Rock, Ark., and a school building at Leesburg, Va.—Tradesman, (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

PARLIAMENT REASSEMBLES.

Queen Victoria's Speech Read by the Lord High Chancellor.

A London cablegram says: Parliament has reassembled. At two o'clock the members of the house of commons were summoned to the chamber of the house of lords to hear the speech from the throne. After the usual formalities at the bar, the queen's speech was read by the lord high chancellor, Lord Herschell.

A meeting of the liberal leaders was held at noon at the foreign office. There was a full attendance. Lord Rosebery said it had been thought that he ought to make a complete declaration of his policy. There was no need of such a declaration, he said, seeing that there would be no change of measures but only of men. The cabinet had no intention of recording from the policy they pursued last session. Regarding the group of Irish question, the party was bound by every tie of honor to continue Mr. Gladstone's policy.

Whether, in the palatine to the human constitution, is unconstitutional.

Where They Eat Tobacco.

Perhaps there is nothing more peculiar about the Eskimoes of Point Barrow than their methods of using tobacco, which, of course, they procure from the whites. They know good from bad tobacco. When they get hold of a few plugs of commissary tobacco from a vessel of the United States navy, they show a marked appreciation of it. The habit of chewing the weed seems to be universal. Men, women, and even unweaned children keep a quid, often of enormous size, constantly in the mouth. The juice is not spit out, but swallowed with the saliva, without producing any symptoms of nausea.—Washington Star.

Always Came True.

Little Dick—"Does wishing with a wish-bone ever come true?"

Little Dot—"I wished ten different times, and it came true every time."

"Did it?"

"Yes, I always got the short end of the bone, and everybody said I wouldn't get what I wished for, and I never did."—Street & Smith's Good News.

What a Shaking

A poor fellow gets when chills and fever seize him in its tenacious clutch! Why don't every one protect himself against it with Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, the great antiperiodic? That specific uproots every trace of malaria from the system. It is equally effective for, in the prevention, kidney trouble, dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness and nervous troubles.

A good way to beautify your home is to beautify your conduct in it.

Dr. Kilmer's SWAMP-ROOT cures all Kidney and Bladder troubles. Pamphlet and Consultation free. Laboratory Binghamton, N. Y.

It's in Us on earth so that heaven will not be the kind of a surprise to you.

For Indigestion, Thin Blood, Weakness, Malaria, Nervousness, Dyspepsia, Indigestion and Biliousness, take Brown's Iron Bitters. It gives strength, making old persons feel young—and young persons strong; pleasant to take.

In undertaking any doubtful policy, if at first you don't succeed, don't try again.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

Blood Poison

After Approach of Death, New Life by Taking Hood's.

Mr. Wm. E. Greenholts
Baltimore, Md.

"For four years I was in intense suffering with an abscess on my thigh. It discharged freely and several times

Pieces of Bone Came Out.

Last February I had to take my bed for four weeks, and then it was I began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. I soon got on my feet, but was very weak and went to the Maryland University Hospital, where they said my trouble was chronic blood poisoning and gave me little hope. I returned home and continued taking Hood's. I have used six bottles and the abscess has entirely disappeared, and I have been in Fine Health Ever Since.

I know if it had not been for Hood's Sarsaparilla I should be in my grave. I have gained in weight from 147 a year ago to 170 pounds to-day.

THE NEWS IN GENERAL.

Condensed from Our Most Important Telegraphic Advices.

And Presented in Pointed and Readable Paragraphs.

After a suspension of three months the Laughlin Nail Company at Martin's Ferry, Ohio, has resumed work. 700 men and boys are employed.

All the mills in the Phœnix Iron Works at Phœnixville, Pa., are closed, and this vast plant, which usually employs from two to three thousand men, is idle.

The Walton bill to graft the Australian ballot system on the Anderson-McCormick election law, was defeated in the Virginia house of delegates by a tie vote. A motion to reconsider was entered.

The Jackson Brewing Company at Cincinnati has made an assignment to John D. Bobe. The assets are $400,000, while the liabilities are but $150,000. The assignment, it is said, is only temporary.

The Colorado legislature has adjourned sine die. The extra session called by Governor Waite had continued fifty-two days at an expense of $75,000 without giving life to any of his pet projects or doing anything to aid the unemployed. Only a dozen bills have been passed.

Advices have been received from San Antonio of a premature explosion occurring at Sierra Mojara mines. Three of the miners were killed and several injured. The authorities have arrested the superintendent of the mine upon the charge of being responsible for the accident.

William G. Wilson, son of Congressman Wilson, who was on his way to Guadalajara, Mexico, to the bedside of his father who has been seriously ill with an attack of typhoid fever, has received a telegram informing him that his father's condition is slightly improved. He will be removed to the United States as soon as he is able to stand the journey.

The Illinois democratic state central committee met in Chicago and decided to hold the state convention at Springfield on Wednesday, June 27th. The committee also decided to refer the matter of a United States senatorial nomination to the county convention, being the same action as taken by the committee in 1890, which resulted in the election of Senator Palmer.

A terrific explosion occurred in the waste separating building of the Sepnano Chemical Company, at Gisstown, N. J. The force of the shock was so great that it was felt in towns fifteen miles away. Fortunately, there was only one man in the building at the time and he was blown to atoms. The separating building was destroyed, and surrounding structures were damaged.

Four men out of a gang of nine shaft sinkers were killed in the Richmond shaft at Scranton, Pa. The accident was caused by a fall of shelf rock from the side of the shaft, near the bottom, and the consequent explosion of a blower of gas. Five others made their escape with slight bruises. The men were at the bottom of the shaft, almost 400 feet below the surface.

For the fourth time a train has been held up and robbed by bandits at Forest Lawn, Ill., a station on the Mobile & Ohio railroad, fourteen miles from St. Louis. At 10 o'clock General Superintendent McLarin received a telegram from Pittsburg crossing stating that the southern train had been attacked and held up by three masked men at Forest Lawn. The dispatch was barren of details.

Judgment has been rendered in favor of Dr. Amick, of Cincinnati, against the St. Louis Clinique. This medical journal questioned the merits of his treatment for consumption which many physicians here say is the only cure for this disease. Amick keeps his formula to himself and sends free medicines proving to the consumptive he can be cured. All this is against the medical code, hence the attack and vindication.

Queen Victoria's speech proroguing parliament was purely formal, only fifteen lines in length and begins: "Upon this occasion, when your labors have been unprecedented in amount and duration, I regret that your release from them will be little more than nominal." The queen then thanks the commons for the supplies granted, and concludes with the remark that she anticipates lasting advantages from the laws enacted.

The supreme court of Michigan is hearing arguments in the case brought against several state officers and the state board of canvassers for wholesale frauds. The frauds were in connection with the recent elections in which the vote for constitutional amendments, raising the salaries of state officers, was changed completely. By the changes the amendments were declared carried, when in fact they had been lost by decisive majorities.

The Lehigh Coal and Iron Company, which went into a receiver's hands in April, 1893, has been declared restored to solvency. Judge Jenkins, of the United States circuit court, has entered an order discharging the receivers and directing that the estate be returned to the corporation. Duplicate copies of the order will be filed in the United States circuit courts in Milwaukee, Madison, Wis., and St. Paul, Miss. The company failed for $1,250,000. Under the direction of Judge Jenkins it has transacted a business of $6,000,000 during the last year, and is able to pay all its creditors in full.

MR. WILSON IMPROVES.

He is Now Considered Out of Danger—Exaggerated Reports.

A special to the St. Louis Republic from the City of Mexico says: Dr. Provost says that the bulletins from Guadalajara indicated that the fourteenth day passed safely in Congressman Wilson's case, and that he is so much better that he may be considered as no longer in danger. Previous reports regarding his condition were greatly exaggerated.

TRADE REVIEW.

Report of Business for the Past Week by Dun & Co.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s review of trade for the past week says: With no more definite information than a week ago regarding the outcome of the financial or revenue disputes, perhaps more people have come to the belief that the end will answer their wishes. Certainly rather more are taking limited risks in business. The slowly growing demand for goods caused by gradual exhaustion of stock left by dealers has further enlarged the working force in manufactories. The fall of silver to 27½d and below 60 cents here and after a slight recovery, its renewed weakness, have an unfavorable influence in some markets. The announcement that import duties are to be imposed by India, if confirmed, may increase the difficulty. The passage of the seigniorage bill by the house late on Thursday has not had time to produce much effect, but is not financially reassuring. More works have resumed or increased hands or hours than have stopped or reduced, but numerous reductions in wages continue to lessen the purchasing power of those at work. The demand for distributors is almost exclusively for medium or low priced woolen and cotton goods, for $1.50 and not for $3 boots, and for shoes rather than boots.

Some salesmen and traders find indications that stocks of the higher priced goods remaining on hand are much larger than usual and bankers judge that much of the demand for commercial loans is virtually for renewals to carry such unsold stocks. In all branches of the woolen manufacture, the demand is yet far below the usual mark, but is somewhat improved in worsted and dress goods, and leading mills have been taking wool quite largely, so that in three chief markets, the sales have been 4,898,200 pounds for the week against 5,198,200 last year, in part because scarcely any foreign wool has been imported for months, and supplies are short. Western markets are also broader without improvement in price.

Continued weakness appears in prices of metal products, notwithstanding some increase in actual business. Pittsburg offers steel bars here at 1.15, which is only one cent at the mill, plates at 1.25 at tidewater, and beams delivered here at 1.35. Moderate orders for cast pipe have been placed, and some large structural contracts, with others expected. Even in the Pittsburg region, little over half of the force is employed, and only 57 per cent on the Connellsville coke ovens are yet in operation.

A few more furnaces are in blast; southern pig is weaker, and 5,000 tons of southern warrants have been taken by English holders, who now have 45,000. There are heavy transactions in lake ore at Pittsburg and it is said with ore at $2.75, coke at 5 cents and wages reduced 20 per cent, many furnaces can make iron at a profit, even at present prices. The decrease in domestic trade reported by clearings is 40.8 per cent for the week and 25.6 outside New York, a little less than last week.

Imports of merchandise still show a decrease of 40 per cent, while exports of domestic products for three weeks are 5 per cent larger than last year.

The most encouraging feature of the week's record is the continued decrease in number and importance of failures. For the third week of February, liabilities thus far reported are only $2,886,348, and for three weeks of the month only $11,420,418, of which $5,045,847 were of manufacturing and $6,281,693 of trading concerns. The number reported in February is 1,200 against 2,080 in January, and the full liabilities were probably less than $15,000,000, against $30,946,497 in January.

In November and December the amount exceeded $60,000,000. For the past week the failures have been 264 in the United States against 206 last year, and 42 in Canada, against 52 last year, scarcely any being of much importance.

BURIAL OF GEN. EARLY.

Laid to Rest at Lynchburg—Many Old Veterans Do Him Honor.

The funeral of General Jubal Anderson Early took place at Lynchburg Monday afternoon from St. Paul's church, T. M. Carson, the rector, officiating, assisted by Revs. Hall and Fleming, of the Presbyterian churches. The procession, which moved from the residence, was an imposing one and was witnessed by thousands of people who lined the thoroughfares along the entire route. Hundreds of old veterans who served under the dead general during the war were present from all sections of the state and marched on foot in the procession.

Many distinguished confederates were among the honorary pallbearers, including Generals Eppa Hunton, L. L. Lomax, Fitzhugh Lee, Dabney Maury, ex-Governor McKinney, Col. C. S. Venable and Colonel Robert E. Witenss. A detachment of the Richmond Howitzers also took part in the ceremonies. The corps of cadets of the Virginia Military institute, about 200 strong, was conspicuous in the line.

From the church the procession moved to Spring Hill cemetery, where all that was mortal of the dead confederate was laid to rest, the Lynchburg Artillery Blues firing a salute of seventeen guns over the grave.

TO BE HELD IN APRIL.

Fourth Annual Reunion of United Confederate Veterans.

The general commanding announces that the fourth annual meeting and reunion of the United Confederate Veterans will be held as stated in General Order No. 115, current series, from New Orleans headquarters, in the city of Birmingham, Ala., on Wednesday and Thursday, April 25th and 26th. All confederate organizations and confederate soldiers and sailors of all arms, grades and departments are cordially invited to attend the reunion of their comrades.

The success of Mr. Dubois, of Tallahassee, who now ships wine to every portion of the country, shows that the manufacture of wine in Florida is not only possible, but can be done with profit.

The orphanage of the Good Shepherd, at Louisville, Ky., has been destroyed by fire. At the time there were 42 people in the building adjoining, including 34 children. They were gotten out without accident.

Advices from Bombay, India, state that the Bengal and Madras chambers of commerce and the millers association of Bombay have presented to the India government protests of the strongest character against the exemption of cotton yarns and fabrics from import duty.

The Commercial Gazette, of Cincinnati, is to have new men in control of its property and management. Some days ago a Washington special stated that P. S. Heath, the well known Washington correspondent, in connection with his brother, Fletcher Heath, of Hamilton, O., was negotiating for a controlling interest in the paper.

Governor Tillman has granted a pardon to William E. Boykin, of Camden, who pleaded guilty to violating the dispensary law and was sentenced to pay $100 or go to jail for thirty days. Boykin sold cider, not knowing that it contained alcohol. The governor warns all cider sellers that this plea of innocence will not avail hereafter.

The Illinois Democratic State Convention will be held at Springfield, June 27. Candidates for state treasurer and superintendent of public instruction will be nominated, and if a majority of the delegates are so instructed, a candidate for United States senator will be named by the convention. This much has been decided by the Democratic State Central Committee at a meeting in Chicago.

Three daughters of Joseph Schenk, a wealthy citizen of Sanborn, ten miles west of Rockport, N. Y., have steadily become violently insane, and a few days ago ran away to the woods where they were subsequently found wild and almost naked. The young ladies are highly educated and accomplished, and are well known in social circles. The girls are eighteen, twenty and twenty-seven years old respectively.

A Columbia, S. C., special says: The reform campaign is now on and April 4th has been practically decided upon as the day for the big conference of representatives from all the counties to be held in Columbia. Every day additional counties are falling into line. Already about ten counties have called meetings at which these representatives are to be selected. It is now apparent that this will bring on the real campaign at once.

At the semi-annual meeting of the directors of the North Carolina insane asylum at Raleigh, the resignation of Mr. Wood, the superintendent, was tendered, to take effect June 1st. It was accepted with great regret, and by a unanimous vote Dr. G. L. Kirby was elected his successor. The new infirmary, it is announced, will be completed and turned over to the directors June 1st, but will hardly be occupied this year. There are now 294 patients in the asylum.

Columbia, S. C., will strenuously oppose the removal of the headquarters of the internal revenue service from that city to Greenville, as contemplated by Collector Townes, whose home is in Greenville. Colonel Townes was visited by a board of trade committee on the subject, and he stated that in addition to the fact that most of the department's business is in the up country, the matter was a personal one with him. He stated that he would serve the committee with a copy of his official application so that counter petitions might be prepared.

The Chattanooga Times is in receipt of a letter from General H. V. Boynton, announcing the postponment of the dedication of the Chickamauga and Chattanooga National Military park from September, 1894, to September, 1895. The reasons given for the postponement are that the tariff question occupying the attention of congress would prevent final action on the bill, appropriating funds for the dedication in time for this year and that the Grand Army of the Republic would probably meet in Atlanta, Ga., next year and could thus easily participate in the dedication.

TALMAGE WILL STAY.

He Reconsiders His Resignation from Brooklyn Tabernacle.

The Rev. DeWitt Talmage has again changed his mind in regard to resigning the pastorate of the Brooklyn tabernacle. A few moments before Dr. Talmage began his sermon at the morning service last Sunday, he told the congregation that he had a few words to say to them. He then read the following letter, being several times interrupted by applause:

"Dear Brethren of the Board of Trustees of the Brooklyn Tabernacle—Your urgent letter is at hand. I had fully resolved to resign my position, not only because twenty-five years of my Brooklyn pastorate will soon have passed, but because of financial entanglement, resulting from a series of disasters, which would have crushed any bank, or insurance company, or worldly institution. Now, by the blessing of God, upon your management, our church is put out of all embarrassment and, I hope, has seen its last crisis, I am persuaded by what you say in your letter of yesterday, and what I hear from all sides, and after seeking divine direction, I now, and here, declare my intention to remain your pastor. What I have suffered at the anticipation of parting from this noble and devoted flock and from the expected removal from this beloved city, in whose affairs I have always been deeply interested, no one can estimate. And now, with more faith and high expectation than I ever had at any previous point in my history, I join you in a new campaign for God and the world's betterment."

After Dr. Talmage had finished reading the letter, he was loudly applauded for several minutes.

The Kola Nut as a Stimulant.

Half a kola nut will, says Mr. C. F. Scott Elliott, in his report on the botany of Sierra Leone, enable a man to go without food and support great fatigue for twenty-four hours or more. It is an excellent nerve tonic, and is especially good for keeping the brain clear and active at night. It prevents sleep, however, almost too thoroughly, and should not be taken less than four hours before bedtime. It is said to remove immediately and thoroughly the unsteadiness and stupidity due to drunkenness. It grows freely everywhere, thrives wherever planted, seems to require no special condition of soil and yields at the rate of £800 per acre. Another property attributed to this nut is that of rapidly clearing foul water and improving beer.—Invention.

Chinese Marriage Customs.

A correspondent offers the following interesting Chinese custom for publication: "When a Chinaman desires to marry, his parents intimate that fact to a professional 'matchmaker,' who thereupon runs through a list of her visiting acquaintenances and selects one whom she considers a fitting bride for the young man; and then she calls upon the young woman's parents, armed with the bridegroom's card, on which are inscribed his ancestral name and the eight symbols which denote the day of his birth. If the answer is an acceptance of his suit, the bride's card is sent in return, and should the oracles prophecy good concerning the union, the particulars of the engagement are written on two large cards, tied together with red cords."—Notes and Queries.

MRS. LANSING.

MRS. J. H. LANSING, of South Glen's Falls, Saratoga County, N. Y., writes: "After my third child was born, I barely gained strength enough in two year's time, so as to be able to crawl about to accomplish the little house work that I had to do, and that only by lying down to rest many times each day; had sick headache very often, many pains and aches all the time. After I had taken one bottle of your 'Favorite Prescription' I could see a great change in my strength and less sick headaches. Continued taking the medicine until I had taken seven bottles of the 'Favorite' and one of the 'Golden Medical Discovery,' I am now able to do housework for myself and husband and two children aged nine and five. I also take dressmaking, and enjoy walking a mile at a time, when I can have the time to do so. And I am sure it is all due to Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription as I know I was failing fast before I commenced to take it." Sold by medicine dealers everywhere.

Home-Made Cough Candy.

An excellent home-made cough candy that the children will take simply because it is candy, can be made of slippery elm, flaxseed and sugar. Steep a gill of flaxseed in half a pint of boiling water. In another dish put a cupful of broken bits of slippery elm and cover this also with boiling water. Let these stand for two hours. Then strain them both through a muslin cloth into a saucepan containing one and one half pounds of granulated sugar. Extract all the liquor you can, stir the sugar until it is melted and then boil it until it turns candy. Pour it out once when it reaches this point on greased papers. This is the old-fashioned rule. The candy is more palatable if the juice of two lemons is added to it after it has cooked for a few minutes.—Home Companion.

CHILTON COUNTY

Is the geographical center of Alabama. The Louisville and Nashville, the E. T. V. & G. and the Montgomery, Tuskaloosa and Memphis railroads pass through the County, and the Coosa river is the boundary line on the east. The chief industries are farming and saw mills. Population 15,000.

Clanton, the county seat, is on the L. & N. R. R., 58 miles south of Birmingham and 60 north of Montgomery. Several saw mills are located in the vicinity of the town.

AT THE TURN OF THE ROAD.

Though the rough road turns, and the valley curves
Shadow bright with its balm and bloom,
We'll forget the thorns that have pierced the feet
And the nights with their grief and gloom,
And the sky will smile, and the stars will beam,
And we'll lay us down in the light to dream.

So shall lay us down in the bloom and light
With a prayer and a tear for rest,
Tired children who creep at night
To the love of a mother's breast.
And for all the grief of the stormy past,
Our shall be sweeter at last—at last!

Sweeter because of the weary way
And the lonesome night and loss;
While the darkness drifts to the perfect day
With its splendor of light and song,
The light that shall bless us and kiss us and love us
And sprinkle the roses of heaven above us!

WHAT are we going to do now?" queried Anne.

"If Pa had only stayed quietly at home!" sighed Margaret.

"But he didn't," said Helen. "And the lecture tour ended in disaster; and he has returned with empty pockets, and a cold which threatens pneumonia!"

"If Pa had only stayed quietly at home!" sighed Margaret.

"But he didn't," said Helen. "And the lecture tour ended in disaster; and he has returned with empty pockets, and a cold which threatens pneumonia!"

"Oh dear! and we were so well off before little Mother married again," murmured, dolefully.

"Treason!" cried Helen, stoutly; not one word against Pa Pendergast the dearest old visionary thing that ever lived!"

"He certainly tries to make a home for us," smiled Anne.

"And has only succeeded in reducing us to the verge of—beggary!" supplemented Margaret.

"The expressman is stopping at the door," said Helen; "but, of course, it's a mistake."

"Yes; nothing comes to us now—for a moment later and Helen called excitedly, "Oh, girls, it is for sure as you live!" Then, less joyfully, "But—there's seventy-five cents to pay!"

But the necessary amount was soon made up, the expressman departed, and the girls and their mother, in a state of unusual excitement, gathered around the huge, irregular bundle which, by their united efforts, they dragged into the middle of the living-room.

"Who could have sent it?" wondered Anne.

"What do you suppose it is?" queried Helen.

"—old clothes," Margaret said, "Judge!" in a general chorus of voices.

But even as Helen cut the strings the sided bundle burst asunder and its contents of crumbled ball and all kinds of forlorn and tinsel finery upon the floor.

Helen bit her lip, Margaret's eyes grew wrathfully and Helen laughed. Mother's face worked piteously, it was all that she could do to keep the tears.

"Better life till now, Mrs. Pendergast had been used to comfort, and luxury; and she had always had so much taste and delicacy in their own left-off but useful clothes to those who were poorer than themselves. And it was a bitter humiliation to her now, when, for the time, a mass of dingy and inappropriate finery had been literally dumped upon her doorstep, without an accompanying message from the city cousin, from whom it undoubtedly had been sent.

"There isn't a practical thing among it," laughed Helen, who was mastering herself with whatever came to hand. And even Margaret could not help smiling at the comical sight her pretty young sister made as she crushed French bonnet perched jauntily on her fair curls, a faded shawl together too-ample olive redingote developing her pretty form, and over her head the bony skeleton of a once splendid parasol—its melancholy ribs uplifted now, as if imploring pity.

Helen laughed hysterically; but just then Mrs. Pendergast's querulous voice was heard in the room above, and the mother was glad of an excuse to hasten away.

Dinner time came. The debris had disappeared, and the letter of thanks to Mrs. Frances, which Helen had insisted to write, was finished.

"Now, girls, while I read it," she said, "you must don't interrupt. If you have anything more to say just wait and add it on at the end.

"My generous rich relative," she began, regardless of the rising storm of dismay, she hastily went on: "I was so thoughtful of you to send such a lot of old clothes (which I possibly make use of), and to prepay the express (which is awfully high in this part of the country. We now understand why it was blessed to give than receive!' Fortunately, we don't know who would take such stuff as a present if it's the ragman"—

"What! send such a letter!" Anne gasped, snatched the perfectly little note she had written from Helen's hand, while the young girl hurried merrily over the concluding sentences, prompts nonsense. She loved her sister elder sisters, and with a disposition she found a way to fun out of everything.

Various and busy days came and went. Pa Pendergast was serious

The following real shows the cost $1 which caused such a stir and created among the windmill exhibitors at the World's Fair.

Chief Buchanan of the Dept. of Agriculture offered it put up to test and grind feed for the stock on exhibition and urged other Windmill Co.'s to put up outfits. They could not, and tried to prevent us. They had a regular organization for fighting us, held meetings, and appointed committees and for two months made a great deal of their own time and that of the World's Fair officials trying to prevent us from erecting one, and our outfit was actually torn down and wrecked once even during after dark, before it was completed. The parties who pulled it over with a rope.

Mr. Buchanan and Chief of Staff, J. A. Green, with a committee of the Exhibitors to see us, and in his presence, the Pres. of the Aermotor Co offered to pay freight, or express age on Geared outfits that any other windmill exhibitors would put up and to furnish skilled erectors to erect them in order to have something with which to compare the Aermotor in practical work. This they would not do for the reason that the steel geared mills other than Aermotors on exhibition were experimental and it was well known that the 12 ft Aermotor would do more work than any 16-ft wooden wheel. As it was, the outfit here represented was the only power mill put up for public use, and it never got out of order in the slightest particular, though operated by unfamiliar hands.

The feet of the timbers rested upon the lumbers laid on the Through these feet timbers long bolts passed through the roof and were secured down in the tower, which was secured to the floor. The brace which can be seen reaches from the roof of the tower to the floor. The tower is also steel framed throughout, and can be put on a concrete foundation. The 12 ft wheel, with its steel vanes, is supported by Roller and Brazer Bearings. ...nxious and busy days came ... Pa Pendergast was serious... ill for a time, and before he was really able to be around again he was planning another of those disastrous lecture tours, with which he was always trying to retrieve their fallen fortunes. At last, however, they had managed to persuade him to put it off until the fall.

There was no family in all the village who had once stood so high, or who were more respected in these days of their misfortunes. "Pa's" failings and good qualities were alike freely discussed, and his wife commiserated for having allowed her visionary spouse the control of her comfortable little fortune, which, under his childlike incapacity for business, had disappeared in an incredibly short number of years.

Anne and Margaret were now the main support of the family, one teaching music and the other having a good position in the village school.

The "little Mother" and Helen were the "household angels;" and it was no light task to keep things nice and comfortable with their extremely limited purse, and to prevent "Pa" from seeing too plainly the ruin he had wrought.

The neighbors were very kind, and often some little delicacy found its way to their scanty table—given with so much friendly good-will that sensitive little Mrs. Pendergast was no more hurt by the attention than the neighbors were when Helen brought them bunches of Mayflowers from the woods in spring.

But of late Helen's fingers had been busier than ever. Upon careful re-examination the "bundle" had shown possibilities which had not been apparent at the first. And the old party dresses, dyed—for Helen had mastered the dyepot's mysteries long ago—were now transformed into four pretty silk petticoats which would "rustle delightfully" under their woolen gowns.

"Just the last things in the world any of us really wanted," Helen admitted; "but the silk wasn't fit for another thing, and as it didn't cost us anything I guess we can afford to be 'swell' for once!"

Then in some magical way her deft fingers had fashioned for herself as dainty a gown from the voluminous old gray opera cloak and the best of the well worn, rediugote as ever a pretty maiden wore to church on a bright Sunday in spring.

The battered Paris bonnet bloomed anew with apple blossoms, freshened over the kettle's reviving steam. But the crowning feature of the costume was a beautiful pink silk parasol, which Cousin Frances would certainly never have recognized as the "skeleton" of her famous bundle, newly clad in the pink lining of the opera cloak, and adorned with the freshest flounces of the chiffon gown.

"Girls, how do I look?" was Helen's anxious question, as arrayed for the first time in all her glory she was about to start with them for church.

"Just too sweet and lovely!" Margaret said, with enthusiasm; and the mother, who thought her girls were always perfect, echoed Margaret's words.

But Anne was troubled. Such finery seemed hardly in accord with their straightened circumstances, or with the almost Quakerish simplicity of the quiet town; but Helen was so happy that she could not bring herself to speak her doubts which, after all, might prove without foundation.

She was keenly alive, however, to the sensation which Helen's appearance caused, and which, all during the service, divided the attention of the congregation with the good minister's words. And after the service, Anne's straining ears caught more than one fragment of unfriendly criticism, which seemed floating in the air.

"It does beat all," old Mrs. Sharp whispered to her neighbor, "how folks behind-hand in their rent can buy such finery!"

"P'raps Pa Pendergast has somehow made his everlastin' fortune," was the audible answer.

"Did you see how Chan Bassett kept lookin' at her? He can't afford to dress a wife like that. I heard Mis' Bassett tell him so durin' the collection."

"Jest see that pink parasol! Why, Many couldn't get one, plain dark blue, for less'n five dollars. An' silk petticoats, too, I know by the rustlin'. They're up an' down extravagant, or else they ain't so poor as they've been makin' out."

"An' the neighbors sendin' 'em in cake an' pie at every bakin'!"

Helen's cheeks were like roses as they went on their homeward way, and Anne wondered if she, too, had overheard the gossips' whisperings, or whether the deeper flush was only the reflection from the pink silk parasol, which she held so bravely overhead. Margaret was less observing, and was evidently quite unconscious of any unusual stir going on around them.

It was the first Sunday in many months that Chauncey Bassett had not walked home with Helen. He had been with his mother on the church steps when they came out, but he had only bowed and then had looked away. It was certainly strange, thought Helen, but—if he didn't want to come, he needn't! And no one, not even Anne, should know she cared!

The weeks rolled around, and summer followed spring. Every Sunday Helen went to church in her brave attire, and walked home afterward with Anne and Margaret; and Chauncey never came.

She never mentioned him; but Anne, watching her darling with jealous eyes, saw how her cheeks grew paler, and how listless she seemed to be as the summer days went on.

One night as Anne lay pondering upon these things, with Margaret asleep beside her, she heard a stifled sob from the cot where Helen lay. That was all; but it was not long before Anne had determined what to do. And the next day, on her way home from the village, she stopped at Mrs. Bassett's for the first time since that spring Sunday when Chauncey had lingered at his mother's side.

"It's ever so long since I've had a chance to run in," Anne began, with friendly apology. "But I've been so busy, teaching right along. It was fortunate for us that the Bentons wanted their children to make up all they lost when they had whooping cough last spring. If it wasn't for that and for two of Margaret's music scholars, who have kept right on, I hardly know what we should have done?"

It was not like Anne to speak so freely of their affairs; but Mrs. Bassett showed no signs of unbending yet.

"You know how it is," Anne continued, with heightened color. "Pa tries to do all he can; but he's always so—unfortunate."

"Then that last lecture tour wasn't a success?" said Mrs. Bassett, falling into Anne's skilfully opened net. "Everyone thought he must 'a' been makin' money, the way Helen came out this spring."

"And didn't she look sweet?" cried Anne. "But people shouldn't judge by appearances! I'm going to tell you, Mrs. Bassett tho' I should hate to have it get around. A cousin of mother's in the city sent us a—a bundle of old clothes. And Helen is just the most ingenious, most economical girl you ever saw! Those things weren't suitable for us at all, and I thought they'd be of no use whatever; but Helen turned them and dyed them, and made the old worn out party silks into the prettiest petticoats you ever saw—and one for each of us! Then the poor child needed a new dress, badly; she hadn't a thing fit to wear to church, and we couldn't afford to buy anything; so she went to work and somehow made that pretty gray and olive gown out of just nothing! And her bonnet, too—you ought to have seen it when it came! And," hysterically, "all that never cost us a single penny!"

"You don't mean to say!" ejaculated Mrs. Bassett, in amazement. "But—that pink silk parasol?" she queried. "'Mandy Ward priced one in the city, an' they asked—sixteen dollars!"

"She made that, too!" cried Anne. "Oh, you don't half know how clever Helen is! You won't let this go any further, though?" she added, anxiously. "I wouldn't like every one to know, because—well, because it was the first time any one had ever sent old things to us—and poor little Mother—cried."

"I won't tell a livin' soul but Chan,' Mrs. Bassett said, earnestly. "But I must tell him. He'll be home to-night, you know, over Sunday. An' —an' I'm comin' 'round to see your ma, right soon."

Anne went her way with a lighter heart; and she had not far before Chauncey Bassett himself came into view. To her surprise he stopped.

"It's ever so long since I've seen you," he began awkwardly.

"Why haven't you been around?" she asked in her pleasant way, noting curiously his wane and troubled face.

"I'll tell you why," he said, suddenly. "It's because I can't think of any one or anything but—Helen! And I never realized until—until one Sunday morning in the spring" (Anne sighed) "how far above the farmer's son—the poor book-keeper—she was. Then I saw that the best I could ever hope to give her would not be worthy of her—not even as much as she is having now" (Anne smiled); "and I knew that it would be better for me to—to forget her—before she ever dreamed I had begun to care. I thought I could turn my thoughts away; but I can't; and though it is madness to think she could ever care for me, yet I must see her and tell her; and, unless you tell me not to, I am coming this very night.

"Come," said Anne, with a reassuring smile.

Supper was over and the girls were putting the things away. As Margaret disappeared in the china closet with a pile of plates, Anne said cheerily: "Oh, I met Chauncey Bassett as I was coming home, and, do you know, he said he was coming around—to-night."

"Anne! you—you didn't say—anything?"

"You dear little goose! Not a word that the town crier couldn't proclaim with propriety. But I thought he was looking thin and worried, poor fellow. There, I'll wipe the teacups, for you had better go light the lamp in the parlor, and put on your pretty gray gown, directly."

"If he had waited until he had seen his mother, I'd have hated him—almost," thought Anne, an hour later, when, above the murmur of voices in the little parlor she heard Helen's laugh ring gayly, as of old.

And the next day, being Sunday, the village gossips had something new to talk of; for Mrs. Bassett actually waited and kissed Helen on the church porch. And Chauncey walked home with her again, as he used to do; but though his face was radiant, no one could get sight of her smiles and blushes then, for carefully and almost reverentially Chauncey was shielding her lovely face with the pink silk parasol. —Independent.

The holding of the tri-state fair in Chattanooga has been deferred one year, owing to the postponement of the dedication of the Chickamauga and Chattanooga National and Military park till the fall of 1895. With a capital stock of $100,000 a much more elaborate exhibit of the mineral, agricultural and other resources and interests of Alabama, Georgia and Tennessee will then be made.

A Montgomery, Ala., special says: The funeral of the late Judge Stone, train protection. When the train arrived at Marfa the sheriff and a large posse of deputies met it and placed all of the tramps under arrest.

The United States department of agriculture is about to issue a farmers' bulletin on fertilizers for cotton. This bulletin has been prepared by Dr. J. M. McBryde, president of the Virginia Agricultural college and director of the Virginia experiment station, and gives a concise account of numerous experiments with fertilizers on cotton made under his supervision in South Carolina. It also contains directions as to the selection, compounding and application of fertilizers for this crop. The bulletin will be sent on application to the secretary of agriculture, Washington.

THE FIFTY-THIRD CONGRESS

The House and Senate Called to Order in Regular Session.

Daily Summary of Routine Business in the Two Houses.

THE HOUSE.

At 12:35 Friday, after the passage of senate bill, by unanimous consent, the house took up the District of Columbia appropriation bill, general debate to close at 3 o'clock.

The speaker laid before the house Saturday the reply of Secretary Herbert to the Bontelle resolution calling for information as to his authority for placing the commander of the naval forces at Honolulu under the orders of Blount. The consideration of the District of Columbia appropriation bill was then resumed. At 3:25 o'clock the bill was reported to the house with a favorable report. The amendments which were agreed to increased the total amount carried by the bill by $49,200, making it $5,206,773. Futile efforts to recommit the bill were made by Mr. De Armond and Mr. Walker and at 3:30 o'clock it was passed—111 to 11. On motion of Mr. Sayers, the house in committee of the whole took up the sundry civil appropriation bill, making it the unfinished business for Monday's session.

Monday being District of Columbia day, the house engaged in the consideration of matters relating to the district.

The house, at 1 o'clock Tuesday, on motion of Mr. Sayers, resolved itself into committee of the whole on the sundry civil oppropriation bill, Mr. Lester, of Georgia in the chair.

The house, at 1:10 p. m. Wednesday, on motion of Mr. Sayers, went into committee of the whole on the sundry civil appropriation bill, Mr. Lester, of Georgia, in the chair.

THE SENATE.

In the senate, Friday, Senator Peffer, populist of Kansas, introduced a resolution to investigate the rumors regarding sugar speculation. It went over until Saturday.

In the senate, Monday morning, Mr. Blanchard took the oath of office as senator from Louisiana. Mr. Peffer's resolution for the investigation of the newspaper statements as to senators having been engaged in stock jobbing speculations in the sugar certificates laid before the senate, and on motion of Mr. Gorman was laid on the table, by a vote of 33 to 27.

After some routine business in the senate, Tuesday morning, on motion of Mr. Gorman the committee vacancies were filled. Mr. Bate was made chairman of military affairs, Mr. Blanchard chairman of the committee on improvement of the Mississippi river. The Bland seigniorage bill was then taken up at 12:30 and Mr. Stewart addressed the senate in advocacy of it.

After routine morning business, Wednenday morning, the senate resumed consideration of the Bland seigniorage bill. At 2 o'clock Mr. Harris called attention to the agreement to take a vote on Mr. Allison's motion to reconsider the vote by which the seigniorage bill was passed to a third reading, and a vote was ordered, resulting: yeas 28, nays 45. Upon the announcement of the vote, Mr. Manderson moved to recommit the bill to the finance committee, with instructions to strike out the second section. Mr. Manderson's motion was defeated by a vote 44 to 227.

FAIR EXHIBITS.

France Heads the List in the Amount Shown and Sold.

Collector John M. Clark has just transmitted to the secretary of the treasury his report on the customs' administration of the World's Fair. The document is a complete history of the foreign exhibits, and is the first authentic information regarding the displays from foreign countries.

The exhibits arrived through twenty-four frontier ports in the following proportion: New York, 65 per cent; Baltimore, 18; San Francisco, 5; Port Huron, 2; Detroit, 2; Laredo, El Paso, Tacoma, 1 each; Philadelphia, one-third; other ports, three and two-thirds per cent. Exhibits came from sixty foreign nations, states and colonies, consisting of 162,600 packages, valued in the statement of the exhibitors at $64,797,693, and requiring 8,000 cars to transport them. About 25 per cent of these goods remained in the country.

France led all nations in the amount of goods brought to the fair and sold during its progress, while Germany is a close second. These two countries sold two-fifths of all foreign goods disposed of during the fair. The aggregate value of all foreign goods entered for consumption was $2,566,822, and a net duty of $217,320 was collected on these. The government received a net profit of $602,152 out of customs at the fair, after deducting $234,634 for expenses.

Against the Wilson Bill.

A movement to hold a big convention of workingmen in Washington, April 6 or 7, to protest against the passage of the Wilson bill by the senate has been inaugurated in Philadelphia. Delegates representing about fifty of the largest manufacturing establishments in the city, employing about 20,000 operatives, held a meeting at the Kensington to take action upon a protest against the bill.

OUR LATEST DISPATCHES.

The Happenings of a Day Chronicled in Brief and Concise Paragraphs

And Containing the Gist of the News From All Parts of the World.

A cyclone passed over Burne, Texas, Wednesday night. Houses were unroofed and window panes smashed. Fruit trees were all uprooted and swept away. Miles of fencing was blown down. The hail stones were unusually large and cut through roofs of houses.

Grand Master Sovereign, Knights of Labor, addressed a large audience at Jacksonville. He denounced the policy of Secretary Carlisle and the administration in issuing bonds. He also criticized Judge Jenkins because of his strike order. The address was well received.

Returns of the condition of twenty-seven national banks in the state of Georgia February 28, show the average reserve to have been 40.72 per cent, loans and discounts $7,124,000, lawful money reserve $1,183,000, surplus fund $1,067,000, and individual deposits $5,140,000.

B. F. Dowd, yardmaster in the south Nashville yards of the Louisville and Nashville roads, has been arrested on a warrant charging him with obtaining money under false pretenses and forgery. It is charged that Dowd has been carrying a dummy on his pay roll since December 10th and has fraudulently obtained about $1,200 in this way. Dowd has offered to make good all losses. He was released on bond.

Bessemer, Ala., is in luck. The large fire brick plant at Bibbville, Tuscaloosa county, is now being moved to Bessemer, and is being located just south of and adjoining the present works of the Bessemer Fire Brick works. A new main building 80x150 feet is being constructed for the addition. It will be fitted with the latest improved machinery. The improvements will give employment to about 100 additional hands.

Trains on the International and Great Northern road are guarded by armed rangers, the company being in hourly expectation of train robberies between Austin, Texas, and McNeil, a station twenty miles out. The bridge between Hutto and Taylor has been burned, it is supposed, by bandits who contemplated an attack on a passenger train. Fifteen armed men accompany both outgoing and incoming trains.

A. G. Cooper, formerly auditor of the San Antonio and Aransas Pass railroad, has filed suit for $100,000 damages against B. F. Yoakum, general manager of the Gulf, Colorado and Santa Fe railroad. Cooper claims that he has been damaged in that sum by Mr. Yoakum by a lleged malicious prosecution in the filing of an affidavit, on May 29, 1892, charging him with making false entries in the account books of the Aransas Pass railroad.

The Manufacturers' Record publishes letters from eighteen governors replying to the question whether national aid should be given to secure the construction of the Nicaragua canal. Considerable divergence of opinion is shown, but the majority believe that the importance of the canal and the necessity of its being controlled by Americans justify national assistance, provided this can be given in a way not to enrich individuals at the expense of the country.

The Birmingham Rolling Mill Company has just purchased 30,000 tons of steel blooms in Ohio, and has taken an option on 20,000 tons additional. This steel is transported to Birmingham to be rolled, and is much the same sort of an arrangement as carrying coal to Newcastle. The ores in the Birmingham district make as good steel as those of any other section of the land, and nothing but the lack of money to put a steel mill on a paying basis prevents this enterprise from becoming one of the most important of the district.

The coroner's jury in the case of Henrietta Jackson, the colored woman who met her death on the night of February 20th from chlorine gas poisoning, has rendered the following verdict: "That the said Henrietta Jackson, in our opinion, came to her death by reason of the inhalation of chlorine or other irritant gas, manufactured and introduced into a room in the Masonic block in the city of Ithica, N. Y., where the deceased was at work, by a person or persons to this jury unknown." This concludes the inquest and it now remains for the grand jury to find the perpetrators, if possible, but from present indications they will not be successful.

DA GAMA YIELDS.

He Takes Refuge on a Portugese Corvette at Rio.

Official dispatches from Rio confirm the reports that the insurgent Admiral Da Gama has left his flagship and taken refuge on board of the Portuguese corvette Mindell. The commander of the Portuguese warship has cabled to the minister of marine and colonies, asking for instructions in regard to restoring the vessels, comprising the insurgent squadron, under command of Admiral Da Gama, to the Brazilian government, to whom they presumably belong.

She Was Excused.

Judge Burk, of Chicago on the ground that Miss Miss Mary E. Farson is a teacher in the public employ, "excused" her from jury duty, thus evading the issue as to whether a woman shall do such duty.

Prisons will continue to borrow trouble even when they know it is lent.

TRADE REVIEW.

Report of Business for the Past Week, by Dun & Co.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s review of trade for the past week says: Evidences of present improvement in business multiply, but confidence in future improvement does not seem to increase. There is more business and a larger production by industries, for the season has arrived when greater activity is necessary if dealers' stock are to be replenished, and those who cannot make calculations beyond a few months are the more anxious to crowd as much trade as they safely can into those months.

Undertakings beyond a short time are not made with great freedom and in spite of a larger demand, prices of a larger demand, prices of manufactured goods tend downward.

The most distinct gain is in iron and steel manufacture. The output of pig iron March 1st was 110,166 tons, having increased ten per cent during the month, though it is still 37.8 per cent less than a year ago. Shipments of boots and shoes from the east are 14.8 per cent smaller than a year ago for the same weeks, and purchases are still mainly of medium or low-priced goods.

In textile manufactures and dry goods there are increased activity and replenishment of stocks, as is natural at this season. But the demand thus far falls much short of expectations, and its character indicates economy in consumption.

The volume of domestic trade shown by clearings decreases for the week only 17.4 per cent. outside New York, and 34.9 per cent. here, compared with last year. In foreign trade changes are also for the better, exports having been large, and for four weeks, 14 per cent. larger than last year, while the decrease in imports for February was 37 per cent. Thus, customs revenues do not improve, and for the week have been 51 per cent. less than last year, the decrease in internal revenue being 16 per cent.

Money is weak with further decrease in the demand for commerical loans.

Failures are growing less important and somewhat fewer also. For the week ending March 1st, the liabilities for the week thus far were only $2,237,832 and for four weeks of February, $14,886,091, of which $6,732,615 were of manufacturing and $7,697,127 of trading concerns.

The number of failures during the past week has been 248 in the United States, against 193 last year, and sixty in Canada, against thirty-two last year. Scarcely a single one is of importance, and it is gratifying that the consequences of great reverses last year have been so far overcome.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Situation as Reported for the Past Week.

A review of the industrial situation in the South for the past week shows that the new industries established are somewhat less in number than for the preceding seven days, but the unusually large inquiry for machinery still continues, and many reports are received as to intended improvements in manufacturing plants. The principal matter of interest is the increasing desire among Southern lumbermen to bring about some concert of action whereby prices can be raised to a profitable point. It is believed that an arrangement will be made to this effect. Furnaces and ore and coal mines are running to full capacity, but prices are not encouraging. The very favorable weather for the season is being taken advantage of by farmers, whose prospects for the future are more satisfactory than those engaged in other occupations.

Forty-eight new industries were established in the south during the week, prominent among which are the United States Tobacco Co., of Richmond, Va., capital $500,000; the Barbour Coal and Coke Co., of Philip, W. Va., capital $500,000; the Baltimore Blind Co., of Wheeling, W. Va., capital $100,000; the Porter Broom and Lumber Co., of Parsons, W. Va., capital $100,000; the Corsicana Water Co., of Corsicana, Texas, capital $100,000, and the Abbeville Cotton Mills Co., of Abbeville, W. Va., capital $100,000.

Canning factories are to be built at Union Springs, Ala., Tullahoma, Tenn., Sulphur Springs, Texas, and Richmond, Va. An electric light plant will be established at Lampasas, Texas, flour and grist mills at Monticello, Ky., Long Hollow, Va., and Clifton, Texas, a $50,000 hardware company is reported at Huntington, W. Va., and ice factories at Lake City, Fla., and McComb City, Miss. A brick company with $100,000 capital has been chartered at Leesburg, Va., and a $ 0,000 builders' supplies company at Roanoke, Va. Cotton mills are reported at Anniston, Ala., and Carrolton, Ga., a phosphate plant at Gainesville, Fla., oil mills at Carrolton and Cochran, Ga., and wood-working plants at Maryville, Tenn., Ter. a Alta, W. Va., Abbeville, S. C., and Gastonia, N. C.

Waterworks are to be built at Shenandoah and Winchester, Va. Among the enlargements reported for the week are a flouring mill at Mooresville, N. Y., an oil mill at Austin, Tex., cotton mills at Columbus, Ga., and a woodworking plant at Dubberly, La.; also the following important new buildings: Business houses at Woodhaven, Ala., Cordele, Ga., Asheville, N. C., Holland and Ft. Worth, Tex., a $35,000 church at Petersburg, Va., a $30,000 hotel at Van Buren, Ark., an office building at Little Rock, Ark., and a school building at Leesburg, Va.—Tradesman, (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

PARLIAMENT REASSEMBLES.

Queen Victoria's Speech Read by the Lord High Chancellor.

A London cablegram says: Parliament has reassembled. At two o'clock the members of the house of commons were summoned to the chamber of the house of lords to hear the speech from the throne. After the usual formalities at the car, the queen's speech was read by the lord high chancellor, Lord Herschell.

A meeting of the liberal leaders was held at noon at the foreign office. There was a full attendance. Lord Rosebery said it had been thought that he ought to make a complete declaration of his policy. There was no need of such a declaration, he said, seeing that there would be no change of measures but only of men. The cabinet had no intention of recording from the policy they pursued last session. Regarding the group of Irish question, the party was bound by every tie of honor to continue Mr. Gladstone's policy.

Whiskey, in its relation to the human constitution, is unconstitutional.

The Brazilian revolution is supposed to be closed.

Albert Steinhart has been appointed post master at Greenville.

The Democrats of Chilton County are anxious to have Col. Oates deliver at least one speech in their midst.

The grand Jury of Jackson county indicted Judge Tally for complicity in the killing of Ross. His impeachment is asked for.

Congressman Breckinridge ought to resign his position. Public men should be pure in their private lives. And the courts are bringing out the fact of an immense amount of rottenness.

The Kolb headquarters are to be moved back to Birmingham. The leaders are planning to start a a paper. All those who are mad with the Democratic party are invited to send in contributions to that paper.

The Chilton View says: The Jewish elite of Birmingham is arranging to produce a negro minstrel. But wont they look pretty with their pretty faces pasted over with burnt cork and their little dimples and 'witching lips enlarged by the brush of a green room artist.

This thrust at the Jews is uncalled for and out of place. A negro minstrel is just as pretty whether he is a Jew or Baptist. Religion and minstrelsy are not supposed to go together, but when they do the Jew will invariably hold his own.—Montgomery News.

Now the News is too severe upon us. We intended no thrust at the Jews or any one else. The View man in writting the article failed to state that the minstrel would be composed of the fair ones of the Jewish elite, which circumstance called forth the paragraph. The same article would have appeared had the ladies been Jews, Gentiles, Methodists or Baptist. The writer of the article, instead of being a Baptist is an individual of a different religious persuasion and does not take to heart the "thrust" of the News. It seems like an old newspaper man like Bro. Hilson might have seen that something was left out of the article referred to, and should have waited further developments before thus wantonly attacking a poor innocent brother.

The editor of the View has said it before and says it again: The Democratic party can win the present fight only by putting to the front her best men. Democrats who feel that it is encumbent upon them to be constantly making excuses and apologies for Mr. Cleveland and the Democratic party are not wanted, such men at best are only place hunters and victory for them will not mean victory for the party. Col. Oates has set the tune that should be carried by every Democratic candidate throughout the State. As a party we are under no obligation to either Republicans or Populites. They have done their worst in striving to disrupt our party and it is worse than wasting time to seek to make any compromises with or to placate in any way the enemies of Democracy. A straight-out-from-the-shoulder-fight with facts and arguments which reach the hearts and intellects of the people will bring back all who by any means could be reached. So far as we are concerned we want to see a clean fight, we want no man nominated by the Democracy of Chilton County except one whose life is clean and one who is intelligent enough and has convictions enough to defend the Democratic party. Such a man receiving the enthusiastic support of the Democrats of Chilton, we believe, can be elected to represent our county in the next Legislature. Democrats have lain quiet long enough and now we call upon the faithful in every beat to take steps immediately to organize clubs so that we can reach our neighbors who are estranged from Democracy's path. But kindle once again the camp fires and many men who now seem lost to the party will be found among the first to move in line and help us win such a victory as Democracy never before enjoyed in this county.

The Great Mortgage.

Marion Standard.

Dear Brother:—Your letter of the 22nd received. The matter of which you write is a distressing trouble all over the land. I know from a sad experience all you say about the burden of debt. Those of us who are in debt will continue to have a hard time. We will come out, though, if we will be cheerful, economical and industrious. To those who are not so unfortunate as to belong to this debtor class, the remedy is easy, keep out of debt. It can be done; thousands are doing it. One good thing the hard times is doing for the country is to add to the number of those who will not go in debt. The mortgage system is not being confined to the South, nor is the financial distress, they are both world wide. I agree with you that the pulpits should denounce usurous and grinding schemes to oppress the needy; but they ought also to go for our people who are so ready to make the mortgages. I heard one of our farmers say he didn't feel good but once a year and that was just after he mortgaged everything in the spring to make a crop. You know the mortgage has a clause in it which reads, "without which I could not make a crop." One of our farmers said when this was read to him, "I will sign it, but it is all a lie; I could make a crop without it." And he was right about it. This plunging headlong into debt every year, living beyond our means, this is what it is. If we had lived hard and pinched and made everything at home, and refused to borrow money or go in debt, we would all be independent to-day. If I had been as much afraid of debt as I am of the devil, the mortgage system would have been no terror for me now. Men who have loaned me money, and credited me have done me no wrong. I think sometimes they were a little tighter than I would have been, but I don't know, they are looking after their end of the line, and I have been very careless about mine. "Owe no man anything but to love one another," is a good text for the preacher to use. I believe now the Lord meant something by that text I didn't use to. It takes lots of grace for you to love anybody real good when you are in debt to them—especially if you can't pay them. Somehow one don't like to meet them. But I am in debt, and can't get out just now, so I am compelled to disregard that scripture. If we will all begin to work at our end of the line—live economically, be honest, honor God by paying tithes, pay as we go, or not buy, the mortgage system will soon go out, and lenders of money will come flocking to us, begging us to take their money at a low rate of interest on our plain note of hand. You are right, I am deeply interested in the "common or producing classes." I was born among them, my interests are with them. Whatever affects them, affects me. I am as sure the remedy I suggest is a true one, as I am that I am living. Congress can never relieve us. We have the remedy in our own hands if we have the courage, the religion, the patriotism to enforce it. I am glad you wrote me. I have answered you candidly and to the best of my ability.

Yours, fraternally,
W. B. Crumpton.

Philander Morgan.

Maj. Philander Morgan of Talladega county, writes, on March 1, as follows to the Living Truth; printed at Greenville, Ala.:

"The charges of apostasy that are being made against those of the People's Party that have the courage to stand by their own political creeds are unsupported we think, by any conditions of fealty due from us to the Jeffersonian wing of the Democracy, or by any obligations imposed by past favors—by any present claims upon our support or by any promises looking to the future!

Ours is a political organization that has become national in its influence. We have challenged monopoly in its most aggregated forms. We have provoked a conflict that Democracy shrank from in other days and embrances in this. We have become the last hope in the support of that equality of rights that is the stay of the people and the substance of true republican government—and now to abandon our creed, and fawn at the feet of a party that is at best but the counterpart of the Democracy, presents a condition that is justified neither by policy nor principle.

Respectfully,
Philander Morgan.

At Home.

Troy Messenger.

Near Fleetwood lives P. J. Beck, seventeen miles from Troy. He runs three plows, plants fifty acres in corn, ten acres in ground peas and field peas, potatoes, cane and other things in proportion to his farm. Milk and butter are made in abundance and he raises an excellent stock of cows and hogs. Many of those who have seen his stock of hogs admire them so much that now they are beginning to raise from the same stock. He has just killed 2,400 pounds of meat. He never buys corn, meat nor lard. He moved to the place where he now lives in 1856, and the gods seemed to bless him at the very start. He is one of the most prominent men in the county. He is one of the county commissioners, and makes a good one. He belongs strictly on the list of those who live at home.

P. J. Wingard lives fourteen miles west of Troy. He lives at home because he raises all of his meat and corn. He runs four plows, plants a little cotton and gets about twenty bales a year. He raises plenty of corn to supply his plantation and to sell. He is raising an improved stock of hogs. He lives on the same plantation where he was born. The pleasures of a happy farm life belong to him.

Wingard is the postoffice near Mr. C. G. Trotter, and the one of course where he gets the Messenger. He is one of the leading lights of the county. He runs a big farm on which he raises plenty of cotton, corn and meat. He sells corn and some meat. He is the postmaster and is a staunch Democrat. His example as a farmer is admired by neighbors and passers-by.

Bob Rogers lives in Dixon's beat, eighteen miles from Troy. He is 32 years old and has been living on the place where he now lives for six years. He has during that time built upon it and improved it well. He began flat and only tried to run one plow. This he did successfully. One year he made nine bales of cotton on sixteen acres. His one plow in 1892 made for him 300 bushels of corn and twelve bales of cotton. He usually plants about ten acres in cotton and fifteen acres in corn, with ground peas and field peas in abundance. He raises potatoes and cane in abundance, usually selling syrup. Last year he sold enough meat to buy everything his place needed until fodder pulling time. He raises plenty of milk and butter and it is needless to say that he is one of Pike's model young farmers.

Another Family that Lives on the Farm

Greenville Advocate.

Mr. J. H. Harrison, living in north Butler, came to Greenville last Saturday, bringing his good lady with him. His subscription was about out, and Mrs. Harrison wanted one of the Advocate's premium books. After selecting her book the conversation turned on "living at home," when Mrs. Harrison said: "Why, I have eighty hens at my house and there is not a day in the year that I cannot have chicken or eggs on my table. To give you an idea of the productiveness of my fowls, I sold 308 dozen eggs between the first of March and the 1st of November of last year, netting me $30.08; besides I had all the eggs my family could use. I never send chickens to market, we use all we care to at home. I take pleasure in raising them, and have no trouble. They do not die with cholera or other disease. I plant peas, oats, rye and other things for them and it takes but little corn from the crib."

We asked Mrs. Harrison about raising their own bread and meat.

"Oh! I do not remember when we ever had to buy our own bread and meat, we make plenty and nearly every year have some to sell. We make syrup, rice and many other things at home, and we only have to go to town for clothing. We brought lard to Greenville to-day which we sold."

Mrs. Harrison is an intelligent woman, who is a help-meet to her husband, and a way-farer accepting the hospitality of her home will find plenty to eat there, and that which is good.

CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."
Dr. G. C. Osgood,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
Dr. J. F. Kincheloe,
Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. Archer, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."
United Hospital and Dispensary,
Boston, Mass.

W. L. Mullins.

Chancery court was in session here last Thursday and Friday, Chancelor McSpadden presiding. Cols. Tompkins and Falkner of Montgomery, and Col. Collier, of Birmingham, were the only lawyers present outside of the county.

Mr. Thos. A. Curry, of Livingston, has been appointed prosecuting attorney for Chilton, and will henceforth make Clanton headquarters. We take pleasure in introducing him to the public.

An effort is being made by the young men to get up another negro minstrel which will be in behalf of the Clanton cemetery and is expected to be played during the last week of circuit court.

At last the pond has been drained, and from henceforth we hope to hear naught of the croaking of frogs, the complaint of the people or Clanton accused of being an unhealthy town. The contract was let by Mr. W. I. Mullins. Every one who contributed to the enterprise has the thanks of the people.

Occasionally our local editor has something to say about the loafers of Clanton. If only our little town was cursed with an idle set it would not be so bad, but the same state of affairs exists everywhere throughout this State. Strong young men and middle aged men without an occupation, doing nothing the live-long day. No wonder the crop of drunkards and gamblers are on the increase.

A very unfortunate difficulty occurred here last Saturday between Dr. A. E. Matthews and Mr. Newton Culp, in which Mr. Culp was shot by Dr. Matthews. The wounded man died Sunday morning. We greatly sympathize with both the doctor and the family of the deceased. The matter is to be investigated March 30th, hence the VIEW refrains from any mention of circumstances. Chas. W. Hare has been employed for the prosecution and Col. Wm. A. Collier for the defence.

Mr. W. C. Mahan, of Jumbo, was in Clanton Wednesday and called at this office. He reports farm work well advanced in his section of the county. Mr. Mahan is a model farmer, and informed us that his wheat crop was flourishing and that he expected to make several hundred bushels. He raises everything that is necessary for home welfare and for his farm. He has a fine breed of stock and has milk and butter in abundance. This scribe remembers to have seen his fat, sleek, cows return of an evening with the milk pouring in a stream from their udders. Farmers in east Chilton plant more grain than is planted through this section.

According to the expression of the gentleman to the smoking kid who desired all to "look at me," there are as many or more fools at the end of a cigarette in this day and time than then, sucking and puffing, spitting tobacco juice and imitating that respected specimen of humanity—the dude—that genteel little gent—of leisure, the subject of idleness—who too, smokes the dainty cigarett, spins yarns, swears, scorns occupation, loafs his time away, and sits the street corner. And this is often the conception of manliness formed in the mind of boys who are allowed to choose such associates. It is also hard to convince these boys that they are injuring health and body, that nicotine is a poison, and that one drop will kill a dog. Well, some boys are "tough" and probably they think so.

The following appeared in last week's Selma Mirror. This reminds us of a rule found in vogue in a neighborhood in Walker County. Except in that case it was safe also for a strange white man to carry a passport. People who live remote from neighbors are constantly in danger from stragglers and it behooves them to be watchful, but the writer of that article should not go so far as to insist that law abiding negroes are not safe in Chilton County. If a man behaves himself and is a good citizen he should be protected in the enjoyment of life, liberty and property, be his color what it may:

Chilton Co., Ala., March 13.

"Editor Mirror:—Since the brutal murder of Mrs. Mary Rucker a few weeks ago, the white people of Chilton County have been wrought up to the highest pitch and our wives and daughters must be protected from the brutish negro, and in order to do this, we, the white men of Chilton County, have been holding meetings for our protection, we have formed resolutions that we intend to abide by and carry out. For several years Chilton County has been over-run and stocked with ex-convicts and loafing negroes from other counties and we intend to put a stop to this; we don't intend to allow a negro to pass any road unless he has a written pass from his employer or some good respectable white man. The pass must state who he is, where he is going and when he expects to return. This we do with all the negroes in our employ or who enters. Strange negroes coming in or passing through Chilton from other counties had better secure a passport from some responsible white man before he comes or he may have some trouble. This is done to protect our wives and children, and in fact we don't want any more negroes in Chilton, and after this year there will be few employed in the county, for they don't have good health. There are some seasons of the year when they have "swamp fever."

Maplesville Music.

Our community has been saddened by the death of Mr. Tom Foshee, who died on the 8th inst., at New Orleans of malarial fever. The burial services were conducted by Rev. Dunaway, of Stanton. He was born and reared here and had many friends here. He was 23 years and six months old.

Charlas Crawford of Selma has been visiting here.

Frank Kelley has been visiting friends here.

Many hogs and chickens are dying with the cholera in this locality.

Farmers are in good spirits with their work which makes us hope for better times.

Verbena Views.

Rev. J. M. McCord, of East Lake, visited our city last week.

Our genial young friend, John Brooks, has been stopping with his friends here.

We would not be surprised if some one does not make his fortune yet digging gold out of the old hills of Chilton County. A farmer near Verbena brought in some nice specimens dug recently near here. There was 96 grains in one piece.

Died at Verbena on the night of the 18th inst., Capt. Jno. Cisby, in his 81st year. He was one of the pioneers of Alabama and for many years one of Verbena's most prominent citizens. His family have the sympathy of their many friends here in their sad loss. His remains were carried to Montgomery; Rev. J. E. McCann conducting his funeral services.

Dr. B. J. Baldwin, of Montgomery, visited his father's family here this week. He has recently returned from a visit to California and Texas.

Mr. Gus Baumgarten has returned from a visit to friends in North Alabama.

Mr. Henry Wingate was with his friends this week. He has a position at Deatsville in the telegraph office.

Organizations of business men are doing much to bring about better affairs in our cities and towns. Before the meetings of these bodies all questions pertaining to the interests of the town, county, section or State are brought. Free discussions are had, and in this manner the heretofore indifferent citizen becomes actively interested in public affairs. We would be glad to see our business men organize themselves, and as a committee to talk up the matter we nominate Messrs. W. L. Sampey, R. Ehrman and Prof McMorries, Let us know what you think about it gentleman.

A State Convention of business men will be held in Birmingham April 24th. Business men from every town are invited. While Clanton has no business organization and no mayor to select certain of our business men, still we trust some of our citizens will attend.

Mr. D. H. Smith, of Kincheon, saved and used 6 tons of home made fertilizer for this season. He makes his corn meat, syrup and sugar. This is a sample of what is being done in Chilton county.

SOLSVILLE MIRACLE.

RESTORATION OF PHILANDER HYDE FROM PARALYSIS.

Helpless and Bed-Ridden—His Recovery From This Pitiable Condition—A Remarkable Narrative.

[From the Syracuse Standard.]

During the past few months there have appeared in the columns of the Standard the particulars of a number of cures so remarkable as to justify the term miraculous. These cases were investigated and vouched for by the Albany Journal, the Detroit News, Albany Express and other papers whose reputation is a guarantee that the facts were as stated. Different schools of medicine and some of the brightest lights in the profession had treated these cases, unsuccessfully; and their recovery later on, therefore, and its means, have created a profound sensation throughout the country.

The Standard has published the above accounts for what they were worth, and are happily able to supplement same to-day by an equally striking case near home. The case is over in Madison County, at Solsville, and the subject is Mr. Philander Hyde, who told the reporter the following:

"I will be 70 in September. I was born in Brookfield, Madison County, where all my life was spent until recently, when, becoming helpless, I came to live with my daughter here. My life occupation has been that of a farmer. I was always well and rugged until two years ago last winter, when I had the grip. When it left me I had a sensation of numbness in my legs, which gradually grew to be stiff at the joints and very painful. I felt the stiffness in my feet first, and the pain and the stiffness extended to my knees and to my hip joints, and to the bowels and stomach, and prevented digestion. To move the bowels I was compelled to take great quantities of castor oil.

"While I was in this condition, cold feelings would begin in my feet and streak up my legs to my back and would follow the whole length of my back bone. I could not sleep, I had no appetite, I became helpless. While in this condition I was treated by a number of prominent physicians. They did me no good. I soon became perfectly helpless and lost all power of motion even in my bed."

"The physicians consulted pronounced father's case creeping paralysis," said Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, "and when we brought him home he had to be carried all the way in a bed. The doctors said they could only relieve the pain, and for the purpose he took a pint of whisky a day for three months, and morphine in great quantities. When he began taking Pink Pills we stopped giving him morphine or any other medicine, and cut off all stimulants. In ten days after father began taking the pills, he could get out of bed and walk without assistance, and has continued to improve until now he walks about the house and the streets by the aid of a cane only."

"Yes," said Mr. Hyde, "and the pain has gone out of my back and the numbness out of my legs. I have no more chills, my digestion is good, and I have an excellent appetite." And then, after a pause, "But, ah, me, I am an old man; I have seen my best days, and cannot hope to recover my old vigor as a younger man might, but I am so thankful to have the use of my limbs and to be relieved of those dreadful pains."

Others in Solsville are taking Pink Pills, notably the mother of Abel Curtis, who is using them with satisfactory effect for rheumatism, and Mrs. Lippitt, wife of ex-Senator Lippitt, is using them with much benefit for nervous debility.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood, and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, and that "tired feeling" resulting from nervous prostration; all diseases resulting from vitiated humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature.

These Pills are manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., and Brockville, Ont., and are sold only in boxes bearing the firm's trade mark and wrapper at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, and are never sold in bulk or by the dozen or hundred.

"THE death of your husband was a great loss to you," said Mrs. Brunting to Mrs. Gasket, by way of condolence.

"Oh, the loss was fully covered by insurance," replied the widow.

THE NEWS IN GENERAL.

Condensed from Our Most Important Telegraphic Advices

And Presented in Pointed and Readable Paragraphs.

The plant and stock of the Lansing Lumber company, at Dodge, Mich., has been destroyed by fire. Loss about $175,000; insured.

Lord Roseberry, England's new premier, is a large stockholder in the Southern States Land and Lumber company, an English corporation that has several large mills in this country, and its general offices in Pensacola, Fla.

All the departments of Cambria iron works, at Johnston, Pa., which have been idle, have resumed business. The Johnston steel works, at the same place, also started up after an idleness of three months. About 2,000 men were at work for the two corporations.

The report of the landing of the British at Bluefields in the Mosquito reservation has been confirmed by the arrival of the steamer, Elliot, Captain A. Brown, at Savannah, Ga. The Elliot, which is a British steamer, left Bluefields Sunday morning, March 4th.

Municipal elections were held all over the state of Michigan Monday. In towns where party lines were drawn the returns show that the republicans were generally successful with large gains in their vote. In towns where a "citizens" or "workingmen's ticket was in the field it swept everything.

A dispatch to the admiralty office at London from Bathurst Gambia, says Chief Fadisilah, a slave trader, whose depredations among the natives in the British sphere led to the recent fighting in that territory, resulting in several instances in the defeat of British sailors, has been captured in French territory.

A man about thirty-five years of age, giving his name as Daniel C. Camp, of New York, has been arrested at Philadelphia on the charge of attempting to swindle Strawbridge & Ciothier, retail dry goods merchants, out of $1,600 by presenting checks for $2,000 on the Maddox-Rucker Banking Company, of Atlanta, Ga.

Congressman Tom L. Johnson, owner of the Johnstown steel works, of Johnstown, Pa., authorizes the announcement that these mammoth works will be removed to Cleveland as speedily as arrangements can be concluded. The company will erect a $3,000,000 plant in that city. Three thousand men will be employed.

Captain Anthony Salinas, commander of the steam yacht Natalie, has arrived at New York. Captain Salinas said he left the Natalie in charge of the first officer March 5th. He declared that the yacht had not been captured by the Haytian war ships, as reported, nor had the crew, which consisted of only five men, been molested.

W. S. Chambelain, deputy United States collector of customs at Rio Grande City, Texas, writes a letter to the press, in which he makes a strong appeal for aid for the destitute of that section. He says that women and children are starving to death; that three-fourths of the cattle have died, and that the real situation is withheld for speculative land reasons.

Ex-Mayor James H. Britton, of St. Louis, but now a resident of New York city, has been arrested on a capias warrant from the United States district court of Texas. The warrant recited that W. M. Britton and James H. Britton had been indicted by the federal grand jury for alleged embezzlement by A. M. Britton, president of the First National bank, of Vernon, Tex. Mr. Britton gave bond to appear at the March term of court.

The Panama Star and Herald of March 2d, says: "A story from San Domingo, coming from good authority, says that the two sons of ex-President Baez had been shot by order of President Heurax. According to the story, the elder son had previously been sentenced to imprisonment for life for plotting to overthrow the existing government, and when the younger was also discovered to be implicated, Heuraux determined that both should die."

It is announced that the Braddock wire works plant at Rankin, near Pittsburg, Pa., now holds the record, turning out more steel than any other single roll rod mill in the world. The record has been held for a number of years by the Joliet, Ill., wire works, whose rod mill turned out 243 tons of wire rods in twelve hours. The output of the Braddock works for one day recently a turn of ten hours, from 6 o'clock a. m. to 4 o'clock p. m., was 254 tons, breaking the record by eleven tons.

An eastbound freight train on the Southern Pacific was captured by a gang of thirty tramps or unemployed workingmen west of Marfa, Texas, and when they were ordered to leave the train by the conductor the men refused to do so and became very insolent in their language. The sheriff of Presidio county was telegraphed of the situation and asked to afford the chief justice of the state supreme court, was largely attended, there being delegations and representatives present from nearly all the leading cities and towns of the state. In some towns business was practically suspended during the progress of the special funeral services, which were held at the same hour that the funeral occurred in Montgomery.

The Bank of Chester, S. C., has assigned to John J. Hemphill and J. Lyles Glenn, for the protection of creditors at large. President J. J. McClure had just returned from New York, where he went to get funds to carry the bank through the summer. After a full consideration of the situation the directors decided to close the bank. The depositors will be paid off in full and the stockholders will not suffer.

The Rev. C. G. Jones, pastor of the First Baptist church, of Chattanooga, has created a decided sensation by attacking the character of General Jubal A. Early. He declared in a sermon that if there was anything good either in his course, as a man or as a soldier, history had failed to note it, and that he hoped the dead man's memory would rot with his bones. The dead officer was given an unmerciful review. The congregation was indignant and many declare that they will never enter the church again.

A Nashville special says: For over two months experts have been in Lewis and Hickman counties looking into the reported discovery of beds of phosphate in these counties. They have examined about 75,000 acres of land and found ore of the richest quality at many points, and ore all over the section. Samples have been analyzed and found to be over the required percentage of phosphoric acid. Nashville citizens and the Southern Iron company have been quietly gathering in the land containing the deposits and over 75,000 acres already have been purchased.

The state of South Carolina earned a decisive victory over the railroads in the United States circuit court at Charleston, Tuesday, when Judge Simonton filed a decree in the much-litigated railroad tax cases. Last year the assessments on all the railroad property were arbitrarily raised by the board of equalization. The railroads refused to pay the taxes on the increased assessment and carried the case into the United States courts. The court, in a lengthy opinion, decided that the assessment was not unconstitutional and orders the receiver to pay to the state the balance of taxes due, and also the costs of the action.

AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Affairs of Government and News of the Departments Discussed.

Notes of Interest Concerning the People and Their General Welfare.

The senate will probably begin consideration of the tariff bill within less than three weeks. It is presumed the debate will last from four to six weeks.

The managers of the Bland seigniorage bill in the senate, figure out a majority of fifteen for the measure. There are only from ten to thirteen democrats who will oppose it, and about twice as many republicans.

The house is making rapid progress with the sundry civil appropriation bill. Wednesday the clause appropriating $995,000 for work on the Sayannah harbor during next year, was adopted by practically a unanimous vote.

The state department has received a cablegram from Minister Baker, conveying a message from the consul at Greytown to the effect that the British marines had been withdrawn from the Mosquito territory, and affairs are now quiet there.

Pension Commissioner Lochren has issued an order directing in accordance with the act of congress of December 21, 1893, that immediate steps shall be taken to remove suspensions on pensions in all cases in which such action has not already been taken.

The house passed the District of Columbia appropriation bill Saturday and immediately took up the sundry civil bill. The house is, indeed, rushing things now and making up for the time lost on the long fight over the silver seigniorage bill. But another long fight is to be had when the state bank tax bill comes up.

The house elections committee decided Tuesday morning to take up the contested case of Thesher vs. Enloe, from the eighth Tennessee district, and Moore vs. Funston, from the second Kansas district, for consideration on Friday. Arguments have been heard in both cases. It was decided that, after the 27th instant, arguments would be heard in the remaining cases on the committee calendar.

The government receipts for the first third of the month of March show a decided improvement, the aggregate being $9,250,000. The internal receipts continue to show a heavy increase, and so far have aggregated $4,600,000. All indications point to a greater increase for the balance of the month, as large quantities of whisky are being taken out of bond to avoid the payment of the increased whisky tax provided in the tariff bill. The expenditures aggregate $11,000,000, of which $5,500,000 are on account of pensions.

Secretary Herbert has made a response to the Boutelle resolution, adopted by the house calling on him to state his authority for issuing instructions placing the armed naval force of the United States and the use of its ensign under the orders and control of Special Commissioner Blount, at Honolulu, March 11, 1893. The substance of the answer is that the action was necessary to prevent a conflict of authority and that the secretary's authority for issuing the order was the president, commander in chief of the United States army and navy. A number of precedents for this action are cited.

The house committee on agriculture has decided to postpone until next month action on bills providing for the extermination of the Russian thistle. The Hatch "anti-option" bill was made the special order of business until disposed of, and its consideration will begin at once. The sense of the committee has been taken and shows that a majority are in favor of some legislation of this kind. The bill will be read by sections and perfected, as the draft submitted by Hatch conveyed only the idea, leaving the exact terms to be discussed and fixed by the committee.

Justice White Installed.

With simple but impressive ceremonies befitting so important an occasion, Edward Douglas White, of Louisiana, was installed as associate justice of the United States supreme court Monday. At noon, precisely, the court, headed by the chief justice, and wearing their silken robes of office, entered the chamber. Mr. White, also wearing a robe, came last in the procession. When the court had opened in the usual form the chief justice announced that the vacancy on the bench had been filled and Mr. White was present and ready to take the oath of office. Mr. White then took the oath and the ceremonies were at an end.

LAWYERS FIGHT.

A Lively Scene Growing Out of the Pollard-Breckinridge Trial.

One of the Colonel's Attorneys Assaults His Opponent.

A Washington special says: A greater crowd than on the opening day sought admission to the courtroom Monday morning, when the Pollard-Breckinridge trial was resumed. Judge Bradley, however, had ruled on Friday that persons not interested in the case, professionally or as witnesses, should be excluded, and this prevented overcrowding. Fourteen ladies had persuaded the bailiffs to admit them, but they remained long enough only to witness the assembling of the participants in the drama they hoped to see. They were treated to an unpleasant surprise just as the court opened.

"Mr. Marshal," said Judge Bradley, "please request these ladies who are not interested in this case to retire." The marshal made the request to the fourteen women. They looked surprised, then chagrined and filed out shame-facedly. After some sparring about the four mysterious volumes of Washington Irving, taken from the Cincinnati convent, and ordered Friday to be produced, the taking of testimony was begun.

A FREE SCRAP.

Among the witnesses Dr. Parsons, Miss Pollard's physician, was called to give important testimony. At the close of Dr. Parson's examination a prolonged controversy arose about admitting affidavits. It transpired during the discussion that 100 witnesses has been examined in Ohio, Kentucky and Virginia. Major Butterworth argued forcibly against allowing the depositions to be filed. The last speaker was Mr. W. G. Johnson for the plaintiff. Mr. Johnson had referred in a general way to the course taken by the defendant's attorneys in regard to certain affidavits as chicanery, and Mr. Shelby endeavored to make reply, but as the usual hour for adjournment had passed, Judge Bradley deferred the question until Tuesday. Mr. Shelby was not satisfied at this turn and attempted to secure a hearing from the court, and when Judge Bradley rapped the desk, declaring "I have adjourned the court," Mr. Shelby remarked: "I know what I will do, then." He took his hat from its hook and as the spectators were leaving the courtroom paced back and forth before the jury box. There is a narrow hallway connecting the courtroom with the main corridor, through which the officers generally pass. Judge Bradley walked out and was followed by the lawyers for both sides. As Mr. Johnson left the room Mr. Jhelby darted after him accosted him in this hallway,

Said Mr. Shelby, facing his opponent: "You have insulted me, sir, and I must have satisfaction, sir." "Well, sir?" responded Mr. Johnson, interrogatively and calmly, as he afterwards said, expecting that Mr. Shelby would denominate the sort of satisfaction he expected.

Thereupon Mr. Shelby's right fist shot outward and upward, grazing Mr. Johnson's cheek drawing a slight blush. As he threw up his arms in the defensive, the form of his professional partner, Mr. Calderon Carlisle, was interposed between them. Quickly several other gentlemen became participants in the fray. Colonel Breckinridge, with his gleaming snow-white beard, and his son piled themselves upon Mr. Carlisle. There was an excited moment of the general melee, engaged in by no less than a dozen gentlemen, most of them intended peacemakers, when Deputy Marshal John R. Leonard strode into the center of the conflict, thrusting the belligerent Kentuckian back and putting a damper upon hostilities.

Everybody emerged from the heat of controversy uninjured, although Mr. Johnson's cheek was slightly reddened, and the silk hat of Judge Jere Wilson had been sadly ruffled. Col. Breckinridge and his son had started from the court house, but seeing the judge, turned back, the congressman approaching him and saying, with evident: "I had nothing to do with this, judge. I was trying to separate them. That was all."

Judge Bradley was very indignant and said: "We cannot have this here, gentlemen. You must understand that we cannot have such outbreaks. I will ascertain in the morning who are responsible for this, and see to it that they are properly punished."

REMARKS OF JUDGE BRADLEY.

Miss Pollard was not present when the court was called to order Tuesday morning and did not appear during the day. Immediately after the court was called to order, Judge Bradley spoke as follows: "I notice the newspapers have laid out a course of duty to me to be followed this morning in view of what occurred yesterday afternoon. There was an unfortunate occurrence, which I did not see, in the precincts of the court room after the court adjourned yesterday afternoon, which I, of course, regret and I have no doubt the parties who are responsible for it regret. It is a matter, however, of which the court cannot take judicial notice, except to express the hope that the gentlemen will curb and restrain their feelings. After the delivery of these remarks by Judge Bradley, the examination of witnesses was resumed.

Cigarmakers Take Action.

The cigar manufacturers of Ocala, Fla., held a meeting and passed resolutions against the changes made by the senate committee in the tobacco schedules of the Wilson bill. Senators Call and Pasco are requested to work to have the senate amendment defeated so that the original schedule of the Wilson bill may obtain.

Cotton Mill Fails.

The Nashville, Tenn., Cotton Mills Company has made an assignment for the benefit of its creditors, whose claims aggregate $69,000. The Southern National Bank of New York is the largest creditor, its claim being $21,000.

The Letter "J" as a Mascot.

Is the letter "J," like the letter "E," so indispensable that it is as difficult to find a list of names without the former appearing in it as it is to find a complete sentence in which the latter does not occur? Is the above the cause of its frequent appearance in the names of American's great men, or is it really a mascot letter? Beginning with our presidents, I find it as the first inital in the names of eight. The only president of the Confederacy also began his name with the "little mascot." In the list of the vice presidents I find it six times, divided equally between the Christian and the surnames. Among the names of the presidents pro tem of the senate it occurs 22 times and among the speakers of the house fourteen times. Thirteen of the secretaries of state commenced their first names with "J," and one used it as the initial of his surname. In the realm of justice the record is equally if not more startling, 21 out of a total of 55 chief justices and justices beginning either their first or last name with it.

Besides the above we find it in the names of nearly all the multimillionaires of the country—viz, John D. Rockfeleri, J. J. Astor, Jay Gould, J. M. Sears, J. S. Morgan, J. B. Haggin, J. W. Garrett, John Wanamaker, J. G. Fair, John W. Mackay, J. G. Flood, John Arbuckle, J. B. Stetson, John Claflin, Joseph Pulitzer and others.—St. Louis Republic.

If there is no personal devil who invented the comic valentine?

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials free. Address

Winning a Husband.

More than two-thirds of the women who marry let their husbands slip through their fingers because they are too lazy, too indifferent, or too ignorant to keep them. A girl wins a husband unconsciously. Ask any of your friends how they captured their own half, and they will tell you frankly "I don't know." A man's heart is ensnared by a pretty hand, nice teeth, a round, low voice, frank eyes, beautiful hair; by the way a girl walks, talks, plays; by her gifts, her smile, her amiability, good taste, generosity, or the very manner in which she greets, fascinates or abuses him. She may not know how she won him, but if she doesn't know how to keep him, the best thing for her to do is to find out. There are many things we know by intuition; the rest have to be learned by experiment. Conscious of her abilities and inabilities as a wife, a wise woman will learn how to keep a husband just as she learns how too keep house, and if she does not some siren will secure for her a parmanent vacation.—Domestic Monthly.

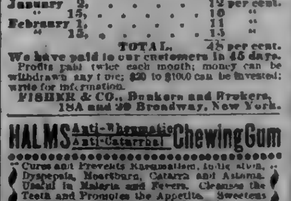
Because of the high speed at which Circular Saws are run there power is wasted in friction that is used in sawing when the bearings of the shaky, wooden saw frame get out of line. In the Arcmaster Saw Frame, the only Steel Saw Frame ever made, the drive is absolutely and wholly perfected because THE BEARINGS FOR THE SHAFT ARE MADE BY EMBEDDING IT IN THE ENDS OF A PIECE OF STEEL TUBING. These bearings and shaft are then united so as to take up wear with a bolt. The frame is all steel, very rigid, and riveted together so that nothing can get loose or out of place. The guard so encircles the saw as to be safe to responsible for any one to get hurt, a point of the greatest importance on a saw to be used by unskilled hands.

The sawing frame which carries the wood to be sawed and which automatically returns to its place has also a cord to keep a pole of from the fly wheel and yet does not prevent your much of an angle to the saw. The use of a 10x10 inch fly wheel and 28 inch saw makes the easily possible. It is therefore a very desirable Saw, making it easy to cut up any long material quickly and safely. Another feature of



Since we offer this very superior saw frame with a 28 inch superior saw at a much less price than any cheap imperfect wooden frame can be bought for, we are sure that the friends of the Arcmaster will appreciate the fact that we have again been doing the public a great service and have distinguished ourselves in redesigning an old article and putting it into an infinitely improved shape.

For a saw of similar size and quality, and ordinary wooden frame, you would be charged $60. We make this all steel frame and this superior saw at $40, AND GIVE YOU A CHANCE TO GET IT AT $15, for the benefit of our Limited Introduction.

We have sold an enormous number of Power Arcmaster outfits with which saws are used, and a poor saw that runs hard detracts from their usefulness and their reputation. If we furnish a very superior saw at a very low price, many geared outfits will be bought to drive them. Wherever one Geared Arcmaster goes, others are sure to follow.

When we take a well known article redesign it, and put it in a shape very superior to anything that has appeared before it widens and enlarges our reputation for doing well everything to which we put our hands and this is the thing that has in the past brought so much business to our factory and which in the future, we have no doubt, will bring practically all the business in our line. It is the reputation that we are daily working for.

We believe that this Arcmaster Steel Saw Frame and Saw will confirm and enhance the same which we have gained in the manufacture of Steel Windmills and Steel Towers, hence, for the purpose of scattering these so that everybody may know just what they can get for a small price, WE OFFER THIS STEEL SAW AND FRAME FOR $15 CASH AND FIVE COUPONS OF ADVERTISEMENT No. 2 of this series as per conditions stated in No. 1. In our next advertisement No. 3, we shall talk of galvanizing, and make an offer that will be of universal interest. Take heed, No. 2. AERMOTOR CO.

There's beauty in the dawning light
And twilight fair or starlit night
Has each its charm and grace;
But lovelier still on earth to me,
The fairest thing my eye can see,
The beauty of thy face.

There's calmness on the ocean's breast,
As deep and blue it seems to rest
'Neath skies heavens above;
But deeper, calmer, still to me
Than ever sea or sky can be,
Thine azure eyes, my love!

There's music in the running stream,
And music when the woodlands seem
Awake with songs of birds;
But sweeter, dearer, still to me
Than nature's voice can ever be,
The music of thy words.

IN THE FIFTH FLAT.

BY ANNA LEACH.

It was away up town on that extension of Ninth avenue which scorns its humble beginnings as it gets more prosperous, and with the true Philistine spirit changes its name to that of the discoverer of America. There were two great apartment houses opposite each other, with the constant roar and jerk of the elevated road lying between. Workmen had been coming and going upon a third tall white building on an opposite corner, with an empty lot lying adjacent, and boys of his own age had been playing in there, playing all sorts of fantalizing games, ever since Wilbur Clint had moved into the fifth flat.

He used to stand at the window in his nightgown and look at them. He wore his nightgown half the day sometimes, because it seemed so senseless to dress himself when he could not go out. His mama gave him his bath and tucked him into bed at night, and then in the morning, long before he was up, she took the elevated and went away down town to a magazine office where she read stories which other people wrote, and patiently sealed them up again and sent them back to the writers.

Sometimes her heart used to ache at the old fashioned, provincial views of life which so many of the stories showed. When Wilbur's mamma, sitting there at her desk, in her neat black gown, hesitated over a page of spidery writing and smiled a little at the corners of her mouth, it was a certain sign that she had found another love story, told in the good old way, where cruel fate had at last allowed the lovers to fly into each other's arms, and they made their exit amid a shower of rice to the tune of wedding bells, their sorrows ended forever.

"I do wonder," she said to herself as her pen hung over the author's address she was putting upon one of these manuscripts one day, "how a 'Mrs.' ever came to write such a story as that. Well! well! May be her husband died on their honeymoon, poor thing!"

One day the editor of the magazine, who was a very busy man indeed, came into the tiny little room where his reader sat, and fumbled over some of the thick packages which were piled all about.

"Mrs. Clint," he said, "are all the story writers getting cynical? What is the matter? It seems to me we haven't had a really cheerful tale for six months."

Mrs. Clint used to think a great deal about her little boy as she went up and down on the elevated, and as she sat by the lamp and darned his little stockings at night, or lay with his curly little head upon her arm. She looked at him anxiously to see if he were getting pale with the confinement. She knew that it was all wrong, but she knew no other way. A little lad of five could not be allowed out on the street by himself.

Sometimes she too saw the boys playing on the vacant lot where the builders piled their waste. They used to take an old tin pail and build a fire in it, and swing it in a blazing circle about them, and then Mrs. Clint would shudder all over, and make Wilbur promise that he would never go out alone.

The flat was a little more expensive than Mrs. Clint could rightly afford, but she had taken it because the janitor's wife was an old acquaintance, an old servant in the boarding house where Mrs. Clint had lived when she had first come to New York, a fresh country girl with an ambition to write for the magazines. She had had a number of stories accepted, had done all sorts of work for syndicates and newspapers, and had gone to the theatre with nice, ambitious young newspaper men, who threw work in her way, and told her stories of prominent people and their humble beginnings. And then finally she had married one of the most ambitions of them, and had gone to Paris with him for a year, and had been delightfully happy.

They had gone to all the places where artists and writers had discovered the unusual and the picturesque. They had had a little apartment up under the roof with a wide, wide window looking out over all Paris; and there had been azaleas in pots on the sill, and gay cushions on the couch beneath, and young Mrs. Clint had wondered if there were ever two people in all this world so happy.

It was here that Wilbur had been born, and two months later they were called back to America by the paper Clint worked for. A Presidential campaign was just coming on, and a worker like Clint was needed. It was summer, hot, close summer, and Clint took his wife and baby down to Long Island to a little town "swept by ocean breezes," as the pulsing electric letters at Madison Square announced. He came down every night when he could, but there were a great many things to keep him in town, and he had to make a great many journeys about the country to hear what party leaders had to say about it.

After the close companionship of this last year, Mrs. Clint missed her husband terribly. She was a little nervous and impatient, and sometimes she said so. The hot weather and the constant strain had worn Clint's own nerves to rags. And he had never known how to be soothing. He only sat by the open window, in his shirt sleeves, and smoked a cigar and looked at the sea, until Mrs. Clint told him that cigar smoke would kill the baby. Then he went down stairs and looked at the sea from the bow of a beached dory. His wife began to ask why she couldn't go about with him as she used to do.

"Two people can go anywhere," Clint said, "but two people and a baby can go about nowhere."

And then she told him that she always knew he was staying away because the baby bored him. Oh, it had all been a midsummer madness, born of heat and mosquitoes and the electricity of a Presidential election year!

Once she left the baby with its nurse, and went up to town to hear a great speaker. Clint had been obliged to leave her, and she had waited for him until four o'clock in the morning; and then when he came in, his step was not steady. He had been all night at a banquet. She had never said a word, but she had lain with the sheet up to her eyes and seen him bind an icy towel about his head and sit down to write with a strong cigar in his teeth.

After that she was silent, but she was frightened. The next great speech he did not send for her, but she went up in the morning, determined to go with him that night, and bring him back home with her if she could. She did not find him at the office, and she went into a restaurant to lunch, feeling warm and out of sorts. She was trying to be economical; these days, saving money for little Wilbur. No one knew better than she how precarious a livelihood is newspaper work.

And there, sitting opposite her, farther down the room, was Clint, cool and immaculately fresh and gay, lunching with Miss Richardson, who did the snappy articles upon the moving world for the Day. Miss Richardson was drinking champagne.

Well, of course it was silly, but Mrs. Clint walked out without recognizing them, and went down to Long Island and dismissed her nurse and packed her belongings, and came up to town without leaving an address behind her. She had gone to Mr. Dash, the editor of Tomorrow, and he had taken her on, because she was in trouble, and because he had prophesied a brilliant future for her in the old days. But these prophets generally leave out of consideration the fact that a woman is after all, a woman. The brilliant career had been turned aside, and there seemed to be some difficulty about getting it into the right track again. Instead of trying to make clever stories, Mrs. Clint read and smiled over and edited and returned other people's stories.

It was not long before Clint found her. She refused to see him, and then he wrote her a letter, and said that he had opened an account in the Jefferson Square Bank in her name, and that he should deposit fifty dollars a week there for her. His income varied. Sometimes that was about as much as he made, Mrs. Clint knew. She never answered the letter, and he let her alone.

She never touched a penny of the money, but let it accumulate for Wilbur. There was nearly ten thousand dollars in the bank, and although she vowed she would never touch it, it was pleasant to know that it was there in case of emergency—for Wilbur. And then, in the awful summer, the bank failed and the money was gone. She went down to see about it, and she found that there had been nothing deposited to her credit for several weeks. An extra tightness came about her heart. She had been nursing her obstinacy for almost five years, but never, never feeling alone. It always seemed to her that Clint was only waiting for a word. Of course she would never speak it; it was his place to come back. No one ever spoke to her of him. She had avoided all of her old friends. They had been few, and she had made no new ones. She and her boy lived alone. When she could let her nurse go, she had taken this little apartment where Margaret was janitress, and would look after the boy now and then. Next year he would go to school.

Think and plan as she might, these last months had made a terrible change in Mrs. Clint. She pretended to herself that it was because Wilbur's money was lost, but deep in her heart she knew that it was the realization that at last her husband had deserted them. She called it "deserting" them now. She asked somebody casually, one day, what had become of Maude Richardson, and was told that she had gone abroad; and then she saw an allusion in the Day which told her that Clint was again in Paris. It was after this that Mr. Dash came in and made his inquiry as to the growing cynicism of story writers.

Wilbur was looking longingly out of the window. Spring was setting in early this year, and the sound of the boys playing came clearly through the air. He felt lonely and restless. He looked all about him. Across the street there was a window exactly upon a level with his own. Framed by it, looking out as longingly as he, and also dressed in white, but evidently because he was an invalid, sat a gentleman in a chair. He must have just come there, because Wilbur had never noticed him before.

The child saw that he was observed, and with the friendliness which was natural to his lonely little heart, he showed his teeth in a smile and waved his hand. The gentleman smiled back, and, lifting an orange from somewhere, held it up and beckoned for Wilbur to come over. The boy shook his head and then ran back. He hurried into his clothes and tore at the tangles in his hair. Margaret might let him go.

"He's such a nice gentleman, Margaret, please," he said. "I think it's my duty to cheer him up. He's ill."

"Lee me have a look at 'im," the Irish woman returned, taking her hands out of the suds.

She peered from behind the dotted muslin curtains of the fifth flat at the haggard, wistful face, and gave an Irish blessing upon all "sowls."

"Ye're not goin' to call upon the gran' gintleman with no buttons fastened on yer shoes, says I. It's the good little pants and the fine new shoes will ye wear to honor him in," she said excitedly.

"Will mama care?" the little voice asked wistfully.

"I'm thinkin' she will an' she won't," the Irishwoman muttered to herself. Her big red hands were nervous, but she moved them briskly, and soon had the boy dressed in the dainty little garments in which his mother loved to make him beautiful. Then she took him across the street, and made an inquiry or two of the boy in the hall of the opposite house.

"He's been sick a good while, but he's gittin' better. He's been into some o' them countries where they've been fightin' wild niggers, an' it jest about killed him. He's settin' up now. Did he call the kid over? All right. I'll take him up."

Wilbur took his hand trustingly, and followed him into the elevator. They had no elevator in their house. Margaret followed too. She stood inside the car and heard the door open and shut. Her hands were clasped. Then she went home.

At dinner time a wild looking young woman burst into her kitchen.

"Where is my baby?" Mrs. Clint asked, looking about.

"Willy? Well now, it's beggin' your pardon, miss, but some elegant people who lives acrost the avenoo, in the fift' flat up, has enticed the child aver to 'em, an' I took him over meself. I'd go after 'im this minute, miss, but it's my ole man's supper would burn."

"I'll go. What are their names? You must never, never do such a thing again?"

Mrs. Clint hurried across the street, divided between anger and good feeling toward these people who had taken a fancy to her boy. She didn't stop to look at the names. She walked into the elevator and asked to be taken to the fifth floor. She knew there was only one flat whose entrance was here.

Inside she heard voices, her boy's voice. She rang the bell, and there was the sound of his little feet running eagerly across the floor. He was so fond of opening the door for their infrequent visitors that he was doing it for these people.

The door was flung open, and in the light of an open fire she saw, past the child, a pale, sick, wistful face that she knew.

"Mary," he said, "won't you let Wilbur bring you in?"

The long separation was at an end.

Hunting Deer With Cats.

Our veracious contemporary, the Bangor News, is responsible for the following—at least we have failed to trace its authority back any further than the News' columns: "A very novel sight was witnessed at the Willimantic spool works recently. A deer was seen running rapidly past the works closely pursued by three house cats. As they neared the river one of the cats thought to take a ride on the back of the deer. She gained the position and lost it quickly and the deer swam across the river. The cats, nothing daunted, moved quickly up the stream to the bridge, crossed over dry-shod and sped on in pursuit of the flying deer once more. Had it been dogs that thus openly defied the laws the wardens would have been investigating the matter ere now. As it is, where is the law that reads $100 fine for chasing deer with cats? The cats were owned by citizens of the place who are well known. They should be warned to keep their cats chained, or farmers with small stock in their barns should see that the doors are kept closed."—Maine Spokesman.

A New Wave Quieter.

A new method of distributing oil on water has been invented by P. Samohod, of Lima, Peru. The apparatus comprises a box-shaped distributor, near the ends and center of which are globe-shaped, perforated, copper oil receivers connected with each other by metal tubing, and surrounded by sponge, the whole inclosed by a varnished leather cover with many perforations protected by metallic eyelits. It has two metal bands, from which chains pass to the deck of the vessel, other chains being connected to facilitate its suspension from the bowsprit. An oil supply hose of good varnished leather or other preferred material extends from a pipe in communication with a pump and reservoir on the vessel to the central one of the three oil receivers, by means of which the oil may be forced into and through the distributor as desired. It is designed that the length of the distributor shall be equal to about one-third of the maximum width of the vessel.—New Orleans Picayune.

THE FIFTY-THIRD CONGRESS

The House and Senate Called to Order in Regular Session.

Daily Summary of Routine Business in the Two Houses.

THE HOUSE.

By a vote of 165 to 61 the house at Friday's session rejected Mr. Enloe's amendment looking to the investigation of the coast and geodic surveys, with a view to transferring its duties to the navy and interior departments.

The house at 12:20 o'clock Saturday on motion of Mr. Sayers, democrat of Texas, went into committee of the whole, to consider the sundry civil appropriation bill, Mr. Lester, of Georgia, in the chair. By unanimous consent, it was decided to take up the amendment to the bill proposed by the committee on the judiciary, consideration of the Missouri river committee and soldiers home appropriations being postponed until Monday. The first amendment which was agreed to was as follows: "No fee shall be paid in any marshal for the execution of any warrant from a United States commissioner, unless the same shall have been executed within sixty days after the warrant was issued." No other amendment was successful. Several were defeated, ruled out on points of order or dropped. The committee rose and the special order for the hour, eulogies upon the late representative W. H. Enochs, of Ohio, who died in July last, was taken up. Eleven members pronounced brief eulogies upon their departed friend and co-worker and then, at 3:55 o'clock the house adjourned until noon Monday.

After short routine work in the house, Monday, the sundry civil bill was taken up and it was agreed that debate on the pending amendment relating to the Missouri river commission should be closed at 2 p. m.

After a general debate in the house Tuesday morning the sundry bill was passed. Provisions in the bill affecting the management of the Soldier's home, which was opposed by General Black, of Illinois, one of the board of managers, were ruled out on a point of order. The amendments agreed to increase the total of appropriations by $214,741, making the total $32,521,124. Mr. Patterson then called up the O'Neill-Joy contested election case from the eleventh district of Missouri, and demanded the yeas and nays and they were called. The vote was—yeas, 150; nays, 4. Mr. Patterson offered a resolution, which was agreed to, revoking all leaves of absence except for sickness, and directing the sergeant-at-arms to telegraph absent members requesting their presence. He then moved that when the house adjourned it be to Thursday at 12 o'clock. This was agreed to—148 to 33—and at 3:55 o'clock the house adjourned.

THE SENATE.

The vice-president having returned to the city, presided over the senate Monday. The seigniorage bill, signed by the speaker of the house, was received. It was signed by the vice-president. Mr. Peffer presented by request, bills for the employment of labor on public improvements and the improvements of public roads. Mr. George gave notice that he would address the senate Tuesday on the Hawaiian question.

In the senate, Tuesday, Mr. Voorhees, chairman of the finance committee, reported the tariff bill soon after the reading of the journal. The duty on collars and cuffs is increased from 45 per cent to 55 per cent ad valorem. The only additions to the free list are horn strips and tips and cocoanuts. Section 105 which provides that the president shall notify the Hawaiian government of the intention of this government to abrogate the treaty of 1875, has been stricken out. The clause of that section repealing that part of the McKinley act providing for reciprocal treaties has been amended to read as follows: "That sections 3, 15 and 16 of act, etc., are hereby repealed and all agreements or arrangements made or proclaimed between the United States and foreign governments under the provisions of said sections are hereby abrogated, of which the president shall give such notice to the authorities of said foreign governments as may be required by the terms of such agreements or arrangements." The most important change in the administrative features of the bill is the action of the committee in striking out the words "highest duty" as found in the house bill and regulating the rates of duty on all goods coming in under the similitude clause and substituting therefor the words "lowest duty." This was the subject of a long argument in the full committee, in which Secretary Carlisle endorsed the provisions of the house bill. The committee, therefore, has made change in all goods enumerated or coming in under the similitude clause will pay the highest instead of the lowest rate of duty. The sugar schedule is as follows: All sugars testing not above 80 degrees, 1 cent; from 80 to 90 degrees, 1-100 of a cent for each degree; from 90 to 98, 2-100 of a cent for each degree; all sugars testing above 98, or above No. 16 Dutch standard in color, ½ of a cent per pound in addition to the duty on sugar testing above 98 degrees. Whisky, iron ore, coal, lead ore and opium are unchanged. One of the republican members of the committee, stated that so far as the republican members of the committee were concerned, they did not object to the reporting of the bill, but they were opposed to the income tax feature in it and the change from specific to ad valorem duties.

Mr. Voorhees gave notice that he would call up the bill for consideration on April 2nd. At 12:45, Mr. George, of Mississippi, proceeded to address the senate on the Hawaiian question.

There was very little routine morning business in the senate Wednesday, and after it was disposed of unobjected bills on the calendar were taken up and a number passed.

THE NEWS IN GENERAL.

Condensed from Our Most Important Telegraphic Advices

And Presented in Pointed and Readable Paragraphs.

Commodore William Whitting, retired United States navy, died Monday morning at his residence in New York city.

The New York Chamber of Commerce has unanimously adopted a petition to President Cleveland requesting that he veto the seigniorage bill.

Fire at Philadelphia destroyed the mill property owned by Rump & Brothers, manufacturers of table cloths and counterpanes, fronting on Huntingdon street and extending from Palethorpe to Hancock streets in the heart of the Kensington mill district. Total loss, $240,000. Nearly 400 persons are thrown out of employment.

A Detroit, Michigan, special says: James Wellington Brown, a polygamist, with the phenomenal record of twenty-six wives in the state of Michigan alone, and with other wives being heard from at times in other parts of the United States, has again come into public notice through the inquiries of two of his hitherto unreported wives. Four of his victims were residents of Detroit and two of them lived in the same ward.

Isaac Pronty & Co., boot and shoe manufacturers, of Spencer, Mass., have made an assignment. The firm employs 2,000 hands when running full time. The concern was the largest boot and shoe firm in the world. The pay roll with a full force was about $13,000 a week and lately has been about $8,000 a week. The nominal assets are $1,500,000 and the liabilities are said to be about one million.

A New York dispatch says: The Louisville and Nashville, the Chattanooga, the New Orleans and Texas Pacific and Illinois Central have agreed to come back under the old terms. The agreement was drawn up and signed just before the meeting adjourned. Most of the members of the association returned to their homes as soon as possible after the adjournment. They are well pleased with the result of the meeting.

During a performance in a theater at Lucca, Italy, in the province of that name a gentleman upon entering his box, found in the doorway a bomb with a lighted fuse. He seized the burning fuse, and by crushing it in his hand, put out the fire. The bomb was turned over to the police authorities, who had its contents analyzed. It was found to contain together with gunpowder, nails, bullets, bits of iron, etc., a quantity of picric acid.

Stanley's large brewery, at Lawrence, Mass., has been totally destroyed by fire. The building was four stories high. The loss is about $125,000; insured. The brewery, which did a good business and employed a considerable force, was owned by the New England Brewing Company, the principal stockholders in which are an English syndicate, which, some time ago, purchased a number of similar establishments in that section.

A special from Denver, Col., says: Governor Waite has ordered the troops back from the Cripple creek district to their respective armories. This action was the result of a telephone conversation held by the governor with Adjutant General Tarsney, who reported that the miners were ready to arbitrate and would not go out in battle array in any event. Asked if ordering the troops back to their armories meant that the militia would disband, Governor Waite smiled and said, "We will wait and see."

HOUK NOMINATED.

He Contests Gibson's Vote and is Successful.

A Knoxville dispatch says: The republican executive congressional committee of the second congressional district of Tennessee, after a two days' session, declared John C. Houk the republican nominee. There were two republican candidates, Houk and Judge Henry R. Gibson. A primary election was held March 10th to select a candidate. The face of the returns showed Gibson to have a majority of 1,089, thus making him the nominee. Houk, the present incumbent, contested the nomination of Gibson. A canvass of the returns was made, which resulted in 1,700 votes for Gibson and 200 for Houk being thrown out, thus leaving Houk a majority of 804 over Gibson and giving him the nomination. Gibson says he will abide the action of the committee and will run, claiming to have received his nomination from the people.

Governor Waite Was Indignant.

A special from Denver, Col., says: Gov. Waite has informed a committee from Cripple Creek that the sheriff had lied to him about the condition of affairs at the camp. He was indignant and told the committee in the most emphatic way that the troops would have to come home. They urged that violence would ensue and life and property would not be safe a moment. At length the governor agreed to withhold his final decision.

OUR LATEST DISPATCHES.

The Happenings of a Day Chronicled in Brief and Concise Paragraphs

And Containing the Gist of the News From All Parts of the World.

A suit somewhat out of the regular order of such affairs has been entered in the Chattanooga courts. It is a suit by the Etowah Mining Company, of Etowah county, Alabama, to compel the Peeples estate and others to purchase the property of the company as per the valuation set upon it by the company.

The street car lines of Savannah are in the midst of a rate war. The City and Suburban railway has made a cut of 3 cents. The Electric Railway Company say they will not meet the cut. Some time ago negotiations were pending for a consolidation. They were called off, however, and it is thought the cut was made to try and force the electric railway people to terms.

On a petition of the Birmingham, Ala., Trust and Savings Company, as trustee for the majority of bondholders of The Age-Herald Company, the latter corporation has been, by a decree of court, placed in the hands of Frank V. Evans, as receiver. The paper will continue to be published regularly with Mr. Evans in direct control of its editorial policy and business affairs.

The Howard Harrison pipe works, of the Birmingham, Ala., district, has made the first shipment to Philadelphia, Pa., on a contract recently made by them with the city council of Philadelphia for 100,000 tons of iron pipe. The pipe is to be used for water mains. Iron men of the district are glorifying over the fact that Philadelphia is buying her pipe from Birmingham.

A Lexington, Ky., dispatch says: Major Horace Means, who is one of the leaders of Colonel Breckinridge's political opponents, declares that a wealthy widow residing in Washington went to Mr. Wilson at the time Miss Pollard was begging him to take her suit, and told him to go ahead with the case and that she would back Miss Pollard to the amount of five thousand dollars.

Mourning for Kossuth is general in Buda Pest, Hungary. Every man has crape on his hat. Women wear only black garments. Black flags hang over the fronts of the house of parliament, the banks, the university buildings and the clubs. Many provincial towns have gone into mourning as deeply as has the city. A dispatch from Vienna says the police there have forbidden the Hungarian Club to display the black flag.

A Birmingham, Ala., dispatch says: Colonel D. S. Troy, one of the most prominent politicians, one of the most successful business men and one of the foremost lawyers of the state, has created something of a sensation in Alabama politics by stating to a reporter of The Montgomery Journal in no unequivocal language that he does not see how it is possible for the democracy of the state to conscientiously endorse the administration of Mr. Cleveland.

The initial step has been taken at Birmingham toward the organization of the Daughters of Confederate Veterans. The ladies of the city met for the purpose of offering to assist in taking care of the veterans who will attend the reunion in April when it was suggested that they call themselves the daughters of the Confederate Veterans. From this the idea of organizing a national association with this name grew with favor until it was resolved that steps be taken to organize such an association during the reunion in April.

BUSINESS REVIEW.

Report of Trade for the Past Week by Dun & Co.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: Week by week it is found possible by an increasing number of concerns to revive production with a general range of prices the lowest ever known; many with a doubt how long they will be able to operate. Thus the measure of resumption by works or hands or hours of labor is not a measure of the revival in business, either as to quantity or values of goods distributed. Prices of commodities are this week on the whole, the lowest of which there is any record, having declined ¾ per cent in March and averaging 11.3 per cent lower than a year ago, so that more than a third of the decrease in volume of all payments is due to decline in prices of things consumed.

Six more iron furnaces have gone into blast this month, in part because prices of finished products are a shade lower, and further contracts have thus been secured. Pittsburg gets the lion's share and has most of its works in operation.

The number of failures this week is 244 in the United States against 150 last year, and 55 in Canada against 30 last year. The absence of important embarrassments is still most encouraging.

Dying of "Spotted Fever."

News has been received at Nashville that the family of J. M. Cary, living in the Twenty-fifth district of Carroll county, Tenn., are severely afflicted with what appears to be spotted fever. A few days ago the family, ten in number, ate dinner apparently in good health and before night four of the number were sick, one dying that night. Another died Monday night, another Thursday night and still another Tuesday night, and, when last heard from, four others of the family were ill with the same disease, with no hope of recovery.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Situation as Reported for the Past Week.

A review of the industrial situation in the South for the past week shows that the Southern iron furnaces are finding a market for their outputs, and that while the prices are still very low, the iron masters are slowly increasing the number of plants in active operation, and report that there is but little accumulation of stock on hand. The coal producers are easily at work, but show no disposition to increase their production, in view of both existing demand and present prices. The textile industry is prosperous. New mills and improvements in old ones are reported from week to week. Lumber men are having an increased demand, but prices in many instances, do not give a fair profit. In mercantile business trade is increasing, and in financial circles a sufficient supply of money to meet present demands is reported.

Thirty-seven new industries were established or incorporated during the week, prominent among which are: The Tradesmen's Co., of Clarksburg, W. Va., capital $1,000,000; the Fairmont Grafton Gas Co., of Fairmont W. Va., capital $300,000; the Mountain Valley Coal and Coke Co., of Birmingham, Ala., capital $45,000; the Fairfield Granite Co., of Blair, S. C., capital $100,000, and the Ben Brog. Co., of Louisville, Ky., soap manufacturers, capital $15,000.

Flour and grist mills are to be built at Mellow Valley, Rogersville and Fruitton, Ala., cotton mills at Douglasville, Ga., and Jackson, Tenn., an iron foundry at Covington, Ky., and ice factories at Pelham and Thomaston, Ga. Woodworking plants are reported at Cedar Bluff, Ala., Westfarm and Tallahassee, Fla., Cordele, Ga., Sanford, N. C., Charleston, S. C., Erin, Knoxville and Huntington, Tenn., Fort Norfolk, Va., and Wheeling, W. Va.

Waterworks are to be built at Middleburg, Fla., Vienna, Ga., Weatherford, Texas, and Farmville, Va. Among the new buildings of the week are church at Valdosta, Ga., and Staunton, Va.; a $40,000 court house at DeWitt, Ark.; a $25,000 railway station at Ashland, Ky.; a music hall at Savannah, Ga.; a $24,000 school building at Waycross, Ga., and residences costing $20,000 each at Galveston, Texas and Savannah, Ga.—Tradesman (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

BONDHOLDERS PROTEST.

They Pass Resolutions Against Bland's Seigniorage Bill.

Purchasers of the $50,000,000 United States new 5 per cent bonds met at the Union Trust Company, New York city, to protest against the Blandseigniorage bill. President Williams, of the Chemical bank, presided and the following resolution was adopted. About twenty-five of the leading New York bank presidents and private bankers were present.

"Resolved, That in the opinion of the representatives of the financial institutions of New York who subscribed to the $50,000,000 5 per cent loan and made it a success, the coinage of silver seigniorage would endanger the financial stability of the government and would inflict upon a suffering people pernicious and unnecessary legislation which would be far-reaching in its disastrous consequences."

SANTANDER AGAIN SHAKEN.

Dynamite Explodes Killing Ten Workmen and Injuring Many Others.

Another fatal accident has occurred at Santander, caused by an explosion of dynamite. Ever since the awful disaster that occurred in that city on the night of November 3d last, when the Spanish steamer Machichaco was blown up by the explosion of part of the large consignment of dynamite aboard her, the wrecked hull of the vessel has been lying at the bottom of the bay. It was discovered by divers, who went in search of the bodies of some of those who were killed at the time, and a considerable quantity of dynamite was still in the wreck. This was considered a menace to shipping, and the authorities determined to have it removed. While a number of men were thus engaged an explosion occurred, and ten of the workingmen were killed and thirty injured.

JUMPED FROM WINDOWS.

Narrow Escape of School Children From a Burning Building.

The four-story public school building, in South Evanston, Ill., thirteen miles north of Chicago, caught fire from some mysterious cause and was completely destroyed. Six of the panic-stricken pupils, surrounded by smoke and fire, took the desperate chances of jumping from the third and fourth story windows to escape what seemed to be certain death, and were severely, but probably not fatally injured. The remainder of the children who retained enough composure to listen to the pleadings of their teachers and the firemen, were marched through the thickening smoke to fresh air and safety.

REPUBLICANS VICTORIOUS.

The New Jersey Supreme Court Decides in their Favor.

A dispatch from Trenton, N. J., says: In the senatorial case, Chief Justice Beasley decides that the senate is not a continuous body and that Adrian is not entitled to be president. He says that Rogers' title is valid. This is a victory for the republicans.

THE DEMOCRATS GIVE IN.

The democrats have almost entirely capitulated. Governor Werts gave State Comptroller-elect Hancock and State Treasurer-elect Swain their commissions as soon as the decision of the supreme court was rendered, and they are already in possession of their office.

Flood in Arkansas.

The greatest flood in the history of south central Arkansas, is now on and that part of the state is rapidly approaching the condition of an inland ocean. It has rained almost incessantly all over the state and in the Indian Territory for four days. Railway communication has been entirely cut off from the south to Texarkana.

Mosby Wants to Be President.

An El Paso, Texas, dispatch says: John I. Mosby, the celebrated cavalry leader of the Confederacy, in an interview announces that he will be a candidate for the presidency at the next election.

SOLSVILLE MIRACLE.

RESTORATION OF PHILANDER HYDE FROM PARALYSIS.

Helpless and Bed-Ridden—His Recovery From This Pitiable Condition—A Remarkable Narrative.

[From the Syracuse Standard.]

During the past few months there have appeared in the columns of the Standard the particulars of a number of cures so remarkable as to justify the term miraculous. These cases were investigated and vouched for by the Albany Journal, the Detroit News, Albany Express and other papers whose reputation is a guarantee that the facts were as stated. Different schools of medicine and some of the brightest lights in the profession had treated these cases, unsuccessfully; and their recovery later on, therefore, and its means, have created a profound sensation throughout the country.

The Standard has published the above accounts for what they were worth, and are happily able to supplement same to-day by an equally striking case near home. The case is over in Madison County, at Solsville, and the subject is Mr. Philander Hyde, who told the reporter the following:

"I will be 70 in September. I was born in Brookfield, Madison County, where all my life was spent until recently, when, becoming helpless, I came to live with my daughter here. My life occupation has been that of a farmer. I was always well and rugged until two years ago last winter, when I had the grip. When it left me I had a sensation of numbness in my legs, which gradually grew to be stiff at the joints and very painful. I felt the stiffness in my feet first, and the pain and the stiffness extended to my knees and to my hip joints, and to the bowels and stomach, and prevented digestion. To move the bowels I was compelled to take great quantities of castor oil.

"While I was in this condition, cold feelings would begin in my feet and streak up my legs to my back and would follow the whole length of my back bone. I could not sleep, I had no appetite, I became helpless. While in this condition I was treated by a number of prominent physicians. They did me no good. I soon became perfectly helpless and lost all power of motion even in my bed."

"The physicians consulted pronounced father's case creeping paralysis," said Mr. and Mrs. Johnson, "and when we brought him home he had to be carried all the way in a bed. The doctors said they could only relieve the pain, and for the purpose he took a pint of whisky a day for three months, and morphine in great quantities. When he began taking Pink Pills we stopped giving him morphine or any other medicine, and cut off all stimulants. In ten days after father began taking the pills, he could get out of bed and walk without assistance, and has continued to improve until now he walks about the house and the streets by the aid of a cane only."

"Yes," said Mr. Hyde, "and the pain has gone out of my back and the numbness out of my legs. I have no more chills, my digestion is good, and I have an excellent appetite." And then, after a pause, "But, ah, me, I am an old man; I have seen my best days, and cannot hope to recover my old vigor as a younger man might, but I am so thankful to have the use of my limbs and to be relieved of those dreadful pains."

Others in Solsville are taking Pink Pills, notably the mother of Abel Curtis, who is using them with satisfactory effect for rheumatism, and Mrs. Lippitt, wife of ex-Senator Lippitt, is using them with much benefit for nervous debility.

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills contain, in a condensed form, all the elements necessary to give new life and richness to the blood, and restore shattered nerves. They are an unfailing specific for such diseases as locomotor ataxia, partial paralysis, St. Vitus' dance, neuralgia, rheumatism, nervous headache, the after effects of la grippe, palpitation of the heart, and that tired feeling resulting from nervous prostration; all diseases resulting from vitiated humors in the blood, such as scrofula, chronic erysipelas, etc. They are also a specific for troubles peculiar to females, such as suppressions, irregularities and all forms of weakness. In men they effect a radical cure in all cases arising from mental worry, overwork or excesses of whatever nature.

These Pills are manufactured by the Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., and Brockville, Ont., and are sold only in boxes bearing the firm's trade mark and wrapper at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50, and are never sold in bulk or by the dozen or hundred.

"The death of your husband was a great loss to you," said Mrs. Brunting to Mrs. Gasket, by way of condolence.

"Oh, the loss was fully covered by insurance," replied the widow.

THE NEWS IN GENERAL.

Condensed from Our Most Important Telegraphic Advices

And Presented in Pointed and Readable Paragraphs.

The plant and stock of the Lansing Lumber company, at Dodge, Mich., has been destroyed by fire. Loss about $175,000; insured.

Lord Roseberry, England's new premier, is a large stockholder in the Southern States Land and Lumber company, an English corporation that has several large mills in this country, and its general offices in Pensacola, Fla.

All the departments of Cambria iron works, at Johnston, Pa., which have been idle, have resumed business. The Johnston steel works, at the same place, also started up after an idleness of three months. About 2,000 men were at work for the two corporations.

The report of the landing of the British at Bluefields in the Mosquito reservation has been confirmed by the arrival of the steamer, Elliot, Captain A. Brown, at Savannah, Ga. The Elliot, which is a British steamer, left Bluefields Sunday morning, March 4th.

Municipal elections were held all over the state of Michigan Monday. In towns where party lines were drawn the returns show that the republicans were generally successful with large gains in their vote. In towns where a "citizens" or "workingmen's ticket was in the field it swept everything.

A dispatch to the admiralty office at London from Bathurst Gambia, says Chief Fadisilah, a slave trader, whose depredations among the natives in the British sphere led to the recent fighting in that territory, resulting in several instances in the defeat of British sailors, has been captured in French territory.

A man about thirty-five years of age, giving his name as Daniel C. Camp, of New York, has been arrested at Philadelphia on the charge of attempting to swindle Strawbridge & Clothier, retail dry goods merchants, out of $1,600 by presenting checks for $2,000 on the Maddox-Rucker Banking Company, of Atlanta, Ga.

Congressman Tom L. Johnson, owner of the Johnstown steel works, of Johnstown, Pa., authorizes the announcement that these mammoth works will be removed to Cleveland as speedily as arrangements can be concluded. The company will erect a $3,000,000 plant in that city. Three thousand men will be employed.

Captain Anthony Salinas, commander of the steam yacht Natalie, has arrived at New York. Captain Salinas said he left the Natalie in charge of the first officer March 5th. He declared that the yacht had not been captured by the Haytian war ships, as reported, nor had the crew, which consisted of only five men, been molested.

W. S. Chambelain, deputy United States collector of customs at Rio Grande City, Texas, writes a letter to the press, in which he makes a strong appeal for aid for the destitute of that section. He says that women and children are starving to death; that three-fourths of the cattle have died, and that the real situation is withheld for speculative land reasons.

Ex-Mayor James H. Britton, of St. Louis, but now a resident of New York city, has been arrested on a capias warrant from the United States district court of Texas. The warrant recited that W. M. Britton and James H. Britton had been indicted by the federal grand jury for alleged embezzlement by A. M. Britton, president of the First National bank, of Vernon, Tex. Mr. Britton gave bond to appear at the March term of court.

The Panama Star and Herald of March 2d, says: "A story from San Domingo, coming from good authority, says that the two sons of ex-President Baez had been shot by order of President Heurax. According to the story, the elder son had previously been sentenced to imprisonment for life for plotting to overthrow the existing government, and when the younger was also discovered to be implicated, Heuraux determined that both should die."

It is announced that the Braddock wire works plant at Rankin, near Pittsburg, Pa., now holds the record, turning out more steel than any other single roll rod mill in the world. The record has been held for a number of years by the Joliet, Ill., wire works, whose rod mill turned out 243 tons of wire rods in twelve hours. The output of the Braddock works for one day recently a turn of ten hours, from 6 o'clock a. m. to 4 o'clock p. m., was 254 tons, breaking the record by eleven tons.

An eastbound freight train on the Southern Pacific was captured by a gang of thirty tramps or unemployed workingmen west of Marfa, Texas, and when they were ordered to leave the train by the conductor the men refused to do so and became very insolent in their language. The sheriff of Presidio county was telegraphed of the situation and asked to afford the chief justice of the state supreme court, was largely attended, there being delegations and representatives present from nearly all the leading cities and towns of the state. In some towns business was practically suspended during the progress of the special funeral services, which were held at the same hour that the funeral occurred in Montgomery.

The Bank of Chester, S. C., has assigned to John J. Hemphill and J. Lyles Glenn, for the protection of creditors at large. President J. J. McClure had just returned from New York, where he went to get funds to carry the bank through the summer. After a full consideration of the situation the directors decided to close the bank. The depositors will be paid off in full and the stockholders will not suffer.

The Rev. C. G. Jones, pastor of the First Baptist church, of Chattanooga, has created a decided sensation by attacking the character of General Jubal A. Early. He declared in a sermon that if there was anything good either in his course, as a man or as a soldier, history had failed to note it, and that he hoped the dead man's memory would rot with his bones. The dead officer was given an unmerciful review. The congregation was indignant and many declare that they will never enter the church again.

A Nashville special says: For over two months experts have been in Lewis and Hickman counties looking into the reported discovery of beds of phosphate in these counties. They have examined about 75,000 acres of land and found ore of the richest quality at many points, and ore all over the section. Samples have been analyzed and found to be over the required percentage of phosphoric acid. Nashville citizens and the Southern Iron company have been quietly gathering in the land containing the deposits and over 75,000 acres already have been purchased.

The state of South Carolina earned a decisive victory over the railroads in the United States circuit court at Charleston, Tuesday, when Judge Simonton filed a decree in the much-litigated railroad tax cases. Last year the assessments on all the railroad property were arbitrarily raised by the board of equalization. The railroads refused to pay the taxes on the increased assessment and carried the case into the United States courts. The court, in a lengthy opinion, decided that the assessment was not unconstitutional and orders the receiver to pay to the state the balance of taxes due, and also the costs of the action.

AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Affairs of Government and News of the Departments Discussed.

Notes of Interest Concerning the People and Their General Welfare.

The senate will probably begin consideration of the tariff bill within less than three weeks. It is presumed the debate will last from four to six weeks.

The managers of the Bland seigniorage bill in the senate, figure out a majority of fifteen for the measure. There are only from ten to thirteen democrats who will oppose it, and about twice as many republicans.

The house is making rapid progress with the sundry civil appropriation bill. Wednesday the clause appropriating $995,000 for work on the Savannah harbor during next year, was adopted by practically a unanimous vote.

The state department has received a cablegram from Minister Baker, conveying a message from the consul at Greytown to the effect that the British marines had been withdrawn from the Mosquito territory, and affairs are now quiet there.

Pension Commissioner Loohren has issued an order directing in accordance with the act of congress of December 21, 1893, that immediate steps shall be taken to remove suspensions on pensions in all cases in which such action has not already been taken.

The house passed the District of Columbia appropriation bill Saturday and immediately took up the sundry civil bill. The house is, indeed, rushing things now and making up for the time lost on the long fight over the silver seigniorage bill. But another long fight is to be had when the state bank tax bill comes up.

The house elections committee decided Tuesday morning to take up the contested case of Thesher vs. Enloe, from the eighth Tennessee district, and Moore vs. Funston, from the second Kansas district, for consideration on Friday. Arguments have been heard in both cases. It was decided that, after the 27th instant, arguments would be heard in the remaining cases on the committee calendar.

The government receipts for the first third of the month of March show a decided improvement, the aggregate being $9,250,000. The internal receipts continue to show a heavy increase, and so far have aggregated $4,600,000. All indications point to a greater increase for the balance of the month, as large quantities of whisky are being taken out of bond to avoid the payment of the increased whisky tax provided in the tariff bill. The expenditures aggregate $11,000,000, of which $5,500,000 are on account of pensions.

Secretary Herbert has made a response to the Bontelle resolution, adopted by the house calling on him to state his authority for issuing instructions placing the armed naval force of the United States and the use of its ensign under the orders and control of Special Commissioner Blount, at Honolulu, March 11, 1893. The substance of the answer is that the action was necessary to prevent a conflict of authority and that the secretary's authority for issuing the order was the president, commander in chief of the United States army and navy. A number of precedents for this action are cited.

The house committee on agriculture has decided to postpone until next month action on bills providing for the extermination of the Russian thistle. The Hatch "anti-option" bill was made the special order of business until disposed of, and its consideration will begin at once. The sense of the committee has been taken and shows that a majority are in favor of some legislation of this kind. The bill will be read by sections and perfected, as the draft submitted by Hatch conveyed only the idea, leaving the exact terms to be discussed and fixed by the committee.

Justice White Installed.

With simple but impressive ceremonies befitting so important an occasion, Edward Douglas White, of Louisiana, was installed as associate justice of the United States supreme court Monday. At noon, precisely, the court, headed by the chief justice, and wearing their silken robes of office, entered the chamber. Mr. White, also wearing a robe, came last in the procession. When the court had opened in the usual form the chief justice announced that the vacancy on the bench had been filled and Mr. White was present and ready to take the oath of office. Mr. White then took the oath and the ceremonies were at an end.

LAWYERS FIGHT.

A Lively Scene Growing Out of the Pollard-Breckinridge Trial.

One of the Colonel's Attorneys Assaults His Opponent.

A Washington special says: A greater crowd than on the opening day sought admission to the courtroom Monday morning, when the Pollard-Breckinridge trial was resumed. Judge Bradley, however, had ruled on Friday that persons not interested in the case, professionally or as witnesses, should be excluded, and this prevented overcrowding. Fourteen ladies had persuaded the bailiffs to admit them, but they remained long enough only to witness the assembling of the participants in the drama they hoped to see. They were treated to an unpleasant surprise just as the court opened.

"Mr. Marshal," said Judge Bradley, "please request these ladies who are not interested in this case to retire." The marshal made the request to the fourteen women. They looked surprised, then chagrined and filed out shame-facedly. After some sparring about the four mysterious volumes of Washington Irving, taken from the Cincinnati convent, and ordered Friday to be produced, the taking of testimony was begun.

A FREE SCRAP.

Among the witnesses Dr. Parsons, Miss Pollard's physician, was called to give important testimony. At the close of Dr. Parson's examination a prolonged controversy arose about admitting affidavits. It transpired during the discussion that 100 witnesses has been examined in Ohio, Kentucky and Virginia. Major Butterworth argued forcibly against allowing the depositions to be filed. The last speaker was Mr. W. G. Johnson for the plaintiff. Mr. Johnson had referred in a general way to the course taken by the defendant's attorneys in regard to certain affidavits as chicanery, and Mr. Shelby endeavored to make reply, but as the usual hour for adjournment had passed, Judge Bradley deferred the question until Tuesday. Mr. Shelby was not satisfied at this turn and attempted to secure a hearing from the court, and when Judge Bradley rapped the desk, declaring "I have adjourned the court," Mr. Shelby remarked: "I know what I will do, then." He took his hat from its hook and as the spectators were leaving the courtroom paced back and forth before the jury box. There is a narrow hallway connecting the courtroom with the main corridor, through which the officers generally pass. Judge Bradley walked out and was followed by the lawyers for both sides. As Mr. Johnson left the room Mr. Shelby darted after him accosted him in this hallway.

Said Mr. Shelby, facing his opponent: "You have insulted me, sir, and I must have satisfaction, sir." "Well, sir?" responded Mr. Johnson, interrogatively and calmly, as he afterwards said, expecting that Mr. Shelby would denominate the sort of satisfaction he expected.

Thereupon Mr. Shelby's right fist shot outward and upward, grazing Mr. Johnson's cheek drawing a slight blush. As he threw up his arms in the defensive, the form of his professional partner, Mr. Calderon Carlisle, was interposed between them. Quickly several other gentlemen became participants in the fray. Colonel Breckinridge, with his gleaming snow-white beard, and his son piled themselves upon Mr. Carlisle. There was an excited moment of the general melee, engaged in by no less than a dozen gentlemen, most of them intended peacemakers, when Deputy Marshal John R. Leonard strode into the center of the conflict, thrusting the belligerent Kentuckian back and putting a damper upon hostilities.

Everybody emerged from the heat of controversy uninjured, although Mr. Johnson's cheek was slightly reddened, and the silk hat of Judge Jere Wilson had been sadly ruffled. Col. Breckinridge and his son had started from the court house, but seeing the judge, turned back, the congressman approaching him and saying, with evident: "I had nothing to do with this, judge. I was trying to separate them. That was all."

Judge Bradley was very indignant and said: "We cannot have this here, gentlemen. You must understand that we cannot have such outbreaks. I will ascertain in the morning who are responsible for this, and see to it that they are properly punished."

REMARKS OF JUDGE BRADLEY.

Miss Pollard was not present when the court was called to order Tuesday morning and did not appear during the day. Immediately after the court was called to order, Judge Bradley spoke as follows: "I notice the newspapers have laid out a course of duty to me to be followed this morning in view of what occurred yesterday afternoon. There was an unfortunate occurrence, which I did not see, in the precincts of the court room after the court adjourned yesterday afternoon, which I, of course, regret and I have no doubt the parties who are responsible for it regret. It is a matter, however, of which the court cannot take judicial notice, except to express the hope that the gentlemen will curb and restrain their feelings. After the delivery of these remarks by Judge Bradley, the examination of witnesses was resumed.

The Letter "J" as a Mascot.

Is the letter "J," like the letter "E," so indispensable that it is as difficult to find a list of names without the former appearing in it as it is to find a complete sentence in which the latter does not occur? Is the above the cause of its frequent appearance in the names of America's great men, or is it really a mascot letter? Beginning with our presidents, I find it as the first inital in the names of eight. The only president of the Confederacy also began his name with the "little mascot." In the list of the vice presidents I find it six times, divided equally between the Christian and the surnames. Among the names of the presidents pro tem of the senate it occurs 22 times and among the speakers of the house fourteen times. Thirteen of the secretaries of state commenced their first names with "J," and one used it as the initial of his surname. In the realm of justice the record is equally if not more startling, 21 out of a total of 55 chief justices and justices beginning either their first or last name with it.

Besides the above we find it in the names of nearly all the multimillionaires of the country—viz, John D. Rockfeleri, J. J. Astor, Jay Gould, J. M. Sears, J. S. Morgan, J. B. Haggin, J. W. Garrett, John Wanamaker, J. G. Fair, John W. Mackay, J. G. Flood, John Arbuckle, J. B. Stetson, John Claflin, Joseph Pulitzer and others.—St. Louis Republic.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials free. Address

Winning a Husband.

More than two-thirds of the women who marry let their husbands slip through their fingers because they are too lazy, too indifferent, or too ignorant to keep them. A girl wins a husband unconsciously. Ask any of your friends how they captured their own half, and they will tell you frankly "I don't know." A man's heart is ensnared by a pretty hand, nice teeth, a round, low voice, frank eyes, beautiful hair; by the way a girl walks, talks, plays; by her gifts, her smile, her amiability, good taste, generosity, or the very manner in which she greets, facinates or abuses him. She may not know how she won him, but if she doesn't know how to keep him, the best thing for her to do is to find out. There are many things we know by intuition; the rest have to be learned by experiment. Conscious of her abilities and inabilities as a wife, a wise woman will learn how to keep a husband just as she learns how too keep house, and if she does not some siren will secure for her a parmanent vacation.—Domestic Monthly.

CLIP, SAVE AND SEND TO US

Because of the high speed at which Circular Saws are run more power is wasted in friction than is used in sawing, where the bearings of the shaky, wooden saw frame get out of line.

In the Aermotor Saw Frame, the only Steel Saw Frame ever made, this difficulty is absolutely and wholly prevented because THE BEARINGS FOR THE SHAFT ARE MADE SELF-ADJUSTING IT IS THE KIND OF A PIECE OF STEEL TO RING. The steel tubing and babbitt are then slitted so as to take up wear with a bolt. The frame is all steel, very rigid, and riveted together so that nothing can get loose or out of place. The general construction the saw on so made it impossible for one not to get hurt, or point of the pendent segmentions as it now is in use by unskilled hands.

The saving frame which carries the wood to be sawed and which automatically returns to its place has also a ground to keep a pole off from the fly wheel and yet does not cause it to present very much of an angle to the saw. The use of a 16 to 20 inch fly wheel and 28 inch saw makes this easily possible. It is therefore, a very desirable Pole Saw, making it easy to cut up any long material quickly and safely. Another feature of

Since we offer this very superior saw frame with a 26 inch superior saw at a much less price than any cheap imperfect wooden frame can be bought for, we are sure that the friends of the Aermotor will appreciate the fact that we have been doing the public a great service and have distinguished ourselves in regard to an old article and putting it into an infinitely improved shape.

For a saw of similar size and quality, and ordinary wooden frame, you would be charged $20. We make the all-steel frame and the superior saw at $10, AND GIVE YOU A CHANCE TO GET IT AT $15, for the benefit of our General Aermotor.

We have sold an enormous number of Power Aermotor outfits with which saws are used, and a poor saw that runs hard detracts from their usefulness and their reputations. If we furnish a very superior saw at a very low price, many people out of this will be bought to drive them. Wherever one Geared Aermotor goes, others are sure to follow.

When we take a well known article, redesign it, and put it in a shape very superior to anything that has appeared before, it widens and enlarges our reputation for doing excellent work in which we put our hands, and thus is the thing that has in the past brought so much business to our factory, and which in the future, we have no doubt, will bring, practically, all the business in our line. It is this reputation that we are daily working for.

We believe that this Aermotor Steel Saw Frame and Saw will confirm and enhance the fame which we have gained in the manufacture of Steel Windmills and Steel Towers, being, for the purpose of securing them as that everybody may know what a good thing can be had for a small price, WE OFFER THIS STEEL SAW AND FRAME FOR $15 CASH AND FIVE COPIES OF ADVERTISEMENT No. 2 of the series as per conditions stated in No 2. IN THE FIFTH FLAT.

BY ANNA LEACH.

It was away up town on that extension of Ninth avenue which scorns its humble beginnings as it gets more prosperous, and with the true Philistine spirit changes its name to that of the discoverer of America. There were two great apartment houses opposite each other, with the constant roar and jerk of the elevated road lying between. Workmen had been coming and going upon a third tall white building on an opposite corner, with an empty lot lying adjacent, and boys of his own age had been playing in there, playing all sorts of interesting games, ever since Wilbur Clint had moved into the fifth flat.

He used to stand at the window in his nightgown and look at them. He wore his nightgown half the day sometimes, because it seemed so senseless to dress himself when he could not go out. His mama gave him his bath and tucked him into bed at night, and then in the morning, long before he was up, she took the elevated and went away down town to a magazine office where she read stories which other people wrote, and patiently mailed them up again and sent them back to the writers.

Sometimes her heart used to ache at the old fashioned, provincial views of life which so many of the stories showed. When Wilbur's mamma, sitting there at her desk, in her neat black gown, hesitated over a page of spidery writing and smiled a little at the corners of her mouth, it was a certain sign that she had found another love story, told in the good old way, where cruel fate had at last allowed the lovers to fly into each other's arms, and they made their exit amid a shower of rice to the tune of wedding bells, their sorrows ended forever.

"I do wonder," she said to herself as her pen hung over the author's address she was putting upon one of these manuscripts one day, "how a 'Mrs.' ever came to write such a story as that. Well! well! May be her husband died on their honeymoon, poor thing!"

One day the editor of the magazine, who was a very busy man indeed, came into the tiny little room where his reader sat, and fumbled over some of the thick packages which were piled all about.

"Mrs. Clint," he said, "are all the story writers getting cynical? What is the matter? It seems to me we haven't had a really cheerful tale for six months."

Mrs. Clint used to think a great deal about her little boy as she went up and down on the elevated, and as she sat by the lamp and darned his little stockings at night, or lay with his curly little head upon her arm. She looked at him anxiously to see if he were getting pale with the confinement. She knew that it was all wrong, but she knew no other way. A little lad of five could not be allowed out on the street by himself.

Sometimes she too saw the boys playing on the vacant lot where the builders piled their waste. They used to take an old tin pail and build a fire in it, and swing it in a blazing circle about them, and then Mrs. Clint would shudder all over, and make Wilbur promise that he would never go out alone.

The flat was a little more expensive than Mrs. Clint could rightly afford, but she had taken it because the janitor's wife was an old acquaintance, an old servant in the boarding house where Mrs. Clint had lived when she had first come to New York, a fresh country girl with an ambition to write for the magazines. She had had a number of stories accepted, had done all sorts of work for syndicates and newspapers, and had gone to the theatre with nice, ambitious young newspaper men, who threw work in her way, and told her stories of prominent people and their humble beginnings. And then finally she had married one of the most ambitious of them, and had gone to Paris with him for a year, and had been delightfully happy.

They had gone to all the places where artists and writers had discovered the unusual and the picturesque. They had had a little apartment up under the roof with a wide, wide window looking out over all Paris; and there had been azaleas in pots on the sill, and gay cushions on the couch beneath, and young Mrs. Clint had wondered if there were ever two people in all this world so happy.

It was here that Wilbur had been born, and two months later they were called back to America by the paper Clint worked for. A Presidential campaign was just coming on, and a worker like Clint was needed. It was summer, hot, close summer, and Clint took his wife and baby down to Long Island to a little town "swept by ocean breezes," as the pulsing electric letters at Madison Square announced. He came down every night when he could, but there were a great many things to keep him in town, and he had to make a great many journeys about the country to hear what party leaders had to say about it.

After the close companionship of this last year, Mrs. Clint missed her husband terribly. She was a little nervous and impatient, and sometimes she said so. The hot weather and the constant strain had worn Clint's own nerves to rags. And he had never known how to be soothing. He only sat by the open window, in his shirt sleeves, and smoked a cigar and looked at the sea, until Mrs. Clint told him that cigar smoke would kill the baby. Then he went down stairs and looked at the sea from the bow of a beached dory. His wife began to ask why she couldn't go about with him as she used to do.

"Two people can go anywhere," Clint said, "but two people and a baby can go about nowhere."

And then she told him that she always knew he was staying away because the baby bored him. Oh, it had all been a midsummer madness, born of heat and mosquitoes and the electricity of a Presidential election year!

Once she left the baby with its nurse, and went up to town to hear a great speaker. Clint had been obliged to leave her, and she had waited for him until four o'clock in the morning; and then when he came in, his step was not steady. He had been all night at a banquet. She had never said a word, but she had lain with the sheet up to her eyes and seen him bind an icy towel about his head and sit down to write with a strong cigar in his teeth.

After that she was silent, but she was frightened. The next great speech he did not send for her, but she went up in the morning, determined to go with him that night, and bring him back home with her if she could. She did not find him at the office, and she went into a restaurant to lunch, feeling warm and out of sorts. She was trying to be economical, these days, saving money for little Wilbur. No one knew better than she how precarious a livelihood is newspaper work.

And there, sitting opposite her, farther down the room, was Clint, cool and immaculately fresh and gay, lunching with Miss Richardson, who did the snappy articles upon the moving world for the Day. Miss Richardson was drinking champagne.

Well, of course it was silly, but Mrs. Clint walked out without recognizing them, and went down to Long Island and dismissed her nurse and packed her belongings, and came up to town without leaving an address behind her. She had gone to Mr. Dash, the editor of Tomorrow, and he had taken her on, because she was in trouble, and because he had prophesied a brilliant future for her in the old days. But these prophets generally leave out of consideration the fact that a woman is after all, a woman. The brilliant career had been turned aside, and there seemed to be some difficulty about getting it into the right track again. Instead of trying to make clever stories, Mrs. Clint read and smiled over and edited and returned other people's stories.

It was not long before Clint found her. She refused to see him, and then he wrote her a letter, and said that he had opened an account in the Jefferson Square Bank in her name, and that he should deposit fifty dollars a week there for her. His income varied. Sometimes that was about as much as he made, Mrs. Clint knew. She never answered the letter, and he let her alone.

She never touched a penny of the money, but let it accumulate for Wilbur. There was nearly ten thousand dollars in the bank, and although she vowed she would never touch it, it was pleasant to know that it was there in case of emergency—for Wilbur. And then, in the awful summer, the bank failed and the money was gone. She went down to see about it, and she found that there had been nothing deposited to her credit for several weeks. An extra tightness came about her heart. She had been nursing her obstinacy for almost five years, but never, never feeling alone. It always seemed to her that Clint was only waiting for a word. Of course she would never speak it; it was his place to come back. No one ever spoke to her of him. She had avoided all of her old friends. They had been few, and she had made no new ones. She and her boy lived alone. When she could let her nurse go, she had taken this little apartment where Margaret was janitress, and would look after the boy now and then. Next year he would go to school.

Think and plan as she might, these last months had made a terrible change in Mrs. Clint. She pretended to herself that it was because Wilbur's money was lost, but deep in her heart she knew that it was the realisation that at last her husband had deserted them. She called it "deserting" them now. She asked somebody casually, one day, what had become of Maude Richardson, and was told that she had gone abroad; and then she saw an allusion in the Day which told her that Clint was again in Paris. It was after this that Mr. Dash came in and made his inquiry as to the growing cynicism of story writers.

Wilbur was looking longingly out of the window. Spring was setting in early this year, and the sound of the boys playing came clearly through the air. He felt lonely and restless. He looked all about him. Across the street there was a window exactly upon a level with his own. Framed by it, looking out as longingly as he, and also dressed in white, but evidently because he was an invalid, sat a gentleman in a chair. He must have just come there, because Wilbur had never noticed him before.

The child saw that he was observed, and with the friendliness which was natural to his lonely little heart, he showed his teeth in a smile and waved his hand. The gentleman smiled back, and, lifting an orange from somewhere, held it up and beckoned for Wilbur to come over. The boy shook his head and then ran back. He hurried into his clothes and tore at the tangles in his hair. Margaret might let him go.

"He's such a nice gentleman, Margaret, please," he said. "I think it's my duty to cheer him up. He's ill."

"Lee me have a look at 'im," the Irish woman returned, taking her hands out of the suds.

She peered from behind the dotted muslin curtains of the fifth flat at the haggard, wistful face, and gave an Irish blessing upon all "sowls."

"Ye're not goin' to call upon the gran' gintleman with no buttons fastened on yer shoes, says I. It's the good little pants and the fine new shoes will ye wear to honor him in," she said excitedly.

"Will mama care?" the little voice asked wistfully.

"I'm thinkin' she will an' she won't," the Irishwoman muttered to herself. Her big red hands were nervous, but she moved them briskly, and soon had the boy dressed in the dainty little garments in which his mother loved to make him beautiful. Then she took him across the street, and made an inquiry or two of the boy in the hall of the opposite house.

"He's been sick a good while, but he's gittin' better. He's been into some o' them countries where they've been fightin' wild niggers, an' it jest about killed him. He's settin' up now. Did he call the kid over? All right. I'll take him up."

Wilbur took his hand trustingly, and followed him into the elevator. They had no elevator in their house. Margaret followed too. She stood inside the car and heard the door open and shut. Her hands were clasped. Then she went home.

At dinner time a wild looking young woman burst into her kitchen.

"Where is my baby?" Mrs. Clint asked, looking about.

"Willy? Well now, it's beggin' your pardon, miss, but some elegant people who lives acrost the avenoo, in the fift' flat up, has enticed the child aver to 'em, an' I took him over meself. I'd go after 'im this minute, miss, but it's my ole man's supper would burn."

"I'll go. What are their names? You must never, never do such a thing again?"

Mrs. Clint hurried across the street, divided between anger and good feeling toward these people who had taken a fancy to her boy. She didn't stop to look at the names. She walked into the elevator and asked to be taken to the fifth floor. She knew there was only one flat whose entrance was here.

Inside she heard voices, her boy's voice. She rang the bell, and there was the sound of his little feet running eagerly across the floor. He was so fond of opening the door for their infrequent visitors that he was doing it for these people.

The door was flung open, and in the light of an open fire she saw, past the child, a pale, sick, wistful face that she knew.

"Mary," he said, "won't you let Wilbur bring you in?"

The long separation was at an end.

Hunting Deer With Cats.

Our veracious contemporary, the Bangor News, is responsible for the following—at least we have failed to trace its authority back any further than the News' columns: "A very novel sight was witnessed at the Willimantic spool works recently. A deer was seen running rapidly past the works closely pursued by three house cats. As they neared the river one of the cats thought to take a ride on the back of the deer. She gained the position and lost it quickly and the deer swam across the river. The cats, nothing daunted, moved quickly up the stream to the bridge, crossed over dry-shod and sped on in pursuit of the flying deer once more. Had it been dogs that thus openly defied the laws the wardens would have been investigating the matter ere now. As it is, where is the law that reads $100 fine for chasing deer with cats? The cats were owned by citizens of the place who are well known. They should be warned to keep their cats chained, or farmers with small stock in their barns should see that the doors are kept closed."—Maine Spokesman.

A New Wave Quieter.

A new method of distributing oil on water has been invented by P. Samohod, of Lima, Peru. The apparatus comprises a box-shaped distributor, near the ends and center of which are globe-shaped, perforated, copper oil receivers connected with each other by metal tubing, and surrounded by sponge, the whole inclosed by a varnished leather cover with many perforations protected by metallic eyelits. It has two metal bands, from which chains pass to the deck of the vessel, other chains being connected to facilitate its suspension from the bowsprit. An oil supply hose of good varnished leather or other preferred material extends from a pipe in communication with a pump and reservoir on the vessel to the central one of the three oil receivers, by means of which the oil may be forced into and through the distributor as desired. It is designed that the length of the distributor shall be equal to about one-third of the maximum width of the vessel.—New Orleans Picayune.

THE FIFTY-THIRD CONGRESS

The House and Senate Called to Order in Regular Session.

Daily Summary of Routine Business in the Two Houses.

THE HOUSE.

By a vote of 105 to 61 the house at Friday's session rejected Mr. Enloe's amendment looking to the investigation of the coast and geodic surveys, with a view to transferring its duties to the navy and interior departments.

The house at 12:20 o'clock Saturday on motion of Mr. Sayers, democrat of Texas, went into committee of the whole, to consider the sundry civil appropriation bill, Mr. Lester, of Georgia, in the chair. By unanimous consent, it was decided to take up the amendment to the bill proposed by the committee on the judiciary, consideration of the Missouri river committee and soldiers home appropriations being postponed until Monday. The first amendment which was agreed to was as follows: "No fee shall be paid in any marshal for the execution of any warrant from a United States commissioner, unless the same shall have been executed within sixty days after the warrant was issued." No other amendment was successful. Several were defeated, ruled out on points of order or dropped. The committee rose and the special order for the hour, eulogies upon the late representative W. H. Enochs, of Ohio, who died in July last, was taken up. Eleven members pronounced brief eulogies upon their departed friend and co-worker and then, at 3:55 o'clock the house adjourned until noon Monday.

After short routine work in the house, Monday, the sundry civil bill was taken up and it was agreed that debate on the pending amendment relating to the Missouri river commission should be closed at 2 p. m.

After a general debate in the house Tuesday morning the sundry bill was passed. Provisions in the bill affecting the management of the Soldier's home, which was opposed by General Black, of Illinois, one of the board of managers, were ruled out on a point of order. The amendments agreed to increase the total of appropriations by $214,741, making the total $32,521,124. Mr. Patterson then called up the O'Neill-Joy contested election case from the eleventh district of Missouri, and demanded the yeas and nays and they were called. The vote was—yeas, 150; nays, 4. Mr. Patterson offered a resolution, which was agreed to, revoking all leaves of absence except for sickness, and directing the sergeant-at-arms to telegraph absent members requesting their presence. He then moved that when the house adjourned it be to Thursday at 12 o'clock. This was agreed to—148 to 33—and at 3:55 o'clock the house adjourned.

THE SENATE.

The vice-president having returned to the city, presided over the senate Monday. The seigniorage bill, signed by the speaker of the house, was received. It was signed by the vice-president. Mr. Peffer presented by request, bills for the employment of labor on public improvements and the improvements of public roads. Mr. George gave notice that he would address the senate Tuesday on the Hawaiian question.

In the senate, Tuesday, Mr. Voorhees, chairman of the finance committee, reported the tariff bill soon after the reading of the journal. The duty on collars and cuffs is increased from 45 per cent to 55 per cent ad valorem. The only additions to the free list are horn strips and tips and cocoanuts. Section 105 which provides that the president shall notify the Hawaiian government of the intention of this government to abrogate the treaty of 1875, has been stricken out. The clause of that section repealing that part of the McKinley act providing for reciprocal treaties has been amended to read as follows: "That sections 3, 15 and 16 of act, etc., are hereby repealed and all agreements or arrangements made or proclaimed between the United States and foreign governments under the provisions of said sections are hereby abrogated, of which the president shall give such notice to the authorities of said foreign governments as may be required by the terms of such agreements or arrangements." The most important change in the administrative features of the bill is the action of the committee in striking out the words "highest duty" as found in the house bill and regulating the rates of duty on all goods coming in under the similitude clause and substituting therefor the words "lowest duty." This was the subject of a long argument in the full committee, in which Secretary Carlisle endorsed the provisions of the house bill. The committee, therefore, has made change in all goods enumerated or coming in under the similitude clause will pay the highest instead of the lowest rate of duty. The sugar schedule is as follows: All sugars testing not above 80 degrees, 1 cent; from 80 to 90 degrees, 1-100 of a cent for each degree; from 90 to 98, 2-100 of a cent for each degree; all sugars testing above 98, or above No. 16 Dutch standard in color, ½ of a cent per pound in addition to the duty on sugar testing above 98 degrees. Whisky, iron ore, coal, lead ore and opium are unchanged. One of the republican members of the committee, stated that so far as the republican members of the committee were concerned, they did not object to the reporting of the bill, but they were opposed to the income tax feature in it and the change from specific to ad valorem duties. Mr. Voorhees gave notice that he would call up the bill for consideration on April 2nd. At 12:45, Mr. George, of Mississippi, proceeded to address the senate on the Hawaiian question.

There was very little routine morning business in the senate Wednesday, and after it was disposed of unobjected bills on the calendar were taken up and a number passed.

THE NEWS IN GENERAL.

Condensed from Our Most Important Telegraphic Advices

And Presented in Pointed and Readable Paragraphs.

Commodore William Whitting, retired United States navy, died Monday morning at his residence in New York city.

The New York Chamber of Commerce has unanimously adopted a petition to President Cleveland requesting that he veto the seigniorage bill.

Fire at Philadelphia destroyed the mill property owned by Rump & Brothers, manufacturers of table cloths and counterpanes, fronting on Huntingdon street and extending from Palethorpe to Hancock streets in the heart of the Kensington mill district. Total loss, $240,000. Nearly 400 persons are thrown out of employment.

A Detroit, Michigan, special says: James Wellington Brown, a polygamist, with the phenomenal record of twenty-six wives in the state of Michigan alone, and with other wives being heard from at times in other parts of the United States, has again come into public notice through the inquiries of two of his hitherto unreported wives. Four of his victims were residents of Detroit and two of them lived in the same ward.

Isaac Pronty & Co., boot and shoe manufacturers, of Spencer, Mass., have made an assignment. The firm employs 2,000 hands when running full time. The concern was the largest boot and shoe firm in the world. The pay roll with a full force was about $18,000 a week and lately has been about $8,000 a week. The nominal assets are $1,500,000 and the liabilities are said to be about one million.

A New York dispatch says: The Louisville and Nashville, the Chattanooga, the New Orleans and Texas Pacific and Illinois Central have agreed to come back under the old terms. The agreement was drawn up and signed just before the meeting adjourned. Most of the members of the association returned to their homes as soon as possible after the adjournment. They are well pleased with the result of the meeting.

During a performance in a theater at Lucca, Italy, in the province of that name a gentleman upon entering his box, found in the doorway a bomb with a lighted fuse. He seized the burning fuse, and by crushing it in his hand, put out the fire. The bomb was turned over to the police authorities, who had its contents analyzed. It was found to contain together with gunpowder, nails, bullets, bits of iron, etc., a quantity of picric acid.

Stanley's large brewery, at Lawrence, Mass., has been totally destroyed by fire. The building was four stories high. The loss is about $125,000; insured. The brewery, which did a good business and employed a considerable force, was owned by the New England Brewing Company, the principal stockholders in which are an English syndicate, which, some time ago, purchased a number of similar establishments in that section.

A special from Denver, Col., says: Governor Waite has ordered the troops back from the Cripple creek district to their respective armories. This action was the result of a telephone conversation held by the governor with Adjutant General Tarsney, who reported that the miners were ready to arbitrate and would not go out in battle array in any event. Asked if ordering the troops back to their armories meant that the militia would disband, Governor Waite smiled and said, "We will wait and see."

HOUK NOMINATED.

He Contests Gibson's Vote and is Successful.

A Knoxville dispatch says: The republican executive congressional committee of the second congressional district of Tennessee, after a two days' session, declared John C. Houk the republican nominee. There were two republican candidates, Houk and Judge Henry R. Gibson. A primary election was held March 10th to select a candidate. The face of the returns showed Gibson to have a majority of 1,089, thus making him the nominee. Houk, the present incumbent, contested the nomination of Gibson. A canvass of the returns was made, which resulted in 1,700 votes for Gibson and 200 for Houk being thrown out, thus leaving Houk a majority of 804 over Gibson and giving him the nomination. Gibson says he will abide the action of the committee and will run, claiming to have received his nomination from the people.

Governor Waite Was Indignant.

A special from Denver, Col., says: Gov. Waite has informed a committee from Cripple Creek that the sheriff had lied to him about the condition of affairs at the camp. He was indignant and told the committee in the most emphatic way that the troops would have to come home. They urged that violence would ensue and life and property would not be safe a moment. At length the governor agreed to withhold his final decision.

OUR LATEST DISPATCHES.

The Happenings of a Day Chronicled in Brief and Concise Paragraphs

And Containing the Gist of the News From All Parts of the World.

A suit somewhat out of the regular order of such affairs has been entered in the Chattanooga courts. It is a suit by the Etowah Mining Company, of Etowah county, Alabama, to compel the Peeples estate and others to purchase the property of the company as per the valuation set upon it by the company.

The street car lines of Savannah are in the midst of a rate war. The City and Suburban railway has made a cut of 3 cents. The Electric Railway Company say they will not meet the cut. Some time ago negotiations were pending for a consolidation. They were called off, however, and it is thought the cut was made to try and force the electric railway people to terms.

On a petition of the Birmingham, Ala., Trust and Savings Company, as trustee for the majority of bondholders of The Age-Herald Company, the latter corporation has been, by a decree of court, placed in the hands of Frank V. Evans, as receiver. The paper will continue to be published regularly with Mr. Evans in direct control of its editorial policy and business affairs.

The Howard Harrison pipe works, of the Birmingham, Ala., district, has made the first shipment to Philadelphia, Pa., on a contract recently made by them with the city council of Philadelphia for 100,000 tons of iron pipe. The pipe is to be used for water mains. Iron men of the district are glorifying over the fact that Philadelphia is buying her pipe from Birmingham.

A Lexington, Ky., dispatch says: Major Horace Means, who is one of the leaders of Colonel Breckinridge's political opponents, declares that a wealthy widow residing in Washington went to Mr. Wilson at the time Miss Pollard was begging him to take her suit, and told him to go ahead with the case and that she would back Miss Pollard to the amount of five thousand dollars.

Mourning for Kossuth is general in Buda Pest, Hungary. Every man has crape on his hat. Women wear only black garments. Black flags hang over the fronts of the house of parliament, the banks, the university buildings and the clubs. Many provincial towns have gone into mourning as deeply as has the city. A dispatch from Vienna says the police there have forbidden the Hungarian Club to display the black flag.

A Birmingham, Ala., dispatch says: Colonel D. S. Troy, one of the most prominent politicians, one of the most successful business men and one of the foremost lawyers of the state, has created something of a sensation in Alabama politics by stating to a reporter of The Montgomery Journal in no unequivocal language that he does not see how it is possible for the democracy of the state to conscientiously endorse the administration of Mr. Cleveland.

The initial step has been taken at Birmingham toward the organization of the Daughters of Confederate Veterans. The ladies of the city met for the purpose of offering to assist in taking care of the veterans who will attend the reunion in April when it was suggested that they call themselves the daughters of the Confederate Veterans. From this the idea of organizing a national association with this name grew with favor until it was resolved that steps be taken to organize such an association during the reunion in April.

BUSINESS REVIEW.

Report of Trade for the Past Week by Dun & Co.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: Week by week it is found possible by an increasing number of concerns to revive production with a general range of prices the lowest ever known, many with a doubt how long they will be able to operate. Thus the measure of resumption by works or hands or hours of labor is not a measure of the revival in business, either as to quantity or values of goods distributed. Prices of commodities are this week on the whole, the lowest of which there is any record, having declined ½ per cent in March and averaging 11.3 per cent lower than a year ago, so that more than a third of the decrease in volume of all payments is due to decline in prices of things consumed.

Six more iron furnaces have gone into blast this month, in part because prices of finished products are a shade lower, and further contracts have thus been secured. Pittsburg gets the lion's share and has most of its works in operation.

The number of failures this week is 244 in the United States against 150 last year, and 55 in Canada against 30 last year. The absence of important embarrassments is still most encouraging.

Dying of "Spotted Fever."

News has been received at Nashville that the family of J. M. Cary, living in the Twenty-fifth district of Carroll county, Tenn., are severely afflicted with what appears to be spotted fever. A few days ago the family, ten in number, ate dinner apparently in good health and before night four of the number were sick, one dying that night. Another died Monday night, another Thursday night and still another Tuesday night, and, when last heard from, four others of the family were ill with the same disease, with no hope of recovery.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Situation as Reported for the Past Week.

A review of the industrial situation in the South for the past week shows that the Southern iron furnaces are finding a market for their outputs, and that while prices are still very low, the iron masters are slowly increasing the number of plants in active operation, and report that there is but little accumulation of stock on hand. The coal producers are steadily at work, but show no disposition to increase their production, in view of both existing demand and present prices. The textile industry is prosperous. New mills and improvements in old ones are reported from week to week. Lumber men are having an increased demand, but prices in many instances, do not give a fair profit. In mercantile business trade is increasing, and in financial circles a sufficient supply of money to meet present demands is reported.

Thirty-seven new industries were established or incorporated during the week, prominent among which are: The Traders Co., of Clarksburg, W. Va., capital $1,000,000; the Fairmont Grafton Gas Co., of Fairmont W. Va., capital $300,000; the Mountain Valley Coal and Coke Co., of Birmingham, Ala., capital $45,000; the Fairfield Granite Co., of Blair, S. C., capital $100,000, and the Ben Bros. Co., of Louisville, Ky., soap manufacturers, capital $15,000.

Flour and grist mills are to be built at Mellow Valley, Rogersville and Pruitton, Ala., cotton mills at Douglasville, Ga., and Jackson, Tenn., an iron foundry at Covington, Ky., and ice factories at Pelham and Thomaston, Ga. Woodworking plants are reported at Cedar Bluff, Ala., Westfarm and Tallahassee, Fla., Cordele, Ga., Banfield, N. C., Charleston, S. C., Erin, Knoxville and Huntington, Tenn., Port Norfolk, Va., and Wheeling, W. Va.

Waterworks are to be built at Middleburg, Fla., Vienna, Ga., Weatherford, Texas, and Farmville, Va. Among the new buildings of the week are church s at Wilcox, Ga., and Staunton, Va.; a $40,000 court house at DeWitt, Ark.; a $25,000 railway station at Ashland, Ky.; a music hall at Savannah, Ga.; a $24,000 school building at Waycross, Ga., and residences costing $20,000 each at Galveston, Texas and Savannah, Ga.—Tradesman (Chattanooga, Tenn.)

BONDHOLDERS PROTEST.

They Pass Resolutions Against Bland's Seigniorage Bill.

Purchasers of the $50,000,000 United States new 5 per cent bonds met at the Union Trust Company, New York city, to protest against the Bland seigniorage bill. President Williams, of the Chemical bank, presided and the following resolution was adopted. About twenty-five of the leading New York bank presidents and private bankers were present.

"Resolved, That in the opinion of the representatives of the financial institutions of New York who subscribed to the $50,000,000 5 per cent loan and made it a success, the coinage of silver seigniorage would endanger the financial stability of the government and would inflict upon a suffering people pernicious and unnecessary legislation which would be far reaching in its disastrous consequences."

SANTANDER AGAIN SHAKEN.

Dynamite Explodes Killing Ten Workmen and Injuring Many Others.

Another fatal accident has occurred at Santander, caused by an explosion of dynamite. Ever since the awful disaster that occurred in that city on the night of November 3d last, when the Spanish steamer Machichaco was blown up by the explosion of part of the large consignment of dynamite aboard her, the wrecked hull of the vessel has been lying at the bottom of the bay. It was discovered by divers, who went in search of the bodies of some of those who were killed at the time, and a considerable quantity of dynamite was still in the wreck. This was considered a menace to shipping, and the authorities determined to have it removed. While a number of men were thus engaged an explosion occurred, and ten of the workingmen were killed and thirty injured.

JUMPED FROM WINDOWS.

Narrow Escape of School Children From a Burning Building.

The four-story public school building, in South Evanston, Ill., thirteen miles north of Chicago, caught fire from some mysterious cause and was completely destroyed. Six of the panic-stricken pupils, surrounded by smoke and fire, took the desperate chances of jumping from the third and fourth story windows to escape what seemed to be certain death, and were severely, but probably not fatally injured. The remainder of the children who retained enough composure to listen to the pleadings of their teachers and the firemen, were marched through the thickening smoke to fresh air and safety.

REPUBLICANS VICTORIOUS.

The New Jersey Supreme Court Decides in their Favor.

A dispatch from Trenton, N. J., says: In the senatorial case, Chief Justice Beasley decides that the senate is not a continuous body, and that Adrian is not entitled to be president. He says that Rogers' title is valid. This is a victory for the republicans.

THE DEMOCRATS GIVE IN.

The democrats have almost entirely capitulated. Governor Werts gave State Comptroller-elect Hancock and State Treasurer-elect Swain their commissions as soon as the decision of the supreme court was rendered, and they are already in possession of their office.

Flood in Arkansas.

The greatest flood in the history of south central Arkansas, is now on and that part of the state is rapidly approaching the condition of an inland ocean. It has rained almost incessantly all over the state and in the Indian Territory for four days. Railway communication has been entirely cut off from the south to Texarkana.

Mosby Wants to Be President.

An El Paso, Texas, dispatch says: John I. Mosby, the celebrated cavalry leader of the Confederacy, in an interview announces that he will be a candidate for the presidency at the next election.

Ben Turner ex-congressman and a once noted negro politician of Dallas county, died in Selma on 22nd.

Gov. Jones has telegraphed Senator Hoar asking if the letter endorsing Kolb was genuine. So far the Senator is silent.

Senator Colquitt of Georgia, is dead. The South was never represented by a cleaner, purer Christian Statesman than he.

The Committee in the Whatley-Cobb contest unanimously reported on the 23rd that Cobb was entitled to the seat he was occupying.

Judge Brickell received the appointment of Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of Ala. A more satisfactory appointment could hardly have been made.

Rev. Thos. Spurgen has been elected as permanent pastor of the Spurgeon Tabernacle of London. He is a brother of the renowned Charles Haddon Spurgeon, deceased.

Pendergrast, the murderer of Mayor Carter Harrison will hang. The United States Supreme court refuses to interfere in his behalf. April 8th is the date set for the execution.

Mr. R. E. Pettus, of Huntsville, is a candidate for the office of State Superintendent of Education. There is not a better man, one more competent, nor a truer Democrat than Mr. Pettus.

Great rejoicing has been sounded forth by the Populites in view of the report that Colonel Robert McKee would be editor of their proposed paper. The Colonel denies that he contemplates any such step.

We judge from the reports of Capt. Joseph Johnston's speeches that that gentleman consumes most of the time allotted him in explaining his attitude towards the administration. What is now needed are candidates who will take time to explain the acts and principles of Democracy.

The Age-Herald has gone into the hands of a receiver. Mr. Frank V. Evans is the receiver and manager. He is a business man of ability and with considerable newspaper experience. Our hope is that he may succeed in putting the Herald on a sound financial basis and render it a braver expounder and defender of the Democratic faith.

Everywhere Kolb and his crowd go they press the dear people for money. First they beg for cash to put into a daily paper at Birmingham, then they beg for money with which to pay the traveling expenses of their speakers, those gentlemen who ride in sleeping cars and put up at the finest hotels, and then if there is a paper in the county advocating their side of the question, they beg for some money for that, thus, the poor down-trodden, debt-pressed farmer is being bled for the sole purpose of putting into office the veriest Demagogue. It is passing strange why men will allow themselves thus duped. A few years ago farmers who had a small amount of money were induced to contribute to the State Alliance Exchange. All that money went to pay big salaries to a few men. Now all the money is gone, and all the property is gone and those small stock-holders got no benefit from their subscriptions. Alliance stores in several counties were gotten up in the same manner. What became of the subscriptions of the poor? Gone, nevermore to return. Where the stores are not entirely dead the stock is owned by a few men, and the profits go to them. And they are absolved from giving back one cent to the poor men who contributed their mites to establish an Alliance store. In the face of such repeated failures it requires the greatest gall to ask the same class of people for money to put into enterprises where promise of success is so meagre.

A FULL EXPOSURE OF HIS VISITS TO WASHINGTON

AFTER REPUBLICAN CASH.

He Evidently Bargains to Make His Followers Republicans.

Washington, D. C. March 24.—(Special)—The following telegram which appeared in the New York Sun of to-day will be rich and racy reading to all Democrats in Alabama.

It will show how the genial Reuben spent his time when he was here several week's ago, and if any doubts remain in the minds of his followers after the Whitehead letter they will be settled.

The telegram was sent from Boston and speaks for itself:

"Boston, March 23.—The Home Market Club is stirring itself in New England as an active ally of the Kolb Party in Alabama and seeks to raise $50,000 to aid the Jeffersonion Democrats in the campaign there.

Senator Hoar, in a letter, says he believes this campaign may result in breaking the Solid South and assure the triumph of protection.

"The Home Market Club has out circulars marked "In Confidence" seeking to raise this money.

"The appeal is: "To the Chairman of Republican Town Committees in New England."

Gentlemen:—Those best versed in national politics believe that no better use can be made of a little money this year than to immediately extend aid to the Jeffersonian Democrats of Alabama.

"We wish to raise at least $50,000 in New England.

"In order that all parts may have a share in this hopeful work and make the burden as light as possible for each you are requested to ask your friends to contribute what they will. The sum desired from your town is about $10. Will you see personally or have some trustworthy person do it for you, such of your best Republicans as will make up this amount. Please return all the papers with check or money order payable to Albert Clarke, treasurer, in the enclosed stamped envelope and within a few days if possible.

Prudence requires that strict privacy should be observed in raising the money. There is so much prejudice in the South that it might be fatal to the cause to have it become known that the Kolb party receives any aid from New England. We pray you therefore to avoid seeing any but discreet men and to impress upon them the importance of secrecy.

Yours truly,

Jno. Sheppard (of Sheppard Norwell & Co.)

Jno. Shaw (of Johnson and Shaw,)

Albert Clarke, Secretary of the Home Market Club."

Boston, March 18, 1894.

Accompanying this appeal is a bulletin of Hope, under the heading of "Light Breaking in the South."

It is an extract from the Home Market bulletin of March 1894 and reads:

"Capt. Reuben F. Kolb has been nominated by the Jeffersonian Democrats of Alabama for Governor upon a platform demanding a free ballot and a fair count and Protection to American Industries. The election will be held in August and at the same time a legislature will be chosen which will elect a successor to Senator Morgan. "In 1892 Captain Kolb was elected by more than 45,000 majority and more than 30,000 white votes, but was counted out and was refused by the legislature a law for contesting the result. But this year the election officers in thirty eight of the sixty-six counties belong to his party and he is not likely to be counted out.

The convention which nominated him was the largest ever held in the South. Advices from leading Republicans there say that he will have the support of nearly all their party. This is the most hopeful movement we have ever seen in the South. If it breaks the Democratic solidity of that section, and puts the people there where most of them have long desired to be, squarely on the side of protection, it will make an epoch in the progress of this country. After their success the next revision of the tariff will be on these lines and not on political lines and will be national instead of sectional."

"Appended to this bulletin are three letters. One from ex-Governor Smith of Alabama, Republican. It is dated at Birmingham, Ala., February 15th, 1894, and is addressed to Colonel Clarke. It says:

"I take pleasure in stating that the convention which nominated Capt. R. F. Kolb for Governor was a body of the most respectable and intelligent of our citizens and most of whom acted with the organized Democracy prior to the election of 1892.

"The platform and resolutions adopted by the convention respecting the tariff and favoring a free and honest ballot are heartily approved by practically all the Republicans of the State. In my opinion Capt. Kolb will receive nine-tenths of the Republican votes of the State. The Democrats hope to get a regular Republican ticket in the field in order that they can, as they think, drive former Democrats back into the old organization. This matter, I believe, is so thoroughly understood by the voters that no harm whatever will result to Captain Kolb by any course these people may pursue.

'I desire to say that Capt. Kolb is in every respect a gentleman worthy the confidence of all persons. Very Respectfully,

Wm. H. Smith."

A letter from United States Senator, Hoar, dated Washington, on Washington's birthday, says:

"My dear Mr. Clarke:—Since your telegram the other day, I have spent two evenings with Mr. Kolb. The first in company with several members of the Senate and House of Representatives. The second was at my own room in company with Gen. Draper, Mr. Walker, Gen. Coggswell and Mr. McCall of the Massachusetts delegation. We all believe that this movement is of the utmost importance; that it is the most promising fact that has taken place in the South for many years, and that if he succeeds in his movement, as we are confident he will, the Solid South is broken and that the success of the cause of protection is assured.

"While he differs from us upon the question of the coinage of silver and upon the less important, though important question of an income tax, he is thoroughly sound upon the questions of all questions, an honest ballot and is thoroughly sound upon the question of protection. In some way, I have no doubt that the forces which he will be found acting with us in all great essential in the future."

"He is worthy our support and our sympathy. Mr. Eden Draper, who has gone home, will tell you the particulars. Capt. Kolb, himself, will visit you soon. Mr. Lodge was at Detroit when Captain Kolb was here, but I shall explain the matter to him on his return and I feel sure of his cordial sympathy, I am, faithfully yours,

"Geo. F. Hoar.

Congressman Walker's letter, which is appended to the circular says:

"I am thoroughly convinced and I think all our people here are that the interests of the country will be found in rendering Capt. Kolb any reasonable support in any honorable way we can do it, but it must be done as quietly as possible. I think it will result in a division of the South upon economic questions and that is all we ask. We do not ask them to be republicans in any form or manner. We simply want them to act upon their convictions and we shall take our chances in the result.

Very truly yours,

"J. H. Walker."

A third paper sent out by the Home Market Club is a subscription blank at the top of which is the words: "To break the Solid South." Under this caption is the announcement, "At a meeting of Republicans held at the rooms of the Home Market Club, Boston, March 1, it was voted that the John Sheppard, John Shaw and Albert Clarke be a committee with power to appoint others to raise among the Republicans of New England at least $50,000 to aid in the Alabama campaign which bids fair to break the Solid South in August. The undersigned promise to pay to said committee the sums set against our names."

What is CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

DR. G. C. OSGOOD, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

DR. J. F. KINCHELOE, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

A jail break was attempted here last Monday evening by four burly negroes in the county jail through the assistance of Geo. Fisher, white; but was nipped in the bud. An iron bar was furnished the negroes by Fisher, which he worked out of his bunk, and which the negroes used in breaking the lock off their cell and getting into the corridor, expecting to also release Fisher from his cell, and all lay in wait for the appearance of Mr. Frank Moore, brother of Sheriff Moore, who was attending to the prisoners in his absence, down him with the bar and make a dash for liberty. But as it fortunately happened, Mr. Moore appeared sooner than expected. Fisher had not been released from his cage and seeing that his game was nipped, and he would be left behind, gave the negoes away, informing Mr. Moore that negroes were in the corridor and would try to gain liberty. Fisher desired Mr. Moore to let him have his pistol and stand guard while he summons help to put the negroes back in their cells. This scheme didn't work either. With a 38 pistol in hand, Mr. Moore soon had the black scoundrels re-caged. All the negroes are charged with serious offences, two charged with buglarizing Mr. J. Bice's store at Strasburg; the last two, one for grand larceny and the other assualt with intent to rape.

There are a number of fellows in Chilton an other counties who are afraid to say they are Populites and yet afraid to say that they are Democrats. They play the old argument of not knowing into whose hands they may fall and it is "good Lord and good devil." To all such the VIEW says: Come out in your true colors, unmask yourself. If you are a Populite the Democrats will have far more respects for you if you come out openly, and if you are a Democrat the Populites will give you far more respect to know that you are not afraid to show your color.

Major J. G. Harris has announced himself as a candidate for reelection to the office of State Superintendent of Education. For two terms the Major has in a very acceptable manner filled that office, and many of his friends believe he should continue to hold it "for the good of the cause." So argued Major Palmer and his friends, but Major Harris and his friends argued that that claim was a reflection on the intelligence of the State. We have always been one of Major Harris' supporters, but we think that consistency should compel him to retire. However, it is his privilege to make the race, and should he get the office again we have no fear of the educational interests suffering.

Queer Plants Used as Food.

At the department of agriculture in Washington, hidden away in an obscure corner, is an odd sort of exhibit of queer foods eaten by out-of-the-way people, says the Star. There is a loaf of bread made from the roasted leaves of a plant allied to the century plant. Another kind of bread is from a dough of juniper berries. These are relished by some tribes of Indians, while others manufacture cakes out of different kinds of bulbs. The prairie Indians relish a dish of wild turnips, which civilized people would not be likely to enjoy at all. In the great American desert the "screw beans," which grow on mesquite bushes are utilized for food. Soap berries furnish an agreeable diet for some savages in this country, while in California the copper-colored aborigines do not disdain the seeds of salt grass. Also in California the Digger Indians collect pine nuts, which are the seeds of a certain species of pine—sometimes called "pinione"—by kindling fires against the trees, thus causing the nuts to fall out of the cones. At the same time a sweetgum exudes from the bark, serving the purpose of sugar. The seeds of gourds are consumed in the shape of mush by Indians in Arizona. In addition to all these things the exhibit referred to includes a jar of pulverized crickets, which are eaten in that form by the Indians of Oregon. They are roasted as are likewise grasshoppers and even slugs. These delicacies are cooked in a pit, being arranged in alternate layers with hot stones. After being thus prepared they are dried and ground to powder. They are mixed with pounded acorns or berries, the flour made in this way being kneaded into cakes and dried in sun.

Some Great Cities.

Leaving out London, according to the last census, the following are the cities having a population of 1,000,000 and over: Paris, 2,447,957; New York, 1,801,739; Canton, estimated 1,600,000; Berlin, 1,579,244; Tokio, Japan, 1,389,244; Vienna, 1,364,548; Philadelphia, 1,142,653; Chicago, 1,099,850; St. Petersburg, 1,003,310; Pekin, 1,000,000. A school population taken in Chicago in 1892 reveals an estimated population of 1,400,000 There are cities in China whose estimated population is over 1,000,000, but it is not safe to count them. The city having the largest population under the 1,000,000 figure is Brooklyn, which, according to the state census of 1892, was 957,163.

An Experienced Traveler.

Husband (at railway station)—"Good-by, Now, are you sure you have everything?"

Wife—"Y-e-s; I believe so. Mercy! I forgot the molasses candy. Run and get some for the baby, quick."

"Won't he keep quiet without molasses candy?"

"Of course; but I want to make sure of having a seat to myself."—Street & Smith's Good News.

Not Trichinosis.

Mean Man—"Say! run for a doctor! A neighbor of mine had some of your sausage last night, and he is very sick."

Butcher—"Mein gracious! It cannot be he has trichinosis?"

Mean Man—"N-o; I think it's more likely hydrophobia."—New York Weekly.

When He Stopped Payment.

The bullying manner sometimes assumed by certain barristers in cross examination, in order to confuse a witness and make his replies to important questions hesitating and contradictory, is notorious, and many are the tales told of "cute" witnesses who have turned the tables on their persecutors. The following relates to a case of this kind:

In a civil action on money matters the plaintiff had stated that his financial position was always satisfactory. In cross examination he was asked if he had ever been bankrupt.

"No," was the answer.

Next question was: "Now, be careful; did you ever stop payment?"

"Yes," was the reply.

"Ah," exclaimed the counsel, "I thought we should get at it at last. When did that happen?"

"After I paid all I owed," was the answer.—London Tit-Bits.

Ocean and Railroad Freight.

Few people realize the extraordinary difference between ocean tariffs and railroad rates, or what an extent the opening of the Manchester ship canal will reduce the cost of transportation of Manchester from this country. Published rates show that grain is now carried eight thousand miles at the same rate for the entire distance as is charged by the railroads for the hour's journey between Liverpool and Manchester, while the published rates between Liverpool and London are equal to a 14,000-mile tariff at sea. This is not suggesting that the English rates are very much higher than those charged in this country, for it is a well know fact that the river and railroad rates here differ so greatly that percentage can scarcely be calculated. —St. Louis Republic.

A Sadly Sinful World.

Housekeeper—"Was it the hard times that threw you out of work?"

Mouldy Mike—"No, mum; it was the wickedness of the people, mum. I used to earn ten dollars a week an' travellin' expenses, but the sinful world has lost all interest in th' cause I was a helpin', mum."

"What cause?"

"The glorious cause of temperance, mum."

"Goodness! Were you a temperance lecturer?"

"No, mum; I was the 'horrible example!'"

A Rare Chance.

Mother—"Yes, my dear, I know that he is very much older than you are. He is one of the old-fashioned gentlemen, the only one of the old stock left unmarried, and I advise you take him."

Daughter—"But why? He is not even rich."

Mother—"Wealth does not bring happiness, my daughter. Like his father before him, he will do his own marketing, and if the steak is tough you can growl at him instead of he at you."

Enough to Throw Away.

Dora—"Come over and join our Never-Marry Club."

Clara—"Do we have to promise never to marry?"

"N-o, not exactly; but if you ever do marry, you will be expelled from the club and lose your initiation fee."

"How much is the fee?"

"One dollar."

"Hum! If they will let me in for ten cents, I'll join."—New York Weekly.

MOTHER—"What have you done to your little sister?"

Boy—"Nothin'."

"Then what is she crying for?"

"I dunno. Guess she's cryin' because she can't think of anything to cry for."

Happenings of Interest Portrayed in Pithy Paragraphs.

A charter has been secured and a board of corporators authorized to raise the funds, one hundred thousand dollars, to build a factory without delay at Abbeville, S. C.

A severe storm struck New Orleans Monday night. All telegraph wires are down and it is feared that great damage has been done along the coast and for some distance inland.

Governor Carr, of North Carolina, has ordered the disbandment of Company D, Fourth regiment, at Monroe, for the failure to comply with requirements as to attendance at drills and inspection.

New Orleans is excited over the publication of the fact that leading tobacco manufacturers have received a letter commanding them to discharge all female employes, hire men only, or suffer the destruction of their factories.

A special from Beaufort, S. C., says: The British steamship, Arco, with phosphate, for London, is ashore on Cape Lookout. The vessel is not leaking. The sea is smooth. If good weather prevails she can be floated.

The supreme court of Tennessee has elected Judge D. L. Snodgress chief justice to succeed Judge Lea. Judge Snodgrass will preside until the new justices elected next August take the bench. Judges Caldwell and Snodgrass are the only justices now on the bench who were elected by the people.

In the federal court at Birmingham, Ala., Judge Bruce granted the motion of the district attorney to discharge the federal jury box on the ground that it had been irregularly drawn. The court ordered a new jury box to be filled. He said he did not know whether he would summon a new grand jury or not.

Hector D. Lane, commissioner of agriculture of Alabama, will embark about April 1st on a tour of some six weeks through the northwest in the interest of immigration. He will go to make a thorough investigation into the situation, to distribute literature and to learn the best plan for systematic work in this line in future.

Logan county, Va., citizens state that the Hatfield-McCoy feuds, which terrorized that vicinity a few years ago, has broken out afresh, with indications of bloody times ahead. The renewal of the trouble was brought about by a visit of Frank Phelps, of Kentucky, leader of the McCoy factions in the old feuds, to Peters Creek.

The suits involving the validity and scope of the general tax law of the state of Tennessee, which have been pending in the supreme court of the United States for several months, have been sent back to the state courts for disposition, without an expression by the federal bench upon the merits of the statute. There are three of the cases.

In the United States court at Knoxville, Tenn., Judge Key sentenced Henry Cummings and George Shipman to jail for six months for contempt of court. They are miners formerly employed by the Mingo Mountain Coal company at Middlesborough. The company is now in the hands of a receiver appointed by the United States court.

At Cullman, Ala., three suits, aggregating to $12,000, have been brought against Keepman & Gerdes for damage to property alleged to have occurred from the dynamite explosion in their their warehouse March 5th. Kinney Bros. sue for $10,000, Josephine and Samuel Rudder $1,000 each. Other suits are expected to follow for personal and property damages.

Secretary Bruner, of the department of agriculture of North Carolina, has received a letter from Japanese Commissioner Koidzumi, who states that he guarantees to raise one hundred and fifty thousand dollars if a like sum is made up in this country to bring Japanese colonists to North Carolina and manufacture ware out of kaolin. The matter is regarded of great importance.

The Spencer Medicine Co., of Chattanooga, a concern doing a large printing and patent medicine business throughout the entire south have given a deed of trust, naming G. N. Henson, president of the Citizens' Bank and Trust company, their main creditors, as trustee. This move was precipitated by a lack of unanimity among the stockholders. The assets are fully $50,000 and the liabilities only $11,583.

The North Carolina state commissioner of agriculture says it is now certain that the sales of the commercial fertilizers in North Carolina, outside of the trucking districts, will be much less than those of last spring. The amount of home-made fertilizer, mainly compost being used, is found to be much greater than ever before. The farmers are far ahead with their work all over the state. The fine weather has permitted work to be done almost without intermission.

A big sensation has been created at Birmingham, Ala., by District Attorney O'Neal arising in the federal court and moving that the grand jury which was empaneled about ten days ago and which has been weighing the charges of fraud, etc., brought against the United States commissioner by Special Examiner Chalmers, be discharged on the ground that they were of no further service to the government in that it was impossible to get a true bill in certain cases, no matter what the evidence.

The commissioners of election met at Charleston, S. C., and tabulated the vote for congress in Charleston county. The official figures are: Izlar, democrat, 3,019; Stokes, populist, 129. W. Gibbs Whaley and John Gary Evans appeared before the board and moved to throw out all the ballots polled in the city on account of irregularities. Frauds were specifically charged in the fourth ward, which polled 400 votes. The charges were proven false by affidavits and the protest was dismissed.

AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Affairs of Government and News of the Departments Discussed.

Notes of Interest Concerning the People and Their General Welfare.

The President sent to the senate Wednesday the nominations to be postmasters of W. T. Cheatham, Jr., at Henderson, North Carolina; and of W. P. Anderson, at Palatka, Florida.

Colonel Livingston, of Georgia, introduced a bill Friday to pay Needham Ballard, formerly of Burke county, $50,000 for cotton, mules and provisions destroyed by the union army.

The state department has received a cablegram from Minister Baker, conveying a message from the consul at Greytown to the effect that the British marines had been withdrawn from the Mosquito territory, and affairs are now quiet there.

Secretary Herbert has ordered all the American warships away from Rio. The New York will go to St. Lucia, W. I., there to await further instructions by cable from the navy department. The Charleston will go to Montevideo to join the Newark.

Speaker Crisp signed the seigniorage bill Friday. After the president of the senate signs the bill Mr. Cleveland will have ten days from the time it reaches him in which to consider it. Nobody knows what he will do, but there are reports that he will veto it.

The president Monday nominated the following postmasters: Virginia, George R. Nixon, Ashland; Frank J. Norris, Leesburg. North Carolina, Charles M. Busbee, Raleigh. Mississippi, E. P. Thompson, Aberdeen. Alabama, Eugene L. Brown, Eufaula.

The fact—not generally known—that Postmaster-General Bissell has beaten the record as a manufacturer of democratic postmasters of the presidential class. From March 4, 1889, to March, 12, 1890, inclusive, Mr. Wanamaker appointed 1,698 presidential postmasters; from March 4, 1893, to March 12, 1894, inclusive, Mr. Bissell appointed 1,720. This shows that Mr. Bissell has beaten Mr. Wanamaker by 22 in the same length of time. Mr. Wanamaker had beaten the record up to his time.

Governor Tillman, of South Carolina, had an hour's interview with Commissioner Miller, of the Internal Revenue Bureau, at the Treasury department Tuesday morning. The conference was about recent liquor seizures by federal officials in South Carolina. It was developed that there was no conflict of authority between the state authorities of South Carolina and the Internal Revenue Bureau. Tillman left with a perfect understanding of the situation, and apparently well satisfied with the interview.

Representative Bland, of Missouri, wishes it understoood that the committee on coinage, weights and measures, of which he is chairman, has not, as a body, waited upon Secretary Carlisle to give any pledges as to their future action in case the seigniorage bill should become a law. The individual members, he says, may have spoken with the secretary and assured him that if the bill were signed, there would be no further silver legislation by this congress, but that if they did this it was in their personal capacity and without any authority from the committee.

New York Postmasters.

Since the beginning of the present session of congress, only eight nomination of New York postmasters have been confined by the senate. There are now pending before the committee to which they were referred, forty-eight nominations, ten of which were sent to the senate on the assembling of congress. For this reason, Postmaster General Bissell has been unwilling, in many instances, to recommend nominations to offices in New York state on the expiration of the commissions held by republican postmasters, until he has some intimation of the fate of those already sent in. Neither of the New York senators ever visits the postoffice department or recommends the appointment to any candidate, notwithstanding the fact that the department has invited them to make known their wishes regarding postoffice appointments.

A New Chinese Treaty.

The senate committee on foreign relations has been considering an important Chinese treaty negotiated by the new Chinese minister and Secretary Gresham. The treaty was sent to the senate some time ago, and refered to the foreign relations committee, where it has been fully considered and discussed in all its details. It is said that it does not meet with the approval of some senators who are members of the committee. It is understood that this opposition, while considerable, has not been sufficient to prevent its being reported favorably, though possibly with some amendments. As negotiated, the treaty practically sets aside and supercedes the Scott exclusion act and the recently enacted Geary law. It is an imigration treaty and provides for the admittance of Chinese immigrants under restrictions. It also has for its object the protection of Chinese already in this country.

FEMALE SUFFRAGISTS WIN.

They Score a Victory in the Massachusetts Legislature.

A Boston dispatch says: Women suffrage in Massachusetts has at last scored a significant and signal triumph. That triumph came when the house of representatives, after nearly two hours' debate by a yea and nay vote of 110 to 84, passed to a third reading the substitute for an adverse report of a committee giving municipal suffrage to women. At the time of taking the vote the house was crowded to suffocation with women, who showed their excess of gladness by long-continued hand-clapping and unintelligible hysterical cries.

The Governor Sustained.

The supreme court of Michigan, in a decision in the case of Gov. Rich against State Treasurer Hambitzer, Secretary of Jochim and Land Commissioner Berry, sustains Governor Rich's action in removing these officials from office.

Peculiarities in Massage.

Light friction of a part reduces surface temperature. In ten experiments on healthy adults, whose armpit temperature on both sides was equal, and whose free surface temperature on the surface of both forearms was before massage 88 degrees F. or more, it was found, on subjecting the left forearm to gentle upward friction, that while the temperature in both armpits and in the untouched free surface of the opposite limb remained constant, the temperature of the left forearm fell in all cases more than two degrees and in three cases nearly four degrees.

After firm friction, rolling, squeezing and kneading of the skin of the limb in all cases, the free cutaneous temperature rose to 95 degrees, but the armpit temperature remained the same on both sides, while in seven cases an interesting phenomenon was noticed on the opposite side—viz, the right limb sensibly perspired and the free surface temperature of the untouched forearm fell to 84 degrees during the time that the firm friction of the left limb was in progress. In regard to light friction it has been impossible to detect any effect on the patient's sense of locality or on the temperature sense. After firm friction of a part for five minutes comes a decided increase of the sense of touch, and the sense of locality has in most instances been apparently improved.—New York Ledger.

Disastrous Failure!

We can mention no failure more disastrous than that of physical energy. It involves the part al suspension of the digestive and assimilative processes, and entails the retirement from business of the liver and kidneys. Only through the good offices of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters can the restoration of its former vigorous status be hoped for. When this aid has been secured, a resumption of activity in the stomach, liver and bowels may be relied upon. The Bitters conquers malaria and kidney trouble.

Everyone can be sure of a heaven if he does his best to make one on earth.

Brown's Iron Bitters cures Dyspepsia, Malaria, Biliousness and General Debility. Gives strength, aids Digestion, tones the nerves—creates appetite. The best tonic for Nursing Mothers, weak women and children.

Mind-reading is a failure when applied to a dude, for it requires something to work on.

1410 Bus. Potatoes Per Acre.

This astonishing yield was reported by Abr. Hahn, of Wisconsin, but Salzer's potatoes always get there. The editor of the Rural New-Yorker reports a yield of 736 bushels and 8 pounds per acre from one of Salzer's early potatoes. Above 1410 bushels are from Salzer's new seedling Hundred-fold. His new early potato, Lightning Express, has a record of 803 bushels per acre. He offers potatoes as low as $2.50 a barrel, and the best potato planter in the world for but $2.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials. Address F. J. CHENEY & Co., Toledo, O.

WONDERFUL GOOD AT SMALL EXPENSE

Rheumatism Perfectly Cured.

"C. J. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"Gentlemen:—I do not know how to express the gratitude that I feel towards Hood's Sarsaparilla, which has cured me at very small cost.

I Have Not Slept

on my left side for four years; suffering with rheumatism with constant severe pains and being completely run down, but now all is changed and I enjoy good health. I experience sweet refreshing sleep, have a good appetite, and my memory is much improved. In fact I astonished at the change. I can now perform my daily work with ease. I had almost of ever enjoying good health again, but by the persuasive power of a friend I was induced to take Hood's Sarsaparilla which has saved my life. I am now in perfect health, thanks to Hood's." WALTER BELL, Galveston, Texas.

Attest: JOHN DEBUHL, Galveston, Texas.

Hood's Pills act easily, yet promptly and efficiently, on the liver and bowels. 25 cents.

Many times women call on their family physicians, suffering as they imagine, one from dyspepsia, another from heart disease, another from liver or kidney disease, another from nervous exhaustion, or prostration, another with pain here and there, and in this way they all present, alike to themselves and their easy-going and indifferent, or overbusy doctor, separate and distinct diseases, for which he prescribes his pills and potions, assuming them to be such, when, in reality, then are all only symptoms caused by some womb disorder. The physician, ignorant of the cause of suffering, encourages his practice until large bills are made. The suffering patient gets no better, but probably worse by reason of the delay, wrong treatment and consequent complications. A proper medicine, like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, directed to the cause would have entirely removed the disease, thereby dispelling all those distressing symptoms and instituting comfort instead of prolonged misery.

The lady whose portrait heads this article is Mrs. Ida Coventry, of Huntsville, Logan County, Ohio. She had an experience which we will permit her to relate in her own language. It illustrates the foregoing. She writes: "I had 'female weakness' very bad—in bed most of the time, dragging down pains through my back and hips; no appetite; no energy. The family physician was treating me for 'liver complaint.' I did not get any better under that treatment so I thought I would try Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and his 'Golden Medical Discovery.' I felt better before I used one bottle of each. I continued their use until I took six bottles of each. In three months' time I felt so well I did not think it necessary to take any more. In childbirth it does what Dr. Pierce recommends it to do—lessens the pain and perils both mother and child and shortens 'labor'. I would like to recommend Dr. Pierce's Extract of Smart-Weed to those who have never tried it; it surely is the best thing for cholera morbus, or pain in the stomach I ever used: it works like a charm. I try never to be without it."

The following is from Mrs. Harriet Hards, of Montpelier, Idaho: "I have enjoyed better health since I began treatment with Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, for [illegible] rhea and uterine debility than I [illegible] sixteen years. I am cured of my [illegible] and now weigh one hundred and [illegible] pounds, whereas my weight for many [illegible] stood at one hundred and twenty-five. With pleasure, I remain," Yours truly,

The following is from Mrs. M. A. [illegible] Hister, of Lim Rock, Jackson Co., Ala. "I was in bad health; age was working [illegible] me, and I had ulceration of the [illegible] could not get about. I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it cured me. I felt ten years younger. I have not had return of my trouble. I am the mother of thirteen children and I am fifty-three years old, have never seen a better woman's medicine than your medicine. I have recommended it to my friends here, and it has never failed in any case, so let me thank you that I got it did me." Yours truly,

For "worn-out," "run-down," debilitated school teachers, milliners, dressmakers, women worn by stresses, general housekeepers, and overworked and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best of all restorative tonics. It is not a "cure-all," but admirably fulfills a singleness of purpose, being a most potent specific for those chronic weaknesses and diseases peculiar to women. It is a powerful, general as well as uterine, tonic and nervine, and imparts vigor and strength to the whole system. It cures weakness of the stomach, indigestion, bloating, nervous prostration or hysteria, debility and sleeplessness. The plant of the Memphis Lumber Company at Memphis, Tenn., has been burned. The loss is estimated at $100,000, partly covered by insurance.

A stave factory at Rives, Tenn. has been destroyed by fire. The loss is $100,000, with no insurance. Numerous workmen are thrown out of employment.

In the federal court at Birmingham, Ala., Judge Bruce granted the motion of the district attorney to discharge the federal jury box on the ground that it had been irregularly drawn. The court ordered a new jury box to be filled. He said he did not know whether he would summon a new grand jury or not.

The heavy freeze has played havoc with the fruit, truck and strawberries in North Carolina. So far as can be learned all the fruit in bloom is killed. This includes all peaches and plums and most of the apples. The wheat and oats are injured and so is clover. The losses on these may be heavy.

The Rev. Leiber Mitchell, colored, has been ordained to the Episcopal priesthood in St. Augustine's church at Boston, Mass. He is the first colored man who has ever taken the orders of the Episcopal church in the south. The services were conducted by Bishop Borker of the western diocese of Colorado.

The Howard Harrison pipe works of the Birmingham, Ala., district has made the first shipment to Philadelphia, Pa., on a contract recently made by them with the city council of Philadelphia for 100,000 tons of iron pipe. The pipe is to be used for water purposes. Iron men of the district are gratified by the fact that Philadelphia is buying her pipe from Birmingham.

A very sensational bill has been filed in the federal court at Chattanooga, Tenn. It is that of the Security Savings and Loan Association vs. J. W. Buchanan et al, proprietors of the defunct private bank of Buchanan & Grubb, at Dayton, Tenn. Gross fraud is charged, and the bill seeks to foreclose a deed of trust on certain Rhea county property. The bankers have left the state.

A bill has been filed in the United States district court at Chattanooga, Tenn., before Judge Key, by the Central Trust Company, of New York, to foreclose $1,000,000 in first-mortgage bonds of the East Tennessee Land Company. The company has the distinction of having sold the state its coal land during the recent mountain. For several months the affairs have been in the hands of receivers, and a petition is now awaiting the court's leaving asking for their election as permanent.

A Birmingham, Ala., special says a severe cold snap completely ruined the fruit crop in North Alabama and killed the well advanced gardens completely. The peach trees had all blossomed, the strawberries were forming, the forest trees were beginning to leaf and spring had been announced by the season in every way. Now the forecast suggests autumn. Many young trees, almost all of the grapevines and most of the vegetables are killed outright, as the sap was well up in them.

Dispatches from Memphis state that a million dollars will not cover the loss to farmers in that section of the Mississippi valley from the blizzard. Thousands of fruits, vegetation and forests have been killed and the whole country looks as though it had been swept by a forest fire. A special from Chattanooga says the extreme cold weather will cost truck farmers around Hamilton county about $500,000. It will take half a million dollars to cover the damage to fruit, vegetables and to wheat and oats. In Georgia, southern Alabama and northern Tennessee immediately contiguous to Chattanooga

In the first year in which the Aermotor Co. did [illegible] expended $50,000 in this work, and did not furnish goods for the entire year either. No extra estimate for the goods on which this enormous sum was made! Are you curious to know why this lavish expenditure? Are you curious to know how the Aermotor makes bodies, hard times gone long before banks and factories commence running? The explanation is this. The Aermotor Co foresaw that hard times were coming, and that when they came the people would want a good article at a low price, and the Aermotor Co. made preparations accordingly.

THE AERMOTOR CO. FORESEES, IF LOOKS ANYTHING ANTICIPATES, IT KNOWS WHAT IS COMING, AND WHAT SHOULD BE COMING, IT KNOWS IN ADVANCE, AND IT SHOULD DO.

Because of this it has an enormous factory, and an enormous quantity of goods, and good goods. A fellow is a used-to-be, has been, or might have been known, but he didn't know. It is all in the point of view. Only in the present is this consolation to found in the donkey a statesman to be a has-been than a never was. After you are and are doing a thing and it is known to be done, certain little piping voices are heard saying: "We, too, can do that." If you will pay us enough money to do it.

We made the Steel Windmill business, made the price which the best of our imitators can only hope to reach and in their endeavor to approach it, are experimenting at the expense of the user. Our enormous output, factory and foreign, W. [illegible] reason in this. WE BUILD THE BEST WE KNOW, REGARDLESS OF COST, and we believe [illegible] we know that this article, exposed to the elements galvanized, but if properly galvanized will last years. Exposed sure galvanized will last [illegible] locally as good as new. [illegible] 6-ft. [illegible] the barbed wire is an eighth of an inch thick, while the steel used in the spokes of windmills is from one second to a sixty-fourth of an inch thick, and therefore only from a fourth to one eighth as long, as the other things being equal, but they are not equal. The metal has been pounded through it and is riveted and more than 1 piece.

The substitutes of this parts at once crack around the rivets, and water always gets in and rots the thin parts. Some have tried galvanized steel, which rusts. There is no good way to paint it. The coating of the galvanized metal is expensive and protected. WE BUILD FOR THE AGES. We would run a power painted wheel, or one [illegible] lasted before paint [illegible] we double price for it. We [illegible] we know, and know. Pumps are practicable, we have nothing to do with them.

Where the section of an Aermotor Wheel is shown, it is [illegible] of galvanized steel, painted and [illegible] of rust and moisture. It is then immersed in [illegible] which fills every pore and [illegible] Aermotor Wheel, Vane and Tower in one and a [illegible] it is first paint, but which, after standing for [illegible] with the steel a chemical combination of alloy which [illegible] and is practically indestructible.

By this decision the injunction suit is dissolved upon the ground that it was ill based, and the contempt suit was dismissed.

The mountainous district southeast of Monclava, Mexico, is being swept by forest fires, and during the past few days hundreds of thousands of acres of valuable timber have been destroyed. The fire has also burned all the grass off a vast territory of good cattle range between Sabinas and the Sierra del Carmen, and hundreds of head of live stock have perished in the flames. A great many families have been made homeless by the fire, which is rapidly moving in a north-westerly direction.

CRISP FOR SENATOR.

After Mature Deliberation Governor Northen Appoints Him.

The Selection a Surprise---Will He Accept?

Charles Frederick Crisp has been appointed United States senator from Georgia to succeed the late Alfred H. Colquitt. This result was reached Thursday night by Governor Northen. At the same time the governor authorized the announcement that he, himself, would not be in the race for the senatorship.

Name after name was considered, and all were men fit to be senators, but the logical man of the situation, as it appeared to the governor, was Charles F. Crisp, and to him the governor sent the following telegram:

"The Hon. Charles F. Crisp, Speaker of the House of Representatives, Washington, D. C.: I have appointed you to fill the vacancy in the United States senate caused by the death of Senator Alfred H. Colquitt. I beg that you will at once tender me your resignation, so that I can forward your commission in time for you to take your place in the senate and take part in the discussion and settlement of the tariff measure soon to come before the senate.

"I am pleased to tender to you this appointment, because your distinguished services in the house have commanded the admiration and endearment of our people, and I am quite sure that my action will be most heartily applauded by them.

(Signed) W. J. NORTHEN,
Governor.

Whether Speaker Crisp will accept or not he does not know himself. The following private message was received from him:

WASHINGTON, March 30.—Am profoundly grateful, but taken by surprise. Had no idea such a thing was in contemplation. Must confer with the democrats in the house before I can decide whether I can accept or not. CHARLES F. CRISP.

GROWTH OF THE SOUTH.

The Industrial Situation as Reported for the Past Week.

The review of the industrial situation in the South for the past week shows that there is a very general and wide spread revival in industrial, business and financial circles. Favorable weather has been promptly taken advantage of and many new buildings are in progress. There is also a considerable increase both in the number of new industries reported, and in the number of enlargements of manufacturing plants. An interesting and noteworthy feature of the industrial development is that it covers almost every branch of manufactures.

Fifty-one new industries were established or incorporated during the week, together with eleven enlargements of manufactories and thirty-two important new buildings. Prominent among the new industries of the week are the following: The Red River Cotton Mill Co., of Denison, Texas, capital $320,000; the Lake City Cotton Manufacturing Co., of Lake City, Fla., capital $100,000, the Milam County Oil Mill Co., of Cameron Texas, capital $50,000; the Central Lumber Co., of Little Rock, Ark., capital $25,00.; the Berkeley County Canning Co., of Martinsburg, W. Va., capital $25,000, and the Wheeling Tent and Awning Co., of Wheeling, W. Va., capital $30,000.

Brick works are to be built at Velasco, Texas, canning factories at Dawson, Ga., Dover, Ky., Henderson and Murphy, N. C., and Big Stone Gap, Va., a cotton compress at Velasco, Texas, and cotton mills at Swainsboro, Ga., and Concord, N. C. An electric lighting plant is reported at Lewisburg, Tenn., flour and grist mills at Hampton, Fla., Elkin, N. C., Rogersville, Tenn., Austin, Texas, and Williamsburg, Va.; foundries and machine shops at Camden, Ark., Dayton, Ky., Greenville, S. C., and Woodstock, Va. An oil mill will be built at Perry, Ga., and a sugar refinery at Perry, La. Tanneries are reported at Swainsboro, Ga., and Parsons, Va., and tobacco works at Elkin, N. C., and Franklin, Tenn. Woodworking plants are to be built at Huntsville and Gurley, Ala., Camden and Verner, Ark., Brooklyn, Fla., Pinia, Walterstown, Waycross and Valdosta, Ga., Bowen, Ky., Tunica, Miss., Ellores, S. C., and Pittsburg, Tenn.

The new buildings reported for the week include business houses at Cullman, Ala., Ocala and St. Augustine, Fla., Augusta, Ga., El Dorado and Houston, Texas; a $20,000 court house at Somersville, Ga.; a $300,000 hotel and sanitarium at Charleston, W. Va.; a $40,000 school building at Atlanta, Ga., and residences at Charleston, W. Va., Louisville, Ky., and Orangeburg, S. C.—Tradesman (Chattanooga, Tenn.

To Sell Georgia Pacific.

It is officially announced from New York that the Richmond Terminal reorganization committee has obtained a decree of foreclosure of the Georgia Pacific railway and that the property will be pressed to a speedy sale. Other decrees are expected shortly.

THE FIFTY-THIRD CONGRESS

The House and Senate Called to Order in Regular Session.

Daily Summary of Routine Business in the Two Houses.

THE HOUSE.

In the house, Tuesday, Patterson, of Tennessee, called up the contested election case of O'Neill vs. Joy, from the eleventh district of Missouri, Mr. Reed raised the question of consideration, and the yeas and nays were ordered. The vote resulted yeas 169, nays 1—seven less than a quorum.

In the house, Wednesday, an order from the committee on rules was reported for the immediate consideration of contested election cases of O'Neill vs. Joy and of English vs. Hubern, votes to be taken after two hours debate in each case. The vote on ordering the previous question was, ayes 164, nays none. Mr. Reed made the point of no quorum, and the yeas and nays were ordered. A quorum was finally obtained, and the previous question on the O'Neill-Joy contested election case was ordered.

At 12:25 Thursday, while the roll of the house was being called on the contested O'Neill-Joy election case, Mr. Pruden, the president's executive clerk, appeared at the bar of the house and transmitted the president's special message vetoing the Bland seigniorage bill. As Pruden announced that he was directed to transmit the message in writing and the president's approval of sundry house bills, for a moment the democrats believed that possibly Mr. Cleveland had signed the Bland bill. Members rushed down the aisles from all directions and crowded about the speaker's desk. Speaker Crisp himself broke the seal. One glance was enough. "It is a veto," said he and word was passed from lip to lip. The news was received with a mixture of joy and sorrow. Few of the eastern democrats plumed themselves on the accuracy of their predictions, but to the vast majority the news of veto was a severe blow, and their expressions of disatisfaction in some cases were loud and emphatic. The republicans seemed to be greatly elated at the confusion and havoc created in the democratic camp by the message.

THE SENATE.

At 12:12 p. m. the senate, as a tribute of respect to the memory of the late Senator Alfred H. Colquitt of Georgia, adjourned till 9 o'clock Tuesday morning, when the funeral ceremonies over his remains were to be held in the senate chamber.

The solemn funeral ceremonies of the late Senator Colquitt, of Georgia, were conducted in the senate chamber Tuesday morning. The hour fixed was 9 a. m., and promptly at that hour the vice president took the chair. Shortly before then the casket containing the remains, and laden with wreathes of flowers, had been carried into the chamber and placed on a bier in the area in front of the clerk's desk. In a few minutes afterwards, the officials of the government, whose presence had been invited, the speaker and members of the house and cabinet were in their seats. The ladies of the family of the dead senator, heavily clad in mourning, sat near the coffin. The services were conducted by the senate chaplain, Rev. Mr. Milburn, assisted by the chaplain of the house of representatives. The funeral services were conducted by the blind chaplain in his most solemn and affecting style. The address was followed by a benediction, and with that, the simple, solemn ceremonies closed. The coffin was borne out of the chamber by a dozen uniformed men of the capitol police, preceded by the members of the committees appointed by the two houses to take order for the funeral. The members of the family, consisting of the widow, daughters and son, followed; and then the members of the cabinet, members of the diplomatic corps, justices of the supreme court, the speaker and members of the house of representatives. The immense audience which filled the galleries moved out at the same time, and, as the usual order was restored to the chamber, Mr. Harris, after consultation with the vice-president, moved that the senate adjourn until Wednesday at noon. The body of the late senator was escorted from the capitol to the Pennsylvania station by a squad of capitol police, followed by the congressional committee which is to accompany the remains to their last resting place. The funeral party left Washington over the Richmond and Danville railroad for Macon, Ga. The home of Mr. Colquitt is at Atlanta, but almost all his family sleep in Macon, and he will be placed beside them in that city.

In the senate Wednesday the bill to provide for the free and unlimited coinage of silver, introduced by Mr. Stewart, was laid on the table for the present. Mr. Dolph introduced a joint resolution declaring the Clayton-Bulwer treaty no longer in force. It was referred. The senate then went into executive session to consider Florida nominations.

The pension appropriation bill was reported to the senate, Thursday, from appropriation committee. The amount carried is the same as carried by the bill as it passed the house. An amendment making a pension a vested right was added by the senate committee.

A RAGING BLIZZARD.

Snow Twenty Feet Deep in the Northwest--Heavy Loss of Stock.

Dispatches from Buffalo, Wyoming, state that the wires are just up after the late storm which continued a terrible blizzard for over seventy-six hours without abating. The temperature averaged zero and blinding snow obscured the sky like clouds of dust. Snow drifted ten to twenty feet deep in every direction and all roads were impassable. The coach took five days coming from Clar Mone, thirty miles distant on the Burlington road. Ranchmen from the outside are unable as yet to reach the city but reports from stockmen near by show that the loss stock is terrible.

OUR LATEST DISPATCHES.

The Happenings of a Day Chronicled in Brief and Concise Paragraphs

And Containing the Gist of the News From All Parts of the World.

Fire at Hattiesburg, Miss., destroyed the Wiscassett planing mill, dry houses and about 2,000,000 feet of lumber. Loss, $80,000; partly insured.

A general strike of 10,000 coke workers and miners of the Connellsville region has been ordered by the executive committee of the United Mine Workers, to go into effect at once.

The Cincinnati, Hamilton and Dayton railroad has purchased from Baron Erlanger the controlling interest in the Cincinnati, New Orleans and Texas Pacific railroad, known as the Queen and Crescent route.

A special from Columbia, S. C., says: There came very near being a serious riot and much bloodshed in Darlington resulting from what was thought to be an intention on the part of the state dispensary constables to raid private houses.

Dispatches from Grenada, Duckhill, Utica and Hazelhurst, Miss., report that ice, sleet and snow covered the ground Thursday morning, completing the destruction of all vegetation that frost can kill. The loss to truck farms and orchards is very great. At Duckhill the snowstorm was the heaviest for years.

The rumored assignment of George W. Palmer, the millionaire, of Saltville, Va., is positively denied by those associated with him in business in Lynchburg, Va., and elsewhere. A private telegram received from Mr. Palmer says: "I have not made an assignment, nor do I propose to do so." The story seems to have originated in Richmond.

A Chattanooga special says: A reduction of 10 per cent in the wages of all employes of the Queen and Crescent railroad, to take effect April 1st, has been announced. The reduction affects 7,000 employes on the line between Cincinnati and New Orleans and means a saving of nearly a million dollars annually. This is the last road in the south to make the reduction.

A man calling himself Harry Lee applied to the police station at Galesburg, Ill., for food and shelter. He said he was a brother of General Robert E. Lee of Virginia. He said the family had become impoverished in the south and he had come north to make money. He bore letters and pictures of the Lee family to establish his identity, and seems well educated.

The South Carolina state board of canvassers is still considering the Izlar-Stokes contest, It has been decided that no testimony should be admitted which had not been previously submitted to the county returning board. This will have the effect of excluding a large part of the evidence relied upon by Stokes and heightens the probability that Izlar will recieve the certificate.

The sprinkling contract scandal at Nashville has developed another phase. The grand jury has returned indictments against J. J. Anderson of Nashville and Freeman Wright and P. O'Connell of St. Louis, for conspiracy to bribe a city official. The committee investigating the charges of bribery found that no bribery was committed, but the evidence pointed to the conclusion that a conspiracy was formed for that purpose but was not carried out.

The grand jury of Surry county, N. C., has returned true bills against nine of the men who broke into Alleghany county jail and lynched Dan Slaughter. Six of the men thus charged are from Ashe county, two from Alleghany county and one from Wilkes county. Alexander Rose, the captured and wounded lyncher, has been forced to turn state's evidence, and will be released on giving $1,500 bail for his appearance from court to court, as the state authorities are bent upon punishing the lynchers.

Captain Frederick V. Abbott, United States engineer in charge of the jetty improvements in Charleston harbor, has completed a new survey of the approaches to Charleston harbor, which shows a marked deepening of the ship channel from deep water outside to deep water inside the bar. By the survey of last December there was a shoal of one thousand feet in width at the inner end of the channel and this shoal has been narrowed to about twenty feet. In December there was a clear channel of twenty feet and six inches and in the new survey there is a clear channel of twenty-two feet and four inches.

AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Affairs of Government and News of the Departments Discussed.

Notes of Interest Concerning the People and Their General Welfare.

The river and harbor bill has been completed and adopted by the committee. It appropriates about nine and a half million dollars.

The house committee on agriculture has perfected the Hatch anti-option bill and directed Mr. Hatch to report it to the house favorably. The vote on the bill was 12 to 2.

Speaker Crisp and twenty or thirty other democrats visited the president Wednesday morning in behalf of the Bland seigniorage bill. They urged the president to approve the bill.

The house elections committee Tuesday morning fixed the time for argument on the case of Watson vs. Black, from the tenth Georgia district, for Thursday, April 5, and the Goode vs. Eppes, from the fourth Virginia district, was set for April 24.

The Pollard-Breckinridge case has developed the fact that there is no law in the District of Columbia for the punishment of seduction. Congressman Morse, of Massachusetts, has introduced a bill which contains the text of the stringent Massachusetts law on this subject.

Wednesday morning the senate committee on foreign relations discussed the proposition to back the Nicaraugnan canal with bonds to be secured by the government and the Chinese treaty, recently negotiated by Secretary Gresham, but no action was taken on either matter.

It is stated upon good authority that the Earl of Kimberley's explanation of the situation given to United States Embassador Bayard, at an interview, concerning the carrying out of the findings of the Behring court of arbitration, were entirely satisfactory. A bill giving legal operations to the provisions of the court's findings will be presented to parliament and every effort be made to expedite its passage.

In a communication sent to the house Wednesday, Attorney General Olney says that of the $200,000 recently appropriated as an urgent deficiency for fees for witnesses, $31,000 has been distributed as follows: Northern district of Georgia. $6,000; southern district of Georgia, $2,000; northern district of Alabama, $1,000; middle district of Alabama, $3,000, and $5,000 for Florida. An additional appropriation is an urgent necessity the attorney general says.

The president sent to the senate, Thursday, the following nominations: J. L. Cottrell, of Florida, to be collector of customs for the district of St. Marks, Fla.; W. A. Fitch, of Texas, for the district of Saluria, Texas; D. G. Brent, of Florida, for the district of Pensacola, Fla.; J. M. Harris, of Tennessee, surveyor of customs for the port of Memphis, Tenn. Postmasters—S. D. Rice, Florence, Ala.; Herman Herzberg, Gadsden, Ala.; C. H. Leggett, Fernandina, Fla.

The President and the Seigniorage Bill.

A Washington dispatch says: The situation at the white house presents one strong feature of novelty in the fact that it appears to be the scene of a bloodless battle just now between the congressmen on one hand, the large majority of whom are urging the signing of the seigniorage bill, and the great commercial institutions of the country on the other; for twenty-nine out of every thirty of the communications coming from them pray for the veto of the bill. The congressmen have the advantage of personal pressure on the field, but the other side is in evidence in great force in the enormous number of letters that burden the presidential mail and of the telegrams that come so numerously as to keep the wires hot and the white house operator occupied to his full capacity. These communications by mail and wire are coming from all parts of the country and are not, as might be supposed, altogether of eastern origin. For instance, there were appeals from Cincinnati, St. Louis, San Francisco and Salem, Oregon. Virginia has also joined the line, as was made evident by protests against the bill from the cotton factors of Norfolk and the transportation interests there. A very thoughtful presentation of objections to the bill has come from Richmond. Of course, it is manifestly impossible for the president to read in detail all of these communications, but they are carefully examined by Mr. Thurber and any new point or suggestion on either side of the case is brought to the attention of the president. There are all sorts of stories afloat as to the president's disposition towards the bill, and some have gone to the length of reciting that he has already prepared a veto measure and that he read a draft of it to the members of the cabinet. The subject was discussed at the meeting from all points of view. But some of the members intimate that the president is still open to conviction.

Eight Children Burned to Death.

John Wilts's residence, at McKendree, West Va., was burned Thursday morning. His eight children and Miss Mollie Henrick, a servant, were burned to death. Two of the children were twins, six weeks old. Mrs. Wilts made an effort to save them, but she had to leave them to perish with the others of the family. The fire occurred at 6 o'clock, and the roof was falling in when discovered. Mr. Wilts is employed as a watchman by the Chesapeake and Ohio Railway Company.

BUSINESS REVIEW.

Report of Trade for the Past Week by Dun & Co.

R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade says: It is perplexing to be obliged to report that business grows larger in volume, at the same time not more profitable. Uncertainty does not diminish, but has rather increased in the judgment of many commercial bodies that have urged the president to veto the seigniorage bill.

Prices of commodities do not rise, but are on the whole, about 1.5 per cent lower than last week, though then the lowest ever known in this country and are 12.9 per cent lower than a year ago. No more gold has gone abroad, and stocks average only 3 cents per $100 for railroads than last week and exactly the same for trust stocks; but some foreign purchases and the intervention of a holiday explain the steadiness. More mills are at work, though the portion of productive force employed is still from a fifth to a third in different branches of industry, and many mills are stopping because their orders have run out, even while a large number are starting, with orders enough for a time.

The prospect of getting constant or remunerative employment for works and hands does not change. The fact that orders keep only part of the force at work, while both prices and wages tend downward, though spring is near at hand, renders present business less profitable and the future less promising.

Mills are getting orders enough to start and others, which have filled orders in sight, stop without trusting to future trade. The demand for cotton goods is fairly large, but with reduction in prices of some grades, and the accumulation of print cloths continue. A large auction sale of silks brought fairly satisfactory prices. Sales of wool for three weeks have exceeded last year's 23.9 per cent, though transactions this month last year were about 40 per cent below the average.

The volume of domestic trade measured by clearings for the week has been 32 1-10 per cent. smaller than last year and outside of New York 17.9 per cent., the decrease being there less, but at New York greater than the previous week. There is a more encouraging increase than for many months in eastbound tonnage from Chicago, and at Indianapolis the movement is almost as large as last year, while westbound tonnage of high class merchandise is also large.

With long delay in fixing the basis of taxation, treasury embarrassments increase, and since the Bland bill passed the government bonds recently purchased are quoted at prices below the cost with interest.

The failures for the week ending March 15th involved liabilities of only $2,558,818, and for two weeks of March only $4,835,110, of which $2,330,257 were of manufacturing and $2,446,069 of trading concerns. Some deferred reports will further swell the aggregate, but at San Francisco the resumptions reported now exceed the failures. A number of railroad receiverships are noticed, though none of importance. The failures this week number 244 in the United States, against 217 last year, and fifty in Canada, against twenty-six last year. It is noteworthy that Canadian failures are considerably increasing.

PROFIT IN TELEPHONES.

The Bell Company Pays Over Three Million in Dividends for 1893.

At the annual meeting of the stockholders of the Bell Telephone Company at Boston, Mass., it was shown that the net earnings for the year ending December 31, 1893, were $3,925,485.69, an increase of $503,010.91 over the year before. The expenses were $1,856,591,30 and the regular extra dividends paid to the stockholders amounted to $3,339,156. The value of the company's assets in telephones, real estate, stocks, accounts receivable, etc., is $45,712,340.52.

To Fight English Capital.

A Philadelphia special says: Organized labor is soon to engage in a battle that will affect international interests, and may ultimately lead to international complications. War to the knife will be declared by the Knights of Labor against twenty or more breweries in St. Louis—controlled by an English syndicate—and it is stated that before many months the plant of every brewery concerned will be absolutely idle, and that millions of dollars of English capital will become unproductive.

Funeral Services Over Kossuth.

The funeral services over the remains of Louis Kossuth were held in the Evangelical church at Turin. The city was crowded with sightseers and the streets presented a most remarkable appearance, owing to the immense number of Hungarians in full national costume. The streets through which the funeral procession passed were lined by municipal guards, and on all sides were to be seen mourning emblems and crape-draped flags.

Won't Surrender DaGama.

The New York Herald's Rio dispatch says that the government of Portugal has replied to Peixoto's demands and refused to surrender the insurgent refugees who sought an asylum on their vessels after the surrender in Rio harbor. It maintains that to comply with the demands would be contrary to the principles of humanity and opposed to all precedents of international law.

M'Kane Men Sentenced.

A New York dispatch says: Sixteen Gravesend election inspectors, who pleaded guilty to the charge of conspiracy, have been sentenced to terms of imprisonment ranging from twenty-nine days to six months, and several were fined in addition.

LAND OF THE TINNEES.

CIVILIZED INDIANS OF THE FAR NORTHWEST.

They Subscribe For a Paper Printed in Their Own Language and Have a Postal System.

A WAY to the Northwest of America in the mysterious corner of British Columbia, bordered by "unexplored territory" and hemmed in by mighty mountains, dwells a race of red men who daily grow more numerous, who have made themselves proficient in many of the arts of peace, and who, as they become known in their customs and conditions, must excite the wonder and attention of the civilized world. The people are known to the few travelers who have found their way among them as the Tinnees, and they have their infrequent communication with "civilization" chiefly through the Hudson Bay Company posts at Fort George and Fort Fraser. Their morals are more strictly guarded than are those of any white Nation of to-day; they esteem cleanliness both of person and surroundings as they do courage; and they have a saying that "to desert a friend is worse than to slay him."

The last white visitors to the home of the Tinnees were the men composing the Government survey party sent north last summer under A. L. Poudrier, which has recently returned. The appended notes of the chief of the expedition give some interesting facts concerning the Tinnees and the land they live in.

"The immense country north of the fifty-fourth parallel, generally described as the 'lake region,' is hardly known to the present generation. Years ago, during the gold excitement in Omineca, a great deal of trade and travel was taken that way, and nearly all the old pioneers are familiar with the wonderful scenery of the section.

"Since the gold boom the only inhabitants of this extensive country have been Indians and a few Hudson Bay Company employes. The natives are known as the Tinnees, this name including the whole race, some of the representatives of which inhabit the country east of the Rocky Mountains, others peopling the lake region proper and still others living as far to the south as the Chilcotin River. The race is divided into many families: First, the Chilcotins, living on the plain of that name; then the 'Carriers,' or 'porteurs,' around Fort Fraser, and, again, the Sicosanies and the Nahanies, occupying the country north and east of the Nechaco River.

"In language the Tinnees have no relationship with the other tribes of the North, but, curiously, Indians living as far south as California (the Navajoes, for example), or in Oklahoma, the Chilcotees, speak a tongue very similar to that of the Tinnees.

"Of late years a young and energetic missionary, Father Morrice, of Stuart Lake, has been giving his time and talents to the upbuilding of a Tinnees Nation which shall compare not unfavorably in many ways with that of the whites. The mother tongue of the Tinnees, which is exceedingly rich in expression, has been through his efforts reduced to a system of phonetic writing, the characters being remarkable for the simplicity and from the fact that they rest rather than weary the eye of the reader. The written language is so simple and so systematic that a child or a man may with equal facility learn to read or write it to perfection. Not one of the tribe, from a child of six to the old men and women of three score and ten, is unable to-day to either read or write.

"The phonetic Tinnees is employed by the Indians in their correspondence—for they have risen to the dignity of a postal system of their own—in the marking of signs for the guidance of travelers and explorers, and in the hundred and one other ways familiar to civilized Nations.

"To further develop the theory and render its success more complete Father Morrice, with the aid of the Indians, had special types cast from his own designs, bought a printing press and three years ago printed and published several elementary works on the language and history of the Nation. For the past two years he has been issuing a monthly newspaper, to which every Indian in the vast district is a willing subscriber. It is called the News. Its first page is devoted exclusively to local affairs, such as hunting and trapping and all else which may practically interest the community in which it circulates. Another portion is devoted to religious subjects, and the remainder of its sixteen pages of space treats of the world in general, a great deal of attention being paid to science, the customs and manners of foreign countries, useful inventions, etc.

"There is," says Mr. Poudrier, "no other part of the province where the Indians are so highly civilized, so truthful and so honest—rare qualities indeed for an Indian race. One great advantage traceable to the publication of the News is the development of a taste for and a knowledge of agriculture. The hunting and trapping are nearing an end in the lake region, and the natives see that the resource which they must in future look to is farming. The new generation is fast becoming a community of scientific tillers of the soil. Were all the Indians of America in so advanced a state they would at no time be a cause of anxiety; the Government would never be called upon to supply their wants, and the white brother could learn not a little from them that he does not now know."

In fourteen States and Territories of the Union marriage between first cousins is forbidden by law.

The failure of President Cleveland to sign the coinage bill was a disappointment to many Democrats. They believed that the adoption of that measure would greatly quiet the financial question. Mr. Cleveland gave solid reasons against the bill, the wisdom of which even his enemies have not attempted to answer. Of course he is blamed by both those inside and outside of the party. To vilify is easy, but to answer arguments is another thing.

The Third Party (county) officials of Dale county are accused of squandering the people's money in paying their own salaries, and letting out contracts for building and repairing bridges, to third party favorites. The charges seem well found because the late grand jury recommended that contracts be let to the lowest bidder regardless of the political affiliation of the applicant. One instance is shown where a Populite got $15 more for a job than a Democrat offered to do the same work for.

If the white people of Alabama are with Kolb, and want him for Governor, why does he go to New England to get money from the Republicans? Is it necessary to pay his following to stand by him? If he is not going to buy white men who is he expecting to be able to purchase? Surely not the negroes, for he and his helpers have too often claimed that he would not have the position of Governor unless elected to it by the white men of Alabama. Southern white men cannot be bought by yankee money!

The Southern farmers are not protectionalists. They are for tariff, revenue only. They have no interest or sympathy with the Republican legislation which has built up huge manufacturing industries in the north at the expense of the Southern farmer; and it was a great surprise to learn that they had endorsed the Kolb platform, one plank of which favored protection. But that is all clear now. That plank was put there to help raise that corruption fund in the east. The farmer wants his hats, clothing and farming implements at a fair price to the manufacturer, but does not care to pay an extra bonus.

In the late Republican meeting at Birmingham Lewis H. Parsons wanted the Jeffersonian tickets endorsed, Judge Stratton, of Montgomery, who stands close to Kolb and who is a strict Republican of the reconstruction type, stated that the Jeffersonians had requested the Republicans not to endorse the Kolb ticket at present, but to wait until after the Democratic Convention to do so. Judge McDuffey said that he was opposed to endorsing any one who was ashamed to ask any Republican for his support and afraid to acknowledge that the Republicans are helping him. He did not propose to support Kolb. On motion of DeLemos the matter was tabled. But they will stand by him all the same.

The Troy Jeffersonian a Populite paper for Pike County, says: "Let Massachusetts send down their $50,000. We'll thank them for it. If there are any Republicans in any other state north who wish to contribute money in downing the ballot thieves in Alabama, let them send it along. We'll need all the money we can get in this fight." The writer of that article used to be a "black belt" Democrat. Five years ago he would have felt outraged had a Southern man made such a move as Kolb has undertaken among northern Republicans. He failed to be elevated to office by his brother Democrats; he wanted a job, he floated awhile and now you can see where he is.

The following editorial so aptly describes that arch pretender and traitor Reuben F. Kolb, that we give it space. How can a man ever claiming to be a Democrat follow the fortunes of such a deceiver any further. Year after year he has made the most strenuous denials of deflection from Democracy, but at last, when even Senator Hoar, the bitterest of the bitter in his feelings toward the South, says that it is a fact that Kolb is calling for yankee money with which to break up the solid South, he throws off the veil and say yes it is all true. Will Southern men be any longer parties to such a devilish scheme? What does it mean? If successful it would reinforce the election laws. It would put negroes on the juries, negroes as justice of the peace, constables, sheriff's, probate judges, legislators, governors and congressmen. It would bring upon us even worse times than the days of reconstruction. It would put the South at the mercy of the protectionalists of the north. It would engender strifes and heart burnings whose results would be felt for years to come. If Kolb has all along contended this is a fight between white Democrats why does he go into the very bosom of Republicanism and the hot bed of monopoly for his campaign funds? That claim was made in order to deceive good men and lead them from but now the facts are out, the mark is off, the people have been tolled afar from the fold and the demagogue hopes to hold them regardless of the exposure of his treachery. But can he do it? We believe not. Surely men who laid down their very lives to forbid the north from interference with Southern rights will not now allow them by gifts of money to bring them into subjection:

"The progress of the traiter is gradual. His first step is impatience with the dictum of his party when that dictum bars his course to dignity and emolument. The party is wrong because it has not recognized his aspirations and put him in office.

"Next, within his party's ranks this disgruntled patriot smites his breast and says his brethern have done him injustice. He gathers about him all the disaffected members of the household, and this motley band of the ever-seeking and ever-disappointed demand an abdication of the powers of the State to themselves and their leader. All the while they boast of their patriotism and love of the party. They would be in the family in order to better reform it.

"The third step is the secret consort with the enemies of their party. With love of their party on their lips they dicker with its sworn foes in dark chambers, and recieve in stealth the aid they would not publicly acknowledge. They are going down and further down all the time, but pride and ambition darken their eyes, and they cannot see the pit they dig.

"The fourth and last step is when they have become so entangled with their party's foes and their party's foes so thoroughly identified with their cause, as secrecy to to the alliance is impossible, and they boldly unmask their batteries about their own city and disclose the tents and colors of her life long adversaries in tranquil line with their own. The conspiracy is complete, the lines as well drawned and the so-called reformers are found in the battle array to destroy their party and divide its remains with her enemies.

Reuben Kolb has passed through all these stages. His telegram yesterday to Senator Hoar shows him in the leadership of the combined enemies of Democracy. The dye is cast. So might it be."—Birmingham News.

This from the Age-Herald to the young men of Alabama is sound advice and we commend the words to the young men of Chilton county:

"Young men should be very careful as to the stand they take in these troublous times A false step now will ruin their chances for all time to come. In making their choice they should be guided by conscientious convictions. Any pandering to the ambition of demagogues will prove fatal to their prospects. If they ship their helm and float in the shifting currents of popular prejudice they will surely shipwreck their political fortunes. If they follow cunning instead of wisdom, chicanery instead of statesmanship, and falsehood instead of the truth, they will certainly find out the error of their way when too late. If they entertain the idea that love of country is a mere ambition for power, that disinterested patriotism is a sham and that devotion to duty is a pretext. The sooner they disabuse themselves of the idea the better. Thank God there are still men who place country above self, honor above success and power above place."

Montgomery favors having the Exposition. May it be a success.

Matters have about quieted down in South Carolina.

KOLB'S BOSTON DOODLE.

Boston, Mass. March 27th.—The political sensation of the hour here is the exposure of the movement among Republicans to to raise a big boodle fund to help elect Reuben F. Kolb Governor of Alabama. The Globe has published full details of the deal, and they are not denied by the participants. Col. Albert Clarke, Secretary of the Home Market Club, admits the truth of the movement. He says there is no reason for disguising the movement as it is a pure and simple effort to break up the Solid South.

The colonel was much surprised at the publication of his confidential communication, and also the letters attached. Said he: "The only error is the inference given that the matter is a Home Market Club movement. That is not so, as this club has nothing to do with it as an organization. This is a movement of Republicans who see an opportunity which has never before been offered to aid in a cause which will result in breaking up the solid south. These Republicans met here and are arranging matters, although not all of the committee are members of the Home Market Club. We believe that Captain Kolb has a good chance of election this year, and the Republican party in the South is weak and are kept so by practices which are a disgrace, so we think the Kolb party is worthy of our support. We do not take any part in the campaign but simply contribute towards the fund. We turn the money over to a committee and let them manage the campaign as they see fit. We do not presume to suggest anything as they know how to conduct a campaign down there better than we could tell them."

One of the members of the Home Market Club stipulated that his name should not appear, said:

"I was at a meeting some time ago where the matter was discussed, and saw Mr. Kolb, but took no stock in his statements. I think it is a grand mulking scheme, and if I may be permitted to use the term, he found several suckers in the gathering. Alden Speare was deeply impressed with the situation as outlined and in the goodness of his heart gave Mr. Kolb a good-sized check. But my opinion about the matter, he might just as well taken it to Long Wharf and dumped it into the sea, for it will do no good. Republicans might as well try to capture Texas as to try and carry Alabama.

Ex-Governor Oliver Ames is a big Home Marketer. He said:

"I never had much faith in Republican investments in the Southern States. The party is not germain to the soil, and it is money and time wasted in trying to roll up Republican votes south of Mason and Dixon's line."

Alden Speare said:

"I gave that money to Kolb in the cause of good government and not for the purpose of helping Republican principles of protection. It was represented to me and I have never seen the facts controverted, that altogether Mr. Kolb was elected by over 30,000 majority he was shamefully counted out, and what I gave was for the purpose of securing an honest ballot and a fair count."

In response to the telegram from Governor Jones Senator Hoar admits that his letter in the New York Sun of March 24th is genuine. In that letter Hoar commended the effort to raise $50,000 because he believed it would succeed in breaking the Solid South and assuring the success of protection. Further he said: "In some way, I have no doubt, that the forces he (Kolb) leads will be found acting with us in all great essentials in the future." Evidently Hoar believes that Kolb's Southern supporters will eventually be good Republicans. Of course Kolb has pledged northern South haters that such return shall be made for their gold.

Charles. F. Crisp was, on the 29th ult., appointed by Gov. Northern to fill out the unexpired term of Senator Colquitt deceased.

COMMENTS.

Of Those Who have been Cured or Greatly Benefitted by Using the Electropoise.

ALABAMIANS.

Capt. T. H. Hobart, conductor on the L. & N. railroad, Decatur, Ala., used it on his baby for nervousness and indigestion, the doctors having said the child could not live a week. From the first application of the Electropoise he began to improve, and now, after two weeks use of it he is entirely recovered.

B. F. Land, Dothan, used it for paralysis and have been wonderfully improved in every way, says: "I fully believe that the Electropoise is all in all to the sick, and will do all that is claimed for it."

George S. Vatfont, Mobile: "The Electropoise has been of great value to me, curing me of a distressing case of hay fever of ten years standing, and my entire household use it as a prompt cure for colds, fever, sore throat and violent pains."

Joseph Williams, Stevenson: "The Electropoise has entirely cured my rheumatism, and my general health is much improved."

Rev. J. S. Knowles, Headland: "The value of the Electropoise is inestimable."

A similar list could be given from other states. There are many others, but the testimony of such men ought to convince the most skeptical. Don't impose upon their time and patience. It our business.

A Call for a County Convention of the Democratic and Conservative Party of Chilton County.

Clanton, Ala., Mar. 27th, 1894.

To the Democrats of Chilton Co.

A convention of the Democratic and Consecutive party of the county Chilton, is hereby called to meet on Wednesday, May 16th 1894, at the court house in Clanton for the purpose of electing five delegates to the convention of the Democratic and Conservative party of Alabama, to meet on the 22nd day of May, 1894, at the State Capitol in the city of Montgomery for the purpose of nominating State officers to be voted at the next general election in this State, and the transaction of such other business as may properly come before it.

Under the resolution adopted by the State Convention, fixing the representation upon a population basis, the beats of the county are entitled to the following number of delegates in said county convention, to-wit:

Beat No. 1, Mims,	Delegates 1
Beat No. 2, Providence,	" 4
Beat No. 2, Jemison,	" 6
Beat No. 3, Benson,	" 4
Beat No. 3, Macedonia,	" 2
Beat No. 4, Clanton,	" 14
Beat No. 5, Coopers,	" 5
Beat No. 5, Verbena,	" 7
Beat No. 6 Kincheon,	" 5
Beat No. 7, Maplesville,	" 5
Beat No. 8, Dixie,	" 8

Beat meetings to elect delegates to said County Convention are hereby called to be held on Saturday the 12th day of May, 1894, at the respective places of voting in said beats, and each meeting will report to Dr. W. E. Stewart, the names of the delegates elected to said county convention. All qualified voters are entitled and requested to participate in said beat meetings, who come under any one of the following classifications, to-wit.

First, all those who voted in the last election for Cleveland and Stevenson.

Second, Those Democrats who would have voted for Cleveland and Stevenson in the last national election, but were prevented from so doing, because they were not able to go the polls.

Third all those who will be entitled to vote in the next election who are Democrats, who were not qualified voters in the last election, and who will support the ticket nominated by the next Democratic State Convention.

This call is made by me under advice of Hon. A. G. Smith, Chairman of the State Executive Committee, as shown by the correspondence hereto attached. The time for holding the Beat meetings and the County Convention and qualification of voters, is as fixed by the State Executive Committee in its call for the State Convention.

W. E. SEWART, Secretary.

CORRESPONDENCE.

Birmingham, Ala., Mar. 24, '94.

Hon. A. G. Smith, City.

Chairman of the State Executive Committee, Democratic and Conservative party of Ala.

Dear Sir:—Having removed from the county of Chilton, it was of course, proper that I should tend my resignation as Chairman of the County Executive Committee of the Democratic party, and with this view, I called a meeting of said County Executive Committee to be held on the 15th day of March, and was in Clanton on said day, but failed to secure a meeting of the committee. Only one member attended.

I am advised by Dr. W. E. Stewart, Secretary of the Committee that by reason of the resignation of some and the refusal of others to act, that a meeting of said committee cannot be had. I am desirous of taking such course as you may deem proper in the premises, and kindly ask that you advise me at once your views. Yours truly,

Wm. A. Collier.

Birmingham, Ala. Mar. 26, '94.

Hon. Wm. A. Collier, City.
Chairman Dem. Ex. Com. of Chilton Co.

Dear Sir:—Yours of the 24th to hand. In reply I have to say that you are still the Chairman of the Democratic Executive Committe of Chilton county, and in as much as you cannot get a meeting of your committee as its chairman, you should proceed to order primary elections or beat meetings to be held in Chilton county on Saturday the 12th day of May to elect delegates to a county convention to be held at some convenient place in the county, on Wednesday, May 16th, for the purpose of electing delegates to the State Convention, to be held at Montgomery, on May 22nd.

When this convention meets, if it sees proper to do so, it can elect another Executive Committee, which will take more interest in the welfare of the party. I understand that your executive committees have heretofore been elected by your conventions. If the people of Chilton county desire it, this same convention could nominate persons for each county office, as will have to be elected in August, or if they prefer it, the new executive committee, elected by this convention, can call another convention for that purpose.

Allow me to call attention to the fact that the representative from each county to the State convention is upon a population basis, and under that, Chilton county is entitled to five delegates. I enclose you also a copy of the call for the State convention, and in that call you will observe the qualifications of voters who may participate in the primary or beat meetings, as prescribed by the Executive committee under authority conferred by the last State convention.

It is very desirable that Democrats should now work together for the good of the party, and I feel sure that our friends in Chilton county will recognise this, and will aid you in ever way in their power in bringing about an organization of the party in that County.

Yours very truly,
A. G. SMITH,
Chairman.

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.
"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children." Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."
DR. G. C. OSGOOD,
Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."
DR. J. F. KINCHELOE,
Conway, Ark.

Castoria.
"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."
H. A. ARCHER, M. D.,
111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

A Singular Form of Monomania.

There is a class of people, rational enough in other respects, who are certainly monomaniacs in dosing themselves. They are constantly trying experiments upon their stomachs, their bowels, their livers and their kidneys with trashy nostrums. SENATOR COLQUITT DEAD.

His Earthly Labors Brought to a Peaceful Close

Surrounded by His Family and Friends Brief Sketch of His Life.

Three United States flags floating at half mast over the capitol of the nation Monday morning telling the sad news of the death of Georgia's senior senator. At 7:30 o'clock the soul of of the statesman and Christian patriot silently and peacefully slipped away.

Up to within two hours of his death General Colquitt was seemingly perfectly conscious. He was aware of the near approach of death, but there was no pain expressed upon his features. All of the members of his family were around his bedside; also his family physician and General and Miss Caroline Gordon.

When the news of the death of Georgia's senior senator became known in Washington there was shown overwhelming testimony of the cordial love entertained for him by the statesmen all over the country and the sympathy expressed for his family.

When the senate met the chair which General Colquitt had filled so ably and patriotically for the past 11 years, was draped in mourning. General Gordon, the life-long friend as well as the colleague of General Colquitt, announced his death in touching and affectionate language.

THE FUNERAL ARRANGEMENTS.

He also introduced a resolution notifying the house and the different branches of the death of his colleague and asking for the appointment of committees of the senate to accompany the remains to Georgia. The following is the list of senators who accompany the remains: Senators Gordon, chairman; Morgan, of Alabama; Butler, of South Carolina; Ransom, of North Carolina; Hoar, of Massachusetts; Perkins, of California; Proctor, of Vermont; Gray, of Delaware; Carey, of Wyoming, and Allen, of Nebraska.

SKETCH OF HIS LIFE.

Alfred H. Colquitt was born in Walton county, Georgia, in 1824. He was the son of Hon. Walter T. Colquitt, one of the ablest and most brilliant men of his day. It was said of the elder Colquitt that he had no superior as an orator. He was also an eminent jurist and a statesman of the very first rank. Surrounded by such an influence as that which came from the life and public career of his father, it is then no wonder that his talents should have ripened early. It was discovered at a very early age that he was in possession of much of his father's brilliant intellect.

Accordingly it was agreed upon to give him the advantages of the best education. As soon as he had completed his academic studies in his native state he was sent to Princeton college in New Jersey. As soon as young Colquitt returned to Georgia, after graduating with high honor from Princeton, he began to apply himself to the study of law. He made considerable progress in the study of his books and soon acquired the fundamental principles of his profession. The idea grew upon him, however, that while he was fond of oratory and debate, he was not exactly fitted for the detail and drudgery of the practice.

His reflections were in the line of agriculture. Yielding to the instinct of the farmer he soon deserted the forum for the fields, and began the career of a young Georgia planter. It was just about this time that his father resigned his seat in the Unit d States senate, and was succeeded by ex-Governor Towns. That was in 1847.

Though Colquit had given up the practice of law he had not by any means surrendered his love of politics. His first appearance in public life was in 1849. He was then the assistant secretary of the state senate.

WINS THE CONGRESSIONAL FIGHT.

In 1853, though scarcely thirty years of age, he became the candidate of the southern rights party for congress and was elected. His career in congress was brilliant and was characterized by the espousal of several measures contemplating the welfare and advancement of the country.

After his term of office expired he resumed his farming operations in Baker county. He figured prominently, however, in the political affairs of his district and was an active and earnest factor in promoting the ends of his party. He was a member of the state democratic convention that met in 1860, and was chosen as an alternate with William H. Dabney to the national convention that nominated Breckenridge and Lane.

Colquitt was an ardent secessionist and when the secession convention of 1861 met at Milledgeville he was one of the delegates.

Colquitt had been a soldier and afterwards an officer in the Mexican war of 1845. He distinguished himself by his gallant service and attained the rank of major. Accordingly, when the war of 1861 broke out he was not without experience as to the hardships and danger of a soldier.

The war record of Governor Colquitt was characterized by a dash and gallantry that placed him in the front rank of confederate officers. From the rank of a colonel he was steadily promoted until he wore on his collar the insignia of a major-general.

COLQUITT AS GOVERNOR.

Ten years after the war General Colquitt was exhaulted to the gubernatorial chair of the commonwealth of Georgia. During the decade which had followed the surrender of arms at Appomattox he had devoted himself to the peaceful employment of agriculture. It was during his administration that the constitutional convention of 1877 was called together.

Governor Colquitt during the first two years of his administration, by wise and prudent measures, succeeded in saving for the state the sum of $200,000.

There was a change, however, at least an apparent one, before the close of his term in the popular feeling which was entertained toward the chief magistrate. It grew out of his endorsement of the bonds of the Northeastern railroad for $260,000. His action in this matter was criticised by a majority of the legislature. This drew out his famous letter of November 6, 1876. A joint committee to investigate the charges against Governor Colquitt was appointed by the general assembly. These gentlemen met together on the 12th of December, 1878, and the result of their investigations was an overwhelming vindication.

In view of the aspersions which had been heaped upon the governor and the various drawbacks which were incident to his administration, he decided to go before the people for re-election and ask for a popular endorsement. This he did, and, in spite of many opponents, he plunged into that eventful campaign of 1880.

The election occurred and the majority of Governor Colquitt over his opponent was more than 50,000 votes.

ELECTED TO THE SENATE.

Governor Colquitt was elected to the United States senate in 1883 as the successor of Senator Hill, and again in 1889 as his own successor.

CONSIGNED TO THE TOMB.

The Mortal Remains of Senator Colquitt Laid to Rest.

Imposing Funeral Processions and Ceremonies at Atlanta and Macon.

After impressive funeral services in the senate chamber at Washington the remains of Senator Colquitt were placed upon a Richmond and Danville train, and accompanied by the family, the congressional escort and others, were borne away forever from the scenes of the late senator's greatest achievements. The run to Atlanta was made without special incident.

Just as the rays of a glorious sun were putting a purplish tinge to a gloomy, gray sky, the train rolled into the Union depot at Atlanta, the home of the distinguished dead. The train was met by a detachment of police and a military guard of honor.

As the dawn grew apace the people of the city began to bestir themselves and by 8 o'clock the crowds began to gather at the depot and the procession, which had previously been arranged for, was soon formed. The casket, containing all that was mortal of Alfred Holt Colquitt, was gently borne from the train, placed upon a hearse and the procession moved off to the state capitol.

The line was made up in the following order: Police, military, hearse, Confederate veterans, carriages containing members of the family and members of the congressional and senatorial delegations, members of city council and citizens. When the capitol was reached the casket was placed upon the bier erected to receive it, which was on the spot where the remains of Jefferson Davis were allowed to lie in state.

Around the bier were placed a number of beautiful floral tributes from the friends of Senator Colquitt. The top of the casket was removed, and all who desired were permitted to pass by and get a last glimpse at the silent and cold form of the man whom every one loved.

As soon as the great crowd which had assembled had passed by the bier, they gathered in the house of representatives to attend the memorial exercises. Every seat in the house was occupied, the galleries were crowded, and around the doorways many stood who could not gain admittance. After prayer, reading of scripture and songs beautifully rendered, brief and appropriate addresses were made by Governor Northen, Judge Bleckley and Mayor Goodwin.

At 10:30 o'clock the remains were returned to the hearse and in the order in which they went to the capitol the procession moved back to the union depot, and at 11 o'clock the train started for Macon.

AT MACON.

A military escort, civil delegations and citizens generally accompanied the remains from Atlanta to Macon. Arriving at the later city at two o'clock, the train was met by a vast concourse of people, all desirous of showing their love and respect for the dead senator. An immense procession was formed under command of Captain John Henderson, and Captain Kenan, and began to move in the following order to Mulberry street Methodist church: Military, Veteran's association, clergy, honorary pallbearers, active pallbearers, hearse, family, distinguished visitors, including senators, representatives and the governor and his staff, members of the state legislature, statehouse officials, mayor and council, members of the Macon bar, faculty and students of Mercer university and citizens in carriages. It was the longest funeral cortege ever seen in Macon. The streets were lined with people on every side and every face was veiled with a feeling of solemnity.

IN THE CHURCH.

It was nearly 3 o'clock when the front of the procession reached the door of the Mulberry Street church. The services were highly impressive and solemn, and were conducted by Dr. Monk, the pastor, assisted by Drs. Morrison and Candler.

The eulogy of Judge Candler was pronounced by all who heard it as one of the most remarkable tributes ever paid to the memory of the dead. When the services at the church were concluded the line was re-formed and the march to Rose Hill cemetery was begun.

AT THE GRAVE.

When the funeral procession reached the gates of the cemetery a large crowd had gathered and was there in waiting. Fully 5,000 people were present in the neighborhood of the grave for the purpose of testifying their respect to the memory of the distinguished dead.

The services at the grave were conducted by Dr. H. C. Morrison in his own beautiful and impressive manner. They were soon concluded and as the solemn benediction was pronounced the crowd dispersed.

In the silence of the gathering twilight, broken only by the mystic flow and murmur of the sweet Ocmulgee, all that was mortal of Georgia's gifted senator was left in the waiting of the resurrection.

THE NEWS IN GENERAL.

Condensed from Our Most Important Telegraphic Advices

And Presented in Pointed and Readable Paragraphs.

The Augusta, Ga., jobbers have boycotted the Armour Packing company in that city. The trouble is caused, the merchants claim, by the Armour company selling direct to the country trade cheaper than they can sell.

Mme. Patti and Sig Nicolini have sailed on the Campania for Liverpool. George W. Bowen accompanied them. There was a number of the diva's friends on the pier to see her off, and in her cabin a garden of flowers testified to the good wishes of many others.

A Nashville dispatch says: The state of Tennessee has filed a bill against ex-Governor John P. Buchanan, Treasurer M. F. House and ex-Comptroller J. W. Allen and their bondsmen, to recover $3,319 interest alleged to have been paid beyond the legal limit by them as a funding board.

An Albany, N. Y., dispatch says: Comptroller Roberts makes a statement regarding the alleged shortage in his office, amounting to $1,600,000. His statement flatly contradicts the report of a defalcation, and shows that the apparent discrepancy is due to rebates of taxes to various corporations, under the law.

Henry S. Louchiem & Co., bankers and brokers at Philadelphia, with a large business and reputed to be very wealthy, have made an assignment to General Louis Wagner, president of the Third National bank. No figures can be obtained, the doors of the banking house being closed and admittance thereto refused.

Quite a serious wreck occurred on the Illinois Central railway about two miles north of Oxford, Miss. Two through freight trains collided with tremendous force, completely wrecking both. The engines were telescoped and practically ruined. Some of the crew are killed or seriously hurt, but particulars cannot yet be learned.

Fire at Philadelphia destroyed the mill property owned by Rump & Brothers, manufacturers of table cloths and counterpanes, fronting on Huntingdon street and extending from Palethorpe to Hancock streets in the heart of the Kensington mill district. Total loss, $240,000. Nearly 400 persons are thrown out of employment.

Congressman W. L. Wilson's physician, Dr. Underwood, states that Mr. Wilson is gaining strength very rapidly, and if the weather remains favorable he will be able to take a great deal of outdoor exercise during the next ten days. Mr. Wilson is now at the home of ex-Congressman Ben Cable, eight miles south of San Antonio, Texas.

A Brooklyn, N. Y., dispatch says: Andrew Scott Jamieson, convicted last week of perjury in the Gravesend cases, has been sentenced by Judge Brown, in the court of oyer and terminer, to eighteen months in the penitentiary. The eighteen indicted election inspectors of Gravesend were then called upon to plead, and all plead guilty with two exceptions.

The arrival of Hungarians at Turin to pay respect to the memory of Kossuth increases daily. Every train brings hundreds of these mourners, and it is estimated that at least 8,000 will be present at the funeral services. The ceremonies will be held in the Protestant church, after which the body will be taken to the railway station for transportation to Hungary by a special train.

The sensation of the day in Knoxville, Tenn., is a fight which is being waged between the Catholics and the American Protective Association. The latter association was only recently organized there, but already has a strong following, and its power is being felt. The first action taken was a boycott issued against the American Protective Association merchants by the Catholics. Now, the A. P. A. is showing its hand.

A Detroit, Michigan, special says: James Wellington Brown, a polygamist, with the phenomenal record of twenty-six wives in the state of Michigan alone, and with other wives being heard from at times in other parts of the United States, has again come into public notice through the inquiries of two of his hitherto unreported wives. Four of his victims were residents of Detroit and two of them lived in the same ward.

During a performance in a theater at Lucca, Italy, in the province of that name a gentleman upon entering his box, found in the doorway a bomb with a lighted fuse. He seized the burning fuse, and by crushing it in his hand, put out the fire. The bomb was turned over to the police authorities, who had its contents analyzed. It was found to contain together with gunpowder, nails, bullets, bits of iron, etc., a quantity of picric acid.

A Memphis special says: The fruit and early vegetable crops in the southern states have been completely destroyed. Not a sign of vegetation remains to tell of the ravages of the cold wave. To add to the woe of the farmers, another blinding sleet storm is prevailing. The storm is accompanied by a high gale, which drives the fine particles of ice before it like so many needles. The telegraphs wire are prostrated and reports from the surrounding territory are slow coming in, but every dispatch brings tales of distress and loss.

DOCTORS MEET.

The International Medical Conference Assembles in Rome.

The doctors of the world assembled in Rome, Italy, in international conference. These great gatherings of the medical and scientific men of the world are held triennially, but, owing to various unforeseen circumstances this conference was postponed to the present date from last September. The men who speak here represent every phase of the medical and scientific world. The official list of Americans who will attend comprises almost two hundred names—hardly equal to the great attendance in Berlin in 1890.

Milk as a Drink.

Milk is an important food and should not be taken as a drink simply. If eaten as the Persians use it, holding it in the mouth until it is throughly combined with the saliva to aid in its digestion, as a part of the meal it is all right, taking the place of other food. It requires digestion as necessarily as any other food, but, that it may digest, it is first formed into a solid mass—"curd," and then acted upon as other solids. Unlike water, which requires no digestion, as a drink, it cannot take the place of our special drink between meals without much taxing the organs of digestion. This principle is well illustrated by the fact that the nursing infant cannot take its food rapidly, as it must pass through many small orifices, sieve-like, the drawing process exciting the flow of saliva, aiding in the digestion of the milk and the nourishment of the babe. I repeat, emphatically, that it is food, and not a proper drink.—Ex.

Rapid Growth of California Trees.

We have evidence in California the redwood trees cut down sixty years ago have made sprouts which are now trees from 3 to 5 feet in diameter, and from 100 to 150 feet high. It is the rapid growth of some of these trees which leads people to doubt their great age, but there seems to be no reason for doubting that the method of calculating by annual rings of wood is sound, and that the great age imputed to some of these trees has solid ground to work to build on.—Mechan's Monthly.

After reading the following letters can any one longer doubt that a trustworthy remedy for that terribly fatal malady, consumption, has at last been found? If these letters had been written by your best known and most esteemed neighbors they could be no more worthy of your confidence than they now are, coming, as they do, from well known, intelligent and trustworthy citizens, who, in their several neighborhoods, enjoy the fullest confidence and respect of all who know them.

K. C. McLin, Esq., of Kempsville, Princess Anne Co., Va., whose portrait heads this article, writes: "When I commenced taking Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery I was very low with a cough and at times spit up much blood. I was not able to do the least work, but most of the time was in bed. I was all run-down, very weak, my head was dizzy and I was extremely despondent. The first bottle I took did not seem to do me much good, but I had faith in it and continued using it until I had taken fifteen bottles and now I do not look nor feel like the same man I was one year ago. People are astonished and say, 'well, last year this time I would not have thought that you would be living now.' I can thankfully say I am entirely cured of a disease which, but for your wonderful 'Discovery' would have resulted in my death."

Even when the predisposition to consumption is inherited, it may be cured, as verified by the following from a most truthful and much respected Canadian lady, Mrs. Thomas Vansicklin, of Brighton, Ont. She writes: "I have long felt it my duty to acknowledge to you what Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and his 'Pleasant Pellets' have done for me. They almost raised me from the grave. I had three brothers and one sister die of consumption and I was speedily following after them. I had severe cough, pain, copious expectoration and other alarming symptoms and my friends all thought I had but a few months to live. At that time I was persuaded to try the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and the first bottle acted like magic. Of course, I continued on with the medicine and as a result I gained rapidly in strength. My friends were astonished. When I commenced the use of your medicines, six years ago, I weighed but 98 pounds and was sinking rapidly. I now weigh 135, and my health continues perfect."

Mrs. Thos. Vansicklin

"Golden Medical Discovery" cures consumption (which is scrofula of the lungs) by its wonderful blood-purifying, invigorating and nutritive properties. For weak lungs, spitting of blood, shortness of breath, nasal catarrh, bronchitis, severe coughs, asthma, and kindred affections, it is a sovereign remedy. While it promptly cures these severed coughs, it strengthens the system and purifies the blood.

"Golden Medical Discovery" does not make fat people more corpulent, but for thin, puny children, as well as for adults reduced in flesh, from any cause, it is the greatest flesh-builder known to medical science. Nasty cod liver oil and its "emulsions," are not to be compared with it in efficacy. It rapidly builds up the system, and increases the solid flesh and weight of those reduced below the usual standard of health by "wasting diseases."

To brace up the entire system after the grip, pneumonia, fevers, and other prostrating acute diseases; to build up needed flesh and strength, and to restore health and vigor when you feel "run down" and "used up" the best thing in the world is Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It promotes all the bodily functions, rouses every organ into healthful action, purifies and enriches the blood, and through it cleanses, repairs, and invigorates the entire system.

A Treatise on Consumption, giving numerous testimonials with phototype, or half-tone portraits of those cured, numerous references, also containing successful Home Treatment for chronic nasal catarrh, bronchitis, asthma, and kindred diseases, will be mailed by the World's Dispensary Medical Association of Buffalo, N. Y., on receipt of six cents in stamps, to pay postage. Or The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, 1,000 pages 300 illustrations, mailed for $1.50.

GOV. TILLMAN'S EDICT

He Takes Charge of Municipal Affairs in South Carolina.

AN ADDRESS TO THE PEOPLE

His Opinion Regarding the Disturbance at Darlington.

About 10 o'clock Tuesday morning the military troops which have been held in Columbia were ordered to the courtyard of the capitol, where they were drawn up into a line upon the order of Governor Tillman. The governor came out on the portico of the capitol and proceeded, in the presence of the soldiers and an immense crowd of people, to address the crowd. His three quarters of an hour. It was perhaps the most remarkable speech ever delivered by any man in the country. In opening he said:

"South Carolina today is attracting the attention of the United States. The situation here is so grave and so serious that it is proper that a plain and official statement should be made.

"I shall not budge one inch. I shall continue to carry out the will of the people. I am not going to advise the situation, but I am going to let the people know tomorrow by proclamation what I intend to do. The general statutes of the state are a matter of wealth, wisdom and strength. I would have been able to do what has been empowered to control the telegraph and railroad companies and keep assistance from the insurgents, allowing lying reports to go out to further influence the people? I have another sword of Damocles suspend over the heads of the insurgents and I will cut the string today. Section 519 of the statutes gives me power to take control of the police of the state, and the mayors and councils must compel them to do so or put the law. I intend to see that police do their duty or I'll discharge every man of them. I intend to be fair, and the law must be obeyed.

"I have sworn to support the laws of the state. Unless this is repealed, so help me God, I will exercise every power given me to see that it is observed." (Loud cheers.)

The governor then detailed the history of the trouble at Darlington. He made out a strong case against the mob. He then referred to the thrilling scenes enacted on this very spot in 1876. The governor said: "When the news of the collision at Darlington flashed over the country, lying reporters said that explosion would occur and that there was a ton of powder in the state, and the spark would not be dropped in it. They said civil war would come, but it didn't. It can not come, for the people are in the saddle and intend to remain there. [Cheers.] These men would destroy the state if they could only destroy me. The mob part has been sent abroad that the law was deily in danger. One prominent citizen told Mr. Yeiell, from my own county, that he had a shot-gun and came here to kill me. I can use his name if necessary. I have not felt any doubt as to my personal safety. I have remained at the mansion perfectly safe, but rather than allow my enemies by giving up to the mob I would have gone out of the office.

"The barroom element is at the bottom of it all, and the rulers of their own oligarchy are encouraging the mob and said this row is the result of political frenzy, these lives are offering to the Moloch of whisky. The dealers declare that they will resume their iniquitous business and they propose to do so by selling whisky from their residences. Shall the demon have more victories? I don't intend that them to have any more if I can help it.

In conclusion, he said:

"If the people want the dispensary they can have it. Those that don't want it have got to take it. Hereafter I shall combine the constables to the duty of watching railroads, the police and reporting to me whether they do their duty. If the authorities of cities and towns don't co-operate with me the legislature will be called together and laws will be made giving me the power to remove those officials and put in their places people who will carry out the law. Private business will continue to be searched at the extra session in sight. The police must do their duty or be removed. Let the opposers of this law organize. They must submit. I want harmony and peace. I have not nor never will aggravate the situation, but I can and will not, dare not, submit to the will of the minority. The people must govern. Rebellion must get off the track for the train is coming. I am on the throttle and intend to get in Texas, and the governor's proclamation will be issued this afternoon. It will be published to-morrow."

THE PROCLAMATION ISSUED.

The following is the proclamation referred to:

"Whereas, section 519 of the revised statutes of this state declares that the governor shall have authority, whenever, in his judgment it shall be necessary, to arm the constabulary in any emergency to assume the control of the whole or any part of the municipal police cities and incorporated towns, and to authorize chief constable of the state, or any duly elected constable, to summon assistance in the execution of process, warrants, writs and to prevent or

THE PROCLAMATION ISSUED.

The following is the proclamation referred to:

"Whereas, section 519 of the general statutes of this state declares that the governor shall have authority whenever, in his judgment it shall be necessary, to arm the constabulary, and in any emergency to assume the sole control of the whole or any part of the municipal police cities and incorporated towns, and to authorize the chief constable of the state, or any deputy chief constable, to command assistance in the execution of process, suppressing riots and in preserving the peace;' and, whereas, it is made the duty of, and the power is given said police to enforce the statute known as the 'dispensary law,' but that instead of obeying the requirements of said law, the said police, except in a very few towns, have been an obstruction and are active aiders and abettors of those who are defying the law; and, whereas, under the same statute, the governor is given power to appoint state constables for the purpose of its enforcement; and, whereas, the rebellious and lawless elements of society have hounded and insulted these officers, and sedulously educated the public mind to resistance, causing several encounters resulting in bloodshed, between constables and illicit whisky sellers, producing intense excitement, and danger to the peace and welfare of the state;

"Now, therefore, I, Benjamin R. Tillman, governor of the state of South Carolina, do issue this, my proclamation, giving full and official notice to the municipal authorities of every city and incorporated town in the state of South Carolina, and to the police and marshals thereof, that under the powers given me by said section 519, the emergency contemplated has arisen and does now exist, and that I do hereby assume sole control of the whole force of municipal police and marshals of the several cities and incorporated towns of this state. They are hereby ordered to enforce all laws on the statute books, together with all municipal ordinances and orders from municipal authorities not inconsistent with the purposes of this proclamation. As soon as the emergency which is now upon us shall no longer exist, I will relinquish and restore the former status. B. R. TILLMAN, "Governor.

"By the governor; J. E. Tindal, secretary of state."

The Happenings of a Day Chronicled in Brief and Concise Paragraphs

And Containing the Gist of the News From All Parts of the World.

Cable dispatches report a great conflagration in Shanghai, China. More than a thousand buildings, large and small, were destroyed.

A Columbia, S. C., special says: The strife is now over and the Capital City has settled down to her normal condition after the intense strain incident to the dispensary tragedy.

Four men were killed in the coke regions Wednesday afternoon during the riots between the strikers and workmen. One of the killed is H. C. Paddock, one of Frick's managers at Scottdale. More fatalities will be likely to occur before order is restored.

A strike among the employes on the government work at the Chickamauga National park has seriously interrupted that project and thrown several hundred men out of employment. The trouble arose over the small fee charged each laborer by the contractor for medicinal services. Neither side will yield.

A judgment for $430,000 has been obtained against the North Highlands Land Company by the Elyton Land Company, all of Birmingham, Ala. The judgment was for five notes of $55,000 and accrued interest since 1886. The judgment is for the foreclosure of certain acreage property in the northern suburbs which was sold the defendant company by the Elyton company.

The state conference of reformers was held at Columbia, S. C., Wednesday. It was decided to hold a state convention of the reform faction on August 14th to select nominees for governor and lieutanant governor. This will be after the regular democratic convention. An address to the farmers was issued. Resolutions were adopted commending Governor Tillman's course in upholding law and order in the dispensary troubles.

Practically complete returns from the Rhode Island election show that Brown, republican, for governor, will be elected by fully 4,500 plurality. It has been a republican landslide and the democratic rout is complete. The entire republican state ticket is elected and the legislature is overwhelmingly republican. Last year the democrats controlled the house, having forty representatives. This year they will have only four.

The Manufacturer's Record publishes letters from thirty large fertilizer dealers in Florida, Tennessee, Virginia, Mississippi, Alabama, North Carolina, Georgia and South Carolina, which show that less cotton is being planted this year, and that more attention is being given to food products. Sixteen of the firms estimate that the area of cotton planted this year will be from 5 to 30 per cent less than last year; eighteen note an improvement in the general condition of business.

DOCTORS MEET.

The International Medical Conference Assembles in Rome.

The doctors of the world assembled in Rome, Italy, in international conference. These great gatherings of the medical and scientific men of the world are held triennially, but, owing to various unforeseen circumstances this conference was postponed to the present date from last September. The men who speak here represent every phase of the medical and scientific world. The official list of Americans who will attend comprises almost two hundred names—hardly equal to the great attendance in Berlin in 1890.

SENATOR PATRICK WALSH.

Augusta's Journalist Appointed as Colquitt's Successor.

The Selection Approved by the People of Georgia.

Hon. Patrick Walsh is United States senator to succeed the late Alfred H. Colquitt. And Governor Northen reiterates his statement that he will not be a candidate for the long term in the senate. These two announcements have been authorized by the governor after hours of careful study.

The following telegram was written out and forwarded to Mr. Walsh by the governor:

ATLANTA, Ga., April 2, 1894.

HON. PATRICK WALSH, Augusta, Ga. —I have appointed you to fill the vacancy in the United States senate caused by the death of Hon. Alfred H. Colquitt. Send a messenger to the capital tomorrow to receive your commission. W. J. NORTHEN, Governor.

THE LONG STRUGGLE.

The governor devoted many hours of study to this question and gave a patient hearing to delegations from various cities and to friends of different candidates. He heard what was to be said, thanked his friends and then relapsed into thought, but not a word did he drop indicating the bent of his mind.

MR. WALSH ACCEPTS.

The following message was received by the governor in answer:

HIS EXCELLENCY GOVERNOR W. J. NORTHEN, Atlanta, Ga.:—I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your dispatch appointing me to fill the vacancy in the United States senate, caused by the death of Hon. Alfred H. Colquitt. I accept the appointment as the highest honor that can be conferred upon me. I appreciate the responsibility that the trust imposes, and will endeavor, by a faithful discharge of duty, to merit your confidence and the approval of my fellow citizens of Georgia. Every measure of reform pledged by the national democratic party will receive my cordial support. PATRICK WALSH.

A SKETCH OF PATRICK WALSH.

Patrick Walsh, journalist, was born in Ballingary, county Limerick, Ireland, January 1st, 1840. In 1848 his father emigrated to America with his family, settling in Charleston, where Patrick was soon apprenticed to the Evening News, to learn the printer's trade.

At the age of eighteen he became a journeyman printer, and subsequently pursued his studies in the Charleston High school, earning money for his expenses by setting type at night in the newspaper offices. In 1859 he entered Georgetown college, D. C., where he remained until South Carolina seceded from the Union, when he returnrned to Charleston and entered the service of the state.

In August, 1862, he settled in Augusta, Ga., where he obtained employment on the Daily Constitutionalist, working his way to the front, and becoming in 1863 local editor of the paper. He contributed largely to the news and editorial columns and was active in shaping the journal's policy during the critical period of the war.

In 1864 he became associated with L. T. Blome in the publication of the Pacificator, a weekly paper with extensive circulation in the south, but without entirely severing his connection with the Constitutionalist. In 1866 he was appointed southern agent of the New York Associated Press, and in 1867 becoming business manager of the Chronicle and Sentinel, which, in 1877, was consolidated with the Constitutionalist, Messrs. Walsh and Wright continuing sole managers and editors.

In 1870-71 Mr. Walsh was elected a member of the city council of Augusta, and in 1872 was sent from Richmond county to the general assembly of Georgia.

He was re-elected in 1874 and 1876, and served on many important committees. He was delegate from his county to the state democratic convention in 1880, a delegate to the national convention, which nominated General Hancock, for president in the same year, and in 1884 one of the delegates at large to the Chicago convention which nominated Grover Cleveland. He was also for four years the Georgia member of the national democratic executive committee. He has thoroughly identified himself with the interests of Augusta and is one of the leading journalists of the south.

CONGRATULATIONS.

Scarcely had Mr. Walsh read the telegram from Governor Northen informing him of his appointment to the senate before the wires became freighted with congratulatory telegrams from all sections of the country. It was astonishing to see within how short a time the news had spread, not only through Georgia, but outside and into the distant states. Telegrams from New York and California almost vied with those from Georgia in reaching the hands of the distinguished seantor.

MR. WALSH'S COMMISSION.

The governor issued the following commission, which entitles Mr. Walsh to his seat in the United States senate:

STATE OF GEORGIA,—By His Excellency, W. J. Northen, Governor of said State. To the Hon. Patrick Walsh, Greeting:

Whereas, By the death of the Hon. Alfred H. Colquitt, a vacancy exists in the representation of this state in the senate of the United States; and,

Whereas, In conformity with the constitution of the United States, you have this day been appointed a senator of Georgia to fill the vacancy aforesaid until the next meeting of the General Assembly of this state:

These are therefore to commission you, the said Patrick Walsh, to take immediate session in the senate of the United States, as a senator of Georgia in place of the said Alfred H. Colquitt, deceased, and to use and exercise all and every the privileges and powers which of right you may or can do in and by virtue of the constitution of the United States, in behalf of this state. This commission to continue of force until the next meeting of the General Assembly of the State of Georgia.

Given under my hand and the great seal of the state at the capitol in Atlanta, the second day of April, 1894.

W. J. NORTHEN, Governor.

AT THE NATIONAL CAPITAL.

Affairs of Government and News of the Departments Discussed.

Notes of Interest Concerning the People and Their General Welfare.

The house committee on agriculture has perfected the Hatch anti-option bill and directed Mr. Hatch to report it to the house favorably. The vote on the bill was 12 to 2.

The house committee on banking and currency agreed by a vote of 9 to 4 to report favorably the Cooper bill subjecting to state taxation of national bank and United States treasury notes.

The president Tuesday sent to the senate the following nominations: Jno. B. Brawley, Pennsylvania, assistant register of the treasury; George A. Howard, Tennessee, auditor of the treasury for the postoffice department.

The senate consumed two hours again Wednesday in an effort to dispose of the nomination of Henry W. Long, to be register of the Florida land office. No voting quorum appeared, and the senate adjourned with the case still in statu quo.

A Washington special says: The announcement of the appointment of Hon. Patrick Walsh as senator was very much of a surprise to Georgians at Washington. The appointment, however, is generally approved. Mr. Walsh is an able, patriotic Georgian, who has labored earnestly throughout his active career for the upbuilding of the state's prosperity.

It is stated upon good authority that the Earl of Kimberley's explanation of the situation given to United States Embassador Bayard, at an interview, concerning the carrying out of the findings of the Behring sea court of arbitration, were entirely satisfactory. A bill giving legal operations to the provisions of the court's findings will be presented to parliament and every effort be made to expedite its passage.

The senate committee on foreign relations met Monday morning at 10 o'clock and remained in session until noon. Secretary Gresham was before the committee much of the time, and the Behring sea question and the bill to regulate catching seals in that sea and the Northern Pacific, were discussed in detail. Morgan was directed to report a bill to the senate with favorable recommendations and urge its speedy passage.

General Grosvenor, of Ohio, introduced a resolution in the house Tuesday afternoon inquiring by what right the railroads and telegraph lines have been seized in South Carolina. He read in connection with the resolution a telegram from the New York Recorder, asking where its correspondent was "at." It seems that the paper's correspondent at Darlington could not get his special off to the paper, the telegraph office having been seized by the governor.

Senator Gordon states that when the sundry civil appropriation bill is taken up in the senate he will offer an amendment making an appropriation for the construction of the federal prisons provided for several years ago but for which no appropriation has ever been made. He further says that as Secretary Hoke Smith is one of the two members of the board to select a site, he feels certain Atlanta will get the southern prison. Augusta and Dalton are, however, making hot contests for it. With Pat Walsh in the senate, Augusta will stand a splendid show, too.

The senate spent an hour and a half Tuesday afternoon in a fruitless discussion in executive session over the nomination of Henry W. Long to be register of the Florida land office, against whom Mr. Call is making a fight. In this contest Mr. Call has the support of the majority of the republicans, although Senator Dolph and Senator Platt are against him. The effort was made at the session to refer the nomination back to the committee, but this was opposed by Mr. Call and his friends. No voting quorum being present, final action was not taken.

ON THE WAR-PATH.

Bloody Battle Between Indians and White Men on the Reservation.

A delayed special from Elreno, Oklahoma, states that a battle occurred Sunday between Indians and white men who went on the open reservation. Ten or twelve are reported as killed. Five companies from Fort Reno and troops from Fort Sill and Fort Supply were ordered to the scene of the fight.

A Railroad Sold.

The Atlantic and Danville railroad, has been sold at Norfolk, Va., under order of the United States court, for one million one hundred and five thousand dollars ($1,105,000) to B. Newgrass and associates.

Prof. J. H. Calloway, president of the Douglasville, Ga., college committed suicide by shooting himself through the head. No cause is assigned for his rash act.

Three workmen were killed outright by the collapse of a bridge at Radford, Va. Eighty men were at work on the structure when it fell and went down with it. Besides those killed many of the men were seriously injured and some of them may die.

The democratic executive committee of Lee county, Ala., has been called to meet at Opelika April 10th, 1894, to decide on a plan for electing ten delegates to the state convention, which meets in Montgomery in May to nominate a governor.

The Central Trust Company of New York, is making another effort to oust J. B. Glover from the receivership of the Marietta and North Georgia railway. A petition to this effect has been filed in the United States court at Atlanta by the attorney of the trust company.

Two men were arrested at Sumter, S. C., Tuesday, one named Cain, a constable, engaged in the killing of Norment in the Darlington row, and a man who gave his name as McKnight and claimed to be an officer, on his way to Columbia with Cain under arrest.

In the federal court at Birmingham, Ala., Judge Bruce granted the motion of the district attorney to discharge the federal jury box on the ground that it had been irregularly drawn. The court ordered a new jury box to be filled. He said he did not know whether he would summon a new grand jury or not.

A deed of trust has been filed by the Lanier-Peebles Furniture company, one of the oldest furniture houses in Chattanooga, Tenn., in favor of creditors. The liabilities are named as $10,700. The assets, though not scheduled, are equally large. General dullness and consequent inability to pay are given as the reasons for this move. The stock will be closed out at once.

Judge Newman of the United States court at Atlanta has signed an interlocutory decree ordering the sale of the Cartersvillle Improvement, Gas and Water Company. The company is now in the hands of a receiver. The petition for order states that the company is utterly insolvent and it is necessary to sell the plant together with all the property in order that the funds arising therefrom may be applied to the payment of the bonds.

A state convention of coal miners has been held at Birmingham, Ala., and a new scale of wages agreed upon. It carries a general reduction of 10 per cent with the condition that the operators make corresponding reductions in house rent, store and mining supplies, doctors' bills, etc. The above scale and conditions will be submitted to the miners at large for their approval. The reduction means over $50,000 per month to the operators who had threatened to shut down on account of the low price of iron and threatened anti-tariff legislation.

At a meeting of citizens of Kingstree, S. C., the following resolutions were unanimously adopted: "Resolved, That we greatly sympathize with the citizens of Darlington in the loss of her two brave sons; we feel that they are martyrs to the cause of freedom; we commend the sons of liberty in resisting the armed constabulary. They have proven themselves worthy to be called children of Carolina; and be it further resolved, That should Darlington feel the need of help, we will deem it an honor to be first called to her assistance. The offering she has placed upon the altar of liberty challenges our chivalry and arouses our manhood.

TO ARREST POACHERS

Unless England Comes to Time Regarding Seal Fisheries.

A Washington special says: It is learned that unless by May 1st England agrees to the Behring seal fishery modus vivendi, the United States will proceed to arrest poachers in the closed waters regardless of nationality. The secretary of the navy has been directed to assemble his fleet on the Pacific station. In the meantime a new bill will be pushed before congress giving authority to British naval naval officers to arrest American poachers if parliament passes a similar bill acceptable to the United States.

A $2,000 FIRE.

A Blaze in Barry, Ill., Destroys the Business District.

The opera house at Barry, Ill., caught fire after a ball early Sunday morning. The flames spread quickly, and in a short time destroyed the business district of the city. Among the buildings burned are the city hall, the engine house and jail, every meat market in town, the largest clothing store in the county and more than fifty buildings and stores. The loss is between $150,000 and $200,000. The insurance will amount to one-half.

To Sell Georgia Pacific.

It is officially announced from New York that the Richmond Terminal reorganization committee has obtained a decree of foreclosure of the Georgia Pacific railway and that the property will be pressed to a speedy sale. Other decrees are expected shortly.

KILLED THE BLAND BILL.

An Attempt to Pass it Over the President's Veto Fails.

Twenty-Eight Votes Were Needed to Carry it Through.

The house voted on the question of passing the seigniorage bill over the president's veto Wednesday afternoon. The vote stood 144 to 114—not two-thirds, and the seigniorage bill is now dead.

An analysis of the vote, however, shows that eight more than two-thirds of the democrats voted to pass the bill over the veto. With the republicans out it would have passed. The 144 votes in the affirmative were composed of 118 democrats, eighteen republicans and eight populists.

The negative vote showed fifty-five democrats and fifty-nine republicans. Speaker Crisp himself voted aye. When he did there was applause from the majority of democrat.

The fight was unexpectedly launched upon the house. It was short and quick, but it was wildly exciting. When the house met, a quorum of democrats was present, and after several roll calls Mr. English, of California, was seated. Then Mr. Bland called up the seigniorage bill and moved its passage over the president's veto. Immediately there was great excitement on the floor. As the clerk read the bill Mr. Bland sat silently chewing his wad of tobacco.

Mr. Tracy, of New York, rushed to General Sickles to confer with him. Tom Reed, Burrows, Boutelle and Cannon conferred. As soon as the reading was over General Sickles cried out: "Mr. Speaker, I raise the question of consideration." He tried to argue his point and at the same time everybody else in the house tried to talk.

Finally the speaker overruled the question of consideration on the ground that the constitution provided that a bill vetoed by the president should be returned to the house in which it originated, and that when returned such house should immediately proceed to consider it. The house could, by a vote, postpone, but the question of consideration was not in order.

When the speaker completed his ruling Mr. Boutelle, of Maine, suggested in his usual sarcastic style that he would like to have additional reasons. "As the chair has stated before," responded Speaker Crisp, "when the chair makes a ruling and gives reasons it holds that no gentleman has the right to ask for any other and further reasons than those stated."

"That is one of the later innovations of the chair," facetiously remarked Boutelle.

"That is one of the rulings which has been made to resent what the chair regards as impertinence," quickly replied the speaker in firm and commanding tones. Boutelle dropped in his chair amidst applause. Then there were loud cries of "Vote, vote," on the democratic side.

Mr. Bland cried amid the furor that he was willing for an immediate vote. The speaker put the question quickly and declared that under the constitution an aye and nay vote was required and at once the clerk began the roll call. The result of the vote was ayes, 144; nays, 114. Recapitulation: Ayes—democrats 118, republicans 18, populists 8. Noes—eastern and middle state democrats 48, southern democrats 7, republicans 59.

A Republican Victory.

Dispatches from cities and towns throughout the state of Ohio indicate that in the election, Alliance, Hamilton, Wooster, Dennison, Urichville, London, Waverly, Washington Court House, Fostoria, Mansfield, Piqua, Wapakoneta, Lima, Crestline, Akron, Canton and Toledo went republican. In Dayton the democrats re-elected the mayor and carried all their city ticket.

Treasury Figures.

The debt statement issued last Tuesday shows a net increase in the public debt, less cash in the treasury, during the month of March of $13,745,472. The interest-bearing debt is increased $9,038,930; non-interest-bearing debt decreased $26,847; cash in treasury decreased $4,712,389.

There Is No Chinese Language.

A writer holds that "Chinese language" is a misnomer. "There is," he says, "no such thing as a Chinese language any more than there is a European language. A Canton man cannot understand an Amoy man, and I have seen two Chinamen sitting together with a third one acting as an interpreter. Pidgeon English is the common tongue of commerce. has a vocabulary of less than a thousand words, but is sufficiently flexible to answer any purpose." Were China but an island or a series of islands, instead of half of a large continent, and were thus open on all sides to the omnipresent language carrying British steamer, it is within the bounds of probability that pigeon English would, ere now, have replaced the national tongue to such an extent as to cause intense alarm to reign in the Chinese Chauvinistic camp.—[New Orleans Picayune.

BARON HARDEN-HICKEY, formerly a Paris journalist, and now a resident of New York, and son-in-law of John H. Flagler, is maturing a scheme to colonize the island of Trinidad, about seven hundred miles from the coast of Brazil, and now entirely uninhabited, although twenty-three miles long and two or three miles wide, and having abundant vegetation. The Baron intends to make the colony a separate principality, unconnected with any other government.

Where the Sun Gets Its Heat.

Why the sun continues to give forth light and heat in undiminished quantities and unvarying intensity after having been in a state of combustion for untold ages has long been a puzzle to the astronomers as well as to the thoughtful observer in the lower rank of the star gazers. Those learned in sun lore tell us that for every second of time the sun emits as much heat as would result from the instant combustion of 11,600,000,000,000 tons of coal! Calculating from these figures it is easily shown that if the sun's entire mass consisted of first quality of coal in a state of combustion, and that it could burn until the time when the very last ton were consumed (maintaining until then the rate of heat emission now kept up) the supply could not possibly last over 5000 years. But it is believed that the sun has been in existence for hundreds of thousands and probably millions of years, and that since the "ages of man" dawned the quantity of heat emitted has not perceptibly diminished. This being the case there is but one conclusion as to how its heat supply is kept up, viz: that it has an outside store fuel to draw upon. The latest theory is that the immense regions of space are occupied by untold myriads of miniature bodies known as meteors, meteorites and aerolites, which are being constantly drawn to the sun, and that these constantly plowing its atmosphere evolve numerous streams of both heat and light.—St. Louis Republic.

E. S. Starr.

Francis B. Lloyd, (Rufus Sanders) That fearless young Democrat, who is working the Alabama Democracy to make him their next Secretary of State gave utterance to the following sound doctrine in his speech at this place.

"If we keep the faith and fight a good straight clean fight we are bound to win. The Democratic party is a party of principles, or else it is as "sounding brass and a tinkling cymbal," The Democracy still rests its hopes and its cause upon principles older than the century in which we live, and on those principles it must stand and fight and march on to victory, or go down in disaster and defeat. And while the Democracy of Alabama holds out a standing welcome for every citizen who will come over and help us, I declare to you tonight—and it scotld be declaimed from every little hill and valley in the State—that the Democratic party can-not and will not swap its principles for any man's vote. If democrcy is not right it does not deserve to see another sunrise. But if it is right let it live by its principles, and if it must go down in Heaven's name let it fall on the open field fighting under a clean flag."

Will not longer follow Kolb

Dexter, Elmore County, April 3, 1894. Editor Advertiser:

Dear Sir—I have worked for Democracy ever since I was old enough to vote and against Republicanism, with what drain I had, some money and on some occasions my muscle. I Joined the Alliance thinking it purely agricultural in its teachings—and it was, at first—but I see now it is purely political in its teachings, and that it has run into the very that I have fought ever since I was old enough to vote; consequently I cannot follow this bell any further, but will return home, where I belong, under the protecting wing of the Democratic Party. I know there are reforms needed in our government, but we can't by trading off the law-makpower, or through the Republican Party.

I hope that all my friends who have followed after strange gods as I have done—honestly, too—will will see the error of their way and return home and work in democratic harness, needed reforms, for we will never get them by tacking on to the tail end of the republican party.

It was through good white democrats that redeemed our loved Alabama from under carpet-bag Republicfn rule and I cannot give up the ground gained in 1874 under the leadership of governor Houston and return to the dark days of carpet-bag and Republican rule over this lovely South-land of ours, so I hope the Democrats will receive me under the banner of Democracy where I belong, as my friends who know me know that I had rather be a door-keeper in the Democratic family than to have a front seat in an easy chair in the Redublican Party. Rather than be tuaned over to the Republican Party by trades made by our leaders, with Ben De Lemos, Hoar and others of that stripe, without great mass of the of the common people knowing any thing about it, it as so many sheep to the slaughter and turned over as so much merchandise, I will make me a wooden bill and pull grass with the geese.

Respectfully.

W. J. Johnson.

To Thomas G. Jones, Montgomery.

Sir: On my return to this city yesterday my attention was directed to your letter addressed to Senator Hoar through the public press. Your publication of the letter is evidene of your cowardly intention to take advantages of your stolen office to produce an impression abroad where you know that you cannot produce it in Alabama The campaign committee will very speedily answer that part of your letter other than that which makes charges against individuals. In so far as the charges made against the writer herefore are corncerned. I have only to say to you through the press where you make the same that each and all of them are vile and malicious falsehoods. In Alabama they are known to be the vaporing of a well-known crank.

A Journal reporter called on Governor Jones in reference to Captin Kolbs letter and the Governor said "By all means publish Kolb's letter. His broad denial of facts known to thousands of Alabamians, will only add to his deserved reputation of being of all men in Alabama the most disbelieved. Evrybody knows for instance that he and his papers attaked me about the Gentry pardon, odering out the miltary to protect negroes, &c Everybody who lives in Eufaula knows of his ballot box proclivites and his statements about it.

I have heretofore been very courteous in my reference to Kolb, but when Kolb went to Massachusetts denouncing his own people in order to get money, I felt under no obligation in healing with his conduct in the letter to Senator Hoar to refrain from using most vigorous English. If Kolb has been unjustly villified or if the stripes fell to heavily his remedy does not lie in open letters to the press The people of Albama are familiar with Kolb,s fatal faculty for penial They rember his denials of the Pine Apple incident for intance. First he said it was false that he used his pass on the Pine Apple division and charged the fare to the state giving among others reasons that the pass was not good on that division Next, he told the story with with the state is familiar of purchasing some tickets of a strange and unintentionally ueeing his pass. In the investigation of the Spring Hill institute, he swore on oath that statement were true, whsch he had bitterly denounced before as false. Next Whitehead and Morgan disprove his bitter denial that he was present and advised the sale of the Weaver electors to Harrison. These are only samples of his habit of denial His last denial is only in keeping with the others and just as false.

"The supreme court of the state has shown him to be guilty of fraud and he has never yet brought into court where their truth or falsity could be established any of the numerous persons who have charged him with perjury and others like offenses. A man with such a record can not insult one by words not spoken in his presence He is not in condition to raise an issue of veracity with any one anywhere.

IT KILLS THE WORMS.

Jubge T. W. Terry of this city has made a good discovery to kill out worms and bugs on vegetables Boil red peper and make a good strong tea let it cool and apply to the vegetables with an ordnary sprinkler. The Judge says that his garden was full of worms and he tried it last week. It knocked up the pests in short order. We give it for the benefit of all those who are trounled wite insects on theis vegetables and wish to try it

OATES IS COMING

We congratulate the citizens of Chilton County on the fact that Hon Wm C. Oates Member of Congress from Alabama and Candidate for the nomination of Governor of Alabama will be in Clanton Tuesday next April the 17th to address them on some of the issues of the day-The speaking will begin at 11 oclock we earnestly invite all of our citizens no matter to what political platform they have pinned their faith to come out and hear this one arm hero of the wire-grass—we have heard him speak and can assure our friends of the populite persuasion that he will give them no just grounds to become offended at what he may say his speech will be instructive in the highest degree and should be listned to by every man who desires to know and to follow the truth those who are afraid of the light lest their evil deeds shall be known will counsel their followers to remain away but no man who think for himself and who has the courage to investigate measure for himself will be afraid to hear.

Tell it to you neighbors Col Wm C Oates will speak in Clatnon Tuesday April the 17th at 11 o'clock

Dont fail to be in Clanton April 17th Hon Wm C Oates will be there and he wants to meet especialy all those who wore the grey.

Inrefrence to the article coppied from the Selma Mirror touching the necesitty for negros to have pass ports ect Mr. G. W. Patric writes the Mirror that there have been no secret Meetings and no such reslutions possed by ohe Citizens of Buddick and vicenity he says what we believe to be true we are law abiding citszens and would liketo be reconized as such.

The citizens of Clanton were treated to a speech Tuesday night by Hon. Francis B. Lloyd, Rufus Sanders. Only a very short notice had been given and yet a goodly audience greeted him—His speech had the old time Democratic ring in it—He believs in a man being either a pig or puppy, a Democrat or a Republican—Mr. Lloyd, is a Candidate for Secretary of state and we trust our Chilton delegation will surport him.

COMMENTS.

Of Those Who have been Cured or Greatly Benefitted by Using the Electropoise.

ALABAMIANS.

Capt. T. H. Hobart, conductor on the L. & N. railroad, Decatur, Ala., used it on his baby for nervousness and indigestion, the doctors having said the child could not live a week. From the first application of the Electropoise he began to improve, and now, after two weeks use of it he is entirely recovered.

B. F. Lond, Dothan, used it for paralysis and have been wonderfully improved in every way, says: "I fully believe that the Electropoise is all in all to the sick, and will do all that is claimed for it."

George S. Vatrotu Mobile: "The Electropoise has been of great value to me, curing me of a distressing case of hay fever of ten years standing, and my entire household use it as a prompt cure for colds, fever, sore throat and violent pains."

Joseph Williams, Stevenson: "The Electropoise has entirely cured my rheumatism, and my general health is much improved."

Rev. J. S. Knowles, Headland: "The value of the Electropoise is inestimable."

A similar list could be given from other states. There are many others, but the testimony of such men ought to convince the most skeptical. Don't impose upon their time and patience. It our business.

A Call for a County Convention of the Democratic and Conservative Party of Chilton County.

Clanton, Ala., Mar. 27th, 1894.

To the Democrats of Chilton Co.

A convention of the Democratic and Consecutive party of the county Chilton, is hereby called to meet on Wednesday, May 16th 1894, at the court house in Clanton for the purpose of electing five delegates to the convention of the Democratic and Conservative party of Alabama, to meet on the 22nd day of May, 1894, at the State Capitol in the city of Montgomery for the purpose of nominating State officers to be voted at the next general election in this State, and the transaction of such other business as may properly come before it.

Under the resolution adopted by the State Convention, fixing the representation upon a population basis, the beats of the county are entitled to the following number of delegates in said county convention, to-wit:

Beat No. 1, Mims,	Delegates 1
Beat No. 2, Providence,	" 4
Beat No. 2, Jemison,	" 6
Beat No. 3, Benson,	" 4
Beat No. 3, Macedonia,	" 2
Beat No. 4, Clanton,	" 14
Beat No. 5, Coopers,	" 5
Beat No. 5, Verbena,	" 7
Beat No. 6 Kincheon,	" 5
Beat No. 7, Mapleville,	" 5
Beat No. 8, Dixie,	" 8

Beat meetings to elect delegates to said County Convention are hereby called to be held on Saturday the 12th day of May, 1894, at the respective places of voting in said beats, and each meeting will report to Dr. W. E. Stewart, the names of the delegates elected to said county convention. All qualified voters are entitled and requested to participate in said beat meetings, who come under any one of the following classifications, to-wit.

First, all those who voted in the last election for Cleveland and Stevenson.

Second, Those Democrats who would have voted for Cleveland and Stevenson in the last national election, but were prevented from so doing, because they were not able to go the polls.

Third all those who will be entitled to vote in the next election who are Democrats, who were not qualified voters in the last election, and who will support the ticket nominated by the next Democratic State Convention.

This call is made by me under advice of Hon. A. G. Smith, Chairman of the State Executive Committee, as shown by the correspondence hereto attached. The time for holding the Beat meetings and the County Convention and qualification of voters, is as fixed by the State Executive Committee in its call for the State Convention.

Wm. A. COLLIER, Chairman Co. Ex. Com.

W. E. SEWART, Secretary.

CORRESPONDANCE.

Birmingham, Ala., Mar. 21, '94.

Hon. A. G. Smith, City.

Chairman of the State Executive Committee, Democratic and Conservative party of Ala.

Dear Sir:—Having removed from the county of Chilton, it was of course, proper that I should tend my resignation as Chairman of the County Executive Committee of the Democratic party, and with this view, I called a meeting of said County Executive Committee to be held on the 15th day of March, and was in Clanton on said day, but failed to secure a meeting of the committee. Only one member attended,

I am advised by Dr. W. E. Stewart, Secretary of the Committee that by reason of the resignation of some and the refusal of others to act, that a meeting of said committee cannot be had. I am desirous of taking such course as you may deem proper in the premises, and kindly ask that you advise me at once your views. Yours truly,

Wm. A. Collier.

Birmingham, Ala. Mar. 26, '94.

Hon. Wm. A. Collier, City.
Chairman Dem. Ex. Com. of Chilton Co.

Dear Sir:—Yours of the 24th to hand. In reply I have to say that you are still the Chairman of the Democratic Executive Committe of Chilton county, and in as much as you cannot get a meeting of your committee as its chairman, you should proceed to order primary elections or beat meetings to be held in Chilton county on Saturday the 12th day of May to elect delegates to a county convention to be held at some convenient place in the county, on Wednesday, May 16th, for the purpose of electing delegates to the State Convention, to be held at Montgomery, on May 22nd.

When this convention meets, if, it sees proper to do so, it can elect another Executive Committee, which will take more interest in the welfare of the party. I understand that your executive committees have heretofore been elected by your conventions. If the people of Chilton county desire it, this same convention could nominate persons for each county office, as will have to be elected in August, or if they prefer it, the new executive committee, elected by this convention, can call another convention for that purpose,

Allow me to call attention to the fact that the representative from each county to the State convention is upon a population basis, and under that, Chilton county is entitled to five delegates. I enclose you also a copy of the call for the State convention, and in that call you will observe the qualifications of voters who may participate in the primary or beat meetings, as prescribed by the Executive committee under authority conferred by the last State convention.

It is very desirable that Democrats should now work together for the good of the party, and I feel sure that our friends in Chilton county will recognize this, and will aid you in ever way in their power in bringing about an organization of the party in that County.

Yours very truly,
A. G. SMITH, Chairman.

What is

CASTORIA

Castoria is Dr. Samuel Pitcher's prescription for Infants and Children. It contains neither Opium, Morphine nor other Narcotic substance. It is a harmless substitute for Paregoric, Drops, Soothing Syrups, and Castor Oil. It is Pleasant. Its guarantee is thirty years' use by Millions of Mothers. Castoria destroys Worms and allays feverishness. Castoria prevents vomiting Sour Curd, cures Diarrhœa and Wind Colic. Castoria relieves teething troubles, cures constipation and flatulency. Castoria assimilates the food, regulates the stomach and bowels, giving healthy and natural sleep. Castoria is the Children's Panacea—the Mother's Friend.

Castoria.

"Castoria is an excellent medicine for children. Mothers have repeatedly told me of its good effect upon their children."

DR. G. C. OSGOOD, Lowell, Mass.

"Castoria is the best remedy for children of which I am acquainted. I hope the day is not far distant when mothers will consider the real interest of their children, and use Castoria instead of the various quack nostrums which are destroying their loved ones, by forcing opium, morphine, soothing syrup and other hurtful agents down their throats, thereby sending them to premature graves."

DR. J. F. KINCHELOE, Conway, Ark.

Castoria.

"Castoria is so well adapted to children that I recommend it as superior to any prescription known to me."

H. A. ARCHER, M. D., 111 So. Oxford St., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Our physicians in the children's department have spoken highly of their experience in their outside practice with Castoria, and although we only have among our medical supplies what is known as regular products, yet we are free to confess that the merits of Castoria has won us to look with favor upon it."

CAN I OBTAIN A PATENT? For a prompt answer and an honest opinion, write to MUNN & CO., who have had nearly fifty years' experience in the patent business. Communications strictly confidential. A Handbook of Information concerning Patents and how to obtain them sent free. Also a catalogue of mechanical and scientific books sent free.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice in the Scientific American, and thus are brought widely before the public without cost to the inventor. This splendid paper, issued weekly, elegantly illustrated, has by far the largest circulation of any scientific work in the world. $3 a year. Sample copies sent free.

Building Edition, monthly, $2.50 a year. Single copies, 25 cents. Every number contains beautiful plates, in colors, and photographs of new houses, with plans, enabling builders to show the latest designs and secure contracts. Address MUNN & CO., NEW YORK, 361 BROADWAY.

$3,000.00 A YEAR FOR THE INDUSTRIOUS.

If you want work that is pleasant and profitable, send us your address immediately. We teach men and women how to earn from $5.00 per day to $3,000 per year without having had previous experience, and furnish the employment at which they can make that amount. Nothing like it to learn or that requires much time. The work is easy, healthy, and honorable, and can be done during spare time or evenings, right in your own locality, wherever you live. The result of a few hours' work often equals a week's wages. We have taught thousands of both sexes and all ages, and many have laid foundations that will surely bring them riches. Some of the smartest men in this country owe their success in life to the start given them while in our employ years ago. You, reader, may do as well; try it. You cannot fail. No capital required. We fit you out with something that is new, useful, and easy. A book containing full advice is free to all. Delay not; call by writing for it to-day—and to morrow. Delays are costly.

E. C. ALLEN & CO., Box 423, AUGUSTA, MAINE.

A few years ago, during the discussion of the clauses of a bill before the house of commons, a member moved to omit all the words in a clause after the word "which," and this was carried without any one having moved an addition. The result was that one clause of the bill ended with the word "which," and the discovery of its meaning naturally passed the wit of man.—London Queen.

The Misery Before Taking

AND

The Happiness After Taking HOOD'S.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:

"Dear Sirs:—I have been in poor health for 20 or 25 years, and have been taking doctors' medicines more or less all the time. I did not get much relief. My blood was in a bad shape and my system was all run down. I thought I must die, but noticing several testimonials in the papers in behalf of Hood's Sarsaparilla I bought three bottles and found that it did me so much good that I continued taking it. I was without appetite, slothfully sleepy, and had a headache most all the time. In fact I cannot describe my feelings. After using one bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla I found it was doing me much good and now I cannot praise the medicine too much for what it has done for me. I am a disabled soldier 60 years old and was afflicted with many ailments, including kidney, bronchitis and catarrh. Since using 6 bottles of Hood's Sarsaparilla I am like another man. In fact I think Hood's Sarsaparilla saved my life." R. H. HIGGINS, Box 460, Hammonton, N. J.

REMEMBER THAT

Too small a figure in wall paper destroys the effect.

A bread cloth should always be sweet and clean, and never used for any other purpose.

Sponging the face and hands with a weak extract of pennyroyal will keep away mosquitoes, and will allay pain from their bites.

Spots and dirt may be removed from painting and chromos by using a cup of warm water to which a few drops of ammonia have been added.

A good broom holder may be made by putting two large screws—nails will answer—into the wall about two inches apart. Drop the broom between them, handle downward.

Any woman doing her own work may so systematize it that it will be the easiest possible for her. She need not follow any other person's methods, unless they are the very best for her own conditions.

It pays well to do mending before the article goes into the wash, since the process to which it is there subjected materially enlarges the holes, and it is better and more agreeable to wear if the washing follows the mending.

There is a false economy, which costs more than it returns, such as saving old medicine bottles, partially used prescriptions, the tacks from the carpet, or working days to save or make that which can be bought for a few cents.

There is nothing which the average husband better appreciates than a tidy, well-ordered home, with a place for everything and everything in its place. On the other hand, there is no more potent source of domestic unhappiness than disorder in living apartments.—Good Housekeeping.

Ducks Without Water.

It is a mistaken idea that ducks cannot be raised without some body of water for them to sport in. Ducks have a natural fondness for water, of course, and will take to it whenever the opportunity is presented, but they can be successfully raised with no more water than is required to drink. This is evidenced by the fact that thousands upon thousands are thus raised every year. It has been proved that young ducks are much less liable to disease when raised in dry, warm quarters than when allowed to run at large and spend much time in the water. A good way to add ducks to your poultry flock is to procure the eggs and hatch them under hens.—Western Flowman.

White Blood in Her.

A foreign diplomat, conversing with the Hawaiian queen on the subject of the mixed races in Hawaii, said: "But your majesty surely has no white blood in your veins?" "Indeed I have white blood in my veins," said the queen; "my grandfather ate Captain Cook."—Exchange.

Frightful Phantoms

Haunt the dreams of the sufferer from indigestion. What should the nightmare ridden dyspeptic do when waking with a start, the sweet coming from the pipes, sleep for the remainder of the night seems unattainable? Swallow a wine lassful of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which, if taken before going to bed, would have insured repose. Use the Bitters for nervousness, dyspepsia, rheumatism, malaria.

We hear much of the "square, honest dollar," but when will it ever get "round."

Money is not a good thing to have unless it is rationally used and enjoyed.

Deafness Cannot be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure Deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucous lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube gets inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed Deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucous surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

THE NEWS IN GENERAL.

Condensed from Our Most Important Telegraphic Advices

And Presented in Pointed and Readable Paragraphs.

The Rt. Rev. Michael Joseph Offane, bishop of the diocese of Trenton, N. J., died suddenly at the Episcopal residence.

The factories of the Woonsocket Rubber Co., at Woonsocket, R. I., and Millville, Mass., after two months idleness, will resume operations on April 16. Twenty-six hundred people will be employed.

A special from East Palestine, O., says: Coxey's army struck tents Saturday morning and the entire outfit of over 200 strong started on their way over the Pennsylvania State Line into the great industrial region of the Ohio valley. Recruits were quite plenty.

Fire at Philadelphia destroyed the mill property owned by Rump & Brothers, manufacturers of table cloths and counterpanes, fronting on Huntingdon street and extending from Palethorpe to Hancock streets in the heart of the Kensington mill district. Total loss, $240,000. Nearly 400 persons are thrown out of employment.

As a result of the further exchange of views between London and Washington, the attorney general, Sir Charles Russell, has withdrawn the Behring sea bill providing for the enforcement of the award of the board of arbitration, which recently introduced in the house of commons. The object is that it may be subject to modification.

The general society of the Sons of the Revolution, which will hold its annual meeting in Baltimore on April 19, will pay a visit to Annapolis and hold a special session in the old senate chamber, where Washington resigned his commission. Governor Brown has tendered the use of the senate chamber and the entire state house for a patriotic celebration.

The New York Herald's Lima, Peru, special says: "On the death of President Bermudez his cabinet sent in their resignations to the first vice president, but the second vice president, backed by Caceres and the soldiery, took possession of the palace and commenced issuing decrees. Thus Peru has two presidents, a constitutional one, Senhor Solar, and a revolutionary one, Cólo Bergono."

Dispatches from Pittsburg, Pa., state that eleven thousand strikers are bivouacing at different places between that city and Scottville and it is generally believed numerous raids will be made on the company stores. About 300 deputies are standing guard at the different works. Their forces are scattered and should an attack be made by one of the big mobs, it would be certain death to offer resistance.

A cable dispatch from Paris states that another diplomatic scandal is exposed. It arises from an article in the Figaro, attributed to M. Flourens, ex-minister of foreign affairs. In this article it was charged that the government, when M. Jules Ferry was premier, and Baron de Courcel was French ambassador to Germany, were subservient to Prince Bismarck and sought to form an alliance against England.

Bismarck was eighty-one years of age last Sunday, and the day was celebrated by Germans with great enthusiasm. Every post brought letters and gifts to Friedrichsruhe, the home of Bismarck, and these came not only from all parts of the empire, but from wherever German is spoken. Twelve ladies presented Bismarck with an illuminated address upon which was a heading reading: "To the Founder of German Unity."

A Detroit, Michigan, special says: James Wellington Brown, a polygamist, with the phenomenal record of twenty-six wives in the state of Michigan alone, and with other wives being heard from at times in other parts of the United States, has again come into public notice through the inquiries of two of his hitherto unreported wives. Four of his victims were residents of Detroit and two of them lived in the same ward.

A Pittsburg, Pa., dispatch says: It has been ascertained that Coxey and a large number of his followers have decided to take a trip through the southern states as soon as his mission in Washington is fulfilled. This decision was arrived at a day or so ago, and the trip will be made with a view of converting as many southern people as possible to the ideas advanced by Coxey, as at present figured out by Coxey.

Advices from Honolulu say that a petition will soon be sent to President Cleveland advocating the annexation of the Hawaiian Islands to the United States, providing an annuity, to be mutually agreed upon, shall be settled upon Lilionkalani, the deposed queen. This petition will be signed by leading natives, members of the cabinet and members of the native societies. It has even been stated that Lilionkalani will send a trusted agent to Washington to lay the matter before the president.

Mrs. Margaret Walker, aged 53, was hanged at Liverpool for the murder of her husband. The murder was one of the most brutal and revolting in the criminal annals of Great Britain. She killed him for paying attention to another woman. Mrs. Walker, who was of masculine build, chained her husband to a bed-post in one of the upper rooms in their house, and for four months administered to him daily a beating, finally finishing him by battering his brains out with a steel chain.

Captain J. H. Willard, United States engineer, at New Orleans has received a dispatch announcing that an old levee about ten miles below Shreveport, was cut by persons unknown with the ostensible object of letting the water against Pruitta, or Richmond bayou levee, a government work. The natural result of this wholly unauthorized action ensued, the water gushing violently against the new levee, breaking through it, and at last reports it had caused a crevasse three hundred feet wide.

THE FIFTY-THIRD CONGRESS

The House and Senate Called to Order in Regular Session.

Daily Summary of Routine Business in the Two Houses.

THE HOUSE.

When Speaker Crisp appeared in the house Friday, he was greeted with tumultuous applause from both democratic and republican members. The speaker ascended the steps to his seat at the desk, the galleries took up the applause that started on the floor and it rapidly swelled into huzzas, which were kept up for several seconds, while the speaker gently rapped for order. After the reading of the journal, Mr. Reed suggested that it should be amended to show that the speaker has overruled, for no reason stated, a point of order made by Mr. Payne, of New York, that one of the votes taken Thursday be reported by but one teller, when the rules require two. Mr. Springer, of Illinois, moved the previous question on the amendment. On a division the vote was, ayes 136, nays none. The point of no quorum was made and the yeas and nays were ordered. The result of the call was yeas 178, nays 1—just a quorum. The previous question was ordered. The question was put of the proposed amendment—yeas 67, nays 148. Mr. Reed demanded tellers and Mr. Springer demanded the yeas and nays and the latter was ordered.

The house Saturday morning made recognition of Speaker Crisp's sacrifice by a round of applause as he ascended the steps to his desk. The business before the house was the contested election case of O'Niell vs. Joy. Mr. Outhwaite stated that there was a special order for 1 o'clock, eulogies upon the late Representative O'Niell, of Pennsylvania, and as he understood there was a general desire that the eulogies proceed at that time, he asked unanimous consent that the half hour remaining until that hour be devoted to the consideration of business by unanimous consent. There was no objection, and it was so ordered. A number of measures received from the senate were laid before the house and temporarily disposed of. Among these was the famous McGarrahan claim.

The O'Neill-Joy contested election case came up in the house Monday morning after the reading of the journal. The pending question, being to lay on the table a motion to reconsider the vote declaring Joy not entitled to the seat. It resulted, yeas 147, nays 12—no quorum. Patterson moved to adjourn. Democrats voted "no," and the result was, yeas none, nays 169. A call of the house was then ordered.

The fight over the O'Neill-Joy contested election case was immediately resumed when the house was called to order Tuesday morning. Pending the question, being a motion to lay on the table, Burrows' motion to reconsider the vote by which Joy was declared not entitled to his seat, Patterson, who had charge of the case, expressed a determination to keep the house in session until the case is acted upon. He said at the outset that ninety-three democrats, fourteen more than a quorum, were in the city, and unless a quorum developed absentees would be arrested and brought to the bar of the house. The republicans refused to answer to their names, but the democrats rallied a bare quorum of 167 to 12, and amid some applause the speaker announced that the deadlock had been broken and the motion to lay on the table was carried. On a vote of 155 to 28 O'Neil was declared entitled to the seat of Charles F. Joy, the sitting republican.

There was a democratic quorum in the house Wednesday morning and after several roll calls Mr. English, of California, was seated. Mr. Bland then called up the seigniorage bill and moved its passage over the president's veto. After a sharp skirmish the motion prevailed and the vote taken. The result was: Ayes, 144; nays, 114. Thus the famous measure was killed.

THE SENATE.

Two high stacks of thick books on the desk of Senator Voorhees, when the senate met Monday morning, indicated that the eloquent Indianian was ready to pull the lanyard of the opening gun in the senate tariff debate. The first two hours of the morning were consumed by routine business, but as the hands on the senate clock moved around towards the hour of two, the senate galleries commenced to fill up. It was 1:50 o'clock when Senator Voorhees opened the discussion.

The Behring sea bill passed the senate at Tuesday's session Senator Morgan stated at the time that perhaps a similar measure was being passed in the British parliament.

Among the petitions and memorials presented in the senate Wednesday morning was one by Senator Gordon, of Georgia, being a protest of Baptist churches at Atlanta, Ga., against the constitutional amendment proposed by Mr. Morse recognizing Deity in the preamble to the constitution. It was referred to the judiciary committee.

DISTURBANCE IN SAMOA

Caused by the Action of a New Supreme Judge.

Advices from Auckland are to the effect that the steamer Alameda has arrived at that port bringing news of disturbances in Samoa which threatens serious consequences unless checked. The trouble grew out of the action of the new supreme judge, Ide, in imposing fines upon some minor chiefs for disorderly conduct, and imprisoning and compelling them to work in default of payment of the fines. The followers of the chiefs arose in armed rebellion. An attempt was made to disarm the rebellious natives. In a fight with government troops thirty rebels were killed and fifty wounded. Government troops lost a dozen or more, killed and wounded.

Congressman Wilson Improves.

A special from San Antonio, Texas, says: Congressman W. L. Wilson is still at the ranche of ex-Congressman Ben Cable, eight miles south of the city. He is rapidly gaining in weight and strength, and if no relapse occurs will be able to resume his work in congress in a few weeks.

Royal, the Superior Baking Powder.

66 Old Capitol Building,
Atlanta, Ga., March 1, 1893.

I have purchased samples of the Royal and other principal baking powders sold in this city in the open market, and analyzed the same. I find the Royal to contain leavening gas in greater quantity than I have found in any other baking powder I have examined. This powder is composed of wholesome and unobjectionable ingredients and is free from adulteration.

JNO. M. McCANDLESS,
Chemist Atlanta Board of Health.

In every receipt calling for baking powder, use the Royal. It will make the food lighter, sweeter, of finer flavor, more digestible and wholesome.

"We recommend the Royal Baking Powder as superior to all others."—United Cooks and Pastry Cooks' Association of the United States.

Cold Missionary on Toast.

First Clergyman—Any news from Brother Whoopemup since he landed on the coast of Africa?

Second Clergyman—Oh, yes, and it is very important news, too.

"Has he succeeded in penetrating into the interior of Africa?"

"He has, most decidedly."

"Has he converted a chief?"

"Not precisely. The chief has converted him, beyond a doubt."

"How so?"

"Converted him into a square meal—ate him up alive! Yes, I guess he must have succeeded in getting into the interior of Africa."—Texas Siftings.

Special Notice.

Don't fail to read "ad" in another column of Lowry Hardware Co., Atlanta, Ga. They are headquarters for bicycles and you will find them perfectly reliable.

Don't eat more than you can chew, don't plant more than you can cultivate; don't profess more than you can practice.

Banquet of Paris Undertakers.

The traditional annual banquet of the "sour herring," so called, came off on All Saint's day. It was numerously attended by the fraternity of the undertaker assistants, and derives its name from the fact that when the custom was first established and these assistants were only called "porters" they assembled once a year for a social entertainment, the time coinciding with arrival of the sour herrings in the Paris markets. The festival was succeeded by a ball, at which, as a matter of course, the fair partners were treated to "bier" and offered floral tributes in the shape of bouquets and wreaths.—American Register.

A row boat started from Louisville for New Orleans recently with a fleet of forty boats of coal, or nearly 40,000 tons. The Courier-Journal claims that this is the largest tow any boat has ever attempted to handle on any river. The coal would have loaded a train of cars eleven and one-half miles in length.

The lady whose portrait heads this article is Mrs. Mary F. Covell, of Scotland Bon Homme Co., S. Dak. She writes to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Chief Consulting Physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y., as follows: "I was sick two years with 'falling of the womb' and leucorrhœa previous to taking your medicines. I took six bottles of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and was entirely cured of both in six months; it is four years this month, since I was entirely well of both those diseases and have never had any signs of their appearance since and I am satisfied the 'Favorite Prescription' saved my life, for I could hardly walk around when I commenced taking that medicine and I think it is a God's blessing to me that I took it.

I was pronounced incurable by the best doctors here in the West. I gave up all hopes and made up my mind that I was to be taken away from my husband and baby of two years old. I was sick all of the time—could not eat anything at all. In one week, after beginning the use of the 'Favorite Prescription' my stomach was so much better that I could eat anything: I could see that I was gaining all over, and my husband then went and got me six bottles; I took three of them and my stomach did not bother me any more.

We sent to you and got the People's Common Sense Medical Adviser, and found my case described just as I was; we did what the book told us, in every way; in one month's time I could see I was much better than I had been; we still kept on just as the book told us, and in three months I stopped taking medicine, and to-day, I can proudly say I am a well women, yes, am well, strong and healthy.

When I began to take your medicine my face was poor and eyes looked dead. I could not enjoy myself anywhere, I was tired and sick all the time. I could hardly do my house-work, but now I do that and tend a big garden, help my husband and take in sewing."

The following will prove interesting to feeble women generally, and especially so to those about to become mothers. Mrs. Dora A. Guthrie, of Oakley, Overton Co., Tenn., writes: "I never can thank you enough for what your treatment has done for me; I am stronger now than I have been for six years. When I began your treatment I was not able to do anything. I could not stand on my feet long enough to wash my dishes without suffering almost death; now I do all my housework, washing, cooking, sewing and everything for my family of eight. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the best medicine to take before confinement that can be found; or at least it proved so with me. I never suffered so little with any of my children as I did with my last and she is the healthiest we have. I recommend your medicines to all of my neighbors and especially 'Favorite Prescription' to all women who are suffering. Have induced several to try it, and it has proved good for them." Yours truly,

Dora A. Guthrie

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a positive cure for the most complicated and obstinate leucorrhea, excessive flowing, painful menstruation, unnatural suppressions and irregularities, prolapsus, or falling of the womb, weak back, "female weakness," anteversion, retroversion, bearing-down sensations, chronic congestion, inflammation and ulceration of the womb, inflammation, pain and tenderness of the ovaries, accompanied with "internal heat."

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a scientific medicine, carefully compounded by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate organization. It is purely vegetable in its composition and perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the system. For morning sickness or nausea, due to pregnancy, weak stomach, indigestion, dyspepsia and kindred symptoms, its use will prove very beneficial.

Dr. Pierce's Book, "Woman and Her Diseases," (168 pages, illustrated), giving successful means of home treatment, can be had (sealed in plain envelope) by enclosing 10 cts., in one cent stamps, to pay postage, to the Doctor, at his address, as given at the beginning of this article.

CONSUMPTION

TRIOLETS.

"Have you got any brothers?"
"Yes, one."
"That's strange! I was just talking to your sister and she said that she had two brothers."—Hallo.

A RECKLESS YOUTH.

"Won't you patronize the grab-bag and the pretty girl at the fair.
"Thanks," said the young man, who takes puns; "don't care if I do. How much a seizin' ticket."—Washington Star.

CRUDE MILITARY SCIENCE.

Cadet—"The savage nations have very crude ideas of military science.
His Girl—"Yes, indeed! Why, I noticed ever so many of them at the fair; and they all danced so awkward!"—Puck.

SURE TO BE ONE OR THE OTHER.

"How are things going with you?"
"Pretty slowly," replied the young man. "I'm waiting to see which'll be first, myself or my uncle's will."—Washington Star.

A PRACTICAL ASPECT.

Spencer—"I don't see how you can afford to marry with your expensive tastes. You only have five thousand a year."
Ferguson—"Well, my fiancee has the same amount. That will just double our income."—Puck.

GROUNDS FOR SUSPICION.

Maude—"How long after Nettie married him did she begin to suspect that he was not a real gentleman?"
Jennie—"It was when she noticed that although two weeks had elapsed he was still treating her with kindness and civility."—Chicago Record.

LOVE FATE.

Miss Philo (sweetly)—"I can remember when you made your debut dear ever so many years ago."
Miss Caustique (more sweetly)—"How thoughtful you are! Now, I couldn't begin to remember when you made yours."—Chicago Record.

A CLEAR LOSS.

Penfield—"The latest story of mine is the best thing I ever turned out. I read it over I'm surprised at it myself, and don't know how I ever wrote it."
Merritt—"That's a pity. You'll be never able to write an article on how it was written."—Puck.

HIS BELIEF.

"Woman never gets over her fondness for embellishment," remarked the professor.
"I don't know about that," replied Mrs. Wise. "I have seen women who might very little of anything except intellectual matters."
Perhaps. But even then their opinions were biased."—Washington Star.

USES HIS FOOT.

Ethel—"Mr. Softleigh, I hear you called my father was a robber."
Softleigh—"He kicked me out the house when I called on you."
"That doesn't justify you in calling him a robber!"
"I didn't call him a robber, I said he was a freebooter!"—Raymond's Weekly.

A DISINTERESTED BUSINESS TIP.

Mrs. Hyflye—"George, dear, while we are having money troubles I ought to tell you that I learned to-day why Mrs. Soakem's credit has suddenly become so good."
Mr. Hyflye—"Why?"
Mrs. Hyflye—"I overheard some one say that Soakem's finances must be right because his wife was wearing an elegant new hat and dress."—Puck.

TRYING TO ESCAPE.

"Help!" said the young wife to herself, as she deposited the hot plate of pie on the table. "That's the third piece pie that I ever made without help, all alone myself."
"What is?" exclaimed her husband facetiously, looking it over critically. "And so long as it is your first, my dear, don't you think, instead of putting it in the oven to bake, you would it better to—"
"Why, you wouldn't—you haven't the heart to—"—Somerville Journal.

EXHAUSTION.

Tarvin—"You look very tired, Jarrett."

Trarrett—"Yes, I am. I'm as tired as though yesterday had been a holiday."—Puck.

AND RUNNING AWAY FROM IT.

Mamma—"You say you are steadily employed? What is your occupation?"

Dusty Rodes—"Lookin' fur work."—Chicago Record.

INSOMNIA.

"I don't understand how you can sleep with all those debts hanging over your head."

"Oh! I sleep all right. It's my creditors that don't."—Hallo.

TO EXPORT AN HEIRESS.

The Count—"Hello, m'sieu le due, what baf you come to America for—business or pleasure?"

The Duke—"Business; I'm going to get married."—Chicago Record.

THE RESULT OF THE PRESENT TENDENCY.

Architect—"Eureka! I've got the ideal."

Contractor—"Ideal what?"

Architect—"The ideal plans for a flat. Eighteen closets and no rooms!"—Chicago Record.

HARD LUCK.

"It's no use," said Meandering Mike; "hard luck's after us an' we might as well quit doin'."

"What do you mean?"

"Every time we strike a town we find that they've opened up a factory an' are lookin' fur hands."—Washington Star.

A CYNICAL DEDUCTION.

"Herbert," she said tenderly, "what did you do with that poetry you wrote on my birthday?"

"That stuff?" he responded, with a sneer. "That wasn't poetry."

"Why, what makes you think that?"

"I got a magazine editor to accept it for publication."

THE CURRENT POLITICAL CANT.

Old Solidman—"So, young man, you wish to marry my daughter. Are you able to support a wife? What is your income?"

Young Slimwad—"Sir, you should be aware that all such questions are unpatriotic and repugnant to the spirit of every true American."—Puck.

THE PROPER IMPLEMENT.

"Do you believe that all flesh is grass, Mrs. Small?" asked Mr. Hunker of his landlady, who requested him to carve.

"Yes, sir; that is what the good book says."

"Then I'll trouble you to have the lawn mower brought in, instead of this carving knife."—Puck.

HOW IT CAME.

"I don't understand," said the man who was visiting New York, "how Tumper came to be put into the directory as a mechanic."

"Well, you see, he had to have some occupation."

"But I thought he busied himself solely with politics."

"That's it. He attends to the machine."—Washington Star.

TWO.

Excited Individual (rushing into drug store)—"Have you got a telephone? I want to telephone out to my house."

Clerk—"Yes, sir. Right back there."

Excited Individual (ten minutes later)—"Well, how much is it?"

Clerk (mechanically)—"What's the number?"

Excited Individual (glaring)—"It's twins."—Judge.

REASONS FOR HIS DAY OFF.

Mr. Howell (of the firm of Gettup & Howell)—"Is there any good reason, Mr. Addemup, why you should want to take the day off?"

Bookkeeper—"Why, yes, sir; I think there is. My youngest boy fell and broke his leg this morning, the house next door was on fire when I left home, my daughter is to be married at noon, it's George Washington's Birthday, and I'm sick."—Chicago Tribune.

TRUE DISTRESS.

Richs—"They tell me that Maximake is a smart financier."

Wicks—"Smart? No name for it. He's the brightest intellect I ever knew; he's a phenomenon. Why, the other day a fellow came into Munnimake's office when Munnimake was all alone and demanded, at the point of a revolver, $100,000."

Hicks—"Yes?"

Wicks—"He saw it was no use to refuse, so he drew his check for the full amount."

Hicks—"Nothing very smart about that."

Wicks—"But listen. After handing the fellow the check, Munnimake began to talk confidentially with the chap and actually induced him to invest the whole sum and $10,000 besides in A. Q. and W. bonds that ain't worth the paper they're printed on! That's what I call intellect."—Boston Transcript.

AN OPTIMIST.

"I made quite an impression on Mr Jinglegilt," said the man who is always impecunious.

"Indeed?"

"I told him just what the causes of the recent depression were and showed him how a man with a thousand dollars could take advantage of the times so as to get rich inside of five years."

"How would you do it?"

"Just by watching the corners and attending to business. I offered to give him my note for a thousand, just to demonstrate that it could be done."

"And would he indorse your note?"

"No, but he did the next best thing."

"What was that?

"He indorsed my opinion."—Washington Star.
